GOOD SLOGAN

A group of youngsters on Parliament Hill in one of the back yards built a club house out of discarded cartons and boxes. They adopted a slogan and wrote it on the door. That slogan was the slogan: "Don't act big. Don't act little. Just act medium."

This might be called a fair definition of Christian humility. Humility is a comparatively new word in the English language. The Latin word meaning ground-level. The humble person is the person who is down-to-earth, who has his feet on it to stay. Because of this he is the people who try to act big are offensive and ridiculous. The people who are conscientiously trying to act little remind us of the hypocrite in one of Dickens' novels who is always so humble.

The Christian humility is, as the youngsters put it, "just act-medium." Not pushing up too high; not going down too low; maintaining dignity with no pride, and humility with no debasement; being cringing and despicable.

It is interesting in every field of the natural sciences that balance is one of the greatest factors of universal life. Physiological balance is of prime importance. So is balance as regards the psychological aspects of life. Financially, socially, spiritually, politically — in all these things balance. Not big; not little; just medium.

They Applaud Audience

Ottawa Citizen

When the cast of the Moscow Art Theatre was taking a curtain call in London the other night, the actors and technicians applauded the audience in reciprocity of pleasure and congratulations is said to be an old Russian custom, and on reflection it can be seen to be both gracious and reasonable.

The audience has had a good time, and it has been a case watching a new production of Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard — the actors deserve the acclaim for its enjoyment. By curtain calls the storm of applause it expresses its thanks.

But the actors are indebted to the audience, too. They owe it their raison d'etre, since there is no point in acting in solitude. They depend on it for their livelihood, for they will cease to be employed if nobody wants to see it.

They derive inspiration from it, the actor's spirits soaring and his powers reaching their peak as he senses the working of the mind of his part. In a way, he should thank its audience for patience, since rather often stage performances call for a high brilliance in authorship or production.

In North America, tributes by performers are not unknown. A baseball clench its cap above his head in salute to the fans. A baseball player will touch the visor of his cap. The orchestra conductor shares credit by shaking hands with the instrumentalists and making a gesture to include the audience. Actors may bow to their admirers. But still, audiences which continent really do not get applauded in the whole-hearted Russian fashion. They might like

HOW TO BUILD UP STRENGTH FOLLOWING A STROKE

"Dear Dr. Molner: The advice I give may help someone who has had a stroke. I was stricken with paralysis and was in bed six months I had to feed and dress myself with the left hand. People ought to practice doing things with the left hand and if it wouldn't come as hard — L.E."

I'd pose so. But what if you have a stroke that affects the right side? Or suppose you don't have a stroke at all? Let's not look for the worst, I always say. Anyway, your handwriting is evidence that people get over strokes. The other things you mentioned — soaking the affected hand, squeezing a rubber ball to build up strength, working the fingers back and forth, all are precisely the things doctors hope patients will take seriously. The smart patients do.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am expecting a baby the latter part of July and am writing to ask you where I can get booklets on different methods of giving infants an enema. Mrs. H. L."

Where can the baby's aunt I'm glad you asked me.

Here's the answer is this: First, there's only one place an enema can be given. Second, and more important, you don't want to shake yourself loose from the idea that you are going to have a well-born infant enemas before you have any idea that he'll need one. Third, I'm not booked on enemas any reason at all for an enema. So I'm not booked. If you are in doubt, ask him how.

"Dear Sir: Is it or isn't it normal to wipe a speck of blood away from the eye with cotton wool?"

Nearly every time I find a speck of blood in the eye and that am beginning to wonder whether it is normal. My bowels move regularly. Mrs. A. B. C."

No, it's not normal. It can mean a number of things. It can be a small hemorrhold, fissure, tumor or whatnot. In any event, it must be taken seriously. Whatever the cause, it is a 1,500 to 1 wager it is not a simple matter. Now is the best time to correct it is — you guessed it! — now. Ask your doctor at once.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there an operation (surgery) to improve hearing? I have heard there is, but it was not from a professional. Any help you can give will be full" — A. M."

Not one, but a whole variety of such operations. You wouldn't ask me. "Is there a way to repair a faulty automobile?" Of course not. you would know that it might be a matter of rings, plugs, distributor, bearings, fuel pump, valves, or whatever else there is in an engine — and you'd call a skilled mechanic. Anyway, faulty hearing may be from something as simple as a plug of hardened wax, or a chronic infection, or thickened ear drum, or damage to the "stirrup" or other small bones which transmit the sound vibrations. Not all loss of hearing, by the way, can be corrected but much more can be corrected now than was possible even a few 10 years ago, or five. And hearing aids have improved astoundingly. Whether or not you are a candidate for such operation, or some very simple treatment, is a decision to be made after an experienced physician has examined you. Don't take your friend's word for it, or a amateur. Rely on somebody who knows his living earning either.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter was hit on the spot where she was vaccinated. It looks like a little sore now. She's sore instead of a vaccination. The spot is healing, but what must I do about it? Do you think the vaccination is effective still? — Mrs. A. M."

Don't do anything about it. I am sure the vaccination is effective. The vaccine, you see, was introduced into the body at the time it was given. So long as the spot is healing, everything will be all right.

Bed Wetting can be conquered. To learn how, write to me in care of this newspaper requesting a copy of my booklet, "Enuresis — Ten Ways To Stop Bed Wetting," and enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20c in coin to cover handling.

Believes Tall Carrot Tale

Bethany Star

One of the latest horticultural claims of the Russians is that they can now grow carrots three feet tall without endangering their wife. The story is probably true. The Russians have given the world many examples of horticultural and agricultural discovery, ranging from wheat strains to crabapples.

The report says the secret lies in hormones, which have a fantastic capacity to stimulate growth. Professor Mikhail Shemyakin, an organic chemistry authority, says a fraction of an ounce of the fungi contains growth hormones than two acres of land is enough to obtain a giant carrot crop.

There is always something new in horticulture. In the days when the Loyalists settled in Canada and the United States the world knew of only a few sorts of fruit, vegetable or flower would emerge from the wizard's garden. Since that time, of soldiers gardening with tomatoes and other vegetables, there has been a flood of liquid chemicals. There was much publicity over the possibility of growing tremendous supplies of vegetables without soil. It was available to grow a "hog" for home production. But the fad died.

How often has the story been told of a small, stilted pumpkin! This story tells how a wick from a small supply fed into the pumpkin feeds the vegetable and its just grows and grows and grows.

There are many claims by the Russians that are distasteful. When it comes to horticulture anything can happen. Some day somebody may produce the perfect black tulip or blue rose. Either one of those would be an accomplishment. Scarcity of Page One headlines in the newspapers.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Whether these movie actors, band leaders, prize fighters and who adopt stage names and nons de plumes have to go to court to get permission to use an alias as I don't know. Probably n o t. I'm sure we might call "working names."

The idea of a working name is now being more widely used than in the entertainment world, F o r instance in big business where the girls on telephones who connect the public are not allowed to give their names, but only the phone, the desk they sit at Is Miss Brown, Robertson and so forth; thus keeping the contact with the public personal, apparently. You open negotiations with a Miss Brown. You call back, and get a different sounding Miss Brown. But it is okay. She has your file before her. It is the file you called. The desk of the triple Miss Brown.

You know, it might'n't be a bad idea for all of us to have working names. It makes for privacy, independence. At home, you s ay Bill Smith. But at work you could be Pierre Chesterville or s o m e such pretty name.

Unfortunately, the people who have already thought up the vivid ones in working names have been troublesome to the police for some centuries and in business, in the entertainment and literary world, are labor.

In business it is mere desk that is Miss Brown.

Parental Lack, Broken Homes Factors in Crowded Prisons

Penal institutions officials, vitally concerned with the steady increase in today's crime rate during a period of prosperity, are attempting to discover the causes. Dr. H. G. S. Blackmond, Warden of Collins Bay Penitentiary, told Belleville Rotarians Monday.

"Although our main task is public protection, we are more interested in trying to find the reasons so many prominent people are receiving prison sentences," he said.

Col. Blackmond, in an interesting address on "Penology," said he felt that lack of discipline and parental guidance and broken homes are prime factors.

"Many of our inmates . . . come from broken homes, and many have been married and divorced numerous times," he explained.

The speaker said he felt penal institutions are "doing the job the homes and schools didn't do long ago."

"There is something basically wrong with our home and community life," he stated in stressing families today seldom participate together in activities either inside or outside the home.

"We've got to get down to basic requirements — getting people interested participating in community activities as family units," he said.

The speaker asserted if a convict has a home to go to after his release from prison, he has a better opportunity to get "back on his feet."

Col. Richmond informed his audience Canada has close to 8,000 criminals now serving sentences in eight federal penitentiaries. He said, however, family ties are stronger, there are only 1,800 convicts incarcerated, (although the country has accomodation for 3,000), he said.

Although Canada's crime-rate is not as great as those in the United States (California alone has a total of 17,535 convicts "doing time" on an intake of 1,239 last month), it nevertheless is increasing, the speaker asserted.

TEACH TRADES

"If penal institutions today have a steadily increasing intake during a period of prosperity, I shudder to think of what will happen if a recession sets in", the Warden stated.

At Collins Bay Penitentiary we do all we can to help persons prepare themselves to make an honest living when they are released," he said, in explaining that eight trades are taught at this completely self-supporting institution. Courses include plumbing, building, automotive repair, electrical and farming, and are of three years duration.

Col. Richmond urged Rotarians, if ever they have the opportunity of employing an exinmate, to do so. "They've paid their debt to society, and should be given an opportunity to make an honest living." He mentioned one successful "graduate" of Collins Bay is now making $500 a month as a successful building contractor.

The Warden explained the Collins Bay Institution was built in 1930 as an offshoot of Kingston Penitentiary, to teach trades to those willing to learn.

"We don't have a select group here," he stated. "We get those transferred from Kingston Penitentiary whom prison officials feel will profit most from learning a trade or from good hard work." He explained transferees are determined by I.Q. and aptitude tests, but must be willing to learn and have at least grade 8 education to take a trades course.

The Warden stated most prisoners respond favorably, but some, who have been in and out of prison much of their lives, become "institutionized" and are unable to live outside "the prison walls".

"Very few of our prisoners are first offenders, most of them have developed a bent in reform schools or jails. They must draw a sentence of at least two years to be sent to a federal penitentiary", he explained.

A small pay-box ward and a psychiatrist from Kingston Penitentiary serve both institutions. Collins Bay Penitentiary boasts a large farm, from which produce is canned and shipped east and west to markets. All farm and construction work is done by prisoners. Even building materials for construction purposes are manufactured at the penitentiary by the inmates, he said.

The Warden informed Rotarians a new penitentiary is presently being constructed at Joyceville, Ont., to help relieve the present overcrowding of the Kingston institutions.

"It may be a minimum security institution (no walls or fences), and we hope it will be operating, at least partially, by next year", Richmond stated.

Col. Richmond was introduced by magistrate T. Y. Wills, who informed Rotarians the speaker, a native of England, entered penitentiary service as a guard at Kingston Penitentiary in 1925. He served with the Canadian Army in the European theatre during World War II, attaining the rank of Colonel. He was appointed Warden of Collins Bay Penitentiary in 1950.

The speaker was thanked by Frank Bugelle, and presented with a memento on behalf of the club, by president Joseph Dunn.

The resignation of Rotarian Dana Bowerman, the local club was announced by president Demeza. Mr. Con assistant manager of Bowerman's Warehouse, is being transferred to his home town of Port Arthur. He has been a member of Belleville Rotary for the past three and one-half years.

A small barn at Butler's Dairy, 85 Grier Street, together with a barn full of baled hay and straw, was gutted by fire early Monday in a blaze which city firemen found difficult to bring under control.

First alarm was sent in at one o'clock and after the fire in the burning hay was apparently out, the reels were called back about midnight when the blaze again broke out.

Cause of the fire was unknown. There was no electric wiring in the building. A car owned by the dairy management was saved from the building.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the last delivery horse owned by the dairy had been sold yesterday and the hay in the barn was to be sold today.

After the Conservatives left caucus to sit as an Independent, the Independent Labor Party, the Independent Labor Party to support the government. He won the 1953 by-election and since then has been the driving force behind the political strength.

Conducting a hard-driving campaign like those of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, but with the personal touch of Manitoba Premier George Drew, Mr. Robin ended the dominance of Manitoba politics by Liberals and Liberal-Progressives since 1943. The Liberal-Progressives had held the Liberal-Progressives since 1922.

Mr. Robin promised increased agricultural aids and a new deal for agriculture.

The campaign was quiet, quiescent until a late hour but the votes he anticipated from rural Manitoba failed to materialize in numbers great enough to offset opposition gains in the Winnipeg area, where the Liberals took only one seat.

AIDS CCF

The CCF also benefited from the downfall of the government-making three seats from the Liberal-Progressives as they more than doubled the five seats they held at dissolution.

Early returns showed the Liberal-Progressives and the Canadian Press paid at 10:26 p.m. CDT, 45 minutes after the polls closed, the defeat of the government was indicated. CP reported election of the Conservatives with the largest legislature group at 10:46 p.m.

Voting was unexpectedly heavy after a campaign which appeared to stir slight interest. About 484,200 persons were eligible. The final total appeared likely to be about 280,000 compared with the record of 307,836 set in 1953.

Premier Campbell was returned aside from those of the three major parties when Stephen John of Winnipeg, re-elected as an Independent in the Winnipeg riding of Logan.

W. A. Kardash, the last Communist member of a legislature in Canada, was defeated by the CCF in the Winnipeg riding of Burrows losing a legislature seat of the House since 1941.

The record list of 179 candidates included 12 Social Credit-ers, seven Independents and four Independent Conservatives.

Walter D. Taylor, Social Credit leader, was the only party chief to meet defeat when he lost in the rural Arthur riding.

Seventeen Conservative gains included 10 from the Liberals, three from Social Credit, one from the CCF and one from an Independent.

Washer Given To Go Along With Dryer

HAMILTON (CP) — The automatic clothes dryer given to Mrs. Leonard Devlin by a 19-year-old Hamilton girl has been joined by an automatic washer.

Fifty-two-year-old Mrs. Devlin, who had both her legs amputated after a heart attack ago, said Saturday: "A truck drew up, and the driver said he had instructions to deliver the washer at my house. He wouldn't say anything else, apart from that the washer had been paid for by an anonymous well-wisher.

"By that person, I want to say 'thank you' from the bottom of my heart."

Less than two hours after the story of Norma Talbot's gift of a $300 dryer to Mrs. Devlin appeared in Thursday's papers, a representative of the Electrical Contractors' Association called at Mrs. Devlin's home.

"He told me that if a 19-year-old girl could give me a dryer, association could at least put in the wiring," said Mrs. Devlin. Electricians were sent to the house and the dryer was installed.

Norma won the dryer in a contest. Her mother already had a washer, but gave it to her friend, Mrs. Devlin.

Now that she has received her shining new washer, Mrs. Devlin is going to give her old washer to her sister-in-law, the mother of four children, whose machine has broken down.

Triple Wedding Makes Mother's Dream True

MONTREAL (CP) — A 56-year-old Montreal who likes to organize things Saturday engineered his mother's fondest dream when he saw her daughter and two married at the same time.

Marjorie Perrault and her brothers, Raymond, 34, and Roger, 22, married their sweethearts Saturday in a triple wedding ceremony in a west-end Roman Catholic church.

Later in summer, Mrs. Perrault told her sons she had dreamed they all married at the same time.

Maurice, a second - year law student, took over from there, organizing everything from the service to the reception.

"The girls — Suzanne Bissonette, Andree Lacoursiere and Marguerite Lapointe — Mademoiselle Lapointe — jumped at the plan immediately," said Mr. Perrault.

"You know, the bigger and fancier the wedding the more the girls like it."

Use Dainty Feminine Velvets On Golf Links, Drawing Rooms

By SYLVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

COMO, Italy (CP) — An Italian fashion house has transformed velvet from a dainty, feminine, evening-wear fabric into a rugged tomboy, at home on the golf course or the 19th tee.

The "relax" velvet introduced by the House of Legler is crease-resistant, stain and water-repellent, doesn't show dust and you can wash it yourself.

Woven in jewel tones, some roses, tulips, canary down and numerous other designs, the fabric was displayed to fashion writers and buyers from all parts of the world at an open-air fashion show on the banks of Lake Como in this northern Italian town.

BY TOP DESIGNERS

The show featured top Italian designers including F a b i a n i, Capucci, Carosa, and Liveli. They concentrated on next summer's clothes with daring and originality.

All favor the sack line. Occasionally a waisted number slipped in, but it was cunningly designed to look like a sack above and below the middle. But there are sacks and sacks. Each designer interviewed by The Italians showed how fetching they could look.

Even coats have been a semi - sack look. For the golf course there's a sack coat of mustard-yellow velvet. And designer Enzo has produced a two-piece comprising a comfortable gathered skirt topped by a loose back-buttoning jacket.

There were two dramatic cocktail numbers in printed velvet.

One by Fabiani, of black and yellow sunflowers on a white background, featured the semi-trapeze line falling from wide neckline. The other by Antonelli, in white velvet dotted with coloured candy drops had a chemise top caught in a wide band under the bust. Soft folds follow through to the hemline, and the dress with a harem skirt caught tightly at the knees.

CAPTIONS TOO

Printed and woven cottons combined for dual effects were featured in the term "print" finish and numerous patterns such as spiral staircases, saxophones, coins, and Persian prints checked with gold decorated many fabrics.

Designer Carosa, favoring the spiral staircase pattern, introduced a Grecian-inspired number. The effect was a straight tunic over a tight skirt. Square necked and sleeveless, the dress caught at the front of the waist with a small bow to let you know where your waist is.

The collection, reminiscent of the 1920s, is surprisingly youthful and flattering to all ages. Accessories are all-important for the complete effect and all the manequins wore long stands of colored beads and fine - pointed spindle heels.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

GROOM'S ATTIRE AT AFTERNOON WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our wedding is to be in church in the late afternoon, 5 o'clock. My fiancee says I should wear a tuxedo, that is, tuxedo trousers and white dinner jacket. I think it's a terrible mistake for a man to wear a dinner jacket, either black or white, before 6 o'clock, particularly in this Day-light-Saving Time when it's so light even at this hour. I'd feel as though I'm sure I'd look- Since m, bride will wear a white wedding dress and bride's veil (although it is says her costume is 'simple'), I am entirely willing to wear formal day attire, striped trousers and either cutaway coat or short black coat (it's as easy as to me this nowadays). She thinks this would be too formal, that a dark blue suit would not be at all right, and so the tuxedo would be just right. What's correct for me to wear? — Dick

It would be entirely correct for you to wear the formal daytime attire you suggest - striped trousers and cutaway coat or short or, less formal, the short black jacket, in very popular today. This attire is correct at an afternoon wedding (it's called 'white tie' bride wears a wedding dress and bridal veil, even though costume is "simple").

As you say, and for the best reasons you give, it would be entirely wisely give, to wear a tuxedo suit, either black or white, before 6 o'clock in the evening, at the very earliest. If there must be a compromise, I suggest you wear a dark-blue suit, quite acceptable for a semi-formal wedding.

ENGAGED GIRL'S THANK-YOU-NOTE OBLIGATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My engagement has recently been announced, and I have received quite a few engagement presents from relatives and friends. Most of these I have thanked for personally, several by telephone. Also I have received some letters and cards of best wishes. Now am I also supposed to write thank-you notes to these gifts, letters and notes?

— Engaged girl

That's just what you are supposed to do, lady . . . and that's just what you should do. These days-of-your engagement are showcase days in your life, and you should show in your thank-you notes that you really appreciate these thoughtful and generous gestures made by your relatives and friends.

"HONOUR" AND "FAVOUR" ON WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband just received an invitation to a large and very important wedding and reception. The invitation to the church ceremony reads: "request the honour of your presence." "honour" spelled with the "u," as we know is correct on formal wedding invitations. But then, on the enclosed card of invitation to the reception, "The favor of a reply is requested" has "favor" spelled without the "u." Was this correct? — M. H.

No. Correctly "honour" is spelled with the "u" on wedding invitations - and correctly, and consistently, "favour" should also be spelled with the "u."

VERBAL THANKS NOT ENOUGH. . . WRITE THANK-YOU NOTE TO "MR. AND/MRS."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received a very handsome wedding present from my employer and his wife. I have talked with his wife quite a few times on the telephone, and I have never met her. My mother insists that, since the enclosed card included both names, I should write a thank-you note to both, addressed to their home-address. I think that since I have never met her, perhaps I should just thank my employer at his office. Which should I do?

— E. G.

You could follow your mother's advice . . . write a fine thankyou note to both, mail it to their home address.

LONG-LIVED POET

Agnes Maul Machar, Canadian poet and novelist, was 90 years old at her death in Kingston, Ont., in 1927.

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP)—Mrs. Phyllis Byron Allfrey has been appointed minister of social affairs in the first Cabinet of the new federation of the West Indies.

The woman in the cabinet, she is one of two women elected to the 45-member federal parliament. The other is Mrs. Florence Daysh, former member of the Barbados legislative council.

Mrs. Allfrey is a socialist and white; Mrs. Daysh is a Conservative and colored.

FROM DOMINICA

A native of Dominica, Mrs. Allfrey is president and founder of the Dominica Labor party. She has lived for lengthy periods in the United Kingdom and has been a member of the British Labor party in the past. She took an active part in the British elections of 1945.

Mrs. Allfrey, who says she "recently moved into my 40's," told a reporter in an interview that "fondness of the insulted and the injured led her into politics."

"The frustration, poverty and absence of industries in my island of Dominica aroused me to solve."

Her election was considered a great personal victory, having contested a field previously considered completely male preserve White and a Protestant she won in an area where Roman Catholicism is predominantly colored and Roman Catholic.

Mrs. Allfrey, whose main ambitions lie along literary lines, is married to Wilfred Allfrey, a white, the minister of social affairs "as the wife of a minister in a different sense." One of her major responsibilities will be the provision of better housing throughout the federated islands.

SUGAR PLANTER

Mrs. Florence Daysh is a native of Barbados and the owner of a sugar plantation. She began her political career as a member of the Barbados legislative council.

Mrs. Daysh has been active for years in one of the oldest child care centres in Barbados.

"The emphasis in social work in Barbados," she said, "Before 1925 we used to give things; but now we try to do more teaching and to encourage our women to take pride in themselves and try to give them a sense of civic responsibility."

Mrs. Daysh feels that the federation will practically all of British colonies in the Caribbean may have come a little out closer.

"But now that it is here it must stay and we all have to try to make it a success."

She hopes the federal government will be able to lift barriers that now prevent the free movement of people among the various islands forming the federation.

"We have to travel more and know each better if federatin in to succeed," she said.

Canadian Girl Saved Before Execution Date

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Philippines gained a Canadian girl missionary when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

Blanche Palmer, a former Winnipeg nursery who became a missionary, was on her way to a post in India at the time. She was interned by the Japanese at Manila.

Since the end of the war she has remained in the Philippines as a missionary.

During a visit here she told of her career. After her internment she worked for seven years on a starvation diet in the Santo Tomas and Los Banos prison camps near Manila. Later she was released and allowed to work among the natives, but at the American forces advanced she was put back in the prison camps. U.S. paratroopers captured the camp a few hours before she and other prisoners were to have been executed, she said.

Her headquarters now are at Zamboanga, where the average temperature is 90 degrees or more.

"We have two seasons—hot and hotter," she said. "We have rain about six months of the year. There are only two outstanding things in my valleys—dust and mud."

CALLED BACK

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (CP)—Royal Columbian Hospital here has sponsors now starting to retired or married surgical nurses to fill vacancies caused by illness and holidays.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case study. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. E. T. — Why should she resent us?

Betty T. — I am 22 years old, single and have many friends and interests. My problem is my parents, who insist on me too much. I suppose it's because I'm the youngest child and only girl.

My parents continually question me about where I am going and what I am doing. They usually wait up for me, when I go out on dates and insist upon being present when I go out.

They know me well enough to know I'm not likely to do anything wrong. Why should they oversee me like this?

I would like to give a party for a group of my friends and to have the house to myself for one night. My parents sometimes go out for an hour or two while I'm entertaining, but then they come back and it kind of puts a damper on everyone's fun.

Mrs. E. T. — Our daughter seems to have suddenly become ashamed of her parents. We have never interfered with her friends or entertaining, but then why should she resent us so much?

Isn't it natural for parents to be present when a young girl goes out on a date? What harm do we do if we shake hands with her date and talk to him a bit? We don't monopolize her. We trust her completely. Yet she shows she is always in a hurry to be rid of us.

We think Betty has very nice friends and we are always interested in meeting them. We are getting older and don't get around very much. It means a lot to us to enjoy a little sociability with the young people.

Betty says we should stick to our friends and leave hers to her. We don't take anything from her when we talk to them.

The Council: The presence of parents at parties and before and sometimes after dates is important for teenagers because it represents authority. The youngsters have not yet become their own authority.

With maturity, the young person takes on full responsibility for himself. If he wishes to do wrong the parent can no longer stop him. He has by now well brought up, his behavior will show it.

At this time, almost any young person will resent the presence of parents in the midst of his social life. The parent may not mean to supervise, yet he seems to stand over him. He feels as though a "child" is concerned.

Usually the conservations prohibits an entirely friendly relationship. It is hard for the younger person to be open as to any thing but representatives of authority.

This will past in time as t h e younger person becomes e v e n more mature. When the younger person has completely asserted himself in the world through his work and personal relationships, he feels on a more equal basis with the parent generation and is willing to enter social conversations with the parents freely.

The E. T.'s should recognize these facts. They are wrong to put pressure on Betty in t h i s matter and to cause her to feel guilty about her perfectly natural desire for complete independence.

"Long Ago I Worked For A Lady . . ."

by Mary Moore

(As told to Mary Moore by Mrs. C. H.)

Dear Mary Moore: As a limited time cook, colored, I came upon English trifle, which to me does not need much explanation. I First of all, would not some bought sponge cake do? I worked for a lady who was a so-called jello cake . . . broke it in a dish, then an it was broken up and dropped in a dish also bits of jelly were put here and there in between, also broken walnuts, also maraschino cherries that had been put in the sherry. Sherry was poured over as layers were laid, then a custard was poured over it the night before. Already till next evening — then dish into dishes and put whipped cream on. It really is good. This was served at their parties some times. Of course parties came to some now . . . they never served any drink but tea.

"They also made mince pies for Xmas. They were baked in shells with like tart shells but larger. The pastry was French pastry. First the pastry was mixed, set in ice box, next day was got out and rolled out, spread with butter, doubled up, rolled again, spread again and rolled again then put in these shells, filled and lip on top and baked. Warmed up on Xmas day. Was that pastry ever flaky, and the whipped cream on top. Now I don't know where they got the mince. No doubt from a factor.

Reporters Call Ellen Fairclough 'Regular Guy'

By CAROLYN WILLERT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Ellen Fairclough, said a veteran reporter, is a "regular guy."

This is a generally-held—and resented—view from the predominately - male Parliamentary Press Gallery of the trim, attractive minister who in the Commons is "the honorable lady, the minister of citizenship and immigration."

A STALEMATE

"The battle of the sexes will never be won by either side; there is too much fraternizing with the enemy," Mrs. Fairclough once said in an address outside the Commons.

The house wife accountant from Hamilton West handles her Commons post with characteristic thoroughness and that of the aplomb of a veteran politician.

Mrs. Fairclough, first elected last June as secretary of state, she was handed the tough citizenship and immigration portfolio in May when Prime Minister Diefenbaker shuffled his cabinet after the March 31 Conservative election victory

High Winds Bring Big Loss To Holland Marsh Farmers

Gusts of more than 50 miles an hour Monday churned through miles of parched and unprotected farmland, uncovering acres of crops and piling them into deep drifts along roadside fences.

One construction worker was killed in London when the wind blew over a concrete wall. Motorists on Highway 400 between Toronto and Barrie, were forced to drive with their headlights on to get through a veil of flying soil. Some drivers were unable to control their vehicles and pulled over to the side.

The weatherman said the worst is over although gusts in some areas might reach 25 to 30 miles per hour today.

Hardest hit were the Holland Marsh areas where crops were laid bare for the second time within a month. The Niagara Peninsula escaped the brunt of the blow and no serious damage was reported.

Nick Huck of Federal Farms at Holland Landing, 40 miles north of Toronto, said about 1,000 acres in the southern parts of the Holland Marsh were affected. Lettuce, carrots and onions were either uncovered or blown away and it was considered too late in the season to replant.

C. E. Fitman, an agriculture department official, said he could not estimate the damage but said it would run up to $60 an acre to restore the crops, depending on the amount of fertilizer required.

Low rainfall this spring was blamed by the department also for the condition of the land. Southern Ontario has received only 59 per cent normal rainfall during the last five months. The Windsor area has had only 36 per cent normal.

Rainfall in the Toronto area, including the month during April and May was the lowest on record: 3.65 inches compared with a normal 7.73. A saving factor has been the temperature, not unseasonably cool as well as warm as in recent years. Agriculture department experts said the low temperature has kept winter's moisture in the soil.

A large tent, set up for a variety show, was blown to shreds in suburban west-end Dixie shopping plaza. Dozens of trees and television aerials were other victims.

The weatherman blamed a low pressure area over the Gulf of St. Lawrence for causing the winds. Normal June winds reach 20 to 25 miles an hour with gusts up to 35, but Monday's pace of 35 miles an hour continued for hours at the weather station at nearby Malton. The previous high during the last 40 years was 34 miles an hour.

SUMMIT PARLEY

In Washington, the state department made public its side of the story—three documents totalling about 2,000 words.

Gromyko said he was making public Khrushchev's letter and policy statements because the Western press had distorted Russia's position on a summit. Gromyko said he wanted to set the record straight.

"In some of these meetings we have only marked time, and in some cases we have even moved backwards.

"It is high time that both sides act with full sincerity to clear up their positions on the main question — do both sides really want a summit conference?"

Khrushchev returned to his original position: Hold a summit meeting promptly to "solve first all the questions which already are ripe for solution and then move on to the solution of more complicated questions."

The state department called Mr. Khrushchev move a surprise.

"We can only conclude that a major purpose of Mr. Khrushchev's letter," a department spokesman said, "was to publicize once again the standard positions taken by the Soviet Union on topics it considers should be discussed at a summit meeting."

There were no surprises immediately apparent in the documents. They showed no progress on the key task of the diplomatic talks, where and how a summit conference could be held.

WELLINGTON — The adult Sunday school class of the Pentecostal church was recently honored at a luncheon in the town hall. It was sponsored by the losing classes of a recent "Rockets Away" contest held by the Sunday school classes. The losers had to furnish the luncheon.

The guest speaker for the evening was the Rev. Roy McClean, of Bethell Temple, Trenton, who brought a challenging message on the, "Great Work of the Sunday School".

Mrs. and Mrs. Anderson and family, who accompanied him from Trenton, rendered several musical selections in song.

The luncheon concluded with an enjoyable time around the table.

A special Father's Day service was held in the Pentecostal Church Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Daw and family sang several numbers during the evening and Mrs. Daw rendered a lovely solo.

LIBERAL LEADER

Today's front - page article in the Independent newspaper says Mr. Crerar and two others connected with Hydro's gas operation were listed for posts in the corporation before the change of ownership was completed.

Carl A. Tellman, president of Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Company and of Keystone Transports Ltd., became the new gas corporation's vice - president for production and transportation. Harold A. B. Stuffman, secretary-treasurer of the same two affiliates, became secretary-treasurer.

"At one and the same time they were ranking officials of the Province of Quebec and designated ranking officials of the new corporation that was dealing with the province."

Le Devoir said the three men were the principal advisers to Quebec Hydro, to John Bourke, then minister of hydraulic resources and to the provincial government of gas matters.

During his press conference, Mr. Lesage said he does not want to bring any charges in connection with the sale of the gas system "but we have enough information so this affair is sure to be pet."

He suggested the royal commission inquiry should be headed by a judge of the Quebec Superior Court or the Quebec Court of Appeals.

The provincial electricity board, a rate-setting organization, would not be an impartial judge in the matter. The board formerly was under the supervision of Mr. Bourke, now finance minister, whose post as minister of hydraulic resources the financial structure of any organization selling public utilities.

But, said Mr. Lesage, only a royal commission could recommend, for instance, that cabinet ministers resign.

He said in his opinion the electricity board would not be an impartial judge in the matter. The board formerly was under the supervision of Mr. Bourke, now finance minister, whose post as minister of hydraulic resources includes

Superior Provincial Park Said Ideal Fish, Camp Site

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Only a handful of hardy outdoorsmen have visited Lake Superior Provincial Park, a wilderness area of 540 square miles along Lake Superior's eastern shore. Today getting into it entails a rugged trip.

Yet by 1960 the Ontario department of lands and forests hopes to make it one of the best-known fishing and camping parks in Eastern Canada.

The key to the development is the Trans-Canada Highway now being built along Superior's north shore to link this city with the through 50 miles of the now almost inaccessible parklands.

A lands and forests program to create camping and picnic sites along the route will be completed in time for the highway's opening, expected within two years.

Gordon Longley, acting district forester, says the development will be aimed at preserving the wilderness while at the same time providing facilities to let visitors enjoy it.

The park lies between the Michipicoten River in the north and the Montreal River to the south. Part of its eastern boundary is the Algoma Central Railway's line running northward to Sault Ste. Marie to Hearst.

First phase of the park's development calls for small camping sites along the highway and a lookout post on Agawa Bay, in the park's southern end about 85 miles north of here.

Mr. Longley said the department will then lay out a network of routes for canoe or horseback trips to promote family or group camping in the deeper parklands.

"At a future date we hope to establish a nature museum . . . and I suppose the final development will be the construction of trading posts, stables, concessions and boats for hire."

Private development is ruled out. "We must at all costs avoid excessive commercialism."

At the park entrances the department will set up information booths to issue park entry permits, fishing licenses and information.

To promote tourist arrivals the park's historical background will be stressed. It was once a rich fur region, and a cemetery at the Agawa River marks the site where a Hudson's Bay trading post once flourished.

The park is expected to attract great numbers of fishermen campers, hikers, nature - lovers and camera enthusiasts from the U.S. and Canada.

Sir Winston Was Not Cocksure Of Beating Nazis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Documents held secret 18 years disclosed Sir Winston Churchill may not have been so cocksure of beating the Nazis as he let on in 1940.

Hitherto unpublished cables and messages, many of them exchanges between Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, were made by the state department in a 1,029-page volume.

A glimpse of Churchill's doubts of success in the first year of the war was provided in a cable to Roosevelt from Joseph Kennedy, then U.S. ambassador in London. The message was dated May 15—five days after Churchill became prime minister. Kennedy wrote: "I just left Churchill at one o'clock. He is sending you a message tomorrow saying he considers with the entrance of Italy, the chances of the Allies winning is slight."

However, Churchill's message to Roosevelt turned out to be grimly confident. In his personal history of the Second World War, Churchill quoted the message as saying:

"If necessary, we shall continue the war alone, and we are not afraid of that."

At one point in the collection of documents, the Duke of Windsor was quoted as saying the war should be ended before "thousands more were killed or maimed to save the faces of a few politicians."

This came in a cable from Alexander W. Weddell, then U.S. ambassador to Spain, to the state department.

Weddell reported a conversation in Madrid the night of July 1, 1940, with the duke.

Weddell quoted the duke as saying Germany had totally reorganized its society in 10 years of preparation for the war. The duke was further quoted as saying that countries unwilling to reorganize themselves that way should "avoid dangerous adventure."

Bertram Brown May Sit Near Royal Princess

TORONTO (CP) — Among the bejewelled and bemedalled visitors in the royal box at the Stanley Cup Festival July 31, there will be a man in plain, ordinary jacket and slacks.

He is Bertram Brown, a Toronto music teacher and holder of a ticket which puts him right in the block of centre seats reserved for Princess Margaret and her party for the performance of A Winter's Tale.

Festival officials, when informed the princess would attend the performance, sent out 36 letters asking for the return of the tickets and got 36 tickets back.

But the holder of the 37th ticket—number 6237 — was unknown.

Some pessimistic officials foresaw the owner of the ticket turning up in jeans and T-shirts, not uncommon at Stratford performances.

Mr. Brown says, however, he will wear a jacket and slacks.

"I've been a Shakespearean fan all my life but this is a real thrill," he said. "I haven't heard yet what's going to happen; if of a passenger express at Lodguest I'll be allowed to keep the ticket. I suppose they could still confiscate it when I appear that night and give me another seat."

Mr. Brown said he had been keeping the ticket locked in his desk since he found out the performance would be attended by the princess.

"But from now on I think I'll keep it in a safety deposit box at the bank."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

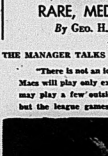
THE MANAGER TALKS

"There is not an iota of truth in the statement that the Macs will play only exhibition games next season. They may play a few outside the Eastern Senior "A" League, but the league games will be for points."



DRUEY DENTES

That was Drury Denyes speaking in reference to the story which came out of Kitchener yesterday following the meeting of the all-Ontario senior "A" clubs.

"Furthermore," Drury Denyes went on, "The McFarlands expect to play some forty-four games in their own home town before going overseas and every one of them will be for figurative blood, so to speak. The Macs have a keen job in front of them and they will have no time to waste on silly exhibition games other than those which are played to get them in shape, in conjunction with the games with the teams in their own "run."

Mr. Denyes stated that the western group wanted an interlocking schedule, something similar to that played with the Whitby Dunlops last season, but this he refused to do. "We might play an odd game with one or more of the western or northern clubs, but as far as a schedule goes, we shall do all that work in our own league."

There was little or no suggestions from the Western Ontario or Northern Ontario clubs, Denyes said. These people had had their own meeting and had agreed upon certain things. However, occasionally, the western delegates would nod their heads in agreement to something or other, then again a northern noggin' would nod itself in acquiescence to a suggestion.

"Practically every suggestion that was passed and agreed upon was made by eastern delegates," Drury said.

He also stated that the salary maximum, to wit, $2,500, was in error.

"The Eastern clubs," he said, "agreed on a figure of $1,250. The McFarlands will operate for even less than that. Figures were flying around, but that is what we agreed on and that is the way it stands. It was mentioned that no player was to receive over $2,500, so that might give rise to the maximum being the $2,500 figure."

Denyes was anxious to clear up the "no-exhibition" game angle. "Clubs in the loop, to say nothing of the fans, would raise the roof if the Macs went out there and went through the motions. The McFarlands hold the proud position of being Allan Cup champions and will do our best to play championship hockey and to win every game in which we take part."

And by the cut of his jib and the manner in which he expressed himself Manager Drury Denyes of the McFarlands was not talking with tongue in cheek. He was in deadly earnest.

It is perhaps unfortunate the Canadian Press story had the quote: "They will only play exhibition hockey in their own group." This will be circulated among the eastern clubs and there will likely be some resentment before the facts are known and the matter straightened out.

Then, too, there are the fans to be considered. There will likely be a hullabaloo right here before this column hits the front porches. But they can scarcely be blamed. They want to see the Macs in action in the form that won their national honors and the right to go overseas — and that is what they are going to do.

All this and other important matters regarding the McFarlands and other activities of the league will be satisfactorily ironed out next Saturday when the Eastern League holds its annual spring meeting in Pembroke. Incidentally, Pembroke was not represented at the meeting held in Kitchener on Saturday.

The unusual quiet on the part of the western-northern teams at the Kitchener confab may mean something or other. They did not raise any issues, despite the fact some queer rumors have been published in some of the northern newspapers. North Bay is supposed to be angling for entry in the Eastern League while in the western group Kitchener is said to be casting eyes eastward in one paragraph, and with Chatham southward to the International League in another item.

Saturday in Pembroke should clear up a lot of things, especially the question of the Ottawa-Hull Canadiens status, which we believe will be an all-out senior "A" setup with Allan Cup reachings, while the mooted Hull Volants' possibility may extend into something more realistic. Saturday will tell the tale.

In the meantime, the Macs will be out in full strength, added, when the season opens and you can tell your next door neighbors and those who live in opposition areas that Ike and his Hildebrandters will be out to whomp all and sundry who cross their hockey paths come next puck-chasing time.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP — Thoroughly elated in the final yards of the race, Hathaway, one-eyed colt owned and bred by Carr Hatch of Hinsville, won the featured Roy That April's Here purse at New Woodbine Park Monday.

Mrs. Roy A. Dew's Master Bart, H., well back in the early part of the six-furlong sprint, challenged in the last eighth of a mile, Hathaway just got to the post under the energetic ride by Al Coy. Frank Dill, owned by Wilbur Downs Farm, was third.

Argentine Saved From K.O. When Canadian Too Anxious; Low Blow Made Fight Close

TORONTO (CP) — Behind in points, Toronto's George Chuvalo earned a draw Monday night as he brought a crowd of almost 10,000 to its feet by pounding fifth-ranked heavyweight contender Alex Miteff through the ropes in the final round of their professional boxing match.

Only Chuvalo's inexperience saved the Argentine fighter from a knockout. Miteff staggered to his feet at the count of eight and hung on. Chuvalo, excited and overanxious, couldn't put him away.

Miteff was almost carried out feet first, but he recovered quickly in his dressing room.

He had a slight edge in points until the 10th round. He would have won if referee Billy Burke hadn't taken a second round away from him for a low blow.

Burke told the two judges to give Chuvalo the second round. Judge Tony Canzano did, but Jackie Johnston gave Miteff a one-point advantage anyway.

Burke gave the fight to Chuvalo 46-45. Canzano voted 45-45 and Johnston 46-46.

YELLS OF DISMAY

There were yells of discontent among Miteff's handlers. Manager Hymie Wallman said: "I can't go along with that decision, but you've got to take what they give you." Trainer Charlie Fierro said it was a "bum decision by that referee."

Miteff, 9-to-5 favorite, said Chuvalo is a "good fighter and a good boxer." Miteff had a swelling under his right eye and small cuts on his nose.

Miteff is ranked fifth by the National Boxing Association and seventh by Ring Magazine. It was his first draw in 17 pro fights. He lost one by a knockout to Mike De Johnson.

Miteff, 23, has far more experience than the 20-year-old Chuvalo, who has fought only 13 pro fights, losing twice. He had only 1 as an amateur, Miteff had 180.

Miteff showed his experience early. A crowding, aggressive fighter who likes to weave, he made Chuvalo look foolish in some of the middle rounds.

Miteff said he didn't feel good because he had been losing the "four pounds overweight." He weighed 209, Chuvalo 211½.

FOULS MADE CLOSE

Canzano said after the fight: "I never saw a better fight than tonight. It was so close on account of those fouls. Chuvalo was a bit clumsy sometimes, but if a hadn't been for the fouling in the early rounds Miteff would have won.

"If could only give Miteff one point in the first round because he was in there, but that was all. The whole round was Chuvalo's. He tagged him right from the first and Miteff never recovered."

Miteff came out with a body attack as he crowded in close. He was nailed with a long left hook right to the jaw. Chuvalo followed it up with a left hook and another punch.

Tommy McBeigh, Chuvalo's manager, said he doesn't want a rematch with Miteff because he wants George to get experience with someone else.

"... We gained a lot of experience in this fight. Just wait until Chuvalo matures. You'll see something when he's 25."

Musial Slumps To Trail Mays In Batting Race

NEW YORK (AP — Stan Musial's slump and the hitting streaks of Vic Power, Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito were the outstanding developments in the major league batting races at the end of Sunday's play.

Musial went hitless in his 17 times at bat and his average dropped from .419 to .381. He finally got a hit in Monday night's game at Cincinnati to break his famine.

The St. Louis star tumbled into second place in the National League competition behind San Francisco's Willie Mays, who collected only four hits in 26 tries and whose mark fell 29 points to .397.

Meanwhile, while pace-setting Bob Nieman of Baltimore has been on the sidelines with an injury, the American League race has been highlighted by the hitting of Power, Kaline, Colavito and veteran Mickey Vernon, a two-time batting champ.

Vernon created a problem for Cleveland manager Bobby Bragan who now finds himself with two of the circuit's prolific batsmen at the first base position. Power, the Kansas City first baseker, was obtained by Cleveland at the end of Sunday's trades.

In his last 15 tries, Vernon collected 10 hits and moved into second place in the batting derby with a .365 mark. Mickey gained 29 points in the last week to .357.

Power hit safely in his last 22 games—a major league high for the season—had 35 safeties in 92 trips .380 during the streak and lifted his average to .362 from .329.

Colavito, another Cleveland batsman, went on a 12-game hitting streak in which he made 21 hits in 50 trips for .420 pace boosted his percentage to .314 from .270.

Kaline connected safely in his last 18 games. He had 23 hits in 59 at bats during the streak for .390 mark and gained 38 points to .300.

West-Northern Senior A Clubs Secure New Lease of Life

The western-northern division of the OHA senior "A" hockey classification moved drastically the other night to avoid demise and in startling moves made it possible for another year's operation. It is believed all six clubs will operate next season under the new set-up.

The Eastern League concurred in the majority of the west-northern decisions at the all-senior "A" meetings held over the week-end, which makes the road easier for their west-northern counterparts.

Only the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, of the western group represented at the meeting, Windsor Bulldogs, whose future has been clouded, expect to operate, according to Manager Angelo Filiera, who was on hand. He said they had just $30,000 last year, but the club still owed $8,000 but expected to clean up all its debts soon. Included is $1,800 owing to the league pool and other league clubs.

Every team reported losing money but no other figures were divulged except for a North Bay admission that their losses were about the same as Windsor's.

After a long discussion the teams agreed on the following points.

(A) to set a salary limit of $1,750 per week per team, for a 52-game schedule of approximately 27 weeks. No player in the schedule season may draw more than $2,500.

(B) To make only two northsouth trips instead of five as in the 1957-58 season.

(C) To operate with 14 players instead of 16 as in the past.

The group winner will be permitted to strengthen up to 18 players for CAHA playdowns.

These conditions were accepted in an amendment by North Bay's Jack Norris, seconded by Chatham's Tom Weir. It won out over a Kitchener-Waterloo motion for 15 men, $2,000 limit and a 50-game schedule.

The pool will be continued into which each club pays 10 per cent. From this their referee and linesmen expenses will be deducted and the pool split at the end of the season.

The Eastern League will be reorganized at the meeting, Windsor, Sault Ste. Marie and North Bay eliminated from the league. North Bay still owes $2,437 to the team pool and Windsor $1,483 to the playoff pool.

The new salary limit appeared to please NOHA clubs which now expect to qualify under the exemption clauses of the basketball tax act, something that would save all of them several thousand dollars a year.

Secretary - Manager Lorne Miller of the NOHA said that he had heard from the Soo by telephone and that club officials there had denied a report earlier that the club might not operate.

FODGE FARMED OUT

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs sent pitcher Gene Fodge to their Fort Worth farm club on 24-hour recall today and brought a man from for Dick Ellsworth, bonus baby who joined the club Saturday. Fodge pitched in 14 games with the Cubs and had a 1-1 record.

Richmond Snaps Losing Streak; Rochester Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richmond Virginians had to sweat a bit but they finally broke the five-game losing string that had saddled them for nearly a week in the International Baseball League, 4-3, 10-inning victory over Buffalo Bisons did the job Monday night.

Third - baseman Rochester Red Wings made good use of seven unearned runs to defeat Columbus Jets 9-6 in the only other league game.

Johnny Jaciuk's looping single chased home the Virginians winning run in the 10th inning at the expense of losing pitcher Bud Daley. Daley had been the victim of three unearned runs earlier in the game, and the clincher was set up by another error.

A walk, and a bad throw on an attempted sacrifice had put two men on for Richmond when Jaciuk delivered his single. Buffalo scored on three singles in the third, added two more in the sixth on Jack Phillips' two-run homer.

Richmond scored two unearned runs in the fifth and tied it in the seventh on an error, a wild pitch and Chris Boyer's double. Bob Chakales went the route for the Richmond victory.

Red Wings committed three errors to run their bobbling to 31 in the last two games but they overcame a 3-0 deficit with unearned runs in the fourth and seventh to win the game.

Righthander Charley Naranjo was the victim of the shoddy play, while his mates scored once in the first and added a pair in the third.

CLOSE WIN FOR RYFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Favored Frankie Ryff of New York came from behind in the ninth inning to score a narrow but unanimous decision over busy Tommy Tibbs of Boston in a 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Ryff weighed 133½, Tibbs 134¼.

Cardinals Edge Cincinnati In Eleven; Indians Hope to Stretch Yanks' Losing Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whose St. Louis Cardinals are still doing it the hard—way in their scrap for the National League pennant. They've won five of their last 19 games and six of the necessary 12 came in extra innings.

They moved back to .500 and a fourth-place tie by beating Cincinnati 6-5 in 11 innings Monday night, scoring a pair in the ninth to force the overtime. It was the only game scheduled in the majors Monday, and left the Cardinals tied with Pittsburgh, a half game behind the Redlegs.

Stan Musial made a hairline crack in his slump with a single that got the ninth-inning rally going for a 3-3 tie. Eddie Kasko's double moved him to third and Ernie Broglio's single, a force-out and a walk that loaded the bases. Then Joe Cunningham delivered a two-run pinch single.

HOME AFTER WALK

In the 11th, Cunningham singled and Don Blasingame's single brought him home after a walk. Kasko then counted the clinchers off loser Tom Acker (0-2), just enough to cushion a two - run homer by Gus Bell in the Reds' leg 11th. Morrie Martin won it for a 3-1 record—his second victory in three extra-inning sessions with the Cardinals.

In an exhibition game, Chicago Cubs gave bonus baby Dick Ellsworth a look-see and the 19-year-old lefty fired a four-hitter that blanked Chicago White Sox 1-0. Ellsworth, fresh from Fresno, Calif., High School and just added to the Cub roster before game time, struck out two and walked one.

Are New York Yankees ready to be taken? Or is the four-game losing string the champs are dragging just another booby trap ready to explode as they open their second tour of the American League's western division?

Either way, the slump figures to perk up the gate as the Yankees move into Cleveland for a three-game set against the Indians starting tonight, then move on for a three-game series at Detroit.

The Indians, riding a four-game streak for only the second time this season, have picked Ray Narleski (5-4) for the opener against Yankee southpaw Whitey Ford (7-2). They have not beaten Ford in more than two years. No league games were scheduled Monday.

The Yankees, leading the league by seven games although losing nine of their last 15, carry a rare losing scoreless string into Cleveland after Sunday's double shutout by Detroit that gave the Tigers a four - game sweep.

COULD GIVE TROUBLE

They could find more trouble ahead from Narleski, who has won three games in a row and has given up only one run in each.

The Tigers, a half-game behind the fourth - place Indians after jumping out of the cellar by winning six of seven under new manager Bill Norman, open their home stand against the slumping Washington Senators. Paul Foytack (5-6) is the Tiger choice against Pete Ramos (4-4).

The battling Boston Red Sox, clinging to second, try to pass a road test for a change, opening at Chicago with righthander Dave Sisler (4-2) facing Billy Pierce (4-5) of the White Sox. Baltimore Orioles, scoreless in 24 innings and in the cellar, are at Kansas City.

SHORT VISIT FOR BEAMON

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles Monday recalled pitcher Charley Beamon from Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League where he has been only one week. The Orioles sent pitcher Ronnie Moeller back to Vancouver, from where he was brought up on May 12.

Durelle Defends Empire Title Against Holt

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Yvon Durelle will defend his British championship against Mike Holt of South Africa in Montreal July 16, Durelle's manager Chris Shaban, said here Monday night.

Shaban said he reached a financial agreement with the International Boxing Club—30 per cent of the net gate for Durelle plus $4,500 television money. He said he didn't know how much Holt will get. The bout will be semi-jointed by the IBC and Montreal promoter Eddie Quinn. Regarding a possible shot at Archie Moore's world title, Shaban said: "I really would like to see Yvon get a crack at Moore's crown, but the net 12½ per cent offered by promoter Emil Kalasi of Vancouver was so unpredictable that I decided that the IBC deal regarding Holt would be the greater financial benefit to Yvon . . ."

The Holt contract calls for a return match within 90 days should Durelle lose, with each fighter getting 30 per cent of the net gate plus TV money in the return bout.

Bob Cerv Has Wires Removed From Broken Jaw

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bob Cerv of Kansas City Athletics, the American League's leading slugger, can open his mouth again. But he had better not try any heavy chewing for a couple of weeks.

Doctors Monday removed the wires which held Cerv's broken jaw together since May 18, but they said the jawbone is extremely susceptible to a new break.

"They said I might break my jaw again just by chewing on something solid," Cerv said.

The Kansas City left fielder asked that the wires be removed because he had difficulty breathing. The wire held his lips shut, and he's had to take whiffs of oxygen between innings since returning to the lineup May 20.

Cerv was injured May 17 when he crashed into Detroit catcher Red Wilson while trying to score. He missed only three games and then continued to hit well despite his injury. He leads the league in runs batted in with 51 and home runs with 17. He's batting .310.

He also saw action with the senior Dutchmen for three seasons and coached the school and amateur teams in the West.

Western Royals Granted Year Absence Leave

VANCOUVER (CP) — President Al Leader of the Western International League announced Monday night that New Westminster Royals have been granted one year's leave of absence and that Spokane Flyers of the Western International baseball club take over the Royals' franchise for that period. The New Westminster club had said the city were unable to arrive at an arena rental schema agreeable to both parties.

Coach Hal Laycoe of the Royals said: "We paid out $40,000 in the last two years. This (1957-58 season was the best year we had. We almost broke even. We lost $20,000 the year before."

Leader said "The Flyers outdrew several of our clubs last year, they averaged about 4,500 fans a game."

Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver says Royals' Play-By-Ale of the 12 New Westminster players has not been determined. It is probable Spokane may purchase most of them.

Vancouver, Seattle, Victoria and Spokane will make up the coast division in the league. In the Prairie division, Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals will be replaced by Saskatoon Quins who will play all their home games at Saskatoon.

The league schedule will start Oct. 10 and continue through March 22, followed by playoffs.

Newcombe Takes His Memories To Cincinnati

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Newcombe packed his clothes and a flock of memories Monday and headed for Cincinnati after being traded to the Redlegs by Los Angeles Dodgers.

Cincinnati partied with first baseman Steve Bilko, pitcher Johnny Klippstein and an unannounced sum of money for big Newk, once considered the mainstay of the Dodger pitching staff, but without a victory this year.

Newcombe was signed by Brooklyn in 1946 and, sent to Nashua in the New England league. Also joining Nashua that year was catcher Roy Campanella and it is probably more than coincidence that Newcombe's worst year in baseball is the one that finds Campanella's career ended through an automobile accident.

The two formed a highly-charged battery with Nashua, Montreal Royals of the International League and with the Dodgers through the years of Brooklyn's supremacy in the National League. Between them they won the league's most valuable player award four times — Campanella three times and Newcombe once.

Newcombe's big year was 1955 when he won 27 and lost seven. A shoulder injury bothered him last year and he slipped to an 11-12 record.

Fur, Fin & Campfire

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The man with the clipped British accent said "sfie stands 72 inches and unquestionably she is the best discus thrower among females in the country." If, he added, the Canadian army would only realize this and station her someplace where she could train for a year she'll win an Olympic medal.

All of this could be very confusing to the layman but the man—Sgt. Maj. Terry Weatherall at Camp Borden, Ont.—was taking a long-range view on the potentialities of Marie Dupree, a six-foot-three black-haired army nursing assistant. It seems that Marie, who comes from South Burnaby, B.C., tosses the discus as if it were a kitchen saucer.

She hurls it farther than any other Canadian woman ever did and, given the opportunity, will hurl it farther than any woman in the world, says the sergeant major.

NEEDS PRACTICE

The pity of it, though, is that it isn't likely she'll beat records when she goes to Saskatoon for the June 20-21 British Empire Games track and field trials and officials could be short - sighted enough to leave her off the team that sails for the July 18-26 games.

"No," says the sergeant major. "Marie won't even break her Canadian record of 140 feet 11 inches. And the only reason is that she has had just one week's training this year."

"But give her time to prepare for the Empire Games, a matter of about three weeks, and she'll win a medal at Cardiff."

The sergeant major talks as if he's a publicity agent for the lissome Marie, but he doesn't have to sell anybody on the girl. Last year, when she was stafloned at Kingston, Ont., she was throwing the discus more than 100 feet, some 20 feet better than the British Empire Games record of 107 feet eight inches set by Yvette Williams of New Zealand in 1954.

Her mark was also about 20 feet shy of the world record 187 feet 11 inches set by Russia's N. Dumbad in 1952, but Sgt. Maj. Weatherall believes she could come close to this distance, if not better it with training. "Just give her the opportunity and she'll win the Pan-American Games in 1959 and certainly come very close in the 1960 Olympics at Rome," he says.

The army, perhaps not realizing that it had a potential athletic great in its ranks, transferred her to Fort Churchill in northern Manitoba. Marie continued her training but had to stop because, she told a reporter, "I kept losing the discus in the snow."

She was later posted to Camp Borden, about 70 miles north of Toronto, and Sgt. Maj. Weatherall, in charge of the station's track and field activities, took over.

Marie says she's perturbed about her present performances. Maybe games selectors will take a close look at her past performances and vote her a place on the ship leaving Montreal July 1 for the Cardiff games.

With her 41-30-42 measurements, she'll add a lot to the scenery.

Mrs. Streit of Foothill's Lookout Point club is shooting for her third straight title.

The 32 low scorers in the medal round will compete in match play for the title, starting today. Finals will be played Friday.

Rangers Score Win Over Circus

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers have announced a win in their battle against the circus for the use of Madison Square Garden at Stanley Cup playoff time.

An agreement was announced Monday between Garden officials and the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, enabling the National Hockey League Rangers to play a fuller share of playoff games at home.

The circus comes to the Garden each year at about playoff time with the result that Rangers have been forced to give up precious home dates.

Improvements in the rigging of the circus plus the use of rubber mats instead of tanbark flooring have provided the solution. The mats are easily removed so the ice can be transformed overnight from a circus ring to a rink.

Petes Demand Lacrosse Prexy Stop Managing

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Peterborough Petes Monday demanded Fred Conrad, Ontario Lacrosse Association president, either resign or stop managing Welland-Crowland Switsons (the senior series.

Petes president Jack Epping said it is improper for the association president to also manage a team in the league.

The Petes were recently fined $50 by the OLA for signing player Norm Corcoran without league permission. Corcoran has been suspended for the season.

Epping said Monday Conrad told him this spring as far as he was concerned Corcoran was a free agent. The player was with the now-defunct St. Catharines Athletics last season. Under OLA rules, he became Welland's property, the nearest community operating a team.

Chevrier Wants Low Tolls on New Seaway

OTTAWA (CP) — Lionel Chevrier says the government should consider flaying part of the St. Lawrence Seaway's costs out of the federal treasury if necessary to ensure that tolls are low enough to attract shipping.

If tolls, set to cover construction costs, are too high ships won't use the waterway, he said Monday in the Commons. That situation would be "anathema" after more than $300,000,000 had been spent to provide 27-foot navigation between Montreal and Lake Erie.

Mr. Chevrier, former Liberal transport minister and president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Corporation, spoke during a one-day supply debate.

Earlier, two Liberals representing Niagara district ridings urged that tolls on the seaway, already used by most coast ships, should not be applied on the Welland Canal, famous toll - free. The Welland Canal is being deepened to 27 feet from 25 as part of the seaway development.

W. H. McMillan (L.—Welland) said local industrial interests in his area are geared to a toll-free economy. The government should make an economic survey of the effects tolls would have on industry.

WOULD DO "DRASTIC HARM"

William L. Houck (L—Niagara Falls) said Welland Canal tolls would do "drastic harm" to the Canadian economy as a whole as well as to the Niagara area District industries has invested heavily and toolhigh tolls would amount to expropriation of their investments.

Works Minister Green, speaking in the absence of Transport Minister Hees, said the "most careful study" already is being made of the tolls question.

Mr. Chevrier, who was transport minister when the Seaway Authority was established, said the intention has been clear all along that tolls should be enough to retire capital expenditures within 50 years.

But if tolls geared to that purpose were too high, the government should consider wiping out part of the debt to ensure that traffic would be attracted to the route.

He accused the Progressive Conservative government of not providing adequate information on the question, and of not making its position clear. A lot of information was coming from Washington officials which had been available at Ottawa.

SHOULD DECIDE

As for tolls on the Welland Canal section, Chevrier said the government should decide whether that should be set exempt from tolls or, if not, whether existing industries will have adequate protection against discriminatory tolls.

When Parliament approved the seaway as a self-liquidating project, it was thought the cost of the seaway deepening of the Welland would be $2,000,000. Now, because of unexpected rock dredging, the costs were about $30,000,000.

That fact, he said, might make a difference in backing up claims that the canal be toll-free.

Sherwood Adams Drags His Party Into Hot Water

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Sherman Adams, the no-time New England lumberjack who sits at the right hand of President Eisenhower, is in political hot water up his neck—and perhaps beyond.

He makes his historic trip to Congress today to reply under oath to charges that he swung favors for an old friend, Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine.

President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide volunteered Monday to undergo questioning about his use of hotel suites paid for by Goldfine and about expensive gifts he received, an $2,500 rug and a $700 coat among gifts from the multi-millionaire mill owner.

Adams promised to answer "every one" of the questions a House of Representatives subcommittee has raised about his activities.

He has brought into the sanctity of the White House a tale of scandal which threatens to wreck Republican political fortunes in congressional elections next November and may kill their hopes of retaining the presidency in 1960.

Adams, 58-year-old assistant to the president, has admitted that he allowed Goldfine to foot the bill for hotel suites for himself and his family have occupied at various times during the last four years.

Worse than that, in the eyes of politically - conscious Washington, he has acknowledged that he made—or directed others to make—calls from the White House to federal government regulatory agencies which were looking into charges that companies operated by Goldfine had violated trade laws and other federal regulations.

Adams, a former governor of New Hampshire, helped barnstorm Eisenhower into the presidency in 1952 and, shortly thereafter, became assistant to the president. It's a powerful post that makes him one of the most powerful men in the government. Around Washington, he often is referred to as "Mr. Assistant President."

The charges against the handsome, quiet-spoken New Englander sound strangely like those Adams himself and other leading Republicans leveled in the 1952 election campaign against these same Democrats. Democrats of influence who accepted freezers, mink coats and free hotel accommodations from persons who had business to do with the government.

PLAYED BIG PART

Those accusations played a big part in sweeping the Democrats out of the White House.

But his case, Adams now says, is different.

In a statement issued from the White House, he said he had only been seeking information and assistance for federal agencies for Goldfine. In a statement issued in Boston, Goldfine said Adams never had asked Adams to exert influence on his behalf.

Adams said he used the hotel accommodation provided by Goldfine because he understood Goldfine "maintained this apartment on a continuing basis."

However, White House reporters pointed out to presidential press secretary James Hagerty, who issued the Adams statement, that the suites the Adams family used in the Sherry-Netherland were on different floors and ranged in price from $27 to $45 a day.

Hagerty offered no comment, but did say that Eisenhower's friend, his chief aide had done "nothing improper." At the same time, the president quietly rejected a congressional demand that he fire Adams. Hagerty indicated Eisenhower as saying Monday he knows of no one he has "more confidence in than Sherman Adams."

LONDON (AP) — Australia's Johnny Cooper, favorite for next week's Wimbledon tennis championship, suffered an medical advice Monday night from the Queen's Club tournament that he has injured his second match from John Cranston of San Marino, Calif. The big Aussie tore a muscle in his right thigh last weekend during a match in Germany. Cooper, ranked No. 2 in E. R. Stevens, Aussie team manager, said: "The injury is not serious and Cooper may play in the doubles to get a little exercise."

Maglie Peeved When Replaced By 'Old Man'

NEW YORK (AP)—Sal Maglie is peeved. At 41, he has been replaced by a 39-year-old man.

When New York Yankees sold Maglie to St. Louis Saturday, he didn't resent the deal. At his age, he reasoned that part of being in baseball. But when they brought in Virgil Trucks, 41, from Kansas City Athletics to take his place in the bullpen, that was a different story.

"I knew they were going to let me go," the veteran pitcher told reporters.

"But now that I hear they got another 39-year-old guy — now I'm peeved. If they think he can help them more than I could, it's all right with me."

Maglie was to leave for his Niagara Falls, N.Y., home and figured on joining the Cardinals in Cincinnati Wednesday.

Maglie said he never really had a true test in the Americans' league at Cleveland or New York.

"I guess they wanted a reliever pitcher. I still think I can take a turn if I get enough work," Maglie said. "I make my ball break and to have the kind of control I need."

Medical, Surgical Costs Are Not Covered in Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The national hospital insurance plan will cover almost one - half her medical and surgical costs, federal agreements with Newfoundland and Ontario indicate.

The agreements were tabled Monday in the Commons by Health Minister Monteith on behalf of Defence Minister Diefenbaker at the request of former health minister Paul Martin Jr. (L—Essex East). The Ontario agreement was signed Feb. 25, the Newfoundland one June 9.

Both provide for an approximate splitting between federal and provincial governments of the insurance plan's cost for standard hospital care for indigents and out-patients and for therapy.

Both provide that persons insured under the plan receive accommodation and meals, nursing services, laboratory, radiological and other diagnostic services, and use of operating room, anaesthetic facilities, surgical supplies, radiotherapy and physiotherapy facilities.

The Ontario agreement includes operating room and anaesthetic facilities for out-patients when used for emergency diagnosis and treatment within 48 hours of an accident.

Ontario residents must contribute to the plan to be covered. Certain categories of employees must take out the Ontario plan's coverage.

The Ontario agreement includes under the plan's coverage all patients in mental and tuberculosis sanatoria not otherwise insured, inmates of jails or reform institutions and "all persons in all other institutions under jurisdiction of the Ontario welfare department. It also covers indigents.

Newest Japanese Actress Is Beauty Mobu McCarthy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A girl with the improbable name of Mobu McCarthy is the newest Japanese beauty to win a starring role in Hollywood.

But she can thank a man's shirt for helping her end a series of disappointments.

Mobu, the wife of a former GI, Bob McCarthy, had done some films in Japan and bits in three American movies. Though she speaks perfect English, she was told to report in a kimono to try out for Jerry Lewis's leading lady in Geisha Boy.

The kimono did nothing for her. Lewis sent her packing. But he consoled and sent her to see director Frank Tashlin.

BORN IN OTTAWA

Tashlin saw something in the girl, told her to report back with a man's white shirt. Then he took photos of her in the shirt, open-collared over window. He showed the results to Jerry Lewis. "That's the girl," Lewis exclaimed. "Why haven't I seen her?" Tashlin explained that he had.

Mobu's stroke of luck came the same night. She was celebrating if she had any.

She was born 23 years ago in Ottawa, where her father was a diplomatic secretary. During the war, Mobu was separated with other children to the north of Japan but became sick and returned to Tokyo during the height of the American bombing.

STARTED AS A MODEL

After the war her father, who had turned over a diplomatic post, urged her to try out for a movie role contest. She found she liked acting. But when she came to Hollywood, the director told her, "I would be too embarrassed to use an innocent girl like you in such a sexy scene. I can't do it."

Mobu was 16 and crushed. She had lost her first film role.

She continued acting and modelling in Japan, and then a cameo led her to her husband. She posed in a bathing suit for an army post camera club, of which McCarthy was a member.

The McCarthys came here two years ago and he had started an embroidery business. Mobu did some modelling, then was urged to take part in the boom for Japanese girls in films. She tested for Paramount.

Mobu Talks told me she thought I had the role," Mobu said. "But I left and to her because my English was very poor."

She worked hard on her English. Then came the white shirt and Geisha Boy. Now it looks like smooth - sailing ahead Mobu McCarthy.

PRIME MINISTER

Nothing Mr. Diefenbaker had said "in his ambiguous, clearly and uncertain explanation relieves him of the responsibility of having intervened between the responsible Minister of the time, the prime minister of the United Kingdom in a way which deteriorated, at least in public context, the nature of the interview and the questions that would be asked."

It constituted "interference in the affairs of the Press."

"HAS NOT SUCCEEDED"

Mr. Martin said Mr. Diefenbaker had not succeeded "in satisfying the House that he did not by his manner and speech preclude" Mr. Macmillan from making a comment on the free trade proposal."

"Why does he not take the country into his confidence and tell us what the British prime minister would be say about the proposal?"

Mr. Diefenbaker said there "has not been and will not be any interference" by the government in the affairs of the publicly-owned CBC.

The very nature of some CBC commentators' observations about the Progressive Conservative government "took it of fice "would be an effective answer." To say one thing "could suggest to the contrary."

He referred to past occasions when the free trade commitment was accused of interfering with the CBC affairs.

The Liberals had "suddenly developed an affection for the independence of that body which they did not have during their days in office."

"ART OF DIVERSION"

Mr. Martin said the prime minister was proving himself "a master of the art of diversion." Mr. Fulton's free trade statement had been guilty of interfering with CBC affairs on the basis that, was no justification for the Conservative government to interfere with its affairs.

He urged Mr. Diefenbaker to heed words of his own, as expressed on a past occasion when the Liberal government was under fire for alleged election interference. He quoted these words of Mr. Diefenbaker:

"Let this particular occasion be a reminder of the undesirability of this kind of thing."

Mr. Pearson said the best that could be said for Mr. Diefenbaker's explanation, is that he adds to the confusion which may already exist with regard to it."

This was not the first time that the prime minister, by attempting to interpret statements which have been made previously in the House, has given answers to those of others with whom he was associated, had created this kind of confusion.

SAYS IT'S TECHNIQUE

Mr. Martin said "the technique of 'No, no, no' used on Friday" was also used last night by the prime minister when External Affairs Minister Pearson met the reporters in Mr. Diefenbaker's presence after Mr. Smith was given his as a cabinet minister.

Mr. Smith had said he was in agreement with the base policy followed in 1956 by Mr. Pearson, when he was Liberal external affairs minister.

Mr. Martin said Mr. Diefenbaker had interjected to say: "No, no, no. The policy of this government is exactly that stated by me in Parliament."

Mr. Martin said this left "the clear impression" that nothing Mr. Smith said "that is contrary to anything the prime minister has ever said must not be ignored and must not be communicated to Ottawa and not even reported by the press."

Mr. Pearson said:

"I regard what also of the press conference of the Secretary-General (Paul-Henri Spaak) of NATO" here and "the interpretations . . . and the interpretations of interpretations" Mr. Diefenbaker gave of Mr. Spaak's remarks.

Mr. Spaak said at his recent Ottawa press conference that the North Atlantic area was the agreement between Canada and the U.S. is one of NATO. Mr. Martin Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that it was connected with NATO.

FRANKFORD

Water Supply Extension Endorsed

FRANKFORD — A major extension to the water supply facilities in the Frankford Batawa area, which will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 to $3,000, is now in the final drawing board stage and it is likely to be commenced in the reasonably near future.

This is the upshot of recent consultations between representatives of this Hastings County village and the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

The major development in mind at the moment, which is to be undertaken with minimum of delay, is the extension of the water supply to the northern part of the village. This was the specific item which was discussed between the village officials and the representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, which was discussed at a luncheon gathering at Batawa earlier in the week.

The proposal, specifically, is that there is to be a tie into Batawa at the northern extremity.

REPRESENTATIVES

Representatives of Frankford at the conference were Reeve George Spencer, Councillor, Frank Babel and Clerk, John A. Finnegan.

Acting on behalf of the Water Resources Commission, were, secretary Brian Larmour; Chief Accountant M. Ross, Graham Reid and consulting associate O. Jolitte.

CURRENT DEVELOPMENT

The current development constitutes a major step forward in providing the village and the contiguous area with an adequate water supply for domestic, commercial and industrial purposes in the years that lie ahead, when extensive expansion is anticipated.

It is an integrated plan in which the closely associated municipalities and the large shoe manufacturing company will work in close co-operation together within the format established by the Water Resources Commission.

Vancouver Bridge Collapses; 16 Dead

Two Big Sections Great Structure Crash Into Water

Twenty Are Injured Search for 2 Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two giant spans of a half-finished $16,000,000 bridge slipped and crashed with a thunderous roar Tuesday, carrying 16 workmen to their deaths in Burrard Inlet 140 feet below. Two men were missing.

More than 20 workers were rescued from the twisted debris on the outermost spans of the Second Narrows Bridge, many with limbs mangled by plunging steel girders.

Some of the victims were crushed to death as the framework mangled itself in the fall. Others drowned in the 40 feet of water, trapped in the web of crushed steel. The two missing men were believed swept away by the swift tide.

Cause of the accident was not known. Shortly after the tragedy Premier W. A. C. Bennett appointed Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the British Columbia Supreme Court to investigate the collapse.

The toppled spans, fourth and fifth in the bridge that had reached two-thirds across the inlet from the North Vancouver shore toward the city, today each rested vertically on the water and the other leaning precariously on concrete piers.

Within the tangle of girders was the wreckage of a crane which toppled with the fourth span.

Rescuers scrambled over the twisted steel to release pinned workmen and free the dead. Firemen dived to bring up bodies.

GRISLY RESCUE SCENE

As the bodies were recovered they were placed on the deck of a tug that stood by. Workmen stripped to the waist in the warm weather and their arms covered with blood, lifted the bodies from the tug into ambulances, hearses and station wagons.

The bridge fell with mighty groan soon after 3:30 p.m. By clock a fleet of 60 boats, spaced from bank to bank, moved slowly up the inlet dragging for victims.

Ken Johnstone, a boatman hired to rescue any workmen who fall into the water, was patrolling the bridge area when the accident happened. He was 50 yards from the fifth span when it collapsed.

GAS EXPLOSION WRECKS HOUSE, INJURES SEVEN

Trencher Ruptures Main at London Ont.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An explosion, believed caused by a leaking gas main, ruzed one east London home Tuesday, severely damaged two others and injured seven persons, none seriously.

Miraculously, five people in the stricken dwelling escaped from the wreckage, three of them with only minor injuries. Two, Robert McCullough, 30, and John Millerson, 25, city gas company employes, were in the basement connecting a main when the blast lifted the home and it collapsed into them. Both managed to escape.

Mrs. Arnold Haasen, 31, who occupies the front apartment of the dwelling, crawled from the basement of her kitchen with an injured leg and stumbled to the back yard to clasp her one-year-old son. She had just sent her other children, Rita, 9, and Henry, 8, to a nearby store.

NEAR SAFE WALL

In the rear apartment Mrs. Tony Boyer was cooking dinner when the roof exploded. She was standing beside the south wall, the only one which didn't collapse. She grabbed Hugo, her one-year-old son, and fled unharmed.

Outside Arthur Hillary, 21, a University of Western Ontario student employed by contractor T. W. Johnstone was struck by flying glass.

Squads of police struggled to keep hundreds of spectators away from the site while firemen battled flames in the three burning houses. Warnings from gas company officials that a second explosion was possible were ignored by the crowd for a time.

KIDNAPPED BOY SAFE AT HOME, SEARCH FOR MAID

Child Given to Taxi Driver at Ottawa

MONTREAL (CP) — Curly-haired Joel Reitman, safe in his suburban town of Mount Royal home, fondled his favorite toys again today while police sought a German-born maid who disappeared when the boy was kidnapped Saturday night.

The 2½-year-old grandson of a millionaire Montreal businessman was turned over to police unharmed in Ottawa Monday by taxi-driver Edward Boyer, who said a woman left the child with him.

Last, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Reitman, came home in a Quebec police cruiser from the capital with his parents Tuesday night. He rushed happily into the arms of his grandfather, Sam Reitman, president of a large chain of women's wear stores.

Police meanwhile stepped up a hunt for Greta Goede, 40, whom the Reitmans had hired as a maid only two weeks before the boy was abducted from his suburb home in the north-end suburb.

SPEED TO CAPITAL

Cyril Reitman, 29 a buyer for the 36 stores headed by his father, and his wife, Dorothy, 25, had raced to Ottawa in a Montreal police cruiser after learning an unidentified boy was in the hands of a taxi-driver.

A woman by the same name was arrested at Toronto. Police said she was the same woman. She denied it.

A crudely-written note demanding $10,000 ransom was one of the leads police were tracking. The note, left in the Reitman home by the kidnaper and the maid would be killed unless the family complied by leaving the money in a certain Montreal bus terminal.

The Reitmans discovered the boy and missing maid were returning home from a dance. Because the ransom note threatened death if police were informed, no word of the abduction was given out publicly before Mrs. Reitman broadcast a radio appeal to the kidnapper on Tuesday.

The silence maintained by newspapers and radio stations lengthened the parents' agony by more than 24 hours. Although Ottawa police and a radio station there had known since Monday that Boyer had the boy, it was not until the mother's broadcast that the pieces were fitted together and the boy identified as Joel.

ASKED TO MIND 'SON'

Boyer told police a blonde woman had hailed his cab and asked him to mind her "son" while she shopped. He said she did not return for the young-ster and he notified authorities, his wife and the radio station.

Proposed Tolls For Seaway Are Announced

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada today announced jointly with the Seaway Development Corporation of the United States a schedule of proposed tolls for vessels using the multi-million-dollar waterway.

The tolls schedule was suggested by committees established by the seaway authorities of both countries and likely will form the basis of rates eventually agreed upon by the Canadian and U.S. governments.

The proposed tolls would be based on a combination of a vessel's carrying capacity, its actual cargo and the distance it travelled through the seaway.

Main proposals:

1. For passage through the entire seaway from Montreal to Lake Erie a vessel would be assessed six cents per gross registered ton, 42 cents per ton on its bulk cargo and 35 cents per ton on general cargo.

2. For passage between Montreal and Lake Ontario, the toll would be four cents per gross registered ton, 40 cents per ton of its bulk cargo and 50 cents per ton on general cargo.

3. For each passage through the Welland Canal only, the toll would be two cents per gross registered ton, two cents per ton on bulk cargo and five cents on general cargo.

Police Believe Woman Held Is Kidnapper

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police today arrested Greta Goede, 40-year-old German immigrant, and charged her with attempted extortion in connection with an extortion case here. Inspector John Ninmo said she is the woman wanted in Montreal on a charge of kidnapping two-year-old Joel Reitman.

A warrant for the arrest of Greta Goede, the maid who was taking care of the Reitman boy at the time of his kidnapping, was taken out in Montreal today.

The Greta Goede questioned by police here said she had never met the Reitmans and "some body may be using my name."

"SHE IS THE GIRL"

After she was arrested here and charged in connection with the extortion case, Inspector Nimmo said: "She is the girl from Montreal."

He said she may be charged here in connection with the kidnapping and taken to Montreal later.

OBJECTED TO ROLES

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Daria Massey, 22, won a divorce from her husband yesterday after testifying he objected to her playing sexy roles. "He wanted me to play the sweet little girl next door in all my roles," she said. "When you're an actress you just can't do that."

Canadians Given Almost Invisible Tax Reductions

No Changes in Personal, Corporation Tax Rates

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative's first full-scale budget has given Canadians almost-invisible tax cuts and the prospect of record government spending.

Tax reductions of $26,000,000 a year were spread around in scatter-gun fashion in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night as he predicted a $648,000,000 deficit, another peacetime high.

For the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1, the indicated tax reductions are just $8,000,000, a drop in the bucket against revenues of $4,652,000,000.

There were selective tax exemptions, no one benefiting much.

There were no changes in personal or corporation income tax rates, the big items of treasury intake.

Nor was there any change in the special excise taxes on such major articles as automobiles, radio and TV sets, tobacco products and liquor.

By and large, in the first Conservative budget in 23 years, the government stuck with previously defined policies for beating the recession, a mixture of tax and allied policies.

Major tax easements were on personal income tax exemptions on certain medical expenses in addition to those now in effect, a provision giving corporations more leeway in making tax-free charitable gifts and the lowering of exemptions of about $5,000,000 a year for municipalities in the purchase of equipment. The first two changes would apply on 1958 earnings, with the sales tax exemption effective today.

TREASURY SURPLUS BUDGET

Mr. Fleming's presentation was promptly labelled by the Liberals as a "surplus" budget, evidently a play on the medical angle.

But, designation came from William Benidickson, Liberal financial critic, who spoke briefly after Mr. Fleming concluded late in the Commons sitting and will continue Friday his sharp-honing at the Conservative financial program.

Mr. Benidickson called it "a blue budget" and "a sick budget."

The finance minister instituted reductions of $8,000,000 a year in an initial "financial statement" last December following the Progressive Conservative recession to office, and he added only a relative trifle to this Thursday night.

But a tariff upheaval was in prospect. Mr. Fleming's proposals including wide-ranging immediate changes aimed at protection of some Canadian industries, notably against imports of woollen cloth from Britain. This tariff went up from 50 cents a pound to $a and 60.

TOUGHEN "DUMPING" LAW

Another proposal will be to toughen the laws against goods "dumped" into this country by assessing special dumping duties on the basis of production cost plus "reasonable profit, instead of the present basis of selling price in the country of origin.

Mr. Fleming forecast an eventual $7,000,000-a - year tax cut, though not for this year, in a prospective plan for gradually easing the death taxes on estates. It would exempt estates of up to $60,000 left to widows. Estates of $50,000 or more are taxed now.

For marginal gold mines, he proposed a further 25 per cent increase in the scale of assistance provided by the previous Liberal administration, starting with the current year. This would bring the total assistance to about $12,000,000, calculated on a complex formula.

Some other provisions:

1. The controversial excise tax of 20 per cent on gross advertising revenue of special Canadian editions of foreign magazines is repealed.

2. Canadian tourists travelling in Europe or more outside continental North America will be able to bring in $300 worth of non-dutiable goods once a year.

France Agrees To Cut Troops in Tunisia

TUNIS (AP) — Long-troubled relations between France and Tunisia are expected to show substantial improvement as the result of an agreement to withdraw one-third of the French troops in Tunisia to metropolitan France, and concentrate the rest at Bizerte.

The agreement also should improve the West's position in the key North African republic, President Habib Bourguiba has been handicapped in trying to keep Tunisia on a pro-Western course by the troops' presence, which was considered a threat and an affront to national sovereignty.

The agreement announced Tuesday night provides that 7,000 French soldiers will be out of the country within four months, French officials said. The remaining 15,000 will be stationed at the Bizerte naval and air base, now manned by 12,000 men.

A Tunisian government spokesman said after the 7,000 are gone, Tunisia will accept no payment to keep the 12,000 at Bizerte base. The West wants to keep it in French hands for use if necessary by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Since February Tunisian forces have blockaded Bizerte and other French military posts in the country.

Super-Secret U.S. Espionage Agency Spends Third of Billion Annually

WASHINGTON (AP) — A money - conscious United States Congress bestows an estimated $530,000,000 a year on an agency so secret that only a handful of the highest officials know how the money is spent.

The super-secret outfit is the Central Intelligence Agency, which operates a vast American espionage network in an atomic space age when the merest scrap of information could mean the difference between survival and annihilation.

So rigid is the secrecy that when Congress grumbles over failures, real or imaginary, the CIA takes it in silence.

The CIA is unique among American governmental agencies.

But, if the estimate is correct, it is $130,000,000 more than the U.S. state department spends on its 362 diplomatic outposts around the world. The state department has about 16,000 American employees.

Russia is believed to be spending six times as much as the CIA on espionage. And up to 45 per cent of Soviet spending is said to be directly engaged in spying.

The essence of CIA intelligence reports winds up each morning on President Eisenhower's desk. It covers the high spots of the previous 24 hours in the world's trouble spots.

The report is a terse, 500-word summary and can be digested by the busy president, in about two minutes.

Case-O-Matic Drive Tractor Demonstrated by Trudeau

A fluid drive farm tractor more than doubling the "pull power" at the command of the operator, is the latest innovation in mechanized farming offered by the Case-O-Matic Drive tractor, now being sold locally by the farm division of Trudeau Motors.

The new Case-O-Matic Drive tractor was among the many fine Case machines demonstrated Tuesday afternoon on the farm of Horace Knight, 4th concession Sidney township, to conclude the "open house" program offered by Trudeau's Monday evening at their Shannonboro Road farm division lot.

Mr. J. J. Trudeau, known for many years in the automotive sales and farm machinery field in the Belleville district, recently took over the J. I. Case farm machinery dealership and offers complete sales and service for Case farm and agricultural equipment, Case utility lines, and for their heavy industrial lines of bulldozers, shovels and backhoes and hoisting equipment.

Possibly unique in this part of Ontario for machinery sales, Trudeau's offer a special credit sales showroom for the indoor showing of featured equipment. The company has the agency for eight Central Ontario counties ranging from Oshawa to Brockville and north to Algonquin Park.

MOST ENTHUSIASTIC

Also offered by Trudeau is the famous Bolens line of garden and lawn equipment, and George White farm machinery.

The Bolens line includes garden type tractors, rotary mowers, cultivators, bulldozer blades, rollers and trailers, while the White line offers forage harvesters, spreaders, shredders, wagons and threshers.

Mr. Trudeau is particularly enthusiastic about the Case line of farm and industrial tractors, some of which offer these J. I. Case exclusive Case-O-Matic fluid drive or the Case fluid drive of the modern car adapted for tractor use.

Trudeau also have the distributorship for H. L. Turner trailers, trailer dredgers, farm wagons, bale loaders and bale elevators.

In charge of agricultural sales is O. W. Shunk with 15 years' experience in the farm machinery field. Under him are two salesmen, Bert Hill and Clifford Ray.

Case Industrial equipment will be in charge of N. R. Elliston who has John Montgomery as salesman.

The service department is under Bruce Pringle who has 13 years experience in servicing of farm machines, and a staff of trained mechanics.

"Our service department can overhaul any type of machine which we sell, including thorough cleaning, painting and welding and can also do on-the-job repairs for industrial equipment."

Hospitals Are Big Business Kiwanians Told

Hospitals are "big business" Belleville Kiwanians discovered Tuesday when they had as their guest speaker Kenneth Box, administrator of Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Box gave a lengthy outline of the organization setup responsible for the hospital's functioning on a smooth and efficient 24 hour basis.

Following his address, an question-and-answer period was held, dealing primarily with the new Ontario Hospitalization Plan.

Mr. Box stated he did not think there would be a sudden acute bed shortage after the insurance plan comes into effect January 1, 1959, particularly since 85 per cent of Ontario residents already have hospital insurance coverage.

He believed, however, more patients would want more hospital services included in hospital coverage than previously.

It was also explained the all inclusive daily rate for a ward patient without coverage will be $18. The per diem rate now is $8.50. Those wishing private or semi-private rooms will be required to pay an extra charge over and above the $18 ward rate) which will be set by the hospital. This extra charge will be divided equally between the hospital and the government, Mr. Box stated.

The speaker was introduced by Oriel Griffith and thanked by Frank Domenico, chairman of the Board of Governors, who explained that Belleville General Hospital, now accredited, has always operated within its budget.

Greek Theatre Is Set Afire

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Greek movie house was set on fire today. A government spokesman blamed Turkish Cypriots opposing union of the British island colony with Greece.

The blaze was the fourth fire attack on Greek holdings here in 24 hours. Damage was estimated at £1,000.

So far, however, there was no resumption of last week's rioting to which 15 Greeks and two Turks were killed.

OSD Graduation Day Brings Many Memories of Happy Life During School Years

It was graduation day, yesterday, at the Ontario School for the Deaf. Quotes of students, "Oh, it's a beautiful day," filtered through glowing sunshine to the auditorium of the main building where the stacked purple, mauve and yellow iris, mauve and white lilacs formed a lovely setting for this Day of Days.

The program was led by the superintendent, Mr. J. G. Demeza, B.A., Ped., and Mrs. H. B. Fetterly wife of a former superintendent, followed by the graduating class, all white-gowned, each girl graduates with their red rose corsages, and the senior young men, with white boutonnieres, was most impressive. Then they slowly made their way to the flower-bedecked platform while the school auditorium rang out in silent tribute.

In a measure, this was indeed, "a Stanley Cup" vivid with happy memories and yet, somewhere, sad notes lingered over all. Old Ues were being renewed, new bonds about to be forged, but the new combinations were mid amid a strange, new world. So, had they come, up through the various grades, guided by understanding and kindly teachers, from the primary to the uppermost rung of the O.S.D. ladder of education, looking forward into the future men, with what might hold for each one.

Mr. Demeza presided at the customary table of diplomas, certificates, trophies, and silver cups which were presented to those whose scholastic attainments merited as well as for their sportsmanship.

WELCOMES EXTENDED

Mr. Demeza extended a most cordial welcome to members of the teaching staff; to the parents of the graduating class, and to their friends, saying it was most gratifying to see so many present, some from many miles away; also some former students who had found time from to time to repeat in thought the joys of their school days.

He also welcomed Dr. and Mrs. A. E. MacKenzie, principal of Albert College with which the School for the Deaf shared the platform, and Mrs. Ross visiting clergy, Father William McGee, and the Reverend Evelyn Smith, assistant minister of Christ Church.

Others present were: Brigadier Morton, managing director of the Hearing Society; Mr. Parker, director of placement, and Mr. H. Montgomery, placement officer of the C.N.I.B.

Mr. W. J. Morrison, former superintendent, who was in Ottawa, was unable to be present, but sent a special message to the graduating class, wishing well in the days that lie ahead, and conveying his good wishes to the parents.

Following the superintendent's welcome, the awards, and certificates took place, preceded by that of the superintendent, one of the highest awards conferred by the School to student who has made outstanding use of full time vocational classes in academic, vocational, and physical education activities during the student's complete school life at O.S.D. These were presented by Mr. Demeza to Andre Bourret, who has been outstanding in scholarship, and most cooperative in all things pertaining to the school, and to Marlene Caldwell, also an outstanding student, diligent in class, a good sport and one beloved by class mates Miss Caldwell was chosen by her fellow students as the valedictorian.

Another award, presented for proficiency in speech and speech reading in services included, donated by Mrs. H. B. Fetterly and daughters, Mrs. Muriel Cowan, Toronto, Miss Helen Fetterley, in memory of the late H. B. Fetterly, M.A., was for a superintendent at the school from 1920 to 1946 went to Miss Dianne Worlow, and to Miss Doune Clary. Mrs. Fetterly made the presentations.

The Catherine Ford Scholarship, given annually by Miss Phyllis Ford, who had been a teacher at the school for 42 years, was awarded to Miss Karen Rogers, and Carl Masters, by Mrs. Wright, for his great effort in speech and speech reading, for achieving satisfactory progress.

Following the presentation a luncheon which will appear in a later edition, Mr. Demeza expressed his appreciation to the Ontario Intelligencer for its fine coverage; to the teaching staff; to the household staff; to the house-parents; to the matron, Mrs. Quinn, for her floral arrangements, and concluded by saying that much hard work; that he hoped they would often visit the school, and that good luck would be their lot in times to come.

At the conclusion of the exercises, Miss Barbara Beaumont, and Ronald Hartogsveld, on behalf of the graduating class, presented Mr. Demeza and Mrs. Demeza with a farewell gift in appreciation of their kindnesses.

Council Accepts Resignation of Deseronto Clerk

DESERONTO (CP) — Mrs. Laura Rose's resignation as town clerk, treasurer and collector of taxes, tendered to town council Monday, was accepted at a closed meeting Tuesday.

Mrs. Rose, who had held the positions for six years, had said she was resigning because of unwarranted persecution and criticism when "all I wanted to believe I do not have support of council."

Mrs. Ross had opposed council's efforts to eliminate a speed timer, a system which had led to the resignation of two previous municipal clerks.

Mayor Harry Sweetnam says the speed trap was giving this town 15 miles of the Bellevista "a black name."

Dr. R. C. McVicker and Arnold Walker, successive mayors, and councillors John Neal and Percy Allen, also of Deseronto, resigned, contended revenue from the speed trap could be eliminated from town budget estimates without a rise in tax rates.

Night School Teachers to Get $5 Hourly Rate

Members of the Quinte District High School Board wound up their regular business for the 1957-58 school term last night as they held their monthly board meeting in the Church Street board offices.

However, due to construction plans for a third high school it is expected the summer meeting will see special meetings being held.

Preliminary plans submitted by the board's architects, Barnett and Rieder, have been accepted by the board and department of education approval is now to be sought.

The board has authorized the chairman of the grounds committee to call for tenders for mesh wire fence to be erected along the west and south sides of the Belleville Collegiate campus, and also for erection of a softball backstop at the southeast corner.

Librarians at both B.C.I. and at Quinte District School will also be retained for two weeks during the summer recess to catalogue books for the two school libraries.

A list of text books submitted by the two high school principals was approved.

The resignation of Kenneth Lee, drafting teacher, was accepted. Mr. Lee will go to Oshawa to head up the machine shop in the school at that centre.

Foley Foundry was given the contract to replace one of the boilers at BCI, while Belle Cleaners will clean auditorium drapes and have them fireproofed during the summer holiday period.

Re-decorating of the BCI auditorium is now underway. Ceilings and walls will be repainted and fitted seats will be revarnished.

The question of improving ventilation in the BCI gymnasiums has been referred to the school architects.

Authority was given to W. J. Musgrove, caretaker at the principalship of the third high school, and for the BCI shop director to visit the department of Education in Toronto regarding the shop layout of the new school.

High school students living in the area to be annexed to the city next January, will be provided with bus service until the end of June, 1959, Decision was received from the department to renew bus contracts for a full year. Under normal circumstances high school students living within a city are not eligible for transportation.

And the board also ratified an advisory and vocational school committee recommendation to raise the pay of night school instructors. The rate will be raised 50 cents per hour from $4.50 to $5. This will conform with the pay of night school instructors at a majority of Ontario centres.

'Danny' Cox Is Transferred To Port Arthur

"DANNY COX"

Assistant district manager for Brewers Warehousing Company in the Belleville area, Mr. "Danny" Cox, has been transferred to Port Arthur as group manager of the company's Lakehead area with all administration duties over stores west of Sudbury.

He will be leaving Sunday with his wife and family to take up his new duties at the Lakehead.

Former National Hockey League player, and member of the Port Arthur Allan cup team, Mr. Cox quickly established himself with the Belleville senior hockey team on his transfer here four years ago and acted as coach for the local seniors for one season. He has been one of the Maple's most enthusiastic supporters in their quest for senior hockey honors and the Allan Cup.

Service Centre For Patients To Be Set Up

Decision to establish a service centre to which arthritic patients from Hastings, Prince Edward County may be brought to Picton for treatment by a physiotherapist, was a highlight of the June meeting of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society at the Y.M.C.A.

Arrangements have been made to utilize accommodation offered by the St. John Ambulance which has also offered the assistance of two volunteer workers.

It is hoped the establishment of bedside treatment centres will reduce the amount of travelling necessary to reach patients individually both speeding up treatment and reducing cost of operation.

Where necessary it was suggested that the Rotary Club in Picton be approached in order to obtain volunteers fo the necessary transportation.

A similar centre in Trenton was also suggested.

A motion was carried that $2,431 collected through the 1956 Belleville Community Chest be remitted to the Ontario Division to be applied against operating costs of $6,162.84 with the deficit to be absorbed by the Toronto Division.

The total bank balance as of June 1958 is $4,338.72 with the committees retiring this the balance to $821.42.

Among those present were President Enos David, Secretary-Treasurer E. G. Gurnett, and board members Mrs. Enos David, Mrs. J. A. Jarvis, Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Miss Gladys Macdonald, Miss Rita MacDonald and Miss Hilda Collier.

Trenton Council Briefs

TRENTON — Mrs. Moyà Lawson, one of the three delegates to appear before town council, asked the councillors to rescind a by-law which prevented her from selling some frontage on the property she owns on Sidney Street. Following discussions and reading of the by-law, which was passed in 1956, Councillor Fox recommended it be given further discussion and not make any snap decision on the matter since it means the rescinding of a by-law, one way or the other, will be given to Mrs. Lawson in two or three days. PROTEST FLAWED

Nine boat house owners appeared before council on Monday night in a body to protest against a claim which was made saying they would lose their boat houses along the Bay shore under force. The councillors assured the boat house owners they have never made any such threat. Most councillors felt there was a need for facilities to accommodate all types of boats on the waterfront although these boat houses were on town property, and the owners had no deed to the land on which they stood. It was decided to have no "bulldozing" them into the bay. Councillor Burtt informed the delegation that if they were ever asked to move they would be given at least two months notice as to by a councillor and not by a police officer. It was also decided they appeared before the meeting to air the problem and asked them to leave it with council, be treated fairly. Spokesman for the delegation said they would appear at the town at any time in the matter of planning the future of the bay shore area.

READ LETTER

A letter from the Ontario Municipal Association asking that the council asking them to have any proposed amendments to legislation in by the next meeting. Councillor Vagn Lange suggested that the council would like committee of the whole to discuss any amendments they felt would be desirable to be sent in.

LIGHT QUESTION

The matter of a light on the parking lot on Quinte Street was again brought before the council and Eric Aldersey explained a floodlight from one of the street light poles be placed into the lot was what was wanted. At the last council meeting the councillors had misunderstood the request and had been returned without action. However, they felt that the lot was used by many shoppers and they agreed to instruct the Public Utilities Commission to instal the required light, but that it be privately owned, has been gentlemen's agreement with the Chamber of Commerce by Senator W. A. Fraser to increase free parking area in the downtown section of Trenton.

PLAN YEAR BOOK

A letter from the Samuel Hawley Company in reference to the town of Trenton was read by town clerk-treasurer O. W. Lacey. The letter informed the council of the group's plan for the 1958 year book and they had place an ad in the book at one of the prices listed. The council felt that they have never placed an ad in this book in the past and would probably turn it down. Councillor Lange said he would rather see the money which is used for the ad be given to local advertising. The application was returned down following a motion from Councillor Hilton to refuse it.

KENNY RESIGNS

A letter of resignation from K. E. Kenny, former tax assessor for the town, was tabled at the council meeting, but not read. The councillors felt that because the letter had been already published in the press and had been read by them they could save time and any of the councillors could read it at their leisure, if they pleased.

ASKS RAISE

William Ayres, janitor of the municipal building, requested through a letter to the council for an increase in his salary. He said he had been with the town for 13 months now. The matter was turned over to the General Government Committee for disposal. The committee is headed by Mayor Ross Burtt.

NOT LIABLE

A letter from the town's insurance agent informed them they were not liable for a TV aerial belonging to Wong Roy Ching, which was knocked over during the fire which badly gutted the buildings on Front Street last January. Mr. Ching explained in his application to the town for damages, that the television had knocked it down during the fighting of the fire in the next building to the one his aerial was on. The matter was turned over to the town solicitor. The

A REPUTATION EARNED

D. C. Kerr, president of the Ontario Retail Pharmacists Association, said on Thursday of last week that the greatest compliment paid to the profession in recent years has been "the acceptance and faith of the public in the neighborhood druggist."

Mr. Kerr referred to the days when, he said, the public was not conscious of the fact that pharmacists were professional men who had spent time and money on a university education. "Although they used us as a supplier of sick room needs and medicine," he said, "we were generally referred to as a free information bureau."

Perhaps, though, the manner in which the pioneers in the profession responded to this demand for advice is one of the main reasons why the druggist has won the esteem of the public. Even today, many of us still depend on his advice when we are feeling poorly but do not think that our condition justifies a trip to a medical doctor. Sometimes he will prescribe a simple remedy and sometimes with advice — see your doctor. At other times, though, if we are complaining about a drippin's nose or a bruised arm, he comes up with the remedy we need, just as his predecessors did in the earlier days.

Another thing that we like about the drug store is that the pride which goes with a profession is not confined to the prescription counter. Almost without exception, drug stores are spotlessly clean, with merchandise attractively displayed and plainly priced and the solidarity of service, not only by the professional pharmacist but by his or her assistants, is of the highest.

The druggist is also an alert merchandiser who takes full advantage of the latest sales promotion. Chief of these, of course, is newspaper advertising, we are happy to state and in Belleville the newspaper is used extensively. As a matter of fact, one drug store here (Green's) has been running a daily advertisement for sixty-two years. Others have done so for several of the years. And it has paid off in steadily increasing sales and greater prosperity.

So it is to this fine group of business men we doff our hats and say, "Hear, hear!" to Mr. Kerr's opinion on the public's great confidence in his profession.

A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY

Tom John Orde, boat rental operator at Lake Scugog, made a shrewd observation after four Toronto youths had been drowned Sunday following the capsizing of a boat which they rented to them.

"Life jackets are not a charm," he said. "They mean nothing when they are lying in the bottom of a boat." People are lulled into false security when they have them but in hot weather often refuse to use them."

Providing a person can swim, there is much less risk in travelling without a life-jacket in calm weather than there is in travelling on a busy highway. The recent regulation requiring life-jackets in all boats was, however, an excellent piece of legislation since it provided protection in case of emergencies, which can arise suddenly. When the water gets rough, those life-jackets should be donned.

Mr. Orde, though, points out a grave danger. Because they have life-jackets in the boat, some may not bail for shore quickly when a storm arises. The life-jacket won't prevent the boat from being swamped, of course. And it is possible to drown in rough water even though a life-jacket keeps the victim's body from sinking.

ONE FAILURE WOULD BE SUFFICIENT

We are not quite sure what the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission meant when it said that dumping a small container of enriched uranium into a larger drum at Oak Ridge, Tenn., resulted in a "change in the geometry of the container" but we do know that if high school students had to demonstrate their knowledge of geometry under these conditions they would be much more careful not to flunk the course. That change in "geometry" of the container resulted in "a critical mass," in other words a sufficient quantity of uranium to start a chain reaction. There was no explosion, but if we understand rightly what we have read on the subject an atomic blast would have been possible if not somebody, or something, reduced the mass from its "critical" size.

This may be a suggestion the stupidity of which would be obvious if we knew all the details of the operation, but off-hand we would like to suggest that it would be an excellent idea if all the containers in a place where enriched uranium is handled were of a size too small to hold a "critical mass" of the material. Otherwise one of these days we will be reading about the world's first accidental atomic explosion.

Scots Came From Russia

BBC London Letter

"They have been great travellers, the Scots," said Douglas Young, lecturer in Greek at St. Andrew's University, in the first of a series of talks about the people of Scotland broadcast recently by the BBC. David Livingstone in Africa, Alexander Mackenzie, the first man to cross Australia, came immediately to mind, Young said. "Who first rose high in the service of America? A Scotsman, John Paul Jones. Who founded the Russian Navy? Nathaniel Gordon. The Bank of England and the Bank of France were founded by Scotsmen, William Paterson and John Law. For centuries travel Scots were the bodyguards of the Kings of France; thousands of other Scots rose high in the service of Austria and Prussia, of Sweden and the Netherlands. This little nation, numbering today a mere five million is the Scots supplied Presidents to the United States of America, Prime Ministers to Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and even Archbishops to Canterbury. And today there was a fifty per cent chance of finding a Scots engineer in any ship sailing the seven seas.

According to the famous Declaration of Independence made at Arbroath in 1320, the original homeland of this talented nation had been Scythia the Greater, said Young said. In modern terms that meant the Black area north of the Black Sea running eastward to the Caucasus mountains in the Ukraine area. The Scots claimed that they had come to Scotland by sea through the Straits of Gibraltar and Ireland, and archaeologists had shown that, in fact, the main stock that populated Scotland consisted of Celtic tribes, who had come originally from the area in north-west of the Caucasus mountains, some by way of the Danube and the Rhine, others through France, Spain, and Ireland where they mixed with old Mediterranean peoples. In the most northern part of Scotland — the Shetland Islands half-way to Norway — Stone Age temples of a type otherwise known only in Malta had been found.

"In the Iron Age," Young continued, "as far north of the borders of Scotland, we must picture the people as in many clans and tribes of cowboy types. Cattle and sheep were their main source of food, with grain-growing subsidiary. Cattle-raiding was the chief sport of men of spirit. The chief were of a roving, adventurous temper; fond of drinking, a song, and story. They were fond also of personal display, their richest men boasting collars and bracelets of gold." Celtic government had been usually by aristocracies of warriors and priests, and where there were kings they had owed their position as much to election as heredity. The ability of local clans to combine effectively had been shown by the fact that, although the Roman had tried to conquer Scotland for over three hundred years, they had never succeeded.

The Romans had called them people Picts, which meant painted or tattooed men. The Celtic name for Scotland had been Alban — a name still used by the Welsh — and the people Albanach. "Among them," said Young, "one tribe, the Scots, who had lived in the north-east of Ireland which is only twelve miles from Scotland by sea, became the leaders in religion and government. Under Scots kings the nation was welded strongly together, and resisted every attempt at conquest by Danes, Norwegians and English. In 1603 the Scots king James VI of Scotland and I of England united the crowns of the neighboring England, which led to a parliamentary union in 1707, but usually the nation of the Scots has kept its identity and its national personality, in its homeland, for about four thousand years."

BIG ITEM OF SUCCESS

If all you've got is money, property, you can lose it. But character is hard to lose if you've got it.

A man I have known for forty years ago was a successful success from his early thirties. He was a relentless pursuer of character and built a formidable quality to the way he put his nose to the grind-stone and accomplished killings. His first wife in the tenth year of their marriage ran away with another man and was legally divorced and has lived in extremely modest circumstances but superbly tranquil happiness with her second husband and devoted family.

Two years ago, in a series of fantastic reverses, the wealthy man lost not only all his wealth but also his character, such as it was, in the conflagration with the law. His first wife, whom I have known all these years, showed me a recent photograph of her and which the first paragraph above is duplicated.

"If all you've got is money, property, you can lose it. B U T character is hard to lose if you've got it. Having lost both wealth, and character, I want you to know that I understand at last why you left me. This is not an offer of reunion. I am writing you to please forgive me."

He is in his late sixties, and has not far to go. So you see, in the end, after a desperately striving life, he appears likely to end up with a little true wealth after all: a small, precious nugget of character.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IF IT CAN'T BE HELPED

What a tremendous amount of energy is wasted through regrets and worry about something that can't be helped. People cry about "spilled milk" but you can't do anything about milk that is gone. People do a lot of fretting about spilling milk just for the fun of it. It's the same with all the happenings of life. People do not plan our emergencies, or look forward to what happens. Most of them occur about which they didn't even dream. Never mind. Accidents occur to the best of regulated horses.

Things that can't be helped you'll have nothing to worry about. As a matter of fact, you should never worry anyway! Do the best that you know — and be kind. That's something to ponder over. Bear in mind that misfortune is apt to bear down upon us at second hand. We must all study our lives with courage, faith and an everlasting belief.

If a thing happens and can't be helped, then it is folly to worry about it. A useless amount of wasted energy. When there is a calamity that couldn't be helped, we must be as brave as we know, and work out of it the best way we can. In it all we must call upon our nerves, our heart a a dependable mind. Most of these organs were an M. D.!

That inward faith, however, must be kept warm and responsive, and never be allowed to lose its substance and dirfie renewal. There is the Mind over all that we must not forget. The will to live is a part of our inheritance. Let us "praise Him, from whom all blessings flow."

Good Roads Make Money

Imperial Oil Review

When a highway department builds a new road or replaces a bad one, it does not do it because of us tend to think of it as a regretful duty but probably necessary burden on our pocketbook. This is one reason why we're not modernizing our roads fast enough to keep pace with the growing demand.

We need to learn to that a good highway built to fill a need is a profitable source of expense. It can generate enough revenue to pay for itself and actually add to the commercial and national wealth by increasing land values, encouraging automobile operating costs, reducing accidents and saving time.

Highways properly built and located are income-producing investments just like factories, commercial properties. All highways, not merely toll roads, can collect revenue in the form their users. For every mile a vehicle travels, its owner pays taxes to the builders of the road, in the form of gasoline and oil taxes, sales taxes on cars, and excise and sales taxes on cars, tires and other auto accessories. Over 80% of the price of Canadian highway users, therefore, goes into government taxes — one-and-one-half cents a mile.

The better the road the more money it collects. A new four-lane road outdraws a bad one just as a good movie outdraws a grade B picture. It costs less to run, places a bad one doesn't just because some other highway is handy. It generates new traffic by relieving congestion and making long trips more pleasant and therefore creates more income.

We know how much new traffic a good highway generates but we do know that in 1956 Canadians travelled 98.8 billion vehicle miles; four years earlier they drove only 78.8 billion vehicle miles. Part of this increase was undoubtedly due to the post-war building programs.

In 1956 Canadians paid nearly $600 million — in gasoline taxes ($295 million), registration fees ($74 million), vehicle excise ($72 million) and sales ($98 million) taxes. This is slightly more than governments spend on road construction and highway maintenance and administration. On this basis, our highways would seem to be paying for themselves in admissions charged.

But highways do more than merely pay for themselves in admission fees. They create wealth. Every good highway replaces a bad one adjacent property values rise. In many cases, for instance Ontario's Queen Elizabeth Way, factories and housing developments are established right along the highway. Route, far from the city in distance, we close to it in time. Such highways increase land values over an ever-widening area.

Good roads are also money savers for motorists. It costs less to operate a car on a good highways than on bad: less gasoline, fewer repairs, longer tire and gasoline consumption and smaller repair bills. The Ontario Department of Highways conducted tests, estimated that it costs two cents a mile less to operate a car on a four-lane divided controlled-access highway than on a two-lane highway. Multiply that by 40,000 miles of driving this is a saving of $200, or enough to pay for a trip to Europe, including flying. In addition these tests showed that a car lasts longer on a time, and time is often money, especially in the trucking business.

Studies both in Canada and the United States show that the accident toll can be cut by 25 per cent through improved highway design. Take, for example, a road with, in turn, almost certainly dangerous premiums and produces further savings.

All these factors suggest that we should be more willing to build our roads as income-earning investments

Young Moose Likes Candy

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Carleton county has an amiable year-old moose which will be quite a tourist attraction if it only continues to enjoy its way to become the pampered pet of the neighborhood. But, after a brief encounter with humans, it seems to prefer its forest haunts and freedom.

Recently the young moose played host to Mr. Earl Pratt and the Rev. Stanley Brook of the Howard Brook area when the Pratts, learning of its presence, paid a call. It accompanied them courteously to the office of the road to the nearest centre of attraction for a large number of people.

The moose accepted grast, cookies and chocolate bar from the spectators and, in turn, permitted some children to be placed on its back.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SUITABLE IMMUNIZATION SCHEDULE FOR CHILDREN

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please comment on the I am under the impression that all babies are born with a certain degree of immunity t o w a r d s certain communicable diseases. Is this correct? — Mrs. L. W."

Yes, babies are protected to a limited degree by antibodies in the blood, derived from their mothers, since before birth babies are nurtured by the mother's blood, circulating through the placenta.

There is considerable variation from one disease to another. Apparently there is no immunity against chickenpox, mumps or whooping cough, and that last one in particular can be menacing. There is no immunity, either, against staphylococcus infections which sometimes play such havoc in nurseries.

In other instances there is considerable immunity at birth but it gradually declines, and the little fellow has to develop his own immunity. Typical of this can be done with vaccination. The usual schedule is:

4 months — First "triple vaccine" plus first dose of smallpox.

6 months — Fourth "triple vaccine".

1 year — Third dose of polio vaccine.

2 to 3 years — Booster dose of the "triple vaccine." Also tuberculin test to see whether the child has been exposed to TB.

5 to 6 years — Booster for lockjaw and diphtheria. Smallpox vaccination if necessary. Tuberculin test repeated, if first negative.

10 years — Booster for diphtheria and lockjaw, and smallpox vaccination if necessary.

REPEAT EVERY FIVE YEARS

After age 10 — Repeat diphtheria booster, lockjaw booster and smallpox vaccination every five years, or repeat lockjaw booster whenever an injury occurs such that the wound might be contaminated with tetanus spores.

Remember that vaccinations do not build up full effectiveness with a single injection; that immunity does not last and does not retain its full effectiveness without boosters. Why, it is amazing the number of adults who have small pox vaccination for travel purposes and who escape a "take" which means they had lost their immunity!

The above schedule gives splendid protection, if your child has missed one or more but it is never to late to start!

There is little to be done (many anyway)... to prevent mumps, measles and chickenpox, so these remain the common communicable diseases of childhood. Rubella (German measles or red), however, can be modified — made milder — by use of gamma globulin, if it is known that a child has been exposed to measles. . . .

"Dear Dr. Molner: Will eating foods containing iodine reduce an inside goitre? How is that treated? — Mrs. L.H."

For goitre, of any type, don't ask me for a generalization. You have to study each case individually. Sometimes, in fact, iodine does no good at all. The best advice I can give is to remember that iodine many times helps temporarily but not permanently and the sure treatment (surgery) is best done in that period of temporary improvement.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Could a young girl who is not married use douches after each menstrual period? — Mrs. L. H."

No — that is to say, it just isn't necessary. Except for medicated douches or douches prescribed by the doctor for some specific purpose you have nothing to gain at all.

Are you a victim of "vitamin starvation?" To make sure that your diet is a reliable protector, write to me in care of this newspaper for my pamphlet, "Vitamins." Send a stamped (3c) envelope, a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Can Sober Up In Half Hour

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A report from Los Angeles says that a new hormone has been discovered which will make a man stupid with drink in half an hour. Another report says it will clear a man of the fear of suffering from delirium tremens in a couple of hours. The circumstance attaching to the discoveries is that the research workers were not drinking themselves during experiments for a cancer cure.

Old souls may welcome these drugs, or they may not. When a man has spent a wet night and a substantial sum of money imbibing, and has a splitting headpals, he likes to feel the effects for hours and that he has had a good time. If a man could promise unbelt he is clear-in mind in a couple of hours he may think he has not got value for his money. Then he might be tempted to start all over again as he would be under no satisfaction in getting a jag.

There used to be a popular concoction for souses called "The Red Widow" which created a happy condition. A man could get real drunk on it, and next day feel no worse than after a bad one, and that was bad for business.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In a book recently published on the subject of public relations, the author maintains that two-thirds of all people discharged from their jobs are discharged because they cannot get along with their associates. We generally think that we lose jobs because we don't have the requisite cleverness and produce further selling.

All these factors suggest that we should be more willing to build our roads as income-earning investments with their associates, but they are always in trouble with those who are above them. They don't get on with the boss, but not with their associates. Still others seem to take a perverse delight in kicking the folks down under. Sometimes people who are themselves very popular with those in their same echelon or with the people who report to them, have a common run of folk over whose destinies they preside.

It is impossible in to have won half the struggle for success. This does not mean that one has to be a back-slapper. It just means a degree of tact and the capacity to spread good cheer and consideration wherever he goes.

Applause And Criticism Mixed In Initial Reaction To Federal Budget

Fleming Budgets on Basis Of Resumption of Rise in Incomes and Production

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming raised a cautious hope last night that the recession has ended. But he made clear that for some time to come the main impetus for Canadian economic expansion will have to come from governments rather than industry.

Embarking on his first budget speech, Mr. Fleming informed the Commons that with many industries over-expanded, the Canadian business scene will generate less power toward new construction and expansion.

He predicted a new period of business expansion — the force that powered most of Canada's post-war growth—will not be long delayed." Meanwhile, Canadian energies can be directed to building more houses, providing more municipal services an preparing the foundations for the new business cycle.

On this basis, he estimated Canada's national production of goods and services this year would reach a record $32,000,000,000—a rather minor two-per-cent climb, combined with the four-per-cent increase last year to $31,400,000,000.

SEES IMPROVEMENT

Knowing the "determination" of his government and the resourcefulness of Canadians, he have no hesitation in budgeting on the basis of a resumption in the rise in incomes and production."

But he could not hold out complete hope that even the small two-per-cent increase would be entirely in physical production rather than price inflation.

"In the period of immediate inflationary pressures, I would not expect any general decline in prices during the balance of the year. But this is not something we can take for granted . . . Inflation remains a very real danger against which we must remain on guard."

Mr. Fleming tried a new volley of criticism at United States import restrictions and predicted lasting benefits" from the Commonwealth trade and economic conference opening Sept. 15 at Montreal.

He quashed hopes of exporters that the Progressive Conservatives might try to reduce the premium value of the Canadian dollar through deployment of the country's official reserves of gold and U.S. dollars.

COSTLY IMPORTS

Cutting the premium rate of the dollar—now about 3 per cent above the U.S. dollar—might benefit some exporters but it would make imports more expensive, he argued.

Canada used its official reserves to "limit" the impact of short-run fluctuations in the exchange rate but not to reverse "persistent market trends."

"Indeed, it is doubtful if the exchange fund could be successfully employed for this purpose over any extended period of time."

He spoke of the huge Canadian deficit in American trade and the need to pursue "energetic, corrective measures."

This year the deficit was expected to shrink sharply because of the decline in Canadian imports. But Mr. Fleming recalled that even though Canada's deficit with the U.S. was reduce by 26 per cent in 1957 "it still exceeded $1,000,000,000."

He touched on American restrictions on Canadian oil; the threat to Canadian exports of lead, zinc and copper and the "severe" damage caused to Canadian wheat exports through the U.S. giveaway program in commercial markets.

"We have made it clear to the U.S. authorities that measures which add to our difficulties in selling in the U.S. market or in third countries cannot but impair our ability and willingness to buy port from them."

OPPOSES OBSTACLES

The government intended to "press for wider access on reasonable terms to the U.S. market; and we will continue to oppose with all the means at our disposal any threat to impose greater obstacles against Canadian exports to that market."

It also intended to encourage imports from the Commonwealth on the basis of "normal mutual forces." At the same time, efficient home industry would be encouraged so that more of Canada's needs could be met from domestic production.

The September Commonwealth conference would differ from the 1932 meeting when imperial tariff preferences were cemented and increased. No new system of preferences would be proposed, but Canada would seek to retain the existing system which had been weakened somewhat since the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade was introduced in 1947-48.

The government's trade objectives were to:

1. Achieve expansion, diversification and better balance and greater stability in Canada's trade with all countries.

2. Build and strengthen Canada's trade and economic relationships with the Commonwealth.

3. Support and promote a regime of law, order and morality in the field of international trade; respect the spirit and intent of international commitments; and stand ready to defend Canada's rights an interests if they are challenged or ignored.

4. Recognize the legitimate nees of Canadian producers and safeguard them against unfair trading practices.

5. Promote the balanced growth of all sectors of Canadian industry and agriculture.

Can Make Gift Of $14,000 Without Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — A once-in-a-lifetime benefit conferred by the new federal budget will allow a husband to give his wife title to $10,000 in the home they share without having to pay gift tax on the transfer.

Under the same provision a parent can give his son or daughter a $10,000 share in a farm.

The new benefit is in addition to the present exemption allowing gifts of up to $4,000 a year without gift tax. Thus in one year a gift of up to $14,000 may be made without paying tax — for example a half-share in a $28,000 house or farm.

Mr. Fleming said it will cover most of the difficult tax cases involving transfers of home ownership between husband and wife and of farm ownership between a farmer and his son.

The budget specifies that the transfer exemption applies only to property used as a home by the married couple, and to farms to be operated by the child or the farmer and child together.

The rate of gift tax ranges from 12 to 23 per cent on gifts between $5,000 and $300,000.

The second change involves the tax on gifts made within three years of the donor's death. Under law, such gifts must be included in the donor's estate on which succession duty may be levied.

The new measure will allow a refund of the amount by which the gift tax collected may exceed the succession duty on the gift, if there is no succession duty, the gift tax will be refunded.

At present any gift tax paid in these cases can be credited against a subsequent succession duty on the property involved, but there is no provision for refunds on any excess.

Govt. Giving Corporations Tax Incentive

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is giving corporations new incentive to invest to help Canadian education.

Finance Minister Fleming announced in his budget that starting this tax year, corporations will be allowed to deduct up to 10 per cent of profits as charitable donations. The present limit is five per cent.

"Particularly I am hoping that this change in the law will swell the flow of funds from industry in the support of higher education," he said.

The National Conference of Canadian Universities had informed him that of an estimated $800,000,000 needed for university expansion during the next five or six years, governments and contributions were now providing about $300,000,000.

For the rest, the universities would have to look to private sources, "particularly o corporations."

While many corporations are accepting seriously their responsibilities along this line, "a great many—indeed, far too—many corporations do not come close" to taking advantage of the existing five-per-cent tax deduction for such contributions.

No New System Of Preferences To Be Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will propose retention of the existing system of Commonwealth trade preferences at the forthcoming Commonwealth trade conference, Finance Minister Fleming said last night in his budget speech.

In a section devoted to Commonwealth trade, he told the Commons Canada will not propose a new system of preferences.

Mr. Fleming, making no direct reference to Britain's standing proposal for gradual achievement of free trade with Canada, listed the government's objectives for the conference as these:

1. Expansion of the opportunities for trade between Canada and the other Commonwealth countries, with a hope that "progress can be made in removing restrictions and discriminations which are imposed against us."

2. More rapid progress towards currency convertibility and a freer system of world trade and payments.

3. Measures to assist in the economic development of Commonwealth countries, particularly the newer ones.

4. Extension of Commonwealth institutions to contribute more effectively to joint economic and political strength as a barrier against communism.

Lift Special Tax On Advertising In 2 Magazines

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Foreign magazines now can publish special Canadian editions without paying a special 30-per-cent excise tax on their gross Canadian advertising income.

The tax, imposed by the former Liberal administration Jan. 1, 1957, was repealed by the Progressive Conservative government Tuesday night.

In effect, the magazine tax affected only Time magazine and the Canadian edition of Reader's Digest. The publication Reader's Digest refused to pay the tax and asked the Quebec Superior Court to declare it discriminatory and unenforceable. The case has not been heard and likely will be dropped now.

An official of Time magazine's Canadian edition, which reported to have paid $500,000 in the tax year, said that company is pleased by the decision.

Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech that repeal of the tax will cut federal revenues by $1,000,000 a year.

The tax was a highly-controversial one from which governments from the United States government, through Liberal and Progressive Conservatives who, when in parliamentary opposition, described it as discriminatory.

Mr. Fleming said the tax was imposed to protect jobs.

However, his speech contained no reference to other advertising sheets, local bulletins and circulars and similar publications, it was learned in Commons hallways. Just as the Liberals' so-called magazine tax affected only two.

The provision would eliminate sales tax exemptions for publications which meet the post office department's test for second-class mailing privileges.

Second-class mailing privileges involve a complicated system of qualification. The key legal qualification for the special low postage granted newspapers and apparently is "bona fide subscribers."

The sales tax, from which non-qualified publications will no longer be exempted, is 10 per cent.

Mr. Fleming's announcement removing the magazine tax was received with mixed reaction from publishing interests.

Lawrence E. Laybourne, managing director of Time Incorporated of Canada Limited, said advertising rates will be reduced in a subsequent issue because of the tax.

Maclean-Hunter Publishing Corporation, one of Canada's leading magazine publishers.

Mr. Gladstone said "all Canadian publications that seek to serve the Canadian public with news and ideas are going to suffer from this diversion of the Canadian economy."

He said Mr. Fleming had been "inconsistent" in tightening up regulations against the border measures against dumping of goods becoming up on "the dumping of editorial contents into this country."

The tax law was worded so as to apply to Canadian editions of magazines containing paid advertisements not appearing in domestic editions. However, religious and medical journals were exempted.

Fiscal Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the economic portion of Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech in the Commons last night.

There are hopeful signs that Canada has reached the end of the recession.

More energy now may be devoted to filling gaps in housing, municipal services and other "social capital."

Gross National Product—value of all goods and services produced—for 1958 estimated at $32,000,000,000 compared with $31,443,000,000 in 1957.

Canadians must remain on guard against inflation, still a very real danger.

Unlikely Canada's foreign exchange fund could be used to control exchange rate on dollar for lengthy period.

Canada will press for wider access on reasonable terms to United States markets.

Canada will work for maintenance of existing system of Commonwealth preferences at Commonwealth trade conference.

CMA President Says Budget Was 'Like the Curate's Egg - Good Only in Some Parts'

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A few bursts of applause and some sharp calls of criticism marked initial reaction to Tuesday night's budget.

Expressions of opinion, however, were still limited.

Perhaps the most outspoken criticism came from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Ian F. McRae, CMA president, said the budget was "like the curate's egg — good only in parts."

On the "good" side, he praised the new anti-dumping proposals which, he stated, should do much to help Canadian industries combat "the cut-throat competition from low-cost imports."

NO CUT FOR CORPORATIONS

However, he said:

"The total failure to reduce the crushing weight of corporation income taxes, especially when industrial earnings are sliding, should disturb every thinking Canadian.

"The best tonic for business, the individual taxpayer and the national economy would have been some new incentive in the form of a significant tax cut, which would prove far more stimulatory than the delayed-action effects of rising government expenditures."

Mr. McRae also expressed disappointment that no substantial cuts were made in excise taxes. Such cuts, he added, would have noted a "hi-per-cent" return, which in turn, "would have stimulated both consumer demand and production."

Representatives of the automobile industry also expressed disappointment that there was no reduction in the 15-per-cent excise tax on passenger cars.

Financing Move Could Lead To Higher Interest Rates

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has decided to raise a record $3,400,000,000 in bond and stock issues this year, which could lead to higher interest rates—and perhaps inflation.

Finance Minister Fleming, in announcing the government's financial needs in his budget Tuesday night, told reporters later he hopes the huge financing operations will not lead to higher rates. But he said no one could be sure how the bond market would react in the next few months.

"This is a major financial operation and will require the closest co-operation between the department of finance, the Bank of Canada, the chartered banks and all the investment institutions," he said.

He plans to deliver a sales pep talk to the dealers Thursday in Toronto.

POST-WAR RECORD

The $3,400,000,000, a post-war record $1,400,000,000 will be in new money — cash required to pay for maturing loans and the estimated $648,000,000 budget deficit for the year that started April 1. Wartime governments have raised huge amounts for military expenditures but officials said that never before has a government had to seek $3,400,000,000 in one year.

The threat of inflation is involved in the possibility that the commercial money market may not be able to raise all the cash the government's bonds and that the Bank of Canada — the federal sales agency—may step in to absorb the residue.

Every time the central bank adds to its portfolio of government bonds it is in effect adds to the country's money supply. The central bank's outlays find their way into the chartered banks. Since the chartered banks need to hold only eight per cent of their deposits in cash, they can lend $92 out of every $100 received in new deposits.

GREATER ACCESS TO CREDIT

All this could have the effect of stimulating expansion in the country's money supply, giving Canadians greater access to credit and a general boost to buying goods on time.

Effects on consumer costs of production and prices in general, Mr. Fleming said at one point in his budget address speech. . . . We are in danger of becoming a high-cost economy. Such a prospect is particularly perilous in the case of a country ered Canada which must sell so much of its production in markets abroad."

But the government had already raised part of its bond needs and this had not increased interest rates. In fact rates had fallen from the high levels of a

Can Deduct Glasses, Drugs On Income Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — Cost of eye glasses and drugs bought under prescription are being added to the list of medical expenses which may be deducted from taxable income when Canadians fill out income tax returns next spring.

Also added as deductible medical expenses, in Finance Minister Fleming's budget, are costs of artificial eyes, laboratory or other diagnostic services, and ambulance trips to and from hospital.

The change will apply only to such expenditures made starting today.

There is no change in the present stipulation that allows deduction only of medical expenses exceeding three per cent of net income—the income before other deductions.

Canadians still will have the option of claiming a flat $100 deduction for medical costs, if they find it more beneficial to do so.

In the past, deductible medical costs have been restricted mainly to doctors' and dentists' bills and hospital charges plus a handful of special medicines.

Estates Benefit Under Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Coming changes in succession—or death duties will provide tax relief for $7,000,000 annually on estates, Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech.

Relief will be concentrated on low-value estates. Taxes on upper-bracket estates will be proportionately less than before.

Last January the government introduced a new Estates Tax Act intended to replace the present Succession Duties Act. It postponed action pending parliamentary action until this session so it could receive representations in the meantime.

Mr. Fleming said this bill has been revised and will be re-introduced.

Under the bill, an estate of $60,000 or less left to a widow will be tax-exempt. There will be a reduction of $10,000 above the $60,000 for each dependent child. Thus a $90,000 estate left to a widow with three dependent children will be tax-exempt.

Now exemption is given only to estates of $50,000 or less.

MUST REFUND BONDS

"Since April we have sold $1,400,000,000 of bonds, of which $350,000,000 was new cash. We have before us the need to refund $1,300,000,000 of maturing bonds and to raise more than $2,000,000,000 of new cash."

Of the estimated $1,400,000,000 in borrowing, $648,000,000 will be required to cover the forecast budget deficit and $775,000,000 repayable to the International Bank, the CNR, the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Northern Ontario Pipe Line Crown Corporation and liquidation of the government's defence production plants.

The $648,000,000 estimated budget deficit would be the fifth in peacetime history but Mr. Fleming indicated another deficit may result in the next fiscal year in 1959-60.

Govt. Embarks on Policy Of Boosting Tariff Protection For All Canadian Industry

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming, who says he isn't worried about retaliation from other countries, has embarked on a policy of boosting tariff protection for Canadian industry.

Without consulting with Britain, he has imposed higher tariffs on most goods imported from that country, effective immediately. And he has put into immediate effect changes in rates on steel and iron, pipes and tubes and zinc products which, he says, should lead to increased fabrication in Canada of some of these products.

Most perhaps the most far-reaching change, announced in his budget Tuesday night, is the introduction of "countervailing" duties to reinstroduce powerful anti-dumping laws created by the Conservatives in a re-enactment of 1930 - 35 which the Liberals repealed soon after they took office in 1935.

COST PLUS PROFIT

Under a bill to be brought before Parliament shortly, the government will seek to apply important restrictions on the margin of profit on any product sold at a price considered to be "unduly" more than cost of production plus a "reasonable" profit.

The present criterion for assessing dumping duties against articles sold in Canada at a lower imported price is the same as the selling price in the home market. It is up to the government charges are improper.

However, Mr. Fleming made clear this policy of the former Liberal administration will be thrown out. If a country tries to dump goods into Canada at below cost, then the government will move to impose extra duties to bring the imported price up to what it considers reasonable.

Meeting with reporters after presenting his budget, Mr. Fleming declined to say what impact this policy will have on consumer prices. But he said the tougher dumping duties will be used on high-cost countries, such as the United States, and not on low-cost countries, such as those in underdeveloped areas.

AIMED AT U.S. TEXTILES

It is understood from officials that the new dumping rule would not be applied mainly on textiles shipped from the United States.

The Liberals waived the anti-dumper law in 1936 after concluding a new trade agreement with the U.S. It was eliminated completely in 1948 when Canada entered the new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade designed to reduce tariffs and boost the flow of international trade.

Some authorities suggested the tougher dumping law would not be in line with the spirit of GATT but Mr. Fleming told reporters he was not worried about retaliation.

In line with a tariff board recommendation, tariff ceilings on imports of wool cloth is increased to 45 cents a pound from 30 cents on cloth used for suits and to 35 cents from 30 on cloth used for coats.

One official said it would add

Farmers Get Minor Break In Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian farmer got a minor break in Finance Minister Fleming's budget, with elimination of taxes on some goods he purchases.

Mr. Fleming said farm goods used exclusively or almost exclusively by farmers will be exempt from the 10-per-cent sales tax.

The list would be lengthened by the addition of stock-cow salt, salt for poultry and livestock, red-killing compounds for fresh growers and all materials used in the manufacture of grain- and seed-cleaning machinery.

In addition, all machinery used outside processing plants for the handling of sugar beets will be exempt, if it is of a kind not made in Canada.

25 cents to the cent on cloth in a suit and 10 cents to the cent on cloth in an overcoat. The Canadian Industrial Textiles Institute hailed the boost, saying it vindicated the views it has expressed for years that foreign textiles were being sold only wool cloth imported from the Commonwealth and Mr. Fleming said negotiations will be started with the Commonwealth countries to boost their higher rates. Canada's most-favored-nation tariffs will be affected.

More extensive were tariff reductions on steel and iron products. All the drawback parts of the tariffs returned to importers when exports are used in specified purposes — were eliminated. Substitutes were revised somewhat by others, downwards. The main effect was to aid Canadian producers, to help them spread their new production fields.

For example, the duty on the parts of structural steel from the U.S. was boosted to 20 per cent from five. Mr. Fleming said that on the whole Canadian production of structural steel showed a decided improvement over the old one."

Other tariff structure on pipes and tubes was tightened and revised into more workable words. The main change here was a boost in tariffs on pipes used for gas and water to 20 per cent from five on imports from Britain and to 15 from 7½ on imports from the U.S.

Zinc tariffs also were revised to "more workable words of assurance" but imposing a rate of 7½ per cent on products made from imports from the U.S. to "encourage additional fabrication in Canada."

Canada has started negotiations with the U.S. to remove tariffs on fresh fruits and vegetables. And the tariff board is to study the question of whether there should be done anything on imports of rubber footwear.

SAVAGE — KELLER

Bridge Street United Church was the setting, recently, for a lovely late spring wedding when the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Helen Elizabeth Keller, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Keller, to Clarke Arthur Savage, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Savage. Tall, white standards of multi-colored snapdragons, white and yellow chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel rail, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Alex Gordon, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Sylvia Lancaster, of Clarke's View, who sang "Such Lovely Things" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Norman Keller, the bride was charming in her white, nylon chiffon, wedding gown, featuring a Sweetheart neckline outlined by daisies, and long, sheath-like sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The floor-length skirt of nylon chiffon over taffeta fell in graceful folds. She wore a half crown of flowers mingled with seed pearl leaves, finger-tip veil of nylon tulle, and carried a cascade of red roses with single red rose knotted in the streamer.

Miss Betty Anderson, of Campbellford, was maid of honor, and Miss Barbara Worley, of Belleville was bridesmaid. Both attendants were gowned alike in nylon chiffon over taffeta in romance blue, in cocktail length. They were elbow-length blue nylon, finger-tip gloves, headresses matching their gowns, and carried bouquets of yellow mums centred by a yellow rose and outlined by adiantum fern.

For the reception held at 20 St. Paul Street, at the home of the bride's grandmother, the bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by pink rosebuds.

The bride's mother, chose a turquoise gown with tiny pink flowers, with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving the guests, wearing navy blue with matching hat, gloves and pink rose corsage.

Mr. William Savage, of Belleville, attended his brother, while Mr. Ray Parthenais, of Cornwall, Ontario, and Mr. William Hubbs of Belleville, were ushers.

For travelling to Toronto, and points west the bride donned a pale green ensemble with matching hat white accessories, and corsage or red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Savage are residing at 43 Dunbar Street, Belleville.

Victorian Order Lists Month's Activities

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Victorian Order of Nurses was held Monday evening at the YMCA, with the president, Mr. H. A. Parker, in the chair.

Present at the meeting was Miss Bessie Seaman, the registered nurse, who is visiting the Belleville branch of the Victorian Order at this time.

Reports were given by chairmen of standing committees. The nurse in charge in reporting on the nursing service said that in May 431 home visits were made to a total of 82 patients, 34% of whom were admitted to the service during the month. Three hundred and eighty, or 88 per cent of the visits were nursing care and the remaining 12 per cent of the visits were health instruction visits to mothers and babies.

The case load and visits for May were as follows: medical, surgical and chronically ill, 56 cases and 381 visits; maternity and new-born, 19 cases and 46 visits. Patients admitted for health supervision only one. These were infants over six weeks of age, seventeen cases and 22 visits. Two visits were made and the patient was not at home.

During May the V.O.N. continued to assist the local Department of Health at the weekly Child Health Conferences at the Rivanis Centre and to give school nursing service to Cannifton-Corbyville and Holy Rosary schools.

It seems that the times and the seasons are both out of joint. At this time of year we are usually writing about swim suits, beach equipment, summer and vacation clothes and the like. But who feels like it this year? Then to put things really upside down, we saw dirplayed some velvet hats that may be worn in the fall. It makes a very short season.

On Front Street, yesterday morning a friend of ours pulled up to the curb as we walked along. He is a representative of men's and boys' clothing. When he got out of his station wagon which was piled full with sample grips he looked nearly perished. We stopped to chat and who will gainsay that there is lots to talk about. Of course there is. There is the weather and what weather and this we did talk about. The chief that meandered from cloudy skies and low temperatures to sunny and swimming suits. Our friend exclaimed "And what about my business. Who can sell short sleeved shirts to men in this kind of weather?"

"Never mind," we replied, "it can't last forever. You'll be swell during soon and everybody will want short sleeved shirts."

T and T doesn't think that we were successful cheer-uppers or that our philosophy about the weather was very convincing. Our friend shivered that he was going to get a cup of coffee without waiting for the sweller.

June is supposed to be the time when teal is plentiful and at a reasonable price. That, however, has not happened yet. There are bargains in many cuts of frozen lamb although spring lamb is very expensive. It seems from lamb consumption figures that Canadians do not take advantage of this fine product of our farms. The consumption of lamb per person is less than three pounds a year as compared to a combined beef and pork consumption of about fifteen pounds.

To combat this in the east, a special feature of the 1958 Nova Scotia Exhibition at Truro will be the preparation and cooking of various cuts of lamb. Special emphasis will be placed on methods of cooking and serving the economical cuts of lamb. Visitors will get a chance to taste the results.

It seems there are many people who are puzzled by some of the canned salmon they buy is labelled "Product of Japan." According to the Canadian Association of Consumers, this is simply because the 1956 and 1957 salmon catches in British Columbia were not enough to produce sufficient quantities of certain species to fill the requirements of the Canadian market. Because of this situation it was necessary for the processing companies to supplement the stocks of canned salmon for the Canadian market by importing some species of canned salmon from Japan. All must be inspected for quality and canned salmon entering Canada high standards under the regulations for the inspection of canned salmon of the Canadian Meat and Canned Foods Act.

Good Shopping?

A short time ago T and T referred to the idea of setting aside a day each spring for the transplanting of trees and shrubs. The idea derived from the news about the Boy Scouts being permitted to use the Colonel Vanderwater Park for camping purposes. At the last meeting of the executive of the Moira River Conservation Authority, a letter was received from Mr. J. W. Hodgson, secretary of the Belleville Boy Scout Association. It was stated that the Colonel Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg was "the finest we have been privileged to use. It came in for much favorable comment not only from the one hundred and sixty-one boys and leaders but also from the large numbers of visitors who came out."

T and T cannot stress too strongly the wisdom of widespread public support for our local conservation activities. The benefits to a community are neither transient nor unprofitable. Rather are they permanent and enduring profit to any community and the benefits are many and varied. We like the idea of a day being used each spring when conservation can be instilled into the minds of our boys and girls by positive and constructive action.

MOVIE TOO MUCH

SHOREHAM, Eng. (Reuters)—Sgt.-Maj. Albert Arnold, a veteran of the 1940 Dunkirk retreat, shot himself after seeing the movie "Dunkirk," an inquest was told Monday. Arnold 51, cried all through the movie, his wife said. The film shows the withdrawal of British troops from the French port. The next day — Friday the 13th—he was found dead with a revolver by his side.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP

Don't be so unwise as to think that what you say, "I'd tell h e r this to her face" or "I'd just as soon tell him this to his face," is excuse enough for criticizing another person behind her or his back. It is. Such criticism leaves the person critized defenseless. And don't think y o u make a good impression on your listener, who undoubtedly will be wondering, "What does he (or she') say about me when I'm not around?"

WHEN GROOM'S PARENTS INTRODUCE RELATIVES TO BRIDE'S PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At the wedding reception, when we, the groom's parents, are introducing our relatives to the bride's parents, is there any rule as to who is mentioned first?

Since in this circumstance the bride's parents will be the hosts, should the guest's name be mentioned first? — W. K.

When introducing a relative to the bride's mother, the hostess, it is best, because more practical explaining the relationship, for her to say, for example: "Mrs. Blake, this is Mrs. Adams, my aunt from San Francisco." If the bride's father is standing next to his wife, you add, "... and Mrs. Adams, Mr. Blake." (These introductions at a wedding reception must be streamlined, because there is so comparatively little time, and there must be special care to pronounce the names very distinctly, and to 'make the relationships clearly understood.

SHOULD FIANCEE GIVE FIANCE ENGAGEMENT PRESENT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our engagement is to be announced next month. Is it proper for me to give my boy friend an engagement gift? Some of my friends are asking me what gift I am getting for him, and I don't know what to reply. If you think it is proper for me to give him a gift, what would you suggest?

— Puzzled

It's not at all a "must," but it is entirely proper for you to give your fiance an engagement present if you wish to. This present would, I advise, be something lasting: cuff links, if you think he would welcome these, or studs, or a wallet stamped with h i s name or initials,or a gold or silver pen or pencil as a set, or a tie-pin or clasp, or a matching set of these.

WHEN FUNERAL FLOWERS ARE SENT TO CHURCH

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I send funeral flowers directly to the church, how should we address the envelope? And how should we sign the florist's card? Also, should we write a message on the closed card? — A. S.

When the flowers are sent directly to the church, address the envelope to:

The funeral of William Blake

Name of church

Address of church, if necessary

On the florist's card, write your names as they would be engraved on your personal cards: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith. Write no message on this card.

For Love Affairs

by Mary Moore

What's Europe got that Canada hasn't? Well, for one thing all my kids.

There is one wonderful thing about my business, and I add a "thank you" prayer for it this morning. With all this gorgeous my family does I can immediately return to my desk and become a columnized in column writing and letter answering that I am half glad they are gone.

This morning I took stock and have been counting my more wistful and realize that here it is June and wedding and shower time and I have not been helping! Well I am starting right now.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Corned Beef and Cabbage; Horseradish Sauce; Homemade Refrigerator Rolls (use ½ and ½ white and whole wheat flour); Tomato Jelly Salads; Rhubarb Custard Pie; Coffee.

I am quite sure some of you will remember a "double ring" angel cake I gave you in June of 1955. I have a new version of that to suggest to you today, for an engagement party or a bride and groom reception. In fact it would be appropriate for any affair having to do with love and marriage — young or old.

BRIDE AND GROOM CAKES:

Make two angel food cakes. Frost one with marshmallow glaze — hers — and the other with chocolate glaze — his. See Glazes below. When party time arrives use these as the centre piece for your buffet table. Decorate his cake by inserting a small glass vase in the centre hole and filling it with blue cornflowers or violas. Decorate hers by inserting small glass vase in centre hole and filling it with a dainty bunch of pink sweet peas and baby's breath.

You may want to add to or regress you own artistic talents and surround the cakes with borders of blue and pink blossoms on the cake plate edges. If you do this wrap the moist stem tips in foil to insure freshness.

MARSHMALLOW GLAZE —

For Her Cake:

One-quarter lb. soft fresh marshmallows, 1 cup icing sugar, ¼ cup boiling water, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Add the boiling water to the sugar, then stir into the cut up marshmallows melted in top of double boiler until perfectly smooth. Add vanilla. Pour the warm glaze over top of cooled cake, letting the cake back and forth making excess glaze dribble slowly down the sides in narrow rivulets.

CHOCOLATE GLAZE —

For His Cake:

One 6-oz. package semi-sweet chocolate bits, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons corn syrup, 3 tablespoons milk. Melt chocolate bits and butter over hot but not boiling water. Stir until mixed. Add syrup and milk and stir until smooth. Remove from heat and while still warm drizzle over cooled cake, topping and tilting the cake to control the down-flowing streams in an orderly pattern.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. B. E. — Bob and his wife should live with us.

Bob E. — They interfere in little ways.

Mrs. B. E. — My son, who is just 21, was recently married. His father and I opposed t h e marriage, but we were unable to do anything with him. Now we accept it and are trying to take his wife to our hearts like o u r own child.

We would like Bob and his wife to live with us for a while until they can get on their own feet. We have a big house and t h e other children have all left. Bob and his wife are both working but they haven't yet saved any money and will have quite a struggle.

We wouldn't interfere in their lives in any way and they would have the utmost privacy, but they aren't willing to stay w i t h us for even a short time. Isn't that foolish? We are really quite hurt.

Bob E. — My parents have been wonderful about this whole thing and I do appreciate t h e i r attitude. I believe my mother is sincere when she says she a n d my father don't want to interfere with us, but whether they realize it or not they do interfere in little ways.

My wife is very sensitive to everything they say because she knows they didn't like her at first. She says my mother sometimes says little things which annoy her, like, "Why don't you comb your hair before going out?" or "Let me show you how Bob likes his coffee." Mother meant well, but Lillian takes it that she is being criticized.

It is going to be very rough going for us, but we feel we would be better off in our own place.

The Council: It takes a great deal of tolerance, self-control and general maturity for two couples to live together successfully. We don't believe it could be done in this case.

From Bob's statement, we would judge his wife has a childish resistance against what she supposes is authority. Another way of looking at his mother's remarks would be to see that so much interest indicates love and thoughtfulness. Bob's wife feels it as criticism because she lacks confidence in herself.

Mrs. B. E. should not feel hurt when se rson rejects her generous offer. She should realize her plan could not work out well under the circumstances. Antagonisms would be set up and they would last a lifetime.

Left to themselves Bob and Lillian will probably take their various problems and hardships in stride. They will not be able to blame any of their disagreements or setbacks on any other person. In this way they will develop strength and self-responsibility.

Centenary F.C. Presents Pastor Wife, With Tray

The June meeting of the Centenary Fellowship Club was held in the church hall on Friday evening, with an attendance of 30 members and three visitors.

The president, Fred Edmondson, opened the meeting. The treasurer reported a fine balance on hand.

It was decided after much discussion, to hold a July meeting at a time suitable to the group in charge.

The Rev. and Mrs. Percival conducted the worship period. Mrs. Percival read the Scripture lesson, John 15:1-14, on which the topic of "Friendship" was based. Mr. Percival gave a fine talk on friends and what they mean to each and everyone, closing with prayer, the worship period.

Byron Harder introduced Harold and Bernice Pitcher, Stockdale, who showed some beautiful and interesting moving pictures of their trip to Florida and Bermuda. Bernice explained each picture as they came into view.

Mr. Percival thanked them for such fine entertainment.

The game of "Truth or Consequences" was enjoyed by all.

A fitting climax to the evening came when the group was called to order and after brief speech by Byron Harder, Mr. and Mrs. Percival were presented with a silver tray suitably engraved — from the members of the Fellowship Club.

Mr. Percival thanked the members and wished them every success in their activities.

The ladies set down to a table laden with pie and ice cream and coffee and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Soroptimists Elect Officers

Mrs. Georgia Smith was installed as new president of Soroptimist International at a recent dinner meeting held in Eastman's Town Room.

The installation ceremony, a moving and impressive one of re-dedication, was conducted by Miss Myrtle Sargent of the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough.

Other officers installed were: First vice-president, Mrs. Muriel York; second vice-president, Mrs. Eva Corke; recording secretary, Miss Dorothy Matthews; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frances Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. A. Mazer; directors, Mrs. Lasielle Stirland, Mrs. Eve Dustin; Miss Margaret Fairbairn; Mrs. Bernice Grills; press and publicity, Mrs. L. McLaughlin.

Mrs. Georgia Smith was charter president when the Belleville club was organized in 1947.

Visiting clubs from Peterborough, Kingston, Port Hope and Cobourg were present.

Mrs. C. I. Coates, Bath, England, guest of Mrs. Georgia Smith, gave the members a vivid travelstalk about her recent trip to Malaya, dealing with the political, economic and agricultural problems in a versatile manner.

Mrs. Coates is a world traveller and this is her second journey across Canada.

Tribute was paid to Miss Helen Symons for her outstanding contribution to Soroptimism in her two years as president.

Soroptimists International of Belleville has had a year of gratifying achievement and is to be congratulated as a service club for the contribution made to this city.

Newly-Elected IODE Head, Busy in Voluntary Work

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. A. K. Richardson is one of the busiest women in voluntary work in Canada. She was re-elected president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at the organization's annual meeting in Halifax recently.

Mrs. Richardson joined the order as a time - filling activity when she married and regulations at the time made her quit her teaching job.

Now she is playing a bigger part in education than she could have done as a teacher.

BUSY EXECUTIVE

A smartly - dressed woman in her 50s, Mrs. Richardson heads an organization that spends $300,000 a year on education and some $500,000 on charitable work generally.

From a stay-at-home housewife, she has become widely travelled, having toured Canada 12 times on IODE business.

"I can safely say I am not just filling in time with the order now—it is almost a full-time job for me," said Mrs. Richardson.

She began her IODE career in a Toronto chapter, became regent, and now is a life member of the Margaret Carman Ealon chapter in the city.

Though she is national chief of the organization, she must still belong to a local group.

"Whenever my chapter holds a tea or meeting I always try to be there," she said. "The fact that I hold a high position in the order doesn't mean my colleagues refuse my help with the washing up."

Before her election to the national executive, Mrs. Richardson was a member of the Toronto Municipal Chapter, chiefly an administrative group responsible for co-ordinating the work of the 99 IODE chapters in Toronto. She was successively treasurer, vice-president and regent of Municipal Chapter.

In 1943 she became a member of the national executive, was appointed vice-president in 1950 and last year was elected president.

Her job includes attending monthly meetings of the 160-strong national executive and being present at IODE headquarters here at least four times a week.

Though her IODE work must be coupled with looking after her dental surgeon husband, Mrs. Richardson still finds time to be a keen lawn bowler and alley bowler.

She won the Ontario cup for ladies singles in lawn bowling in 1956.

Will Increase Subsidies to Gold Mines

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal subsidies to gold mines will be increased by some $2,500,000, effective this calendar year, Finance Minister Fleming announced in his budget speech.

This increase will bring to $12,000,000 the 1958 total paid under the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act.

Exactly how the increased assistance will be paid out was not made clear by Mr. Fleming.

Mines Minister Comtois, who has announced that emergency assistance will be extended beyond next Dec. 31 to the end of 1960, will introduce a bill to provide for the 25-per-cent increase in the subsidy.

At present the subsidy, totalling about $9,500,000 a year, is paid to mines whose production costs range between $26.50 and $45 an ounce. It amounts to two-thirds of the production costs exceeding $26.50, with a maximum payment of $12.33 an ounce. Payments are limited to two-thirds of a mine's output.

FOR THREE YEARS

Mr. Fleming said the subsidy increase will apply to production for the whole of this year as well as 1959 and 1960.

He noted that the world price for gold is fixed at $35 an ounce in United States currency.

The best solution to Canadian gold mines' problems would be an increase in the price of gold. With the high premium on the Canadian dollar in recent years, revenue of Canadian mines had been proportionately reduced.

"Notwithstanding our best efforts, however, there is no evidence that the United States intends to raise the price of gold under present conditions."

Municipalities Get Exemption From Sales Tax

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian municipalities got a $5,000,000-a-year break in the federal budget.

Finance Minister Fleming announced that, effective today, six more items will be exempt from the 11-per-cent sales tax when purchased by municipalities.

They are: Goods for use as part of sewerage and drainage systems; culverts; fire truck chassis on which fire-fighting equipment is to be permanently attached; fire hose including couplings and nozzles; structural aluminum for bridges (steel and concrete for bridges are already exempt); and diesel fuel for use in generating electricity.

Another new exemption applies to school boards buying classroom equipment.

The law now provides an exemption from sales tax for desks and chairs specially designed for use in classrooms. In future, the exemption will apply to chalkboards, desks, tables and chairs, including upholstered chairs, purchased by educational institutions.

Change Dates

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective dates of budget tax and tariff changes:

Jan. 1—Increases in corporation charitable gift exemptions; new one-in-a life-time gift tax exemption for individuals.

June 18—Types of deductible medical expenses broadened; sales tax exemptions widened; tariff changes: special advertising tax on certain non-Canadian periodicals repealed.

July 1 — Duty exemptions altered for Canadian tourists overseas.

Given More Time

OTTAWA (CP) — The income tax collector is going to give the taxpayer more time to claim dividends and allow him more interest on overpayments.

Finance Minister Fleming announced in his budget that the period within which tax refunds may be claimed will be extended to four years from two beyond the year for which the claim is made.

He also announced that, starting with the current taxation year, the interest allowed to taxpayers on overpayments of tax will be increased to three per cent from two.

Grandmothers' Meeting Held at Harts-Riggs W.I.

MADOC — The May or "Grandmothers" meeting of Harts-Riggs WI was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Stout. The meeting opened in the form of a school day with Mrs. N. Broad as teacher. Seventeen members, 12 visitors and seven children answered the roll call as a school pupil.

In answering the teacher's questions, the behavior of the pupils was the cause of many laughs.

After business was dealt with, Mrs. Will Bateman, as program convener, took charge giving "A Portrait of Grandmother is worth more than a thousand words."

Mrs. Ted Meraw gave two readings, "Grandmother's Apron", and "A Perfect Day".

A contest, "the most words made from the word 'grandmother'" was won by Mrs. Broad with 44 words.

Mrs. Allan Franks gave a reading, "Grandmother's Lantern", and Mrs. Will Bateman a well - prepared paper on "Citizenship, New Canadians, Immigrants and DPs".

The grandmothers, 13 of ten brought the meeting to a them, were asked to pass a table happy close.

RUNAWAYS SENTENCED TO CELLAR

Keith and Murray Roswell are under sentence after having been tried and convicted by their mother, Mrs. L. H. Roswell. The two boys, ages 12 and eight, decided to leave their home, for the adventure of the wide open spaces, and with a couple of tins of beans for food, they set out from Galt, Ont. After a day and night out, in which Mrs. Roswell and police were searching everywhere, the Boys decided to come home. Their trial, with sentence that they must sweep the cellar every day for the next two weeks.

Cake, ice cream, and a cup of tea, brought the meeting to a

White's District

BAPTISMAL RITE

WHITE'S DISTRICT — At the Sunday morning service at White's Church, the infant son, Brian Mervyn, of Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Bowers was christened by the Rev. Robert Perfect.

Three who had been attending classes for the past few weeks were received into the church membership. They were Mrs. Norman Hazelwood, Mr. Edward Ronald Prete and Mr. Larry Cooper.

Mr. Percival spoke on "Church Membership," under the headings, benefits and responsibility.

At the Sunday school service, which followed Mrs. Donald Bowers, temperance superintendent, opened her program by the singing of "Rescue the Perishing." She displayed a poster "Building Canada," which showed that religion, health, education, courage, patriotism and industry were necessary for life today. A bottle of alcohol holds no place in the building of a great nation.

Miss Audrey Bowers read a conversation between Mr. Health, Mr. Education, Mr. Self and Mr. Intoxicant, and Mrs. Bowers also gave a reading, "What Alcohol Will Do."

Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Bowers entertained her parents and family of Peterborough, who were present at White's Church for the christening of their son, Brian Mervyn. As this was Mr. Percival's first christening he had a picture taken of himself with Brian and the parents, following the church service.

Father's Day guests of Mr. H. M. Brown were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Brown and Mrs. Leonard Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Jones, Stephen and Debra spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Ronald Sizenberg of Bancroft.

Public Transit System Dying In Smaller Cities, Surviving In Most Major Communities

TORONTO (CP) — Is public transit dying?

Yes and no, says the boss of Canada's biggest and most profitable public transit system.

In small cities the public transit idea is in eclipse, shunted aside by the onrushing automobile. It is dying of a disease which is to costly to cure.

But in major cities public transit has become the key to economic survival. If it dies, the city goes into decay.

TRANSIT EXPERT

The converts are those of Allan A. Lamport, 52, chairman of the $1,000,000,000 Toronto Transit Commission one of the most successful publicly — owned transportation systems in North America.

"The case for small cities", he said is an interesting one, is just about hopeless."

Getting examples across the country, Mr. Lamport said private firms are withdrawing from the public transit field in small centres under the pressure of rising costs and falling revenues.

"Let's face it", he says. "The automobile is taking over in any community which can absorb the traffic and parking problems. Fortunately, the people who don't drive can walk to most places in a small community and the decreasing availability of transit isn't so serious."

Lower fares and improved equipment do little to stop the decline, he adds. "You can't take people out of their cars if they're getting fast, efficient transportation with them."

The major centres of population are a different situation.

HURTS DOWNTOWN AREAS

"The downtown areas of our big cities are slowly being strangled by the automobile," Mr. Lamport Says. "Only rapid transit — and I mean really rapid — can save them."

But the cars are also strangling themselves, the TTC chairman points out.

"Some cities like Detroit and Los Angeles have tried to cure traffic problems by building expressways, wider streets and shorter traffic routes. I had a traffic engineer from Los Angeles in to see me the other day and he said the items they've got has to be seen to be believed.

"It's no longer possible to keep up with the traffic increase," he says. "Every time they open a new speedway in Los Angeles it only makes traffic heavier."

Public transit suffers in the traffic crush, too.

"Every time the traffic on one of our main Toronto streets gets heavier the buses and streetcars move more slowly. Every time transit gets slower, our passenger volume drops. Increasing car traffic."

STAY IN THE RED

An impossible situation?

Mr. Lamport says: "No. Subways are the solution."

"Subways," he says, "are the automation of public transit. They take away the traffic burden and are the most efficient, safest, cleanest method of mass transportation yet developed."

The TTC built Canada's first subway five years ago — a 4½-mile $653,000,000 artery running north and south along Yonge Street, the lower part of which runs through the heart of the downtown business area.

To those who argue that public transit is declining, Mr. Lamport says that the subway has increased its passenger volume every year since it was built.

"Business has sky-rocketed along the route," he says. "Last year the increased assessment along the subway was $83,000,000 above the average for other business sections of Metropolitan Toronto.

"Six years ago Yonge Street traffic moved along at six miles an hour in rush times and business places were losing volume. Now construction was slowing down at a frightening rate. The subway made all the difference."

HUGE INCREASE

Mr. Lamport cites the example of a small property, near the Yonge - Eglinton intersection at the northern end of the subway, which was purchased for $7,500 before the subway began and sold for $105,000 when it opened.

A start on a second subway, to run east and west along the Bloor-Danforth route, has been approved by metropolitan council. It is expected to cost $200,000,000.

Mr. Lamport believes the subway will be cheap at that price. Last year's increased assessment along the subway meant $4,000,000 in extra tax income for the city.

"New development along Bloor could make that look like peanuts," he says.

But even subways are not the end-all to the problem of public transit, in Mr. Lamport's opinion.

"To be successful a transit system must above all show a respect for the transit rider and win his respect in return," he warns.

HAS STRONG VIEWS

Mr. Lamport, who was mayor of Toronto from 1944 to 1954 and became TTC chairman in 1955, speaks rather bluntly on transit.

"Some big cities have no respect for the transit rider," he says. "They look upon the transit riders as the have-nots of the community. They must use the public system because they haven't got a car or the ability to pay for a cab."

This, he feels, has been the ruination of many city transit systems in Canada.

"Most public officials are motorists themselves who see only the motorists' view of the transit problems. Unless you have public officers who can stand up and shout the transit riders' views and stick up for them you aren't going to have their respect for long."

Toronto, he says, has taken this view for years and it is paying off. The TTC's average daily volume—1,700,000 revenue passengers—is the highest per capita on the continent, outside of New York City.

In 1957 it carried 297,000,000 passengers, more than 10 times as many as the CNR and CPR together.

BIG ADVANTAGE

One advantage the TTC has, says its chief, is its ability to hold fares to 12 1/2 cents. This is possible because of the system's low debt of about $60,000,000, almost negligible against its $1,000,000,000 in assets.

Profits from the war years, when industry ran on 24 -hour schedules filling TTC cars with workers day and night, cut away nearly all TTC debt and gave it enough profit to expand without debt charges in the post-war era.

"With that kind of borrowing potential we can tackle just about anything that's needed to meet the city's growth," he says.

Which leads us to Mr. Lamport's outlook on the future:

He firmly believes the battle between the automobile and public transit threatens the future of every large city in Canada.

The city whose transit system wins that battle, he says, will become the greatest metropolis in the nation.

HAPPY MONTREAL MOTHER REUNITED WITH KIDNAPPED SON

Mrs. Dorothy Reitman of Montreal, is shown above with her two-year-old son, Joel, who was kidnapped Saturday and who was located Tuesday at Ottawa after a three-day blanket of secrecy on the kidnapping was lifted by an appeal to the kidnappers broadcast by Mrs. Reitman over a Montreal radio station. An Ottawa taxi driver had reported to police that a woman had left the boy with him and failed to return. Police put two and two together after the announcement of the kidnapping and mother and son were soon happily reunited.

U.S. Woman Scientist Finds Single Virus Causes Many Different Types of Cancer

HONEY HARBOUR (CP) — A major advance in cancer research was reported today when a United States woman scientist told how she has used a single virus to cause many types of cancer in experimental animals.

Dr. Sarah Stewart of the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, Md., told research workers here she has induced as many as 29 different types of cancer in mice using a virus extracted from a single type of tumor—leukemia or blood cancer.

Her paper, delivered at the Canadian Cancer Research Conference, gave support to the long-held theory that cancer is transmitted by a virus. These disease-producing agents in other forms are known to be responsible for polio, influenza and measles.

While none of her colleagues had reservations about the importance of her work, Dr. Arthur W. Ham, head of biological research at the Ontario Cancer Institute in Toronto, described it as "the most stimulating thing that has happened in cancer research in years."

Dr. E. A. Mirand of the New York state - supported Roswell Park Memorial Institute at Buffalo, said the cancer-treatment and research centre has already checked and verified Dr. Stewart's work.

The woman scientist's seven years of work is expected to lead to a great concentration of research on virus causation of cancer in general. She has also added a new word to medical terminology—polyoma—her name for the virus that causes many types of tumors in animals.

She noted the question had been raised whether more than one virus is involved in the induction of multiple tumors.

She said in her paper:

"The studies indicate only one agent with the capacity of eliciting tumors in several cell types and in many organs not only in like but in other animals tested. The name polyoma has been proposed for this virus. It will be referred to by this name."

She said in an interview she is unable to say how soon her findings can be applied to human cancer. It would first have to be shown that a virus causes certain types of human cancer and this has not been established.

Study Seaway's Effect on Pay At Trenton RCAF

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal labor department has started a survey of the St. Lawrence seaway project's effect on prevailing rates of pay for maintenance and trades workers along its course, it was reported Tuesday.

The study would compare rates paid by industry with the current government scales. Centres now involved in the survey are Prescott, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton.

Federal employees with an interest in the survey's outcome are transport department maintenance workers at Prescott and national defence employees at RCAF Station, Trenton.

Even Communist World Shocked By Executions

LONDON (CP) — News of the execution of former Hungarian premier Imre Nagy and the men who led the Hungarian revolution today staggered the Communist and non-Communist world.

The death of the men who tried to free their country from the Russian yoke was seen as a warning to Yugoslavia to toe the Moscow line and a return to Stalinist methods in Russia.

The Yugoslavs, in the midst of a stubborn ideological war with Russia on their insistence on building their own "road to socialism," were extremely bitter.

GAVE HIM REFUGE

Nagy sought refuge in the Yugoslav embassy when Russian troops crushed the rebellion. He left the embassy after securing a promise of safe conduct, but was seized by the Russians.

The manner of the executions recalled the Stalin era — secret trials, no appeal, and the first news when the death sentence was carried out.

Avanti, organ of the Italian left-wing Socialist Party, which in the past has been closely allied with the Communists, condemned the executions.

"(Soviet premier) Khrushchev himself had pledged to put an end to the crimes of the Stalin era. . . . But the sentences of Budapest, which seem to crown the first phase of the renewed attacks against Tito, take us back to that condemned and deprecated epoch."

DULLES WON'T COMMENT

In Washington, State Secretary Dulles got news of the execution during intermission time of the first Washington performance of the Moiseyev company of Russian folk dancers—on a U.S. tour.

"Tragic," Dulles said, "tragic." He refused, however, to discuss the matter.

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep. N.H.) said the executions proved the "utter ruthlessness of the Communists and the hopelessness of even trying to get along with them."

Tumor-Resistant Strain of Mice Being Developed

By JOHN TRACY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

HONEY HARBOR, Ont. (CP)—A United States scientist who has spent more than half his life developing cancer-susceptible mice says he hopes a tumor-resistant strain of the animal may help shed some light on the disease.

Dr. Leonell C. Strong of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute of Springville, N.Y., one of the pioneer workers in inherited susceptibility to cancer, told the Canadian Cancer Research Conference Tuesday of his work on mice.

Mice are valued in cancer research because they develop a greater variety of tumors than other animals. Also, when mice from the same pure strain are used, one investigator can repeat another's experiments under the same conditions and verify the results of the first experiment.

INDUCED TUMOR

The 64-year-old geneticist once induced a tumor in a mouse by injecting into it a chemical that generates cancer. Slices of the subsequent tumor were grafted into the bodies of 19,000 other mice but 3,000 showed some resistance to it.

Dr. Strong told a press conference he plans to continue breeding this cancer-resistant strain on the hope they may help unravel the mystery of cancer. His aim is to breed the mice to the point where a biochemist or biologist can tell what makes the cells of the new strain resist a certain type of cancer while cells of other strains develop cancer readily.

Dr. L. W. Law of the National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, Md., told the conference how some cells of leukemia or blood cancer actually change certain of their heredity qualities so that they become resistant to cancer-inhibiting drugs. Some cancer cells, in fact, became dependent on the drug.

Convict Likely To Make Fortune From Novel Toy

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — A convict serving a 199-year sentence in the state penitentiary stands to make a fortune from a child's toy.

Clyde Wagner, 42-year-old murderer, since 1941 has invented more than 750 items, including five toys now in production.

A toy elephant train was accepted by a manufacturer who reported that he displayed the toy at an industry show in New York this spring and received 700,000 orders.

Wagner's royalty is three cents on each toy.

He was convicted in 1937 for the fatal shooting of an Alton, Ill., policeman. He won't be eligible to seek parole until he's served a third of his 199-year term.

What would Wagner do with such a bundle of money?

He said he'd spend it to keep working on still other ideas. He didn't say how much money he's made thus far on his various toy designs and inventions.

Order New Trial For Two Women After 25 Years

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—"We hope for a new life," said Mrs. Kathrya Kelly Monday night just before she and her mother walked out of the federal jail, without guards for the first time in 25 years.

"I think we'll find it."

The widow of George (Machine Gun) Kelly and Mrs. Ora Shannon, 70, had life sentences set aside Monday and new trials ordered on their convictions in the kidnapping of millionaire Oklahoma City oilman Charles Urschel for $200,000 ransom.

"Now," said Mrs. Kelly, 54, "I want to get a job in Oklahoma and take care of my mother."

The women were released on $40,000 property bail.

REFUSED FBI FILES

The convictions were ordered nullified and new trials granted when U.S. Attorney-General William P. Rogers refused to release secret FBI files. The defence said these records would back up claims by the women that their original defence lawyers were intimated by FBI investigations during the 1933 trials.

No dates were set for new trials.

Urschel was held on a Texas farm and released unharmed after the ransom was paid. He now lives at San Antonio, Tex.

Kelly was one of the famed badmen in the turbulent early thirties. He died in prison three years ago serving a life sentence for the Urschel kidnapping.

Lithe, Lovely and Luscious Are Girls of the Big Top

They don some bulky in the Big Top are, were — not the girls! of the C. S. Beatty Circus, coming to Zwick's Island, Belleville, Friday, June 27, under the auspices of the Belleville Kinsmanis Club.

The Beatty girls are lithe; they are lovely, and they are talented — in the air and on the ground. They flaunt no bulging biceps or corrugated calves. Gone are the Varicose Veras of the Acrobatic Atlases. The girls of the 1958 performance move, dance and soar in beauty.

There's a reason. Theatre and travel minded girls turn to the circus, and in February they roll down to rehearsals at Ponce de Leon Park, winter quarters for Florida Sunshine, circus excitement and a tour on the road. The Clyde Beatty Circus opening spectacle and aerial ballet require more girls than ever this year, adding many lovelies to the 3-ring ensembles.

There are 600 people—nearly 200 performers and 200 wild animals with the Circus — and the great Clyde Beatty, himself, battling two score of jungle-bred man-killers.

Leafs Shutout Marlins 5-0; Royals Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The best friend a pitcher can have is a big cluster of early runs.

This was evident in Tuesday night's International League activity as the winning teams used the big inning to discourage their foes.

Montreal Royals beat Havana Sugar Kings 6-4 as six innings there were just three hits in the game. Montreal's Tom Lasorda and Jim Pendleton and Havana's Miguel Cuellar two.

In the seventh, the Royals got three runs. In the bottom half the Sugar Kings exploded for four. Then the Royals came back with another three in the eighth for all of it.

LEAFS BLANK MARLINS

Toronto Maple Leafs shaded Miami 5-0 on Columbus Day. Rochester Red Wings beat Buffalo Bisons 9-6 with Jim Rich Richmond Virginians winning the opener 10 and dropping the nightcap 7-2.

The Leafs kept within a ball game of the leading Royals as Don Johnson scattered nine hits in registering the shutout. His mates battered Marlin starter Bob Cooley for three runs in the first inning and forced him to retire without getting a man out.

It was Johnson's sixth victory of the season against five defeats. Three of Toronto's runs came in the first. The other two were added in the sixth and seventh.

Whammy Douglas did not allow a hit after the Cuban inning in notching his eighth victory for Columbus. Tom Burgess' two-run homer gave the Red Wings a shortlived 2-0 lead in the third. The Jets answered with four runs in their half of the fourth and tallied three more in the seventh.

Luke Easter was the whole show for Buffalo in the first game as he drove three hits, two doubles and the game - winning homer. The Virginians' three runs in each of the fourth and eighth innings and that was more than enough to win the second game.

Glenn Ford Plans Return To Stage at Brussels Fair

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene:

Glenn Ford may return to the footlights for the first time in 20 years—if an ambitious plan for the Brussels fair can be worked out.

There's a move underway to star Glenn at the American theatre in the fair in Teahouse of the August Moon. Glenn says he is willing—if producer Jean Dalrymple can come up with a topnotch cast. She's going after David Wayne, Eddie Albert and Paul Ford, who have played roles in the stage or screen versions.

Glenn would be available from his film chores because he has been suspended by Columbia for declining The Last Angry Man. The studio is also ruling him for a pile of money, but he thinks it will be settled amicably.

Marge and Gower Champion say they would be willing, nay, eager to display their brand of dancing to Russia. They'd like to take along their Three for Tonight show, in which they starred with Harry Belafonte.

Otherwise, the Champions are carrying through with their plan to taper off on the dancing. They'll play no night clubs this year, but instead will direct Marge in a non-musical play which they'll try out in summer theatres and perhaps take to Broadway.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wicks tossed a party to send Mary Costa off on her European operatic debut. She has given up making the commercial pitch on Climax to pursue her musical career and will be singing at a London opera festival. Among the guests were Judy Garland and husband Sid Luft, who looked cozy despite all their recent tiffs.

—Twas nice to see some of the oldtime western stars out at 20th Century-Fox's preview of The Bravados. Among the oldtimers: Rod Blue, Gabby Maynard, Gabby Hayes and Gary Cooper. Gabby says he's tired, feels he has earned it after 175 western and 68 years in show biz.

"The only thing I do any more is make some personal appearances every summer," said Gabby. "I love money on them, but I make a lot of wonderful friends."

Trenton Juniors Vacate Basement With Upset Victory Over Cobourg

Trenton Legion Juniors climbed out of the basement in the Belleville and District softball league in Trenton last night by pulling a 7-5 upset victory over second - place Cobourg Merchants.

Trenton now holds down fourth spot with a two won-and-six loses record while Frankford dropped half a game back with two wins and seven defeats. Cobourg's setback was their third, the other two coming at the hands of loop leading Point Anne.

Cobourg jumped into a 3 - 0 lead in the top of the first last night but the Juniors came right back with three in their half of the inning. Charlie Drake's boys won the contest with single runs in the third and fourth and a pair in the fifth while Cobourg came back with singletons in the seventh and ninth.

Gord Maroney pitched the distance for the victors, the only Trenton hurler to win for Trenton so far this season. He scattered nine hits, struck out five and walked an equal number.

Rolly Campbell suffered the defeat for Cobourg, tagged for all Trenton runs in 4 1/3 innings pitched. He gave up ten hits, whiffed seven and walked but one. George Stong completed the chore, allowing just one safety and no runs over the remainder. He fanned five and passed three.

Cobourg racked Maroney's slants as the game opened with Turpin walking. Bonecardo doubling, O'Brien singling and Clarey also doubling before a man was out. good for three runs. Guy Austin tied the score when he smashed a three - run circuit blast following base hits by Drake and Burns. Drake doubled and scored the lead run in the third frame.

A base-on-balls and Bill Moxam's single put Trenton two runs up in the third. Back to back doubles by Drake and Burns, an error and Ausclitine's single chased Campbell and gave Trenton a pair in the fifth.

Turpin singled and later stole second as Cobourg in the seventh while he singled again in the ninth and scored on Clarey's key-hanger. The Merchants could not quite catch the win-hungry Legion lads however.

Roger Drake paced the winners at the plate with a brace of doubles and a single while Maroney and Bobby Burns each hit a double and single while Guy Austin homered. Doug Alexander, Pat Auseltine and Bill Moxam also hit safely.

Burke Clarey doubled twice and Dick Turpin singled twice in a losing cause. Pete Bonecardo and Brian Hart also had two-baggers with singles by Leo O'Brien, Rolly Campbell and Jim Hart rounding out the attack.

Doesn't Need Tag Day to Finance Trip

WINDSOR (CP) — Bernard Newman, city alderman, high school teacher and coach of Ernestine Russell, Canada's only entry in the world gymnastic championships at Moscow next month, says he doesn't want a tag day to raise funds for the trip.

A group of his friends had asked the Windsor police commission for permission to hold a tag day this Saturday to help finance the trip for the 20-year-old gymnast.

Mr. Newman said contributions totalling $1,278 have been received.

Will Continue To Act As President

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Fred Coaradi says he will continue to act as president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and president of Welland-Crowland Switzers of the Senior A series.

Coaradi has been under pressure to resign from one of the positions by Jack Enoch, president of Peterborough Petes, who said:

"It is improper for the association president to also manage a team in the league."

Coaradi said Tuesday night Geoff Hipkin of Brampton and Art Brown of St. Catharines held similar dual posts in past seasons. He also denied telling Epping that Norm Corcoran, denied permission to play with Peterborough, was a free agent.

Corcoran lives in St. Catharines and was claimed by Welland-Crowland under a residence rule. He was awarded to Welland-Crowland at an OLA executive meeting last weekend.

Coaradi said:

"All I did was assure Jack Epping that Welland would not attempt to sign Corcoran before the case was disposed of by the OLA executive."

NO SHRINKING VIOLET, THIS GUY!

A skyscraper that walks like a man will invade this city come Friday night.

He towers over eight feet into the stratosphere, wears violin cases or size 21 shoes, weighs 430 pounds and is 30 years of age.

He is called Paul Bunyan, the lumberjack of the wrestling ring, with all apologies to Yukon Eric, and, will wrestle here Friday evening against one Frank "Farmer" Hewitt. That's as natural as saurkraut and wieners.

His real name is Max Palmer, who was born in Clarksdale, Missouri, of normal parents. Normal that is, in size and weight, just like yours and mine... Palmer cannot explain where he gets his terrific size. Neither can his doctors. He, like little Eva, "just grew."

Palmer reached his sky-scraping altitude when he was 19 years of age. Just prior to that he was playing centre for a high school basketball team, starring as many as 78 points in a game. He didn't shoot the ball at the basket. He didn't have to. He merely dropped it in.

In 1953, while he was operating a jack-hammer for a construction company in Hollywood when he was approached by a movie talent scout. The overstuffed pygmy was given the title role in a picture caller "Killer Ape" and later was given a part in another film called "Invader From Mars." He began his grunt and groan career in 1954.

He has to sleep in a special bed. He would drape over the ends of an ordinary bed, like a man-size T-bone steak over a butter patty. He takes a size 60 suit and there's enough cloth goes in it to outfit an infantry platoon.

Palmer likes being as tall as a Douglas fir and as wide as a 100-acre farm. "People have to look up to me," he grins good-naturedly. "Besides I do not get pushed around."

Master Bunyan semi-finals a card that has all the earmarks of being the best staged here thus far this season. In the opener these ancient foemen, Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins tangle in a grudge battle, while the main bout sees Reg and Stan Lisowski come to grips with none other than Yukon Eric and Bobo Brazil in what should be a honey of a tag-team bashe.

CLEANING HOUSE

If you can believe what you see in the papers, up around Pembroke way, Master Wally Lesner and his new coach, Bucky Buchanan, are going to start from scratch this fall. Right now they state only one player from last year's team is eligible for return. The rest will have to make the grade.

The Pembroke Observer says: "A wholesale shake-up is in the offing. Everybody will be cleaned out and the club started from scratch. Only one player from last year's team is certain of a job. The remainder will have to win a position."

"The new coach wants goalie Andy Fayette back but isn't sure that Andy will be able to obtain a leave of absence from his job as he did in the latter part of last season. Fayette, contrary, to roecut rumors, belongs to the Lumber Kings and if he plays hockey this winter it will be in a Pembroke uniform.

"The accent this year is most definitely on a younger, faster team than the one which lost out to Belleville in the league finals this spring.

"'The Maes had the answer in speed,' states Bucky. 'The only way to fight speed is with speed. We are not stinking any promises about where we will finish or what trophies we will win, but I guarantee that it will be a young, fast, two-way club that works from the opening whistle to the final siren. The CPR will have a profitable year taking away those who do not agree with my style of play.'

"Bucky also stated that Tom Lesnick, who played a few games for the team near the end of last season definitely figures in the club's plan. Buchanan was quite satisfied with the youngster's ability and determination last season and he feels that the Pembroke product has a good chance of catching a spot with the Kings."

Whitey Ford 3-Hits Indians In Bombers 4-0 Whitewash; Cards, Bucs Share 3rd Place

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lew Burdette, hero of the 1957 world series with three completegame victories in eight days, now has two in four weeks. The second hoisted Milwaukee Braves into a 2½-game lead in the National League lead, their biggest bulge of the season.

Burdette went all the way Tuesday night, staying out of serious trouble with a nine-hitter as the Braves beat Chicago Cubs 6-3.

The second-place San Francisco Giants, the only other club to get as far as 2½ games ahead this year, were whipped 6-4 by Pittsburgh Pirates. St. Louis Cardinals defeated Cincinnati Redlegs 10-4 and joined the Pirates in jumping past the Redlegs for a third-place tie, two games behind San Francisco.

NOW 5 AND 4

Burdette, who last tossed a complete game May 9, walked one man and struck out four. His record is 5-4.

Burdette gave up a first-inning run on three singles, then blanked Chicago on three hits until the eighth. Bobby Thomson tagged him for his eighth homer with two out in the ninth.

Frank Torre, Johnny Logan and Harry Hanebrink each drove in two runs for the Braves, who have won five of their last six games after losing five in a row.

Ted Kluszewski, who was 3-for-4, Ramon Mejias and Bill Virdon each hit triples in a five-run Pirate second against loser Johnny Antonelli (6-5). Rookie Curt Raydon, who two-hits the Giants last week, was the winner.

TWO HOMERS BY BOYER

Ken Boyer hit two home runs for the Cardinals, his 14th capping a six-run ninth after the Cards had blown a 3-0 lead. Joe Cunningham's three - run triple cracked a 4-4 tie in the ninth inning against loser Jim Willis and Schmidt. Stan Musial followed with a triple and then Boyer blasted off.

Musial was 2-for-5 — he trails Giant Willie Mays .383 to .379 in the batting race—and scored the tying run after singling in the eighth.

Curt Flood's two-run homer and Boyer's solo shot gave Jim Bronnan a 3-0 lead, but the Reds tied it on Don Hoak's three-run double in the sixth, then got another in the seventh on a bases-loaded walk.

The Phils scored six runs in the eighth inning to overhaul a 5-3 Los Angles lead. The tie-breaking and winning runs scored on a wild throw by losing reliefer Clem Labine (3-2). Duke Snider and Harry Anderson swapped solo home runs as the Phils kept the Dodgers in the cellar.

Russia, Ireland, Wales Remain In Soccer

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Russia, Northern Ireland and Wales Tuesday won their playoff matches and completed their quarter-final lineup for the World Soccer Cup championships.

Russia went into the last eight with a 1-0 victory over England, Wales defeated Hungary 2-1 and Northern Ireland defeated Czechoslovakia 2-1 in the only matches played Tuesday.

Quarter - finals for Thursday are: France vs Northern Ireland; West Germany vs Yugoslavia; Sweden vs Russia; and Brazil vs Wales.

TWO SENT OFF

Tuesday's matches were hard-fought affairs that saw determined referees send off two players.

Czechoslovakia's right halfback Titus Buernik was banished in the match against Northern Ireland, which was decided in an overtime period. He got marching orders midway through the extra, apparently for arguing with French referee Maurice Guizze.

A Hungarian centre half Ferenc Sipos was sent off five minutes before the en of the match against Wales for a particularly hard play.

The Russian victory over England was in the balance right to the last minute — a battle between two hard-tackling teams who relied more on sharp thrusts at goal than fancy short-passing moves.

Left winger Anatoli Ilyin put Russia into the lead with a goal in the 67th minute, tallying after the ball had rebounded off the post.

The kindergarten student dropped her line into nearby Muriel Lake Monday and hooked a 10-pound northern pike. After it was boated, she again threw her bait—a bass hook and shiner—on a 10-pound nylon line — over the side.

Said the proud father who helped Beryl pull the fish aboard:

"She even pulled out her own hooks."

Hap Shouldice Is Appointed Eastern Grid Representative

OTTAWA (CP) — Hans (Hap) Shouldice, 51, says he's "quite happy" about his new job as eastern representative of Canadian Football Commissioner Sydney Hall.

"I think it's a challenge and I'm happy for the opportunity," Shouldice, a Big Four Football Union referee for 23 years, said after news of his appointment broke here Tuesday night.

He said he was to meet Mr. Halter, a Winnipeg lawyer, at Winnipeg June 29 to find out what his salary and duties will be.

Formative Years

He knew little about the job except that it would include the duties of Big Four referee-in-chief Cec McFadden of Montreal who resigned after the 1957 season because of ill health.

Shouldice, supervisor of billing and collecting for the Ottawa Hydro-Electric Power Commission, never played in competitive sports.

However, in addition to refereeing professional and high school football, he was a hockey referee for 22 years, retiring two years ago. He officiated in Canadian senior and junior hockey playoffs "more than I can remember."

Commissioner Halter was appointed to the newly-created post Jan. 19 at a joint meeting in Winnipeg of the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Union.

He insisted on, and got, the broad powers he had as WIFU commissioner. He is to be arbiter of all disputes with controversy teams as a whole, club executives, managers, coaches, players and field officials. He also gets one assistant in the East and another in the West.

Temple's Tabbies Push Frankford Into Last Place With 9-4 Defeat

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Bobcats used excellent pitching and fielding and clutch hitting at CNIB Park last night to defeat the previously Frankford Merchants 9-4 in a Belleville and District softball league tilt. The victory evened the Bobcats' season record at four wins and as many losses while Frankford's loss was their seventh consecutive. Coupled with Trenton's surprise victory over Picton, the defeat dropped Frankford into the loop basement.

Temple's Tabbies made sure early in last night's fixture, building a 9-0 lead after six frames as Bobby Hull pitched great ball against the Merchants. Hull gave up three harmless hits in the first two innings then did not give the visitors a scratch until the eighth. Frankford plated two runs in each of the eighth and ninth.

Hull's rousing effort was his second consecutive win as he wound up the season-before after having a three-hit shutout going until the eighth. He struck out ten batters while walking but two of these late in the contest.

Bobby Hull gave the Frankford mound gave up eight hits and received shaky support from his mates who licked the ball around on four occasions. Hunter nipped three on flies and walked four. He suffered his sixth loss against two wins.

The Cats opened the scoring with one in the second on Bert Faulkner's clean-cut single following Earl Coutts' base hit and a walk. A free pass plus two bad throws accounted for the third run. Meanwhile Belleville came up with some fine fielding plays by "Bep" Guidolin, Bobby Green and "Wiener" Brown to back Hull's pitching.

A base-on-balls, Green's run-scoring single, an error at short and Don "Turk" Barclay's two-bagger upped Bobcats' lead to 7-0 in the fifth. Barclay was playing his first game of the season. "Wiener" Brown ended his club's scoring in the sixth when he smashed a line drive homer which rolled to the centre field fence. The home run, following a walk to Faulkner, was a bullet drive over the centre fielder's head.

Frankford broke their goose egg in the eighth on a walk, hits by Harry Wickson and Duff D'Eon plus a throwing error. Two more were ticked and an error teamed with safeties by Hunter and Wickson to add two runs in the ninth frame.

Bert Faulkner and Paul Russell spearheaded the Bobcat attack with a double and single each. "Wiener" Brown homered while Don Barclay doubled and singled went to Bobby Green and Earl Coutts.

Catcher Harry Wickson collected three Frankford safeties while the others were divided among Bill Rankin, who stroked three times, Duff D'Eon, John Beatty and Bob Hunter.

Frankford	— Kemp, Dosher; Rankin, Field, Wickson, D'Eon, Beatty, Cosgrove, Hunter, Armstrong, Ackerman, Coniglio.
Bobcats	— Russell, Brown; Crawford, B. Hull, Guidolin, Green, Cousins, Barclay, Faulkner.

Smoke-Balling Yank Rookie Said Sensation of Bull-Pen

By JOE REICHLER

"My hitting into three double plays today ain't gonna affect our friendship, is it, Swifty?"

NEW YOR K(AP) — Rinold (Ryne) Duren, the newest bullpen sensation of baseball's Yankees, has almost overnight became the most exciting pitcher in the major leagues.

Why? How? There are varied reasons proffered by various people. Bill Dewitt, former president of the St. Louis Browns, who had Duren pitching briefly there, because he has finally curbed his wildness.

Ralph Houk, coach of the Yankees, for whom Duren won 13 while Dodger pen ace Roebuck thinks he has gained confidence. Johnny Keane, veteran minor league manager at Omaha, who saw plenty of Duren last year, thinks the boy has finally reached maturity.

Casey Stengel, Duren's happy manager, thinks the switch from starter to relief pitcher has brought out the best and the most in his prize rookie.

The bespectacled Duren believes it was the tutorship of Frank Lary, Detroit Tiger hurler in 1956 that is responsible.

PATIENT, UNDERSTANDING

"Lary gave me a pep talk with me," Duren explains. "He was patient and understanding, he showed me the value of moving the ball, of placing the pitch in the many areas of the strike zone."

Duren, considered exceptional gage in the Billy Martin-Harry Simpson trade of a year ago, wasn't given much of a chance to stick with the Yankees this year. But Stengel, apparently sensing that Duren had matured, decided to gamble with Duren in relief.

Ryne has pitched 26 3-3 innings, permitted 15 hits, struck out 34 and walked only 13. His earned run percentage of 1.33 doesn't tell the story. Before his three victories, he has saved eight games.

What has impressed virtually everyone has been his smoking fast ball, which has been compared favorably to that of Bob Feller, Herb Score, Dazzy Vance, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and all the other flame throwers.

Spokane Joins Western Pro Hockey League

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Western Hockey League will fine starters when the schedule begins Oct. 19, eight regulars and a new American addition.

Up until noon Tuesday it appeared a eight-team league was in prospect. New Westminster Royals, unable to afford rental at Queen's Park Arena, had been granted a year's leave of absence.

But New Westminster city council and Royals' lawyer T. K. Fisher came up with an agreement that sulled everyone, especially Royals' owner Mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver.

Council offered the team a flat rate of 10 per cent of the night's take for rental of the arena. Royals had been paying anything up to 17½ per cent rent—depending on the size of the house.

Spokane, two years ago finalists in the Allan Cup, is the WHL's new entrant.

GAS EXPLOSION

Three firemen were slightly injured before the fires were brought under control.

Gas company employees located a leak almost opposite the demolished house. A new mains is being laid. Fire Inspector James Fitzgerald said a trencher operated by T. W. John stone employees ruptured the service line under the building about noon.

The Hansen home was a complete loss. On the east, the home of Mrs. Mary Dennis was badly damaged by fire and water. To the west, a home owned by John McManus suffered a singed face.

No estimate of damage was made.

BIG LIZARDS

The prehistoric scaly antiteater found in parts of Asia, may reach up to six feet in length including the tail.

TWO BIG

"Immediately, it seemed, the second span, between the two casements, was pulled forward into the water. The whole collapse seemed to take only a few seconds. . . ."

PICKED UP SWIMMER

"Twenty yards away a man was swimming in the water trying to remove his life jacket which hindered his swimming. I got him in the boat and took him to shore. Then the engine gave out and I had to row.

"I went back and found a chap clutching a large plank. He was moaning and his left leg appeared to have been crushed."

Don Gardiner, 36, one of the surveyors, was on the outermost section.

"The steel seemed to drop about five feet, then dropped a bit again and then fell into the water."

Anthony Romanuk, a painter clearing rust, was strapped to the girder. He plunged about 100 feet and was held fast under 30 feet of water.

"I knew I had to get the belt off as fast as I could and I just forced myself out of it and somehow got to the surface," he said.

In Ottawa Works Minister Green said in the House of Commons Canadians everywhere have been "deeply shocked" by the tragedy.

The accident ended for the time being efforts to augment an existing wooden rail - and - road lift bridge spanning the narrows, about four miles east of downtown Vancouver.

MUM ON POSSIBLE CAUSE

Officials declined to suggest what evidence may be given before Chief Justice Lett's one-man royal commission to throw light on the cause of the accident.

The failure came as thermometers touched 81 degrees, highest temperature here this year, and shortly before the tide reached a height of 17.8 feet, a June record. There was no appreciable breeze to connect the collapse with either of these factors.

The spans that fell had been set in place on concrete pillars over the water leading to the high central span of the bridge. A temporary support was built to carry the fifth section halfway between the two concrete supports.

The steel work was being built forward from the temporary support to the permanent support. Although no steel-work had been done on the south side of the bridge, much preparatory construction had been completed since work started two years ago. It was hoped the bridge might be open to traffic later this year.

DELAY OF MONTHS

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi, who flew from Victoria to inspect the wreckage, said the span will be delayed at least six months.

He would not say whether the present structure will be used or whether it will be scrapped in favor of a new one.

The bridge was designed to speed the flow of traffic between Vancouver and the fast-growing areas of the north shore.

Witnesses spoke of a long thundering roar as the bridge sections fell into the water.

Steelworker Bill Stroud said the front section would have been secured on the permanent third pier when his job was completed, likely late Tuesday. He was about to weld a connection when the metal-eater collapsed.

He escaped without serious injury.

AIR RENT WITH SCREAMS

Bill Hallman, one of many motorists who saw the collapse from the old bridge, less than 200 yards away and parallel to the new structure, said the air was filled with shouts and screams of the falling men.

People standing on the old bridge directed nearby boats to the survivors. Often the boats arrived to find a corpse.

The presence of death was nothing new to the treacherous narrows. Four men had died in previous accidents on the new bridge and many swimmers and boatmen have been dragged to their death there by the fast tide.

SUPER-SECRET

Despite the tight secrecy surrounding the heart of the operation, it is generally felt that the CIA record on these important world developments of the last three years:

Russian satellites — excellent. The CIA warned for a year that Russia was capable of launching its first Sputnik in 1957.

Missiles—good. But the agency's conservative in forecasting the size and thrust of Soviet rockets.

Soviet nuclear test ban—excellent.

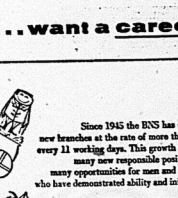
Bulganin-Khrushchev reshuffle—very good. The CIA not only forecast this three months earlier but it fingered Frol Kozlov as a fast-rising Kremlin newcomer.

Hungarian revolt — fair. The CIA reported signs of mounting unrest in Hungary, but was surprised when the people actually revolted.

Suez Canal seizure—not good. The CIA failed to estimate fully President Nasser's reaction to the withdrawal of a proposed U.S. loan for construction of the Aswan Dam.

BEES DELAY BILL

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — Gene Hart is going to have to wait a bit for the gas bill to his furniture store. Charles Munday, meter reader, discovered a swarm of bees had built a honeycomb between the meter lid and its glass face.



Read the stories of fires and how these fires start. From the most unexpected, almost unbelievable, causes! Tomorrow COULD be YOUR day, for a fire! TODAY, you still can insure.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, June 19, 1958

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Attend to all fundamental affairs and allied work connected therewith quickly. Later, a money matter of importance prevents your carrying out plans for a gay afternoon and evening. Don't shirk on this. P.M. relax and rest.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Day hours are best for contacting those persons who can help you to attain your goals more easily and pleasantly. Impress them with ability to comprehend details perfectly. P.M. be careful of what you say to best ties. Harmony.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) See that you get your real estate in very fine shape. This insures the continued support of your banker, adds value to same, and gives a feeling of well-being. P.M. take your job while out driving and always be courteous.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Think quite personally today, and make sure you impress the right persons so that you get the credit you desire. Tonight, don't be extravagant with your nest egg, or unimportant and expensive things and people. Save.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Do the work that must be done today without fail! But be sure not to fall into the rather common failure of using exaggerated histrionics, for your family is quite fed up with them. Use genuine emotions more constructively.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Schedule your hours today very intelligently and see how much you can accomplish. Also, will help your child to express himself or herself more independently, and give early training in true camaraderie. Else, adulthood will never be reached properly, and the real talent in this chart will be ruined. There is a great evangelist in this horoscope.

Libra (Sept. 24to Oct. 23) — A day for outside activity. Attend to all matters dutifully and impress people with your real devotion, ability, P.M. don't hurt a sensitive friend. Let courtesy reign supreme.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — There are many items in your daily paper and other printed media which can be very helpful in your work. Read! In early P.M. it becomes necessary for you to defend your good name, even your security. Be on the alert and law abiding.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A.M. is somewhat trying since many factors connected with industrial or social activities must be handled with kid gloves. In P.M. you cannot decide whether to attend novel functions or carry through with labors. Be wise.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) See very sensitive associates for best results today in any business you may have to handle. This will lead to greater success in the future. Tonight, keep purse zippered, and spend time discussing pertinent matters with wise comrade.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you must have the ideal conditions in your surroundings that so please you, you had better get up early and get to work on minutiae. P.M. steer clear of partner who feels too important and may act dictatorially.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) A.M. ideal for any intimate matters that need attention, making preparations for a big party or function, and being charming with all. P.M. don't be extravagant just to impress other fellows or les femmes. Take it easy.

If your child is born today—The lovely child born today is born with a very deep mother love, but take care this is not carried to extremes. Many little pals about during tender years will help yours—child to express himself or herself more independently, and give early training in true camaraderie. Else, adulthood will never be reached properly, and the real talent in this chart will be ruined. There is a great evangelist in this horoscope.

CANADIANS GIVEN

When he came to cutting taxes, Mr. Fleming in his 30,500-word speech spread the cuts around as thinly as a parsimonious butcher slicing ham.

On personal income tax, he gave away mainly this:

1. Deductibility of medical expenses is extended to include costs of prescribed drugs, eyeglasses, artificial eyes, ambulance costs and laboratory or other diagnostic services, effective immediately. However, medical expenses will continue to be deductible only when they exceed three per cent of income.

2. A husband may claim tax deductions for amounts paid for support of a wife or other dependents under a court order, even in the absence of a divorce or written separation agreement.

Also on income tax, the period for claiming tax refunds will be four years instead of two and interest on tax overpayments is increased to three per cent from two.

HOPES TO AID UNIVERSITIES

For charitable gifts, corporations are granted tax deductibility up to a maximum 10 per cent of profits—instead of the present five—with a view to their making more money available to such institutions as universities. The provision is effective from last Jan. 1.

They stand to gain, on Mr. Fleming's calculations, some $5,000,000 a year through addition of several new items to the list of items they may purchase free of the 9-per-cent sales tax, including culverts and other sewer products, fire trucks and aluminum bridges.

There will be a once-in-a-lifetime provision allowing a gift tax-free property transfer of up to $10,000 between a husband and wife or between a "armed and one of his children.

PEACETIME HIGH SPENDING

In setting a record for peacetime federal budget spending, Mr. Fleming's forecast outlay of $5,360,000,000 is slightly short of the top of $5,323,000,000 in the war year of 1943-44.

The spending program includes an amount of $337,000,000 for public works, up from $36,000,000 the previous year.

However, his actual spending—inside and outside the budget—will go well beyond the old record, because he has to take in the bill for universal old age pensions at 70, which will run to around $355,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

The pensions are paid from a fund, operating outside budget accounts, which is financed by special two-per-cent taxes on personal and corporation incomes or purchases. ...

Of the $555,000,00, some $190,000,000 is already included in the budget as the expected deficit of the fund. The remaining $365,000,000 will be in addition.

ALMOST $6,000,000,000

Including pension outlays, the budget indication is for peak spending of $5,685,000,000.

On revenues, Mr. Fleming looked for $4,622,000,700, compared with $3,947,000,000 for the year ended March 31.

In his speech, Mr. Fleming raised hopes that the recession may be ending.

He said that with many industries over-expanded the Canadian business scene will generate less power toward new construction and expansion. Meanwhile, Canadian energies could be devoted to providing more houses, municipal services and a new business foundations for a new business cycle.

"GOD IS WITH ME," MRS. WHYTE DEFIES LAW

"I'll go to jail for you," says Ralph Tooley, 19-year-old retired mill owner, to Mrs. Bertha "Mom" Whyte, after Mrs. Whyte appeared in court in Bowmanville for having ignored an order to have her latest registered accident to the provisions of the Children's Boarding Homes Act. Mrs. Whyte, who brought 60 of the 90 children she is caring for at her home to Bowmanville during the court hearing, told the court she was unable to comply with the act "because God asked her never to turn a child away from her door." The case was adjourned until July 8.

Eisenhower, Dulles Studying New Tough Policy by Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles have started a new appraisal of U.S.-Soviet relations.

They seek to determine whether current negotiations over such issues as a summit conference offer any real hope of producing agreements.

Both appear to be convinced that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is following much tougher policies than before toward the rest of the world, but they are not sure why.

State department experts are looking for an answer, but admittedly do not yet have all the necessary facts. For example, they are not sure why Soviet ambassadors from the United States, Britain and France were called back to Moscow this week for their urgent consultation.

Speculation is going the rounds here is that Khrushchev may be planning some new manoeuvre in foreign affairs, possibly about a summit conference or a trip to Britain with the Eisenhower told a press conference Wednesday he is unable to say whether it would be worth while to continue his exchange of letters with Khrushchev in the light of such incidents as the execution of former premier Imre Nagy of Hungary.

He said that the execution of Nagy, who was premier at the time of the Hungarian revolt in late 1956, showed that the Soviets are following "policies of terror and intimidation" to bring about complete subservience to their will."

Macmillan Says Cyprus Plan 'Adventure in Partnership'

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan today announced a seven-year plan for the future of Cyprus which envisages participation of the Greek and Turkish governments in the island's administration.

Macmillan described this proposal to the House of Commons as "an adventure in partnership."

He promised a cessation of violence in Cyprus and bring a relaxation of the emergency regulations, including a ban on Cypriots now exiled from the colony.

While he did not specify names, this reference was taken to mean that Archbishop Makarios, head of the majority Greek-Cypriots, would be allowed to return when peace comes.

Macmillan said "it is deeply to be regretted that all attempts" for a settlement to the Cyprus problem had thus far proved unsuccessful.

The prime minister announced the British plan after a 48-hour pause to give the NATO council in Paris time to talk over the problem with Greek Premier Karamanlis and Turkey.

Greek Cypriots want the island to become Greek. Turks want the island partitioned. The dispute has been a bitter one and fighting by Greek Cypriots against the Turks on Cyprus cost at least 17 lives.

Negotiations were Tuesday that Greece and Turkey both had rejected the new plan. They were given a fill-in on it in advance.

Under the plan announced by Macmillan, Greek Cypriots would be asked to appoint representatives to work with the British governor, now Sir Hugh Foot, during the seven-year period.

An arrangement would be made for British nationals, Greek Cypriots and Turks to vote separately for Greek or Turkish nationality and at the same time British nationality.

Two Houses of Representatives would be set up, one for the 500,000 Greek Cypriots and the other for the 100,000 Turkish Cypriots. Defence and internal security matters would remain in the hands of the governor.

For the plan to be workable, Macmillan said, "violence must cease. There must be a relaxation of the security measures that Britain has taken would be possible

Widow Charged With Kidnapping Montreal Boy

Comparison of Notes Led to Arrest

TORONTO (CP)—Three Montreal detectives and a police woman were due here today with a warrant charging Mrs. Margaret Goode, 45-year-old widow, with the kidnapping of 2½-year-old Joel Reitman.

Mrs. Goode was arrested Wednesday afternoon in a west-end Toronto boarding house and charged with attempting to extort money from a former employer, industrialist Arthur Cobham.

Later, she was charged with the Saturday kidnapping in Montreal.

Less than 24 hours before she was charged, Mrs. Goode was questioned and cleared by a detective inspector who was off duty and had been called in to check a tip that the Goode woman in the rooming house might be the woman sought in Montreal.

COMPARED NOTES

A comparison of notes sent to Mr. and Mrs. Cobham, threatening to burn their home and kill their son if they didn't put $2,500 in a designated spot, with the note left for Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Reitman by kidnapper, led Police Inspector Walter Corson to seek Mrs. Goode's arrest.

Mrs. Goode first protested she had been in nearby Brampton on the kidnapping took place and suggested someone might be using her name.

But Inspector John Nimmo said Mrs. Goode "is the girl from Brampton."

JOEL FOUND

Police maintained a watch on the washroom. Monday a woman left Joel with Ottawa taxi driver Edward Royer while she "did a little shopping" and never came back.

Mrs. Goode said here she was born in Scotland 45 years ago, married a construction worker in 1932. She says she left him in 1950 and that she came to Canada in 1954. She said she worked in Edmonton, Calgary and Chilliwack, B.C., Nelson, B.C., Vancouver and Victoria before coming here.

Cyril Reitman said in a long-distance phone call from Montreal Wednesday that the police detail assigned to him "definitely got a lot of information" leading to the finding of his kidnapped son, 2½-year-old Joel.

Mr. Reitman said he would work out with police what the $2,500 ransom note he had asked. There are a few other people who have to be paid.

Republicans Unhappy as Ike Retains Adams

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans are unhappy today to President Eisenhower's decision to keep Sherman Adams, of his No. 1 aide, on the job. But many made it plain they aren't going to do anything.

Republican state chairmen, to whom Eisenhower plays host at a 1,000-plate luncheon today, are over the question of Adams. Some still insisted he should get out. Others supported Eisenhower's backing him. Many declined comment.

Hammarskjold's Arrival Brings Truce In Lebanon

UN Envoy's Reputation Gives Glimmer of Hope

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations arrived in Beirut today, bringing a glimmer of hope that he might end Lebanon's rebellion.

The international diplomat flew in at dawn from London and New York. His reputation is the Middle East for mediating tickle quarrels gave Lebanese some hope he might succeed where others failed.

The crisis - ridden country has endured 41 days of fighting, bombings, shootings and strikes in an effort to overthrow pro-Western President Camille Chamoun.

Rebel leaders have promised a truce while Hammarskjold is here. A furious battle raged in Beirut Wednesday, but government forces finally beat back the rebels and restored an uneasy quiet.

After a brief rest at his hotel Hammarskjold began talks with Norwegian Maj.-Gen. Odd Bull, former president Galo Plaza Lasso of Ecuador and Rolf Awaar Dayal, former Indian ambassador to the UN. They lead the UN observation team sent here by the Security Council to watch for any signs that Lebanon's neighboring United Arab Republic.

REFUSES COMMENT

As usual, Hammarskjold refused to comment to reporters on his plans. There was speculation that he would confer today with the Lebanese, go on to Cairo to talk with President Nasser of the UAR.

Some 30 unarmed observers already are here to check on Syria-Lebanon's 150-mile border with the Syrian province of the UAR. The Lebanese government feels, however, that observation is not enough.

It decided Tuesday to ask Hammarskjold for a similar body of troops similar to the UN Emergency Force which separates Israeli and Egyptian soldiers along their border.

Military experts here estimate that 5,000 troops would be needed to seal the rugged mountain borders Hammarskjold has said are the urgent requests to 14 UN members, including Canada, for more troops but these have still would be short of what the Lebanese government wants.

NEEDS THOUSANDS

Establishment of an armed force of thousands would have to be authorized by the UN Security Council — where Russia might veto it — or by the UN General Assembly.

Hammarskjold stopped in London Wednesday and talked with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. Informed officials said they discussed increasing the observer group to 600 or 700 men equipped with helicopters.

State Secretary Dulles has indicated that U.S. Marines might be available if requested by the UN or the Arab League. Lebanese President Eisenhower said Wednesday the U.S. course of action would depend upon reports on the judgments of Hammarskjold and the observer group.

The fight Wednesday was one of the most clear-cut cases since the rebellion started May 10 of Christians fighting Moslems, insurgents say that the present war will develop into religious war. About half of Lebanon's 1,500,000 people are Christians and half are Moslems. The forces trying to overthrow Chamoun are predominantly Moslem and favor President Nasser's Arab nationalism.

See Khrushchev Under Fire at Secret Sessions

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Communist party leaders continued today to hold secret sessions in Moscow amid reports that Premier Nikita Khrushchev's critics are pressing opposition to his policies.

The central committee, the party's policy-making body, met in the wake of the announcement Tuesday of the execution of former Hungarian prime minister Imre Nagy.

Soviet ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris were recalled to the meeting for a discussion of home and foreign policy questions, including an East-West summit meeting.

Informed European sources said the position of Khrushchev could be "under discussions" by the committee, which appoints and ousts the 15 members in the Presidium, the committee's ruling body.

There also has been speculation about the future of other top Soviet leaders, including party Secretary Mikhail Suslov, regarded as a rigid Stalinist, and former premier Nikolai Bulganin.

There were unconfirmed reports in May of a clash between Suslov and Khrushchev over what Suslov considered the excessive liberalism of some of the premier's policies.

Tide-Ripped Burrard Inlet Waters Refuse To Give up Bodies of 4 of 18 Bridge Victims

VANCOUVER (CP)—The tide-ripped waters of Burrard Inlet at Second Narrows have refused to give up the bodies of four of 18 workmen killed Tuesday when a partially completed bridge collapsed.

Divers hired by Dominion Bridge Company, steel contractors on the bridge, searched the under wreckage Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a one-man royal commission headed by Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the British Columbia Court of Appeal started an investigation into the tragedy. Philip L. Pratley, Montreal consulting civil engineer, was appointed Wednesday as engineering consultant and adviser to the projected $16,000,000 bridge collapsed, will open shortly.

Public hearings into the disaster, which occurred when supports for the sections of the bridge gave way.

The bridge was to augment an existing road-and-rail span at Second Narrows and the Lions Gate Bridge, farther to the west.

First Narrows, in carrying the traffic between Vancouver and the north shore of Burrard Inlet.

SEVENTY FEET FALL

Twenty workmen were injured in the accident. Two of them were in fair condition in hospital. Nine others were "improving." Six were released following treatment. Forty-one other workmen on the bridge escaped injury.

The bridge construction board put three inspectors on the bridge to check on safety regulations. The last one left early in the afternoon before the disaster.

Lett said he would study inspections had been carried out. The board is investigating to see whether any infractions of safety rules led to injury or death.

Dominion Bridge asked for witnesses to help in compiling factual information on the disaster.

Salvage of the steel will present major problems, salvage experts reported. One salvage man said: "It looks like a big derrick and scrapiron torch job. We would have to take out the rivets and chop up the steel piece by piece."

Loss is estimated at $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. Construction will be delayed six months.

ENTHUSIASTIC FAN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Debbie Gilmore is an enthusiastic fan. She told police Wednesday that someone broke her apartment and stole 75 photographs of her.

Other Charges Against Two Who Stole Plane

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Additional charges of flying without a licence and operating an aircraft negligently, endangering life and property, have been laid by the RCMP against two Peterborough men, Donald Kennedy, 22, and Grant Marchen, 22.

They pleaded guilty June 12 to stealing an airplane and were remanded until today for sentence. RCMP officials said Kennedy had held a pilot's licence but it "expired just a few days before the plane was stolen."

The two men admitted stealing the privately-owned two-seat aircraft from Little Lake, in the centre of the city, around midnight June 7. They crash-landed on Rice Lake at Bewdley, 20 miles south of here. About $1,000 damage was done to the aircraft's floats and two lake docks. The men were arrested when they thumbed a ride in an unmarked police cruiser.

NEWFIE ONLY PROVINCE SIGNED FOR HOSPITAL AID

Federal Govt. Hopes Five Ready July 1

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal hopes are that five provinces will have hospital insurance plans in operation by July 1 qualifying for federal insurance aid that will start then.

So far only Newfoundland has signed an agreement with the federal government to take effect on that date. However, Health Minister Monteith informed the Commons Wednesday that the four western provinces, which previously stated their intention to participate, may yet sign in time to start receiving federal contributions then.

Ontario, which also has stated an agreement, is also to start its hospital plan next Jan. 1.

The minister's hopes were expressed as the Commons approved the principle of a bill which would ensure a July 1 start of federal payments — half the shareable costs of provincial hospital insurance schemes.

Mr. Monteith said federal contribution for the last half of 1958 to the five provinces—it all come in on July 1—would be $30,000,000. It has been estimated originally that federal payments to all 10 provinces, if they participated, would be about $180,000,000 a year.

Debate on the hospital insurance measure likely will be concluded today, after Prime Minister Diefenbaker completes his reply during the Commons debate on ratification of the North American air defence agreement.

The minister said Wednesday that the United States was debating the possibility of setting up a prime minister starting its reply at the end of the second day, Mr. Diefenbaker may make a vote on the ratification motion.

Says Only Third Of Lung Cancers Found in Time

HALIFAX (CP)—A Montreal surgeon said Wednesday that only a third of Canada's lung cancer victims reach the operating room in time.

Dr. E. D. Gagnon, head of thoracic and cardia-vascular surgery at Notre-Dame Hospital, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association the best chance of cure still lies in early diagnosis.

During nine years of lung cancer surgery at Notre Dame Hospital, Dr. Gagnon examined 254 cases. Only 77 reached surgeons in time "for possibility of cure," he said. He said the figures reflected the situation in most Canadian general hospitals.

UN Committee Will Consider Execution of Nagy and Aides

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—In a speedy meeting of the United Nations watchdog committee on Hungary today the U.S. is offering today to set up a sounding board for the hard-core Soviet world's stock-taking and indignation over the execution of former Premier Imre Nagy and three leaders of the abortive Hungarian revolt.

Western reaction to the executions ranged from Italy's decision to curtail diplomatic relations with Budapest to Prime Minister Nehru's mild expression of displeasure, demonstration against the Hungarian team at the world soccer games in Stockholm.

E. Ronald Walker of Australia, acting chairman of the five-member UN committee, said he has had several requests for a meeting. He asked the UN secretariat to set one up "as soon as practicable" and added it might be held Friday.

Composed of members from Denmark, Tunisia, Thailand, Australia and Uruguay, the committee was established by the General Assembly in 1957. It found the Soviet Union guilty of "mass repression" in putting down the 1956 revolt in Hungary. Its report was approved by the assembly.

Meanwhile the group was authorized to make further reports from time to time, the execution of Nagy and his aides drew attention immediate suggestions for a resumption of the suspended inquiry.

Another suggestion was for a public meeting to dramatize UN concern. Previous meetings generally have been held in private. Diplomats here said they believe that Soviet policy ever has been influenced by UN resolutions on Hungary and that attention to the rebellion and the way the Communists forced many Communists and neutralists to take a more critical look at Moscow's professions of "peaceful coexistence."

Study Position if Country Is Asked to Send Troops

OTTAWA (CP) — Government advisers are studying Canada's position if this country is asked to provide troops for an international police force in Lebanon.

Canada already has committed 10 officers to a UN observation team authorized by the Security Council. The cabinet will make the decision about sending any more troops if they are sought.

The 10 officers leave Ottawa for Lebanon on a plane at 9 p.m. EDT today.

Should Canada contribute to a UN police force for the revolution-torn Middle Eastern country the job likely will fall to the 2nd Battalion, the Royal Canadian Regiment now stationed in London, Ont.

Defence Minister Pearkes told the Commons last January this unit has a "stand-by" role for just such emergencies and is equipped to meet them.

The Lebanese government charges the revolution is fomented by and supplied from the adjacent United Arab Republic province of Syria.

Part-Time Preacher Kept Dad, 88, Penned up Within Electric Fence

STAYTON, Ore. (AP)—Police have arrested a man who they said kept his 88-year-old father penned up within an electric fence.

Daniel George Cole, 60, was arrested Wednesday night with assault and battery.

Sheriff's deputy Charles Thornton said Cole, the 88-year-old father, Eugene W. Cole, was taken to a hospital here, where his condition was described as fair.

Thornton said the elder Cole was kept captive in a triangular enclosure at the rear of his son's home. Around the enclosure ran a two-strand electric fence that carried a 6,000-volt charge. The man lived in an old, filthy, 16-foot trailer house within the fence.

Police investigated after reports that a man had been heard screaming near the Cole house for several days.

Thornton said the elder Cole lying on the ground. The son was kicking the old man, Thornton said, and pouring water on him.

Thornton quoted the younger Cole as telling investigators in a part-time preacher, as saying the treatment was necessary discipline to make his father take care of himself.

The old man's only apparent source of food was a refrigerator which contained dry bread and sour milk, Thornton said.

The trailer contained a bed of rags, a spoon stood to the table and an old dog dish.

First-Graders' Descriptions Prove Cliche-Free and Straight to Point

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"Arms are to hold your hands on."

"Eyebrows are something women shave off."

"Little stones are big rocks chopped up."

These words are the freshest words of all for they came from the mouths of babes.

Helen G. Meyers, supervisor of elementary education here, was captivated by the talk and writings of first graders—uninhibited, cliche-free and straight to the point.

Over a two-year period she collected the youngsters' descriptions of everyday things.

Among them:

"Cats are for dogs to chase."

"Dogs are made to like people."

"A dream is something you think when you're asleep."

"Ears are something that big people put hearing things on."

"Ears are to wiggle."

"A face is a thing that holds your head and hair in place."

"Ground is to grow grass."

"A hat is for magicians to take rabbits out of."

"Mountains are a place that's hard to go up but easy to come down."

"A mustache is something old men get."

"A mustache is something else to wash."

"A package is something to say, 'Yoo hoo! Look what I got.'"

"The world is where you jump up in the air and always come down again."

"The world is something to come down to after you've been up in space."

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Cox Honored Before Leaving City

Resident of Belleville for the past four years as assistant district Manager of the Brewer's Warehousing Company Ltd., Danny Cox, Belleville cricketer and coach of the Senior "B" team in this city for a year, was hidden goodbye by the staff of the stores and warehouse in this district last night at Columbus Hall. Mr. Cox has been transferred back to his home town of Port Arthur as assistant Manager. Since coming to this city Mr. Cox has taken an active interest in the social, civic and fraternal life of this community. He was a prominent Rotarian.

O. W. Larry Presents Brief On Capital Budget for Town

TRENTON — At the last meeting of town council, O. W. Larry, town clerk-treasurer, spoke on the matter of a capital budget for Trenton. With his address he presented graphs he had drawn up to show the councillors how he felt town finances could be easily watched and handled in the next few years.

Mr. Larry's address is as follows:

"When I prepared the graphs and a tentative capital budget for Trenton for consideration, I had no intention of broadening the scope of my presentation.

"Since that time I have made some wider investigations and feel that the necessity of such long-range planning is imperative if the municipality is to cope with the problems to come.

"The Gordon report as it applies to municipalities touches many points which adequately prefare my remarks. For example, 'in the increasingly urbanized society which is evolving, Canadians will be well advised to take a fresh and a constructive interest in the affairs of the city hall . . . we feel that new thinking will have to be done, more of all, on the problems and functions of local government.'

"Most of the population increase will occur in the cities and towns and this will call for heavy expenditures on housing, streets, schools, hospitals and such facilities.

"Gordon says: 'For some persons planning is a magic word; for others it is an obnoxious one. Our own view is that trained professional town planners are valuable people indeed, provided they are put to work in the right context . . . the most successful examples of planning have involved a method of approach, a way of doing things, which has permeated almost every aspect of the municipalities' operations, including the financial aspect.'

"And if I may add further from the report which states: 'At the risk of being caught in the cliche of controlling schools of thought, let us attempt to summarize what the "book" says broadly is. When an area has been subjected to a thorough and continuing survey (a planning survey—not merely a civil engineering one), when, on the basis of that survey, a zoning, land-use and capital improvement plan has been drawn up, flexible yet resistant to capricious or doubtfully motivated alterations; when to this have been added a zoning by-law, ancillary by-law controlling subdivision, and a long-term capital budget, then the whole basis will have been examined, discussed and accepted by deputations to both council and the public — then there is planning, in the full, mid-twentieth century sense of the term.'

CAPITAL BUDGET

"Hitherto, the long-term capital bugbear has been the most commonly missing link in the chain.

"That is what I am attempting to do in capital budgeting will do the following:

"(1) If reviewed and prepared annually to plan for five years will keep physical planning and financing within hailing distance of the financially possible.

"2. If properly conceived and worked out on a priority basis, if some items have to be cut then be those which will least affect a co-ordinated advance.

"I trust council will give serious consideration to this plan I have here an diet up something which can be used for the next five years. It is my suggestion that having determined what (not in necessary you may power the chairman of finance and the treasurer to spend a few days with an investment house to secure the benefit of their experience on municipal financing. Then, having satisfied ourselves this is the best procedure, take it to the municipal board for their blessing.

"In doing so, future councils will have less difficulty in getting through the approval required and the public and debenture purchasers will have more confidence in the municipality with the obvious benefit of better prices and markets to finance these works.

TAX ARREARS HIGH

"In this latter regard, one extremely important factor is tax collections and our tax arrears are presently $350,000 as of 1957. Although the tax collector has recovered approximately $30,000 of this, it is important that the drive continue. Generally speaking, the tax collector in this respect will help immeasurably.

"As you know, I recently attended a meeting of the housing authorities in Ontario Falls. There I heard some of Ontario's foremost authorities on housing, re-development and physical problems of urban municipalities. The same impression I, council must feel that I have become obsessed with planning but I am not. Basic planning as the report indicates, is not all physical, it is an inter-related and inseparable. I think it is regrettable that the members of council do not take advantage of this convention and similar conclaves. Too frequently conventions are looked upon as holidays. They need not be. My recommendation is that in the future an elected representative be authorized and urged to attend such meetings.

"It trust I will not be misunderstood in these remarks but municipal administration is my business. Through the years and literature I try to keep abreast of municipal problems before and those anticipated. It is my purpose to keep succeeding councils posted on these conditions. However, councils usually the sequence of a program dies.

ASSESSMENTS LOW

"Our analysis of the 1956 assessment of residential buildings, equals built at $8 per cent were assessed for less than $2,000.00. This may be slightly improved for 1957 but the high percentage of new homes but it indicates the impending problem of trying to improve such situation to spread our cost over a broadened base. I refer to annexation. When you consider that the cost to provide for one child is a minimum of $12.00 per month and $2,000.00 returns $146.00 in taxes at the present mill rate, the problem would appear to be quite evident.

"And in conclusion may I say this. There is no point in procrastination because it won't solve the problem and it is costly. To illustrate this point the original report of Gene and Sterrie for a complete sewage plant in 1950 was $150,000 only, and this was to serve 12,000 people. In 1958 for almost the same scheme but for 15,000 people and only partial treatment, the cost is estimated to be over $1,400,000. Since 1950 there has been a 9 per cent increase. The obvious conclusion is, face up to the problems and get the best advice as the town can afford to but do not defer without good reason."

Dominion Day U.E.L. Picnic Meets Appeals

Announcement made last week the Bay of Quinte Branch of United Empire Loyalist descendants would hold a basketpicnic meeting in the Bay of Quinte UEL (Provincial) Park at Adolphustown on Tuesday, July first (Dominion Day) has met with considerable favor from members and others who feel they would enjoy a nice quiet afternoon far from the maddening crowds.

The idea of reverting to the methods followed by our ancestors in observing such events as our Dominion natal anniversary by gathering for a social afternoon of becoming better acquainted could be considered distinctly novel today. While their elders are visiting with old and new-found friends, the young folks will be provided with a sports program with many desirable prizes to be acquired.

Supporting one of the objectives of the U.E.L. Assn., "marking the graves of our Loyalist ancestors", the following letter was received this week: "I want to give you this bit of information on the Ketcheson. It comes from an abandoned cemetery, behind the stone ruins of the old Friends' Meeting house, wherein a gravestone records the last resting place of Sarah B., wife of Nicholas Ketcheson, died 3 October 1813. Sarah B. was a Howe by birth. Her parents, also buried in that cemetery, were Samuel Howe and Jane Denyke. Samuel Howe was my great, great, grandfather's older brother, and a son of William Howe, U.E.L., and Margaret VanOrden. William Howe was a member of Captain Michael Grass' party of Loyalists who settled in Kingston town-ship. The cemetery is so overgrown with trees and shrubs that you could pass it without knowing that it was there. A most desolate place for the burial of Loyalists."

There could be no better illustration of the need and value of joining the descendants of those old Loyalists in the objective of perpetuating the principles for which they fought and suffered untold hardships one hundred and eighty years ago.

You are invited to attend this Dominion Day afternoon-picnic at Adolphustown. There will be no charge for admission.

Case Company and their head office in Racine, Wisconsin, in celebrating their appointment as dealer for the complete line of Case agricultural machines, including a broad complement of tractors, tillage equipment, haying and harvesting equipment as well as risers and other miscellaneous items.

The Case line also includes such utility items as crawlers, tractors, bulldozers, backhoes, front-end loaders, construction utility equipment and elevators.

In the business of producing machines for the past 115 years, the J. I. Case Company needs no introduction to district farmers. Their whole line of equipment is the most complete on the market and their farm tractor line includes 12 power sizes with 124 models. Case tractors have the revolutionary new features—Case-O-Matic Drive — which Case has pioneered.

LONG EXPERIENCE

Trudeau Motors Ltd. have been selected by Case to handle their line because of the long experience in handling farm machinery and because of the facilities they have to render service.

Trudeau's have been doing business in this area for over 32 years and have now divided their business to set up their machine section on an entirely different basis, located on the Foxboro Road near the cloverleaf.

New facilities have been built to display this line of machines, with a modern showroom having been constructed to display machines and to include cloning offices for executive and salesmen.

The stockroom has been enlarged to handle a complete stock of parts, while the service department has been increased to meet substantial future development and is equipped with the latest labor-saving devices. Special equipment is being delivered for the purpose of hauling all types tractors.

The machine division is set up under the supervision — the agricultural department, supervised by Drs. W. Shunk, and the industrial section under Dick Elson with each department specializing in its own field.

EXPERIENCED STAFF

The service department is manned with men having years of experience at Trudeau's and specially trained by the J. I. Case service department. The line of machines sold at Trudeau's.

The official opening of the Foxboro Road building Monday evening was followed by a demonstration of the full line of Case agricultural equipment at the Horace Knight farm.

Demonstrations in plowing, hay cutting, baling and tug-of-war contests were carried out. The purpose of the demonstration was to acquaint prospective buyers of these machines with their newest features, particularly the new Case-O-Matic drive.

Assisting in the demonstration was a staff of Case men ranging from engineers and including specialist in all phases of equipment operation.

At the open house, pictures were shown of the Case World Premiere showing a demonstration which J. I. Case carried out at Phoenix, Arizona, at which 30 tractors of all sizes were on display and where special proving grounds were set up to demonstrate the various machines.

A MANY-SIDED BUDGET

Canadians are now studying the first Conservative federal budget in almost a quarter of a century.

Opinions regarding it are likely to be extremely varied and these variations will not necessarily reflect the political affiliations of the persons voicing the opinions.

This will not seem so surprising if we remember that a federal budget, dealing as it does with all phases of such a complex mechanism as the national economy, of necessity has many facets, the relative importance of which depends largely on the angle from which the observer views it.

The Canadian Press, for instance, referred to the taxation relief in Hon. Donald Fleming's first full-scale budget as "almost invisible" and as a generalization this would seem to be a valid interpretation. But this taxation relief will not be invisible to those individuals who face heavy expenditures for drugs, to husbands paying for the support of wife or dependent children under court order, to the publishers of Time and Reader's Digest, to the husband wishing to transfer the title in real estate to his wife.

These tax reductions, though, along with others of a similar nature, amount in the aggregate to only $26,000,000 a year, or only $8,000,000 in the balance of the current fiscal year. This is a trifling sum in a budget which is expected to produce $4,632,000,000 and this comparison between the size of the reductions and the amount to be raised by the taxes which remain places these reductions in their proper light. They are not the result of a decision to reduce taxes as a matter of principle, but are rather an effort to correct what the government regarded as inequities in the existing tax structure.

In spite of the lack of any large-scale reduction in taxation, Mr. Fleming's budget provides for a deficit of $648,000,000, a peacetime record. This is the result of the recession, which has proved a two-edged sword reducing the amount of revenue the government will receive from unchanged tax rates while convincing Mr. Fleming that it is expedient to increase government expenditures in order to prime the pump of the national economy.

Mr. Fleming's budget provides for the expenditure of $5,300,000,000, another peacetime record and an increase of $218,000,000 over the last fiscal year. Part of this increased expenditure is the result of an increase in the amount of the estimates for public works. Perhaps experience during the war years, and post-war years too, has influenced the Conservatives' thinking here. It has been proved that these defence expenditures did produce a high level of employment and it seems to us that the only essential difference between defence expenditures and public works is that, properly planned, the latter can add to the wealth of the nation, while the former, though often necessary, represent an unfortunate waste of our productive resources. Under proper circumstances, could be put to much better use. The principle of deficit financing in times of a business slump is now generally accepted by most political parties. There are two ways to utilize this principle, through a reduction in the rates of taxation which leaves more money in the hands of individuals and corporations, thereby increased governmental expenditures. The comparative effectiveness of such methods are questions for experts and it may well be that the choice between them should vary under differing circumstances. The layman, however, may reason that, properly planned, it is possible to use the government's let good cash in its fight against the recession for every extra dollar spent, while the question of whether tax reductions would be used to help fight the recession would depend on millions of individual decisions by taxpayers.

There is, however, one sobering thought. The present recession, as we all know, is a "spotty" one. Though many Canadians are out of work, more Canadians are working than ever before, at wages higher than ever before. If, under such circumstances, the Government finds it necessary to budget for a deficit of $648,000,000, what size deficit would be necessary to fight a full-scale depression? Have we not, perhaps, been over optimistic in accepting the declaration of many economists that real depressions "can't happen here" because we know so much more about controlling our economy than we did in the thirties?

HOW HE WON

It wasn't by pousing to play,
It wasn't by stopping to rest,
But steadily doing his best;
It was by knocking his neighbor
Or saying, "The world is unfair."
No boost and diligent labor
He finally landed up there.

It wasn't by sneering at others,
By meddling in others' affairs,
And daily belittling his brothers
And daily enlarging his cares;
Nor was it by ceaseless complaining
That the world isn't run on the square;
But by never a duty disdaining
He finally landed up there.

But by never a duty disdaining
Nor by saying the men who employed him
Knew little of their business than he,
Or by growling when trifles annoyed him,
And afraid that the world overlooked me,
If he didn't go boasting and bragging
That he often did more than his share!
But by plugging right on, without lagging,
He finally landed up there.

AMID THE STARS

An astronomer died some time ago. On a tombstone his family had often heard him make. It was engraved a statement that they had often heard him make. It was a statement that "We have learned more among the stars ever to fear the dark."

The higher we get up in the sciences of God's influence, the less will anyone be afraid of God. The more we get to know God, as it has ever been to those who preceded us.

Men have looked at the stars — not necessarily as the astronomer did, but as we all may do by listening to God in the heavens. A realm that eye and hand and ear cannot reach. Those of us who make it a point to survey life from as great heights as possible will be the vengeful days that are tended they should. Because they see farther, they cease to fear the night.

How strange that we, living in this man-made, manufactured world of the sciences of these times. We do not fear the same things our ancestors did, but fear we do! Science and skill, fear as devastating as it has ever been in those who preceded us.

Cats Smarter Than Humans

By Branford Expositor

Aleurognobes fancy name for cat folk who detest cats) may loath the animals but they've got to admit to doing they still have to admit that cats are smart animals, a lot smarter than atmosphere of many other sort of humans at times.

Take the matter of food, for instance. Cats don't eat anything that might poison it. Then, again, it nearly always does what is best for it. If it's sick, it won't eat. If it chews its food carefully, it's full when hungry it won't eat if it knows.

In fact more than one doctor and veterinarian has come to the conclusion that specializing in psychiatry may find the cat a useful model of behavior to which to refer the attention of jittery patients.

Agreeing with this, Dr. Joseph H. Peck, writing in The Chicago Daily News, adds that besides the above-mentioned characteristics, a cat has the ability to sleep relaxed when there are no mice, grasshoppers or birds to chase, no dogs to put in their proper place and no humans deserving of condescending attention. Also it never worries about tomorrow, unless to preserve its life.

So the learned psychiatrist may find forgiven for acidly remarking that these "animal" qualities are attributed to mere "instinct" supposed to live by reason. "Yet, wherever home (for those sap!) is like, inquires Dr. Peck, "enjoys the world more?"

Any doubt on this score? Then reconsider after reading this:

"Your alarm clock awakens you with a start and you jump out of bed and rush through your toilet while your muscles, already relaxed during the night, are yelling for more oxygen. You dress hurriedly and race down to an indigestible breakfast of fried eggs, toast, bacon and strong coffee while you read about the latest murder, fire or traffic accident. Then, through your kidneys to get rid of the blood must be rushed to your head. You race out to your car and away you go. Now you have to engage for all you're worth available so that it will keep you awake and your nerves tingling ready for action in front of you and you get angry, which is bad for your blood pressure. Be sure to raise your blood pressure. By noon you may need an antacid to settle your stomach because of more acid. In an effort to empty itself, your stomach is badly undigested and highly acid food into the bowel and soon you have a diarrhoea. Be sure to increase the tension increase this flow, and you can't be bothered long need an expensive operation for a hemorrhage."

It is established that a cat lives only half as long as man, but it may look queen. Maybe we should take a good look at the cat.

Told Gestapo Who He Was

Baltimore Sun

Just after the Normandy landings in 1944 the Germans moved the crack 2nd Reich division up from the south, in reinforcement. In the Dordogne area, the division was reinforced by a force of the Maquis, the French Forces of the Interior, and held for eighteen hours in a determined struggle. The commander called a "battle of beauty and splendor." The commander, a "Colonel Bernet," was assigned to the task.

Bernet and stood before a Gestapo firing squad. Asked subsequently if the Gestapo had known his real name, he said:

"With enemy officers you don't play a game or bring that puts you in an inferior position. I told the Maquis, Malraux, one of the chiefs of the French Resistance".

The firing squad did not shoot. It was a threat only. Malraux had information that would have been invaluable to Germany. In the artillery duel, moving events of that summer he escaped, to join the brigade of the FFI through the Vosges into Alsace; then to become Minister of Culture and Propaganda in the closing phase of Charles de Gaulle's administration, before retiring to continue his explorations into aesthetics and his monumental work on "The mystical — "The Voices of Silence"; now to serve de Gaulle again as Minister of Information.

U.K. Exports Fish, Chips

BBC London Letter

A new export trade is being developed in England's East Coast port of Grimsby to cater for the growing popularity of the typically British fare of fish and chips.

The demand for this traditional British dish has come from Malta, Cyprus, America, and Canada," said James Goodrich in a BBC broadcast. With the new processing and packing techniques, there is nowhere that fish and chips can't be had one of the fish and chip factories in Grimsby I watched white-fleshed cod fillets being filleted, skinned and deep-frozen. Then I saw the fish being washed in cold water and put into frying pans. It had been coated, filleted, skinned and deep-frozen. Then I saw the fish being washed in cold water and put into frying pans. It had been coated, filleted, skinned and deep-frozen, cut into portions, well battered, and then fried golden brown in deep fat. Finally a temperature of three hundred degrees. Various final materials were fried, but I was found that for taste and appearance and convenience the dripping. From the frying pans, the fish and chips passed on to the packing line: six ounces of fish and six of chips, enough for two people. The still warm, were sealed in tinfoil dishes. The tinfoil box then went into a brown grease-proofed carton on which were printed the re-heating instructions, and the shipping hour from the time of frying, the fish and chips were packed down to mind five degrees. After two hours in the freezer, the fish and chips were ready for export.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

IN SOME CASES, CHILDHOOD CONSTIPATION CAN BE PSYCHOLOGICAL

"Dear Dr. Molner: Once again I would like some of your good general advice. My child is troubled with constipation. After an illness he has one or two painfully hard movements, then tends to hold back for fear of being hurt. Can constipation cause blood to appear, which is frightening? Is there anything serious? What causes it? Should we have a rectal examination? During summer and fall he does not have this trouble, just in winter after an illness. — Mrs. C.M." for Generally speaking, constipation in children is on a psychological basis — too strict training, tenseness or nervousness, or the child's failure to understand that a B. M. is a natural process and not a world-shaking event.

Anxious mothers (likely constipated themselves!) who make too much fuss, or drag out the cathartics on any provocation, can create faulty habits. Excessive use of cathartics will throw off the normal reflex pattern and cause real problems to develop.

Of course there can be organic defects — Hirschsprung's Disease, involving a congenital deficiency of the colon, or some other disorder. But, as I've said many times in discussing the latter types of constipation of that. On the contrary, since he is getting a good spring or summer, but only after an illness in winter when he's confined or other childhood misery, I presume we have no reason to suspect a serious disorder. Rather, there is doubtless some dehydration-constipation complex going on here, plus not much bulk in his diet, and perhaps a bit of milk which has an appreciable constipating effect on some children.

In the final analysis this is a wide-spread demonstration of anti-public sentiment. What's wrong, evidently, is the Nazis of union officials who direct enthroned in the United Kingdom. It is perhaps most of all a public protest against union bosses, who seem to have lost touch with the people whom they serve.

Tycoon's Car 20 Years Old

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Lord Nuffield is the Henry Ford of England. Born William Richard Morris, he was interested in motor vehicles which came into being when he was 16 turned 20 years of age, and in the course of time he pioneered making the small English cars. Morris Motors produced the Nuffield range of popular motor mikes. He is a millionaire many times over, and he has given millions of pounds to hospitals and to Oxford University for research.

Recently his personal car was involved in a light accident, and it was discovered that he was using a 20-year-old 'baby' Wolseley automobile. He has why he did not get himself a new and bigger car and he replied: "What would I do with one of those big cars? This one does all I want."

Lord Nuffield could by himself — and many people — a fleet of Rolls-Royces, and never feel the cost. But he is content with a car that suits his needs.

Yet there are many people — the majority of them decidedly poor — who always want to have a new, big car, even if they have to go without other things to pay for it and it takes them all their years to complete the purchase, by which time they are ready to start the process all over again.

It seems to be easier to keep up with the Nuffields than with the Joneses.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the newspaper office where I served my apprenticeship, there was one subeditor of whom ago who was so outspoken he was the object of quelchard humorous derision for the entire staff.

Year after year, year after year, he never changed his pace, and never changed the gesture of his invariable routine. He was deliberate. He arrived exactly at 9 a.m. in the office every day. Whether the office clock was five minutes fast or ten minutes slow, he entered the room exactly on the dot, according to the clock. He left the office exactly at 5:30 by the same third pace into the same small town in Louisiana.

He was one of the best newspapermen I ever knew, and one of the happiest of men, and sat at his desk with the same regular or ten movements. He opened his desk and took out his papers and held them up before his eyes to examine them as he snapped them three times.

The day had begun. As a matter of fact, after each year's routine had been carried out and turned our office into a madhouse. Thundering earthquakes shaking, wars starting, none of these ruffled our subeditor in the least. He was a man of the utmost sang froid.

We pitied him, made fun of him, sometimes screamed at him. But he got through a massive pile of work each subeditor has to get through, and retired calmly at sixty and 'lit the fifteen years left to him in a

Tuesday night Grantham Township school area board learned of the oversight and sent him a cheque for $72.50.

Scouting activities

The Melrose Cub pack held its first outdoor meeting last Thursday, and it proved a happy forerunner of the open air meetings which the pack associates with the summer season.

Three new sixers were appointed. They were Kirk Reid, Ronnie Demille and Wayne Pascoe.

A "going up" ceremony was held for Steven McLaney, Bob McLaren, Paul Howard and John English. The pack gave the "grand howl" in honor of the four boys who became Scouts that night.

The Akela (Mrs. Jack English wished the new Scouts good luck and good hunting in the troop. The Scouts-to-be repeated the Cub promise for the last time and then shook hands with each Cub in their own six. The pack gave the boys three cheers.

Akela English presented the foursome to Scoutmaster T. Howard, who assigned them to patrol leaders.

Later the Cubs and Scouts joined forces in a game of baseball, with Scoutmaster Howard and assistant Scoutmaster Millan in charge.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Diamond, the group committee chairmen, and Mr. McLennan assisted during the campfire and marshmallow roast which rounded out the evening's enjoyment.

As darkness approached, the campfire song, softly sung beside the flickering embers of the fire, brought the evening to a close.

Fun, adventure and comradeship are awaiting the new Scouts in the troop. The Cub pack and leaders wish them "good Scouting".

On the evening of June 11 the school auditorium where the 2th Belleville meet was transformed almost beyond recognition. Tastefully draped in blue with purple iris and lemon lilies the group's colors created a festive scheme for the father and son banquet. A turkey dinner was prepared and served by the Mothers' Auxiliary.

Cub Dyson Sargent was chairman for the evening. He thanked Mrs. Reid and the other mothers for preparing the banquet and then introduced the guests: Sixer Ronnie Post and Mr. Post; Sixer Rodney Reid and Mr. Reid. Mrs. Bonsaler, president of the home and school association at Prince Charles was also there; public schools; C. F. Leggat, president Sixer Freddie Ellis; Jack Devine, representing the group committee, and Cub Bruce Devine.

Commissioner Allcorn remarked briefly on the growth of Scouting and forecast the Jubilee Plan to take care of it. He stressed outdoor activities, but warned against possible dangers. The commissioner asked the leaders to cooperate with the safety committee.

Cub Freddie Ellis proposed a toast to the fathers and Mr. Post replied, expressing pleasure at the large turnout. Mr. Pugh urged the fathers to turn out at other functions.

Jack Devine introduced the guest speaker, Floyd Crawford, defenseman with the McFarland hockey club.

Mr. Crawford told the boys that education is the best foundation for any career. Scouting, he said, is a type of education.

Stars and badges were awarded to the following: Miss Gelsthorpe (Kim) seven-year service star; Mrs. Elliott (Baloo), five-year service star, and Miss Hamilton (Bagheera), three-year service star.

Rover John Goodman showed colored slides of his trip to the World Jamboree in England last year. All of the Cubs took part in a radio presentation. The announcer was Cub Robert Chappell.

Musical numbers were presented by Stephen Flindall, Dyson Sargent, Graydon Flindall, Robert Chappell, Freddie and Richard Ellis. The boys showed that there is no lack of talent in the 8th Belleville group.

East Hastings District Annual W.I. Held at Roslin United Church

The annual convention of East Hastings district Women's Institute was held at Roslin United Church, June 12th with approximately 80 ladies in attendance. Executive branches in the district and the Junior Institute were represented. The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of spirea, iris and peonies.

Registration was in charge of Mrs. Ernest Bell, Roslin, and Mrs. Don Chisholm of Roslin.

Mrs. G. Wilson, district president, presided over the sessions. Miss Mowers introduced the guest speaker, who introduced Mrs. James Haggerty, president F.W.I.O.: Mrs. Clifford Gillespie, Grafton, Federated Board member and Miss S. Thibeaudeau of Napanee, home economist.

LITTLE THINGS

The highlight of the program was an address by Mrs. Haggerty of Napanee, who stressed the value of "Little Things That Make Life Beautiful." "Many trivial things that cost nothing are invaluable to folk around us in this busy world of commununity is our concern." She went on to cite illustrations in which how older citizens, handicapped and new Canadians can be helped in full life through with cooperation. She also suggested brightening up a dull day by visiting sick and shut-ins. "Give gifts that bring beauty, not only those that are practical. Let us look around us and we will see those things that are in the face. Let us all do all we can to beautify life for others and it will help to make it beautiful for us."

Mrs. G. Swan, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last district annual which was held at Melrose. She also gave the financial report which showed receipts $462.41, expenses $391.07, leaving a balance of $71.41.

Mrs. S. Hazard, Plainfield, reported that the auditors had found the books in order.

Miss Mowers, district president, reported that she had executed an interesting and rewarding year. She visited ten branches in the district and attended the 50th anniversary of Stirling branch, national convention at Ottawa, 50th anniversary of North Hastings district and Eldorado-Bannockburn branch, where she took greetings from Hastings district. Miss Mowers concluded her report with a poem, "Fundamentals," and a few words on "What Makes a Home":

"Home may be near, home may be far,
Anywhere a few hundred miles away."

Mrs. Gillespie, board member, briefed the district directors and a motion that they all be accepted was passed.

REPORTS READ

The reports followed with Mrs. Cecil Hubble reporting on resolutions. One branch used New Year's resolutions as a roll call and one suggested that every branch have a resolution meeting.

Mrs. Earl Ray reported for Agriculture and Canadian Industries. Papers were given on "Vanishing Woodpile," "Farm Life," "4-H Club," and "Process of Cheesemaking." WEDDINGS

PRITCHARD — HENLEY | McCAW — CABLE

St. Paul's Anglican Church, Combermere, Ontario, was the scene on Saturday, June 7, at 3.00 p.m. of a very pretty wedding, when Phyllis Donelda Henley, of Ostawa and Frankford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henley, of Frankford, became the bride of Clayton Donald Pritchard, of Purdy, Ontario, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Osmond Pritchard. The Reverend C. A. Williams officiated before a lovely background of white and mauve lilacs, spirea, and orange blossoms. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The wedding music included "O Perfect Love," "I Love You Truly," and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. William Henley, was charming in her bridal gown of double-blend white silk organza, embroidered petal overs white satin, featuring a Peter Pan collar and scooped neckline with inserted lace, peinless line, beautiful waist-length skirt. She wore a matching pillbox, headdress studded with iridescent sequins and seed pearls with finger-tip veil of nylon net, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and rosebud-knotted streamers.

She was attended by Mrs. Lucien Hamelin of Windsor, Ont., as matron of honor, wearing shrimp-colored organzkin and net, with matching headdress, and carrying a cascade of yellow roses and white 'mums with yellow streamers.

Miss Jona Dubblestein of Ohawa, as senior bridesmaid also wore organzkin and net in yellow, with matching headdress, and carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

Miss Audrey Jones of Tweed, and Miss Marilyn Pritchard of Purdy, Ontario, as junior bridesmaids, were gowned alike in yellow nylon chiffon, with matching headdress, and carried nosegays of white and pink 'mums.

The two little flower girls, six year old nieces of the bride, Miss Bette-Ann Henley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Henley of Trenton, and Miss Debbie Henley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henley of Belleville, were demure and sweet in their identical frocks of nylon yellow with white, appliqued daisies inserted in the skirts; matching headpieces and nosegays of multi-colored 'mums and rosebuds with yellow streamers.

Mr. Victor Henley of Trenton, attended his brother, while Messrs. Clare Hoare of Purdy, Larry Jones of Tweed, and Arden Pritchard of Purdy, ushered the guests.

The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding a white and navy gown with matching duster, white accessories and corsage of blue 'mums. The bridegroom's mother wore a sheath gown in champagne crystalette with white accessories, and corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to New York City, and other southern points, the bride wore a beige-toned linen ensemble with brown accessories and corsage of yellow roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Pritchard will reside in Guelph, Ontario.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ohawa, Ontario, Trenton, Windsor, Belleville, Bancroft, Rockford, Maynooth, Eganville, Golden Lake, Renfrew, Kennore and Barry's Bay.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Hicks, Purdy, when she was presented with a kitchen shower; at the home of Mrs. Victor Henley, Trenton, with a miscellaneous shower; at the home of Mrs. Jerome Tennant of Whitby, with a pantry shower, and at the home of Mrs. Roza Fleming of Frankford, with a cup and saucer shower.

Comrade Jones Presents Plaque To Legion LA.

On Tuesday evening at the Canadian Legion Hall, with the president, M. Bailey, presiding, the Ladies' Auxiliary held a commemoration service when a plaque bearing the engraved names of 12 past presidents, since the inception of the Auxiliary 20 years ago, was made by Comrade Jones, of Picton, Dominion president of the Belleville Auxiliary. Comrade Jones stated that it was nice to be remembered after 20 years with the same Auxiliary.

Five of the former presidents are still members of the Auxiliary, Mesdames D. Jeffs' A. Dean, J. Slater; E. Turner and A. Bradford.

Three new members were initiated, Mrs. L. Brant, Mrs. L. Kenny and Mrs. J. Knott.

The charter was draped in memory of the late Mrs. Mabel Kent.

A delightful supper was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

East Hastings District Annual W.I. Held at Roslin United Church

The annual convention of East Hastings district Women's Institute was held at Roslin United Church, June 12th with approximately 80 ladies in attendance. Executive branches in the district and the Junior Institute were represented. The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of spirea, iris and peonies.

Registration was in charge of Mrs. Ernest Bell, Roslin, and Mrs. Don Chisholm of Roslin.

Mrs. G. Wilson, district president, presided over the sessions. Miss Mowers introduced the guest speaker, who introduced Mrs. James Haggerty, president F.W.I.O.: Mrs. Clifford Gillespie, Grafton, Federated Board member and Miss S. Thibeaudeau of Napanee, home economist.

LITTLE THINGS

The highlight of the program was an address by Mrs. Haggerty of Napanee, who stressed the value of "Little Things That Make Life Beautiful." "Many trivial things that cost nothing are invaluable to folk around us in this busy world of commununity is our concern." She went on to cite illustrations in which how older citizens, handicapped and new Canadians can be helped in full life through with cooperation. She also suggested brightening up a dull day by visiting sick and shut-ins. "Give gifts that bring beauty, not only those that are practical. Let us look around us and we will see those things that are in the face. Let us all do all we can to beautify life for others and it will help to make it beautiful for us."

Mrs. G. Swan, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last district annual which was held at Melrose. She also gave the financial report which showed receipts $462.41, expenses $391.07, leaving a balance of $71.41.

Mrs. S. Hazard, Plainfield, reported that the auditors had found the books in order.

Miss Mowers, district president, reported that she had executed an interesting and rewarding year. She visited ten branches in the district and attended the 50th anniversary of Stirling branch, national convention at Ottawa, 50th anniversary of North Hastings district and Eldorado-Bannockburn branch, where she took greetings from Hastings district. Miss Mowers concluded her report with a poem, "Fundamentals," and a few words on "What Makes a Home":

"Home may be near, home may be far,
Anywhere a few hundred miles away."

Mrs. Gillespie, board member, briefed the district directors and a motion that they all be accepted was passed.

REPORTS READ

The reports followed with Mrs. Cecil Hubble reporting on resolutions. One branch used New Year's resolutions as a roll call and one suggested that every branch have a resolution meeting.

Mrs. Earl Ray reported for Agriculture and Canadian Industries. Papers were given on "Vanishing Woodpile," "Farm Life," "4-H Club," and "Process of Cheesemaking." Roll calls were: "Exchange of Bulbs and Slips," "Advantages of Being a Farm Wife," "Do You Know Farm Facts?" "Movies," "Have Off to the Past and Coats Off to the Future" and "A Gardener's Pleasure Knows No Measure."

Mrs. F. Meeks reported for historical research and current events. All branches reported and eight mentioned having Tweedsmuir History Books. Roll calls: "Bring Wedding Picture or Pay" and items for Tweedsmuir history. Mottos, "We Treasure the Past, We Face the Future." Some topics were: "This is Your Life," used at Melrose, was found interesting to new members and brought back memories to others. Compilation of mail and public relations

An invitation was given for the district annual to meet at Tyendinaga east branch in 1959 and it was announced that a "Folk School" will be held at Snow Lake over the Civic Holiday weekend.

She thanked the speakers and all who had contributed to the program, and extended thanks to Miss Mowers and other retiring officers for their untiring efforts in their respective offices.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Following is the list of officers:

Hon. president, Miss Geraldine Mowers, Napanee; president, Mrs. Clifford Reid, Belleville RR 4; first vice-president, Mrs. M. Shorey, Foxboro; second vice-president, Mrs. Samuel Dafoe, Tweed; Federated representatives, Mrs. Roscoe Robson, Halloway; alternate, Mrs. Clarence Marshall, Halloway; district delegate, Mrs. H. Chisholm, Roslin; alternate, Mrs. Ed. Lazier, Corbyville; federation of agriculture, Mrs. Percy Bay, Halloway; auditors, Mrs. S. Hazard and Mrs. C. Marshall, Plainfield.

Standing committees: resolutions, Mrs. Cecil Hubble, Foxboro; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Earl Ray, Halloway; historical research and current events, Mrs. C. Brintnell, Plainfield; home economics and health, Mrs. C. Keebles, RR 2 Belleville; citizenship and education, Mrs. Emma Thompson, Moira; Junior Institute, Mrs. Allen Lott, Halloway.

At the beginning of the afternoon session Mrs. J. Easton graciously welcomed the members and delegates to the district annual. This was replied to by Mrs. Tucker of Tyendinaga east branch.

Mrs. Salmon, of Plainfield branch, conducted an effective memorial service in which she suggested that one remember friends with flowers rather than with sadness.

Mrs. Brennan spoke "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere", and a boxcost of mauve and yellow Iris was dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Arthur Claus.

The roll call was answered by 11 branches. District directors of Carmel, Chapman, Foxboro, Melrose, Mohrs and Quinte each reported on what was, to them, a highlight of the officers' conference held in Guelph in May. Zion Hill exemplified the highlights of the year's board meetings. She brought greetings from Mrs. Rand, of Nova Scotia, president of F. W. I. O. The next national convention is to be held in British Columbia in 1961. There has been an increase in membership in F. W. I. C. of 1,939 and there were close to 700 at Guelph conference.

The Guelph holiday week will be held from August 4 to inquiries, August 7, 8, 9. Branches have until July 7th to enter the Saladmaster competition.

She reported a gratifying response to the appeal for Ceylon Flood Relief Fund and layettes for Arab refugee babies sponsored by Canadian Save the Children.

Mrs. Gillespie referred to the new F.W.I.O. office at 20 Spadina Rd., Toronto, to be part the W.I. Booth played at the plowing match. This will be held in Belmont County in 1958. F.W.I.O. fees will be raised from 10 cents per member, payable in February, 1959.

A motion was passed at the close of the session on community activities and public relations department to be presented with all levels. Instead there is to be a public relations representative who will report all contributions, financial or otherwise and undertake any publicity of W.I. work. The topic of an "essay competition" was announced. "How can I Train My Child to Become a Citizen of Tomorrow World."

Mrs. Gillespie paid tribute to the efficient work which Mrs. Maxwell, provincial treasurer, carries out her duties.

BOUNTIFUL DINNER

The dinner all made their way to the Anglican Church Hall where a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of the Roslin branch. After dinner the ladies enjoyed the fine display of handicraft, including quilts, mitts, articles made of sponge rubber, such as cushion tops, wall plaques and lapel pins, leather work, seed picture, a Tweedsmuir history book, and a book of quilt blocks entered by Plainfield branch.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

CORRECT FORM OF NAME FOR WORKING WIDOW

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband, who was a doctor, passed on a year ago, and now that I must return to having a position, I was very fortunate in being accepted as Head of House in a large girl's college. I have been wondering about the correct form of name to use. As a widow I have always used the form of name I used as a wife; for example, Mrs. Robert Davis, and of course I would like to continue to use this. Would this be correct?
— Reader

Yes, this would be the correct form of name . . . Mrs. Robert Davis . . . for you to use. Unless of course there are special circumstances when you may be asked to sign your informal name with "Mrs." (in parentheses); for example, (Mrs.) Ruth Allen Davis. But, unless this is the regulation, don't use the form Mrs. Ruth Davis.

SISTER'S PLAN TO "PROMOTE" A SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In January, 1957, I served as maid of honor for my sister. Her plans were originally made for a June, 1957 wedding, but because her fiance was called into the service she moved the date ahead. So there was not time enough for me to have a shower for her. However, she did have a large wedding, followed by a large evening reception and dinner. Now her husband is to be discharged in a few months, and they are planning to buy their own home. Would it be correct for me to give her some kind of shower when they move in, so as to help her get the essentials she will need. S.

It isn't considered good taste or good form for a sister to give a shower. Also, since your sister had such a large wedding she doubtless received many wedding presents, and perhaps, jus perhaps, relatives an friends might not relish being asked to give shower gifts too . . . particularly if your idea "to help her get the essentials she will need" appears to them as a too-too-obvious "promotion."

BEST MAN TO PROPOSE FIRST TOAST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I need your help and kind guidance. He is a terribly self-conscious man, and he is soon to be best man at the wedding of his only brother, who is a most gracious person, and anything but self-conscious. Yesterday he told my husband that he must be prepared to propose the toast to the bride and groom. (At the reception there is to be a seated dinner.) Please tell us what is the very simplest way my husband can propose this toast? — Thank-you

Here's the very simplest way: When everyone has been served champagne or whatever-the-drink for the toasts, your husband stands, gets the attention of the guests by holding his glass rather high, and says, "To the Bride and Groom." Or he may be willing to do a bit of home-work practice and say "A standing toast. . . . To the Bride and Groom" and to their happiness always.

BRIDE'S CLOSE FAMILY TO HAVE KEY POSITIONS IN BRIDAL PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father died four years ago. My only brother, 20 years old, my only sister, 16 years old, and I have always lived with our dear mother. Now I am to be married soon, and in tribute to my mother, I would like to have her give me in marriage. Would this be proper? Then what parts could

Handsome Handbag

By ALICE ALDEN

Time was when a handbag from abroad was treasured over any home-grown variety. Nowadays, we find visitors here from all over the world admiring and buying our beautiful American handbags. The bag pictured helps explain this trend. It is richly fanciful, yet eminently practical. Crystal clear vinyl twenties headband.

I have my brother-in-law and my fiance are devoted friends and sister take in my wedding. My mother thinks my 16-year-old sister could be a junior bridesmaid, but that she is too young to be my maid of honor, which I would like to have her be. She is tall, attractive, and very poised for her age. What do you advise? B. F. L.

I'd like to have you make this a close family group in your wedding, as it has been in your way-of-living. I suggest you have your brother escort you up the aisle, and then have your mother, from her place in the first pew on the left of the aisle, give you in marriage. (This is proper, if approved by the minister of your church, whom of course you must consult about this plan.) Then do have your 16-year-old sister, your only sister, be your maid of honor. . . She is old enough, and apparently has sufficient poise for this responsibility. My salutations to you and that fine and closely-knit family of yours.

Starters On A Low Budget Summer

by Mary-Moore

If I stray from the straight and narrow path of cooking on a low budget this summer don't write reminding me. I'm well aware that there will be times when I will run off on a tasty tangent and spend income or money on gourmet food but they will be rare.

I have resolved to see how little I can spend and yet produce food worthy of the best French chefs.

On Thursday I leaned over the frozen fish counter and nearly froze my fingers examining almost every package. I came up with a 1-lb. package of sole fillets that cost me 45c. I could have had ocean perch and haddock and smoked kippers in the same price range.

SOLE FILLETS MARIE

When the sole fillets were defrosted enough to separate I put each one on a piece of foil to fit it and spread them with this sauce: Melt 2 tablespoons butter and gently sauté in it 2 tablespoons each chopped green onion and parsley and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind for 1 or 2 minutes. Stir in 2 tablespoons flour until flour browns slightly. Stir in 1 cup milk until thick. Season with salt and pepper. Spread evenly on the fish fillets and broil under very hot broiler about 8 minutes. Time depends on thickness of fillets. The fish should be opaque and moist, the sauce should be bubbly and tinged with golden brown flecks and spots. Serve piping hot with Frenched green beans and oven French fries.

My next economical venture with no sacrifice to flavor involved ground beef. I served this to three of my home economist friends asking for their frank criticism and it was all approving.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Consomme; Cheese Souffle; Potato Pancakes; Casserole of Tomatoes and Buttered Bread Cubes; Apple Tapioca with Mocha Hard Sauce; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Roast Leg of Lamb (with sugar, flour, salt, pepper rubbed on surface—see Tuesday); Mint Jelly; New Green Peas; Sliced Beets in Lemon Butter; Sliced Cucumber and Tomato Salad; Angel Cake with Chocolate Glaze (see Wednesday); Coffee.

BROILED BEEF CAKES

With Mock Bearnaise: To 1½ lbs. ground shoulder beef I added 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, 1-4 teaspoon each dry mustard and onion powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 slice whole wheat bread soaked in 1-2 cup hot water and 1 egg. This I mixed then shaped into 4 cakes 1 1-4 inches thick and placed each on a little round of foil and broiled them under a very hot broiler until brown — about 5 minutes. I turned them over and on top spread Mock Bearnaise Sauce: 1 1-2 tablespoons each margarine and flour blended over heat. Stir in 2-3 cup hot water until thick. Add 1 teaspoon each grated onion or juice, chopped parsley and tarragon (if available), and 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon vinegar. Spread neatly on turned over beef cakes and return to broiler until sauce is golden brown and bubbly. Meat cakes should be pink and moist inside. Serve at once on hot platter inside border of mashed potato pyramids and whole new glazed carrots. Total cost was less than $1.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Marvin F. — We should report Dick's running away to the police.

Theresa F. — But he's a good boy.

Marvin F. — Our son, Dick, is 12 years old and a very big problem to us. I believe he is somewhat retarded but my wife denies this.

During the past year Dick has run away from home several times. He never runs very far and has always come back by himself, but he has managed to give us a good scare.

I've told him and told my wife that the next time he runs away I'm going to report it to the police immediately. I think the juvenile authorities should deal with him. For his own sake, I'm afraid to coddle him.

My wife says it would be wrong to get Dick into trouble with the police, but I say she'll realize how foolish she's been when the boy commits a real crime of the kind that makes headlines.

Theresa F. — I just hate it when Marvin always keeps bringing up the police and the law in connection with Dick. Why does he do that? Dick has never hurt anybody and I don't believe he ever would hurt a fly.

I feel if we ever reported Dick's running away to the police, he would be taken into custody and put among real tough boys. Dick isn't like that. He's a quiet boy and he only runs away when he is having lots of trouble with his schoolwork.

Dick's teachers say he doesn't pay enough attention to his schoolwork and he can do average work. I try to see that he does his homework, but he is very sloppy about it. He doesn't read as well as his younger brother and I guess that upsets him.

The Council: Juvenile authorities report that most runaways are doing poorly in school. It is their mental abilities are either average or above average. If Dick's teachers say he can do average work, it means certain emotional problems are standing in the way of his learning. He evidently runs away because he cannot stand the challenge of examinations and the disgrace of failure.

Marvin is doing Dick a great injustice when he adds to the child's burden with his threats of police action and his dire warnings of crimes Dick could commit.

The boy's disappearance should be reported to the police for his own safety, but Dick should not be forced to look on this as a form of punishment.

He should not be taught to fear the police when he has committed no crime. He would not be put in touch with "tough boys."

Running away from home is not an offence. It is merely an act of cowardice or a desperate plea for love. The child who does this frequently is suffering very much and needs plenty of help and understanding.

He needs to believe his parents think well of him. He needs to feel he is something among his family and friends.

Praise, affection and encouragement are not coddling and these parents should not be afraid to give Dick plenty of the kind of attention. They should help him develop skills and hobbies and encourage him to be an active, social boy.

Marvin and Theresa may feel that they want further help with the boy and should ask the school authorities for a recommendation to a psychologist or clinic which deals with such problems.

Opportunity, Coffee Shops Present W.H.A. With $2800

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held Tuesday afternoon in the Mary Ritchie Memorial Nurses Residence, and was well attended.

Mrs. W. Finkle, president was in the chair and conducted the business session which was filled with interesting periods of discussion. Among the various items approved by the members were the following: the purchase of microscopes for the School of Nursing; ten wheelchairs for the use of the hospital; $150. to the Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi for the maintenance of the Samaritan Cupboard and $50. as a fund for the purchase of reading material for children in the waiting rooms of the hospital.

$2,000 CHEQUE PRESENTED

The highlight of the meeting came with the presentation of cheques from the two outstanding projects of the Auxiliary, namely the Opportunity Shop, and the Coffee Shop.

Mrs. F. Beeby in giving the report of the Opportunity Shop, praised her staff for the untiring efforts that they put into the operation of the shop thus making it possible for her to turn over to the president the sizeable cheque of $2,000, representing the money earned by the shop from January of this year to date.

Miss N. Merry, in reporting for the Coffee Shop, gave an encouraging report on this project, drawing to the attention of the members the necessity of installing and maintaining expensive equipment in the shop, thus making it a little more difficult to be able to show as great a profit as the Opportunity Shop.

In calling on Miss I. Dickens to make the presentation of the cheque from the Coffee Shop to the president she expressed her appreciation to the members of the Auxiliary for their support and efforts on behalf of the shop. It is filling a need within the hospital. The cheque for $800. was duly accepted and grateful thanks extended.

Mrs. W. Finkle introduced Mr. G. E. Gordon, district supervisor of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, who showed a film on Ontario's new Hospital Care Insurance Plan.

At the conclusion of the film, Mr. Gordon graciously conducted a question and answer period at which time he answered questions put to him on the forthcoming plan.

After extending the thanks of the Auxiliary to Mr. Gordon for giving of his time to acquaint the Auxiliary of the proposed plan, Mrs. Finkle invited the members to spend a social chat over a cup of coffee.

Women's Activities

ST. MARK'S W. A.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Lutheran church met on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Ann Work, Middleton Park, Trenton. This being the last meeting of the season, "A Christian Vacation" was the devotional theme.

Irene Rolufe read the Scripture selection.

A short reading by Lillian Stunge, "The Galloping Goose", told of the businessman, who found it necessary to make a most uncomfortable train trip. The only passenger on this appointedly named train, he found himself unable to read, write or sleep. Bored and wretched, he sought company. The companion he found was one he need not to have looked for. His presence in eternal. Finding the conductor with his rosary, enjoying the company of God, he returned to his seat to relax and enjoy the one companion who was waiting for him there.

"The Long View" was the devotional story read in part by Mrs. Rolufe and Mrs. Sully.

Mrs. Wodzack welcomed two new members, Mrs. Sully and Mrs. Norvett.

A unanimous vote gave the present officers a second term beginning in September; president — Mrs. Max Wodzack; vice-president — Mrs. Irene Rolufe; secretary — Mrs. Lillian Bunge; treasurer — Mrs. Heidi Calbury; recording secretary — Mrs. Gladys Willman.

The hostess, Mrs. Work, assisted by her two daughters, Barbara and Sheryll, served lunch.

Bride-to-Be Honored by Trousseau Tea

A most charming trousseau tea was held recently at the spacious home of Mrs. N. F. Tonkin, 184 Albert Street, in honor of her daughter,— Miss Sylvia Jean Tonkin, whose approaching marriage to Mr. Garnet F. Sills, of Buckingham, Quebec, takes place on Saturday.

The home was beautifully decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums and roses in the hall and lower rooms, while dark blue and light blue iris mingled with fragrant orange blossoms adorned the rooms where the wedding gifts and trousseau were on display, the latter in charge of four friends of the bride-to-be.

Receiving the guests were the bride's mother, Mrs. N. F. Tonkin; the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. G. F. Sills, of Corbyville, and the bride-elect, Miss Sylvia Jean Tonkin.

The tea table, appointed with lace cutwork, lace-edged banquet cloth was centred by a delightful creation of pink and white Shasta "mums, and asparagus fern, while silver services added their gleaming complement.

Those who presided at the services were: Mrs. N. McNish, Mrs. W. Fetles, Mrs. A. Green, Mrs. J. Breckinridge, Mrs. R. Feather and Mrs. A. Gilroy, while the refreshments were served by eight friends of the bride-to-be.

The guests were listed in the guest book at the foot of the dividing stairs, while Miss Shirley Boyd, Miss M. Walkom, Miss Beth Wilbur and Miss Meffeth Bristol displayed the wedding gifts.

Cannifton Hall Is Scene Of Rose Tea

Yesterday afternoon a pretty "Rose Tea" was held in Cannifton town hall under the auspices of the Cannifton-Corbyville Women's Institute with a color scheme of pink and white being used throughout. From the central light pink and white streamers cascaded to fish pool surrounded by a rock garden and flowers.

Mrs. D. Windsor, president of the Institute, assisted by Mrs. W. Latchford, tea convener, and Mrs. C. Ellsworth, decorating convener, received the guests. Mrs. P. Meale, the door tickets.

The tea table, with its pretty, Scotch lace cloth, was daintily arranged with a centrepiece of red roses and fern, flanked by silver candelabra holding pink and white candles, and at either end, the lovely, silver services, at which Mrs. T. Leslie and Mrs. F. Windsor; Mrs. C. Matthews and Mrs. A. Demille and Mrs W. Latchford, presided.

Those who served included: the Misses B. Boyd, C. Fraser, W. McPherson, and C. Bird; while replenishing were, Mesdames A. Palmer; B. Fraser; A. Eves; H. Boyd; E. Stewart and C. Ellsworth.

A fish pond to which the feet of little folk gladly went was in charge of Mrs. G. Poste, assisted by Mrs. R. Stewart.

INVITING CANDY TABLE

The candy table, with its inviting hanging candy cane and pink and white streamers, laden with creams, chocolate fudge, divinity, and other sweetmeats, was convened by Mrs. E. DeMille, assisted by Mrs. G. McPherson. The candy draw was in charge of Mrs. H. Empson, and Mrs. Peter Roach.

The homecooking table, as usual, a drawing card with its angel food cakes, muffins, buns, homemade bread, always so good, tarts and numerous pies, was convened by Mrs. W. Lawson, assisted by Mrs. G. Shorey, and Mrs. F. Holgate. This table was especially ornate and attractive with its green and white canopy, rose-trimmed

The angel food cake was won by Mrs. Countryman.

Another spot of attraction was the lovely doll and her wardrobe, in charge of Mrs. G. Hamilton, and Mrs. L. Urch. Mrs. Charles Dickens was the happy possessor of the winning ticket.

For those who like to look into the future, Mrs. J Latchford was the soothsayer to satisfy this yearning, and many were the smiles provoked by her ingenious remarks.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. V. Hamilton; Mrs. Osbourne and Mrs. K. Hodgson.

A dainty rose tea, most successfully culminated.

Court Sharron Ladies Hold Lilac Dance

A Lilac Dance, sponsored by the ladies of Court Sharron, L. 1932 of the Canadian Order of Foresters, was held recently at Tobe's County Gardens with a large crowd in attendance.

All types of round dancing were enjoyed to the smooth music of the Monarchs' Orchestra.

As an added attraction, several old time squares were performed, with Cam Bunnett doing a superb job of calling, while Art Sweet kept the dancers on the hop with his violin.

Between dances, special entertainment of a high calibre was provided by Miss Gail Juby, of Shannonville. Although Gail is classed as an amateur, her singing and dancing were comparable to many professionals. Everyone enjoyed her performance and look forward to seeing her again soon.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the event by Bros. Ross Sweet and Russ Ruttan.

Club Activities

KUM-DOUBLE CLUB

The Halloway Kum - Double Club met recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider for the final meeting of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth were in charge of the worship service, taking as their theme, "In Things Our Own Hand."

Mrs. John Robson read the Scripture, and Mrs. Roscoe Robson, the meditation.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider took charge of the business period, in which the Club members decided to take a trip to Silver Lake during the summer to see the "Water Show", and enjoy a get together.

Tentative plans were also made for a family picnic to be held at the Outlet.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

GOVERNMENT WILL INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF B.C. BRIDGE COLLAPSE

Domestic Package Freight Rates Lower Than Foreign Is Seaway Recommendation

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed shipping tolls for the St. Lawrence Seaway recommend a lower rate for domestic than for foreign package freight.

First reaction to the recommendations, tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Transport Minister Hees, was favorable. Liionel Chevrier, Liberal Commons member for Mont Laurier and a former Seaway Authority president, told the Commons they seem attractive.

Mr. Hees said they would cut at least four cents a bushel from the cost of shipping wheat from the Lakehead to Montreal. Savings on other commodities including iron ore would be substantial.

The rate suggestions come from the toll committees of the Canadian Seaway Authority and the U.S. Seaway Development Corporation. They must be approved by the two seaway agencies and the governments of the two countries.

Under them, package freight between Canadian points and between U.S. points would get the same rate as bulk cargo. This is less than half the general cargo.

The Canadian committee said the cut rate is needed to enable water - born package freight to compete with rail and truck carriers operating parallel routes.

W. J. Bennett, general manager of the Canadian Shipowners' Association, said the association, an organization of deepsea vessel operators, finds the methods of setting and the tolls "eminently suitable." At Chicago, a spokesman for the U.S. Lake Shippers' Association termed the tolls reasonable.

The spokesman said the proposed tolls "are more expensive or more punitive than we expected."

If any protests were voiced he expected them to be merely routine.

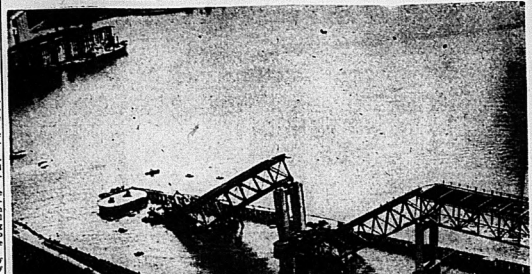
However, at Toronto, the Dominion Marine Association said Wednesday it is completely opposed to the tolls.

John Mahoney, manager of the Marine Association which represents 90 per cent of Canadian ship - owners, said the annual carrying charges are a "killing amount" because to ask ships to pay it "would probably kill the trade."

The association has repeatedly urged that the government stop carrying charges and make the seaway a toll-free passage.

Mr. Mahoney said the toll structure "is going to be very high for such commodities as iron ore and coal.

"The immediate effect will be to discourage transport of these commodities such as coal and iron ore. It's very important to the handling charges, as on Canada's Great Lakes waterways now, be added.



A government investigation is being conducted into the collapse of Vancouver's Second Narrows bridge which caused the deaths of 18 workmen. The collapse came without warning when a projecting span plunged into the water, taking the men to their deaths and causing the second span to collapse. Survivors say it was a miracle more were not killed or drowned.

Trial Postponed

CORNWALL (CP) — The trial of three Toronto area men charged with $42,930 bond robbery from a bank at South Mountain, 35 miles northwest of here, was postponed Wednesday for the second time.

One of the men, William Burton Glover, 24, was reported to have undergone an emergency appendectomy in Toronto and prevented him from being in court. He is out on $10,000 bail.

Judge G. E. Brennan adjourned the case until Sept. 15.

Ralph William Parks, 31, and Thomas Blake were also charged with the Jan. 29 robbery. Parks is out on bail while Blake is in custody.

Says Cancer Chiefly Due to Aging And Eventually Becomes Inevitable

HONEY HARBOUR, Ont. (CP) — As Australian scientist today described cancer as "predominantly a disease of the old" and minimized the chances of its control through biochemical research.

Sir MacFarlane Burnett of Melbourne told the Canadian cancer research conference he believes cancer is a matter of changes in the cells in the human body and rarely due to exterior influences.

The chances of these cell changes "must steadily increase" with age and cancer eventually "becomes inevitable."

He said "this feature of body organization probably represents the greatest obstacle to the realization of dreams for the indefinite extension of human life span."

Sir Macfarlane, an authority on viruses and immunity who has entered cancer research, was speaking to a group of scientists who have spent four days largely discussing cancer as a result of biochemical influences or virus action.

Dr. Sarah Stewart of Bethesda, Md., had shown the conference the previous day how she was able to induce many types of cancer in mice by inoculating them with virus from mice suffering from leukemia.

Sir Macfarlane expressed doubt her work would ever be applied to a human cancer, saying that the only type of human cancer which might be induced by virus is acute leukemia in children.

At a press conference later, Sir MacFarlane said he is "optimistic" that humanity eventually will reduce to a minimum the exterior influences that may cause cancer.

His advice: Clean up air pollution, stop smoking, avoid causes of chronic irritation and see a good doctor if you have anything that looks like cancer. He said he gave up smoking after the deaths through lung cancer of five associates.

Effort to Bring Party Brass Closer to Grass Roots Seen For Liberals in Latest Move

OTTAWA (CP) — Duncan K. MacTavish, 58-year - old Ottawa lawyer, has resigned as president of the National Liberal Federation.

A reference in the federation's announcement Wednesday to its "period of transition" gave rise to speculation that this might herald a move by the party brass closer to the grass roots.

George Marler, former Liberal transport minister who lost his Montreal Mount Royal Commons seat in the March 31 election, has been mentioned as a possible successor to Mr. MacTavish.

The statement said Mr. MacTavish has been asked to continue the duties "during the period of transition in which the federation now is engaged."

An official later said no successor can be chosen until the 300-member advisory council of the party meets. No date had been set for this meeting.

The possibility was seen that the party, under its leader of scarcely six months, Lester B. Pearson, plans to follow proposals made at its January leadership convention here.

Conference delegates demanded that, whenever possible, the federation presidency be rotated among the provinces. Mr. MacTavish has been federation president for six years.

They also urged that a national policy conference be held every four years and, where possible, in a different province each time.

These twin proposals, were incorporated in a report on party organization passed by the convention.

Mr. MacTavish began his active participation in political activities in 1930 when he campaigned on behalf of former prime minister Mackenzie King.

He became the first president of the 20th Century Liberal Association, a national body of young Liberals, in 1936. He has been active in Liberal campaigns since 1920.

Britain, U.S. Have Radar Amplifier Which May Be Able to Track ICMB

HAMILTON (CP) — Physicists have developed a new tool which soon be able to track intercontinental missiles and pry behind the curtain of outer space at distances two or three times farther than the giant telescope on Mount Palomar in California.

British and United States scientists at the final symposium of the Canadian Association of Physicists said Wednesday they put the radar device into operation only one jump ahead of the Russians.

A British scientist told the meeting Britain has used the device — a microwave amplifier, called Maser, which cuts down on interfering noise — part of her radar system and has tracked a plane 1,000 miles distant. It is understood the U.S. put the system into operation recently.

Taking part in the symposium were Dr. Eric Schulz-Dubois, Bell Telephone Laboratories; Dr. M. W. P. Strandberg, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston; Dr. Robert Kingston, Naval Research Council, Ottawa; and Dr. Robert Kingston, United Laboratories, Lexington, Mass., the research establishment operated by MIT for the U.S. Air Force.

The unique quality of the amplifier is the reduction of the noise factor in signal reception. It enables a radar, system to pick up weaker signals at greater distance.

Papers presented dealt only with research progress on Maser, much of which is being done at Lincoln Laboratories.

Canada's Oldest City Ready For Celebrations Marking 350th Founding Anniversary

QUEBEC (CP)—Canada's oldest city, decked out with flags and decorations, is ready for celebrations marking its 350th anniversary.

Ceremonies and festivities in the proud capital of Canada's predominantly French - language province get under way June 23 and will continue for two weeks with the high points on July 3.

On that date, in 1608, a French geographer, named Samuel de Champlain and 28 men stepped out of a barque here on the rocky shore beneath the 181-foot bluff of sheer rock called Cape Diamond.

OPEN-AIR MASS

On July 3, canon will roar a salute from the Britis - built citadel overlooking the St. Lawrence River. Thousands are expected to gather at Place d'Armes near the Champlain monument to attend a pontifical high mass.

The service will be followed by a banquet after which a big parade, complete with floats and uniformed bands, will be held. At night, fireworks displays are scheduled for the Plains o' Abraham and for the heights of Levis on the opposite shore of the St. Lawrence.

Streets will be open to street dancing and merry-making.

In 1608, Champlain and his men set about building a settlement— a combination fort and home surrounded by a @tch. From this, the white man's first permanent foothold on a territory more vast than the explorer imagined, Quebec and New France grew.

Commemoration of the city's founding is being marked by the issue of a special Canadian stamp. French, British and United States navy vessels are scheduled to make calls for the occasion, neighboring New Brunswick is sending two choirs of Acadian singers, and dignitaries from many countries are planning to attend feremonies.

GOVERNMENT AID

The Quebec government is giving $150,000 to help defray costs of the celebrations.

Quebec City, famous as a tourist city, is bracing itself to welcome the largest number of visitors ever.

Many cloistered religious institutions—some almost as ancient as the city itself—are throwing their doors open to visitors by permission of Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Archbishop of Quebec, and for thousands there will be an opportunity to see relics of Canadian history until now known by relatively few people.

The most impressive of these institutions is the Ursulines monastery in the heart of the city's twisting and winding old square-mile area. There tourists will walk on the well-worn stone floor on which centuries ago the first Jesuit missionaries stepped, and on which in 1759 French and English wounded were laid side by side following the battle of the Plains of Abraham.

A banquet for 2,000 guests will be held June 21, opening day of the festivities.

On June 23, on the eve of the feast of St. John the Baptist, patron saint of French Canadians, Archbishop Roy will light a huge bonfire on the Plains of Abraham. Bonfires are traditional in hundreds of Quebec villages on the eve of the saint's day and the lighting of the Quebec bonfire this year will be the signal for other places to light their own.

Some of the parades planned promise to be the largest ever staged here. Another colorful note will be demonstrations by Indian tribes.

Family traditions are sacred in the province and one event has been planned to honor descendants of pioneer families who to this day work the ancient farms.

With Louis Jolliet, the explorer of the Mississippi, Champlain is probably the best-known figure in Quebec's history.

He explored as far west as the Great Lakes and south through what are today the New England states and part of New York state. Lake Champlain was named after him.

Champlain made his first visit to the Gulf of St. Lawrence in 1603. In 1604 he accompanied Monts' expedition to Acadia. The following year a settlement was attempted at Port Royal, now Annapolis Royal, N.S. It failed when fur trading proved inadequate to finance the cost of the venture.

Seek Channel From Sorel, Que. To N.Y. City

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker is reported to have promised to call Ogdensburg-bound Premier Frost of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec to a meeting here Thursday to discuss the proposed deep waterway from Sorel, Que., to New York City.

Such a proposal was placed before the prime minister and his cabinet by a delegation of 150 business and municipal leaders from the Richelieu River-Lake Champlain area, including some 30 mayors of communities in Quebec's Richelieu Valley.

Mayor C. Robert Fiset of Sorel, who headed the delegation, said the prime minister promised to make a personal survey of the river this summer by taking a cruise on it. Federal funds would be required if the project were undertaken.

Eighteen civic officials from Vermont and New York also attended the meeting. The American group was headed by Roy R. Kennedy, of Ticonderoga, N.Y., executive director for the Lake Champlain 350th Anniversary Festival Committee.

John Ross of Rouses Point, N.Y., said the delegation "had a very excellent reception."

Escape of Sea Lion Has PUC Men Buffaloed

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The London Public Utilities Commission office was thrown into a dither today by the escape of one of the sea lions from fairyland in Springbank Park.

No one knows how it got out. There it was, nor how to get it back. It was one of a pair, worth $250 each, which arrived Tuesday.

"If we don't hear from it in the next hour," said General Manager V. A. McKillop, "I am going to phone California and ask for instructions on how to flush sea lions."

Workmen of the PUC are hunting along the Thames River.

London Busmen Vote to Continue Thier Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—London's 50,000 bus workers have decided to continue their 44-day strike.

After four days of voting at 112 garages, the final count was 60 in favor of continuing the strike, 52 against.

The strike for higher wages began May 4, taking 8,400 buses off the roads and forcing an average of 8,000,000 passengers a day to find other transportation.

Dubiec leaders Friday night urged the strikers to accept a management peace proposal. With the decisions of their garages expressed, district delegates Tuesday night agreed the strike would continue.

SOUGHT $2.30 HOURLY

The busmen originally sought a 25-shilling ($3.50) raise on seven ages the weekly salaries of about $28. They later reduced this demand by $1a 6d ($1.68).

An arbitration board proposed $1 1s ($1.18) 36,000 central London workers but no increase for 14,000 on outer London routes. The union then asked for 6s 6d (90 cents) for all 50,000 but the company rejected this.

The publicly-owned bus system's latest offer, made last Friday, promised a review of outer London workers' wages to begin a day before the strikers returned to work.

Meanwhile, more than 7,000 dockers workers—a quarter of London's stevedores—were still on strike today, leaving 63 ships idle and five undermanned.

Labor Minister Iain Macleod is setting up a committee to investigate a nine-week-old dispute at the wholesale meat market that touched off the dock strike.

Dosco Reduces Work Schedule

MONTREAL (CP) — The Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation announced Tuesday it has been forced by market conditions to reduce its work schedule for the coming several months.

The production cutbacks will affect about 10,000 Nova Scotia miners.

Sufficient markets have not been found for Dosco's surplus production. A company spokesman said the 1,400,000 tons of coal now stored above ground in Nova Scotia is by far the largest stockpile in Dosco's history.

A company statement said:

"It is regretted that the colliers will probably have to be on short time for the next several months but normal operations will be resumed as soon as possible."

Rainmaker Waits Confidently For Rain That Never Comes

Alongside was his universscope, the instrument which he feels broke the drought of the 1930s, brought life-giving rains in 1948, and through no fault of its own provoked the winds and hailstorms of last year.

This spring was a season to put Mr. Johnston and universscope fans to a real test. Through April and most of May, rainfall in the Regina area was only .73 inches compared with a normal 1.65. High winds filled ditches with topsoil. Then rain came.

PERSONAL EFFORT

Johnston is not the only one who wants to head off the return of drought periods. Near North Battleford, a group headed by W. S. Langley of Speers, Sask., organized the River Bend Rain Increase Co - operative Association. It hoped to persuade farmers from five municipalities to hire a rain - inducing firm for about $1 an acre, to be included with municipal tax collections. The farmers rejected the idea.

Such organized venters have nothing to do with the lone-wolf efforts of Donald Johnston.

Mr. Langley says Mr. Johnston is a witch-doctor who is destroying public confidence in scientific manufacturers of rain. Mr. Johnston points to heavy rains in 1942 and 1948 which followed operations of his machine.

The universcope he completed in 1937 is a simple device. It consists of two mirrors, one fixed, the other swinging freely and weighted so that it keeps moving like a pendulum sometimes for hours. This machine, says Johnston, "produces a magnetic-electric - gravitational pull on the moon as a medium to draw air currents, rain clouds, and rain from the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico."

FAVORED AREAS

This summer, Johnston may go to Medicine Hat or Swift Current, where, he says, he has the most success. It was near Swift Current in 1937 that he claims to have ended the 12 - year prairie drought. He didn't end it before, he says, because there was little interest in the universcope before 1937 and 1942. Whether because of his efforts or not, rain drenched the prairies in 1942, continuing so late in the year that it prevented harvesting of some Saskatchewan crops.

The universcope gives best results in Saskatchewan. It is operated in the southwest corner of the province or in southern Alberta, Johnston says. If he puts it to work in Regina, the rain like Macbeth's ambition, evidently shoots its mark and lands in Manitoba.

A bachelor who says he is "somewhere around 40," Johnston lives with his parents in a frame house. His soft voice still shows a trace of his native Lancashire. His enthusiasm for rain making started more than 20 years ago.

He will set up his machine in an open field for the benefit of reporters, although he feels it works just as well beside an open window. But he feels that publicity and rain-making don't go well together. On a trip to Victoria a few years back, he rented a cherry orchard he wanted rain and the loganberry man didn't want rain — and the baseball club said they'd sue if there was rain."

He also dislikes sunspots, which he says, because they reduce the amount of rain that falls.

you'll like the ride on modern concrete

The course pointed surface of this new concrete pavement on Highway 401 of the Department of Highways of Ontario near Belle River, Ont., provides skid resistance, even when wet.

concrete pavement combines safety with a smooth quiet ride

quiet ride

Modern concrete provides an amazingly smooth, quiet ride. Through a new technique, concrete is now laid as continuous ribbons. Very few construction joints are thus left to cause the familiar thump-thump—only a blank only ¾" thick. Now you can drive for hours without knowing there is a joint. Ask for concrete the next time.

Many Canadians are now enjoying the quiet, no-bump ride made possible by a new technique which lays highways in smooth ribbons of durable, skid-resisting concrete.

Modern highway planning calls for concrete, because only concrete will take the hammer of heavy traffic year after year, with minimum maintenance.

The first step towards modern highway and street construction is to specify Canada Cement—a Canadian product made by a Canadian company. With an annual production capacity of 96 million bags in nine strategically located plants, Canada Cement can immediately supply cement for new paving. Canada Cement also offers expert advice and literature service covering every phase of concrete construction and design. This free service is available through any of the offices listed below.

Protectionistic Tone Seen In Finance Minister's Budget

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Finance Minister Fleming's full budget may bear greatest significance in its snowballing impact on the economy.

Its tone is protectionistic. Its attitude is one of making the safety of home industry the government's first consideration. It appears to throttle some of the spirit of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and chant a requiem for Britain's proposed free trade with Canada.

This mood may be heartening to Canadian manufacturers, particularly those who face ever-increasing competition from a host of foreign producers in the Canadian market. In a world of economic recession, competition tends to become more intense and vicious.

CONSUMER MAY PAY

The policy outlined by Mr. Fleming of hardening Canada's anti-dumping laws may eventually lead to an expansion of home industry and the creation of more jobs for a swelling labor force.

But it also may lead to higher consumer prices and perhaps a new spiral of inflation as workers strive to seek more pay to meet higher living costs.

Mr. Fleming warned in his budget that Canada was becoming a high-cost economy, tending to price herself out of world markets. But his budget does nothing to reduce those costs.

The chief problem facing any government bent on increasing protection for home industry is the bitterness among foreign competitors that may result.

Mr. Fleming has boosted the tariff on wool cloth coming from Britain and says he plans to raise it on imports from Italy and other countries. He has increased protection for Canadian steel producers as well as parts of the zinc and pipe and tube industries.

He intends to renegotiate tariffs on fresh fruits and vegetables with the United States and has asked the tariff board to recommend whether the rates should be changed on rubber footwear coming mainly from Hong Kong, Japan and other Asian outlets.

The board is to be kept busy just as the tariff commission is kept busy in the U.S. Before the Canadian board are studies into textiles. After that will come possible revisions in rates on chemicals, radio and television sets and other products.

OLD POLICY REVIVED

But by far the most significant move in the Progressive Conservative plan to demand that all products coming into Canada bear a price that covers not only production costs but also profit.

It will not matter if a manufacturer decides to get rid of his production at a loss in his home market and at the same price in Canada too. He will have to up the price in Canada or face federal dumping duties.

This policy was imposed by the previous Conservative government in 1930-35. The victorious Liberals shelved it in 1936. It was eliminated altogether in 1948 when GATT, the instrument of free world trade was developed.

It now seems the Progressive Conservatives don't hold too much faith in prospects for freer world trade, though they have stated they will stand by Canada's agreements.

Should Destroy Potato Plants

TORONTO — Potato plants growing from piles of culls dumped from a storage, discarded seed potatoes, and even old potatoes and peelings thrown out by the housewife are a common source of late blight infection, states Professor C. B. Kelly, Botany Department, Ontario Agricultural College.

In Ontario the late blight fungus overwinters in potato tubers. It does not survive in the dead tops, as does the early-blight fungus, and it does not survive in the soil or in tubers killed by freezing temperatures.

The late blight fungus grows up into the stems and leaves that develop from blighted tubers. Spores produced there are carried away by wind. If they land on wet potato or tomato leaves they will germinate, and the fungus invades the leaves, causing a late blight infection. Spores produced on these blighted leaves cause infections on still other plants.

If the "volunteer" potato plants on piles are killed, this important source of late blight spores can be eliminated. Potato and tomato growers should search for such sources of infection, and eradicate the plants before spread can occur, says the O.A.C. authority.

The plants may be killed with a potato top killer, a sodium chlorate soap, weed killer or heavy applications of Cyanamid. In municipal dumps they may be covered deeply with rubbish or burned. A second check should be made and further treatment applied if necessary.

As a prelude to this circus performance, a gloriously en-chanting and stupendous spectacle entitled "La Fiesta," a gorgeous pageant, is unfolded. To those who love fairy lore, it far exceeds in magnificence brilliancy, gorgeousness and beauty the glories of any spectacle yet staged by this circus.

There will be dancing girls, great companies of trained singers, orchestras of vast size, grand golden-toned organs and the crash of cymbals. Yet this colossal production which daily amazes thousands, is but one feature of the Clyde Beatty Circus.

The El Rey Sisters, aerialists, who work high up in the dome of the "big top" come from South America to amaze and thrill you. The dancing, somersaulting, tumbling wiz-wizard Jean Antillano, the Flying Victors, aerialists champions of Argentina and the famous Senzo family of equilibrists, Circus Queen of Foot Jugglers, Chico Yale, Boyo Ward, Steve Milhoe, and Frank Yale will furnish the real little folks, Alexander Kovacs' troupe of talented performing dogs, also Josephine Bernard, Suzanne Augustin queen of the high wire and Miss Zweibel who will shot out of the mouth of a huge cannon the full length of the big top.

Oakville Oaks have signed their first United States import and he may be all the Oaks need to take the Senior Intercounty Baseball pennant.

He is Larry Mathias, former baseball captain of the University of Bucknell, Lewisburg, Pa., he made his Oakville debut Wednesday night as the Oaks trounced Hamilton Beavers 6-2 to climb back into a first - place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Oakville was the only Intercounty team not to sign imports last season and their all-Canadian lineup was good enough for second spot in the pennant race and the league finals.

Mathias demonstrated he is a valuable acquisition, getting on base in each of four trips to the plate and helping rookie pitcher Ian Shepherd to his third win.

In other action three Galt Terriers errors in the 10th inning allowed London Majors to push across two runs and break up a pitching duel between Jim Attrill and Pat Presley.

Veteran Guelph Merchant right hander John Clark allowed just six hits to post his third win, a 11-3 triumph over Lord Legionnaires. The Legionnaires' inept defence committed seven miscues.

Minor Baseball

Bobby Boyle of the Giants pitched a no-hitter in the peewee section of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association last night as the Giants whipped the Red Sox 26-1. The game was called after four innings.

Boyle fanned 12 batters to account for all his team's putouts. Giants scored in every frame with 18 runs crossing the plate in the second. Red Sox got their lone tally in the third.

The Tigers edged the Yankees 4-3 in another Belleville Minor circuit game on a run in the bottom of the last inning.

Yankee pitcher Rutherford scored a one-hitter but nine errors and seven walks gave the Tigers the victory. Rutherford struck out ten and had two of his team's hits. Hannah also had two safeties.

Gordon hit the winning hurler, touched for five hits. He fanned four.

Won't Pose for Cheesecake, She Still Gets Sexy Roles

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a girl who is a fairly proper Bostonian, Lee Remick has gotten herself into a pretty sexy role.

First came A Face in the Crowd, in which she posed in a bikini and swung a baby's rattle. Then came A Face in the Crowd, in which she posed in a bikini and swung a baby's rattle. Then came A Face in the Crowd, in which she posed in a bikini and swung a baby's rattle.

Now comes Anatomy of a Murder, in which she posed in a bikini and swung a baby's rattle.

Miss Remick is a fine actress, but she's getting a bit weary of being typed as a sex kitten. Her latest picture is Three Brave Men, in which she does not get to play a valiant character like A Face in the Crowd. But it's one of the evening.

"I can't understand how I got into these roles," complained dainty Lee.

The strange part of it is that Lee is a refreshing, wholesome girl who seeks no undue notice because of obvious physical merits.

Sets New Golfathon Mark

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — Sandy Candow set a Canadian golfathon record here Wednesday, passing the 200 holes in 17 hours three minutes.

Candow said he was tired at the end of the 127th hole but a doctor on the spot said his physical condition was good.

Records show the greatest previous number of holes shot in Canada have been 144 in Nanaimo, B.C., in 1954.

Candow said he hadn't planned to beat any mark until reporters had told him of the 1956 record.

He walked more than 30 miles over the 18-hole Humber Meadow course. He hit the ball 619 times. His nine-hole average was in the 40s until the later rounds.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Jones, one of golf's immortals, was named Wednesday by the U.S. Golf Association as captain of the American amateur team which will play in the first international match for the Eisenhower trophy at St. Andrews, Scotland, Oct. 8-11.

The American team for the four-man competition will not be selected until after the U.S. amateur championship at San Francisco, Sept. 8-13.

Some 30 to 40 countries are expected to send four-man teams to the inaugural competition.

Red-Headed Aussie Player Hands American Tennis Jolt

LONDON (AP) — Rod Laver, a 19-year-old Australian with a crop of flamered hair, Wednesday shook American lawn tennis to its roots.

The Brisbane rubber company clerk upset Barry Mackay of Dayton, Ohio, in a second-round match in the Queen's Club tournament. Mackay, seeded eighth in next week's 83rd Wimbledon championships and the only American listed among the favorites, was well beaten 6-4, 6-3 by this freckle - faced Aussie who ranks no higher than eighth at home and who once was United States junior champion.

The upset was a heavy blow at U.S. tennis hopes for 1958. This match had been regarded as a curtain raiser for Mackay's campaign in England, and was supposed to have given an indication of how well he might do against such top - flight Australians as Ashley Cooper, Mal Anderson, Nale Fraser and Mervyn Rose.

The ace-feet-four Mackay dropped his opening service and never was able to get himself untracked.

Mackay led 40-30 in the ninth game but Laver leveled at deuce, took the advantage and then put over the clincher with a fine volley that left Mackay stranded at the net.

Bob Perry of Los Angeles, meanwhile, gave the hard-pressed Americans a shot in the arm by defeating Denmark's Kurt Nielsen, sixth seeded at Wimbledon, 6-4, 3-6, 11-9. The last two sets were played Wednesday after rain halted play Tuesday.

Mackay also got a break in advance of the Wimbledon championships as pairings were made for the tournament starting Monday. He was placed in the third quarter of the draw, where no one is expected to give him trouble before the quarter-finals.

Someone Stole The Bases; No Foolin!

COVENTRY, R. I. (AP)— School superintendent Henry J. Cooper Wednesday banned use of the high school athletic field without a permit because someone stole the bases—for real.

The pitchers' box rubber also was taken for a total loss of $60 in the weekend thefts, Cooper said.

'Fine Feats' Predicted in Empire Games

SASKATOON (CP) — If surroundings have any bearing on performance, then the British Empire Games track and field trials here Friday and Saturday should see some fine feats.

"Very pleasant surroundings," said Gerry Norman, distance runner from Toronto, after working out for half an hour at Griffiths Stadium on the University of Saskatchewan campus. "Add that helps a lot."

The stadium itself, set inside well-trimmed hedges and against the background of the stately trees and buildings of the campus, already is decked with flags and bunting.

Before the competition opens at 2 p.m. EDT, Friday, nearly 160 athletes from seven countries are expected here. After the events conclude Saturday, a 22-member team of the best track and field competitors in Canada will be named to represent the country in the Empire Games at Wales in July.

Bahama Belts Solid Victory Over Gavilan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Young Yama Bahama considered a campaign in the welterweight boxing ranks today after belting out a solid victory over the former king of that division, Kid Gavilan.

Bahama, a 23-year-old former fishing guide from Bimini, took a quick early lead over Gavilan in the fight Wednesday night in the Miami Beach Auditorium and the Cuban Hawk, a slowed-down battler at 32, had nothing with which to stop him.

Judge Eddie Tuil gave Bahama the most one-sided score, 49-36. Referee Jimmy Peebles scored it 48-37 and Judge Sid Winston 39-32 in the unanimous decision. Bahama was a 10-13 winner on the Associated Press card.

Bahama, who has campaigned fairly successfully as a middleweight, said after the fight he might have a go at the welters in view of his easy night against Gavilan.

The victory was Bahama's 13th straight of the year.

He banged Gavilan freely with a hard straight left and often followed with crisp jabs to the head.

Gavilan's one-famous flurries just weren't there. Whenever the Kid tried to launch one, moving in with his slammin' left, Bahama quickly knocked him out of the notion. Only in the sixth round, did Gavilan look good. Then, for a brief moment, his lob punches seemed to confuse Bahama. But Yama quickly got the hang of them.

After lunch we 2.20s and the grass gave $4.252.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A few years ago this city produced a junior softball team that eventually won the first all-Ontario championship in any realm of sport for the old Lady of the Moira. This department travelled with the club on long jaunts to almost everywhere, including Windsor and North Bay.

The yoonkers won the all-provincial title by defeating the kids from the home of the Trappers two straight in the best-of-three series, wrapping the title up in a doubleheader win while snow flurries bothered the outfielders.

Following the victory this department rode with the proud sponsor-manager Don McNevin, and returned with him from North Bay on a record-breaking trip, doing the 370 miles in something under five hours via Algonquin Park.

The other day in this column, while commenting on the fact that the North Bay Trappers were considering applying for entry in the Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League, we mentioned something about "flying" from North Bay on the McNevin trip, but the flight was made in a modern automobile of the times. We did topech down a couple of times going over hill and dale, but it was the greatest hedge-hopping run we ever made.

Commenting on the "flight" in his column, friend Michael J. Rodden got our meaning somewhat misconstrued. El Miguel opined we flew through the air with the greatest of ease instead of in the back seat of an automobile with the greatest of spine tingles.

At the end of the run Pete Green was the color of his name, while "Red" Doran's knees did a rhumba. Ted Batchelor gave up everything he had to get out of the car, while this department did not come down to normal for the next three days. McNevin? Shucks, it didn't mean a thing to this ground-eater. Flying was right.

Taking the word "flying" literally, Mr. Rodden commented as follows:

"With North Bay, the 'Gateway City-of-the-North,' a bit mystified relative to its financially rapped Trappers' plans George H. Carver has heard that the management may apply for admittance to the Eastern League. Mr. Carver adds that 'It's only 370 miles from Belleville to the Bay, as Don McNevin 'flies' it via Algonquin Park, and, brother we should know all about that.'

"In comparison to the trip to Prague, Czechoslovakia, the trek, via air, bus or railroad, to North Bay is just a hop but it could become a bit tiresome if the Kingston, Cornwall and Ottawa-Hull teams each visit Pete Palangio's hang-out half a dozen times. The Belles would, of course, be too concerned because they will be participating in only a part-time schedule and won't have to worry about results.

"Mr. Carver's reference to air travel did not include the costs but sports scribes do, you know, get careless at times with other people's money. In retrenchment club managements in Whitby, Cornwall, Ottawa-Hull and this city might not elect to sear through the air going to or returning from the home of the Trappers and the new domicile of Pete Handley.

"Our Belleville contemporary has also omitted mention of the possibility that the Soo Greyhounds and the Sudbury Wolves would be left in an unenviable plight by the withdrawal of the Trappers. The OHOHA Southern Section appears to have erred in permitting the Pembroke Lumber Kings to go elsewhere and it was also a bit shaken when the Michigan Soo Indians suspended operations."

And don't forget that smash-hit rawlin' bout at Memorial Arena tomorrow night when the big novel attraction will be Paul Bunyan, the 430-pound giant who moves like the Empire State Building in pants. He's quite a guy and should put on quite a show. Periscopes will be permitted. Then, too, for some solid action there are the Lisowski Brothers, no small punkins, who tangle with the popular Yukon Eric and his giant colored partner, Bobo Brazil, he of the kokobonk. Starting off the show on the right foot will be those old feudists, Fred Atkins and Lord Athol Layton. Now what better card could you ask for. Incidentally Old Hotcha Bunny Dunlop has been coaxed from retirement and will make his comeback debut with the Whipper-in Toronto come this evening. Imagine what kind of a house would greet John "Fingers" Katan and Bunny here if the pair could be matched once again. Wow!

Whips Up His Old Fastball To Deal Cards 6-1 Setback; Boston Clips Chisox String

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big Newk whipped up his old fastball, beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 and said: "As far as I'm concerned my record is 1-0."

Actually, Newk — Don Newcombe—has a pitching record of six losses and one victory. He wants to forget about the defeats he suffered with Los Angeles Dodgers before being traded last Sunday to Cincinnati Redlegs.

The veteran righthander Wednesday night shrugged off a first-inning home run by the Cards' Stan Musial and gave up five hits as he gained his first complete-game victory since last Aug. 21. He had the bases loaded when he finally ended the game.

It was a night for good pitching in the National League. Second-place San Francisco defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 in 10 innings on the four-hit pitching of young Ron Kline. Bob Shaw, in relief of veteran Marv Grissom, Rookie Stan Williams gained his second major league victory and shutout with a four-hitter as the Dodgers beat Philadelphia Phils 4-0.

Rain washed out a game between Milwaukee and Chicago Cubs, with the Braves leading 1-0 in the second inning. That cut Milwaukee's lead over San Francisco to two games.

ONCE THIS SEASON

Newcombe, the best pitcher in baseball when he won 27 in 1956 but also the loser only a 12-18 record since, had a three-hitter until the ninth inning, when three singles loaded the bases with one out. He worked out of it by getting pinch-hitter Ivy Noren on a pop up and pinch-hitter Hobie Landrith on a ground ball.

Explaining his difficulty in the final inning, Newcombe said: "I was trying to get ahead of them but they were hitting the first pitch instead of taking it."

During the inning, Newcombe, who had drawn roaring cheers from the crowd of 17,850, heard the fans scream "No, no" when manager Birdie Tebbetts went out to talk to him after the third single loaded the bases.

Tebbetts trudged off the mound and left Newcombe to get out of the trouble. Tebbetts said after the game that he would not have removed Newcombe until he had put the winning run on base.

"It was very important to him. I think, that he finish this game himself."

BACK IN THIRD

The victory sent the Redlegs back into third place in the league race. They gave Newk a tie in the first inning when Gus Bell's fifth homer matched Musial's 12th. They won it with two in the third off loser Larry Jackson (3-3) on Alex Grammas' single, a triple by Jerry Lynch and a single by George Crowe. Newk's single closed the scoring in the seventh.

The Giants, benching the slumping Willie Mays for the first time this season, made it on singles by Bob Schmidt and Whitey Lockman that sandwiched a walk by Bob Friend, who had pitched shutout ball after giving up a first-inning run on a walk. Friend, losing two in a row for the first time this season, now is 9-6.

Giel, 25, whose only other decision was a 2-1 loss to Pittsburgh last week when two unearned runs spoiled his three-hit job, gave up three singles and the tying run in the third Wednesday night. Then he blanked the Bucs without a hit, retiring 16 in order, before giving up a single in the 10th. Grissom, 40, saved it without difficulty.

STILL LEADS

Mays, 5-for-40 after grounding out as a pinch-hitter, still leads the league with a .382 batting average. Musial, the runnerup, has .376.

Williams walked seven but pitched no-hit ball after the fourth at Philadelphia and won it on Joe Pignatano's first home run in the majors.

It was a two-run shot in the fifth that cut off a barrage of beer cans from the fans, who thought it a foul ball. Giel didn't calm down until threatened by a forfeiture by the umpire. Robin Roberts lost his third in a row for a 5-8 record.

Poor old Casey Steagel, His New York Yankee pitching staff was in this to the tune of $2,000 help with a trade. So what happens? A couple of old hands give up only six hits between them and he's won two in a row again.

It was southpaw Whitey Ford who tossed a three-hit shutout against Cleveland Indians Tuesday. Then Case hauled Art Ditmar out of the bullpen Wednesday night and the righthander pitched a no-hitter for 5 1/3 innings in his first start before giving reliefer Ryen Duren's help for a 3-2 success over the Indians. All of which leaves Duke Ford and Virgil Trucks, picked up in a deal with Baltimore Orioles and Zack Monfroe, recalled from Denver, still sitting on their pinstripes.

The second-place Boston Red Sox, closing fast on the heels of the leading Yankees, blasted a 23-inning shutout string by Chicago pitchers with a five-homer, 10-run in a 13-9 victory over the Baltimore Orioles after they defeated Kansas City 3-2. Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators split a pair, the Nats taking the opener 4-3 in 10 innings and the Tigers moved into a third-place tie with the Athletics.

HELD A LEAD

Ditmar, without a decision while working 23 relief innings this season, was rocked with a 3-0 lead on first-inning homers by Hank Bauer and Elston Howard. Then an error and singles by Minnie Minoso and Mickey Vernon knocked him out of the game and scored two unearned runs in the sixth.

When he gave up a double by loser Jim Grant in the seventh, Casey decided Ditmar was tiring and brought in Duren. The rookie right-hander ran into trouble in his first two innings of relief.

Grant (4-4) allowed only six hits, blanking the Yankees on three over the last eight innings. A walk came ahead of the clinching home run by Howard, who was behind the plate instead of Yogi Berra. The latter had an eye test in an effort to explain his 251 errors.

Vic Power and Woody Held, both of the Athletics, paced their first game for the Indians. Both were hitless, with Power's hitting streak ended at 22 games, longest in the majors this season.

Young Bill Pappas (4-5) gave up only five hits and two runs in his seven innings and produced the lead with a double for the Orioles. A two-run homer by Gus Triandos, his 14th, triggered a three-run Baltimore sixth, ruining Murry Dickson's shutout bid. Dickson is 3-2.

Marty Keough, hitting his first in the majors, Don Buddin, Ted Williams, Jackie Jensen and Frank Malzone homered for the Red Sox and Jensen's tying Bob Cerv of the Athletics for the league lead at 14.

Williams and Malzone homered in a six-run eighth off losing reliefer Jerry Kindall (4-6) that overhauled an 8-7 Chicago lead. He Whitey (4-2) won it in relief of Tom Brewer, who blew a 3-1 lead. Former Tiger Ray Boone hit a three - run homer as the Sox scored four in the seventh.

Leafs Clobbered By Miami 7-2; Royals Nipped

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto and Montreal marked time at the top of the International Baseball League Wednesday night, with the Leafs losing a chance to overtake the league front-runners.

Toronto was clobbered 7-2 by Miami Marlins, while Havana Sugar Kings came from behind to edge Montreal 4-3.

In other games Richmond mauhandled Buffalo 8-1 and Rochester took a doubleheader from Columbus 3-0 and 8-2

Miami used a four-run first inning, with two bunt singles following Don Landrum's line single to set the stage for a bases clearing double by Frank Herrera. When the smoke cleared the Marlins had a 4-0 lead at the expense of Pat Scantlebury and Toronto was out of it.

Don Cardwell won his seventh against four losses, with help from Landrum's fourth home run of the season off Scantlebury, who was the loser.

RELIEF JOB

Rodolfo Arias' masterful relief job did the trick for Havana as the Sugar Kings came from a 4-1 deficit in the fifth with three runs and went ahead to stay.

Arias won his second, relieving starter Vince Amor, who lost a 1-0 lead. Billy Harris (6-3) was the loser, with relief help from Jackie Collum.

Richmond had to wait 2 hours and 13 minutes because of rain before it had a go at knocking over John Tsitouris and the Bisons. The Vees got a 4-0 second inning lead and were never headed.

Bob Oldis led the Vees' attack with three hits and three RBI. Bob Watley won his fourth, allowing five hits, while Tsitouris lost his first after three wins.

Rochester used the ninth inning to take its pair from Columbus. The Red Wings won the first game as Ray Katt, just acquired from St. Louis, hit a two-run homer in the second extra inning of the first game.

Rochester scored six runs in the nightcap eighth inning to junk a 2-2 tie and give Cal Browning the victory. He ran his league-leading strikeout total to 87.

Canadian Football League Meets Behind Closed Doors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Drafting of a constitution and discussions on an interlocking schedule, college drafts and live televising will be among the important items on the agenda this weekend when football execs from east and west meet in three-day sessions.

The newly formed Canadian Football League will meet Saturday and Sunday behind closed doors after its eastern and western divisions hold separate briefing sessions Friday.

The professional eastern Big Four and the Western Interprovincial Union last January formed the CFL and appointed G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg as national commissioner.

Halter said Wednesday that the CFL at its mid-season meeting this weekend will, among other things, draft its constitution which will become operative at the end of the 1958 football season. The Big Four then will be officially known as the eastern division of the CFL and the WIFU as the western division.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, headed by President Ralph Parliament, were expected to make a big pitch for a complete interlocking schedule for 1959. Support from other western clubs has been indicated, but eastern clubs have not yet announced their stand on the proposal. In the past, travel problems and costs have been a stumbling block in getting an interlocking schedule started.

Calgary Stampeders plan to introduce a proposal for a wholesale draft of U.S. college players, as done by the National Football League in the United States. At present, the Canadian professionals use negotiation lists. The Stamps claim the draft would stop high-price bidding for players as only one Canadian team, and one NFL club would be fighting for a player's services.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, who quit the University of Kansas at the end of his junior year last month, Wednesday accepted a one-year contract to tour with Harlem Globe Trotters Ab Saperstein, owner of the famous Negro basketball barnstorming team, said Chamberlain will receive $65,000.

Floyd Patterson Fights Harris On August 18

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Floyd Patterson's manager, Cus D'Amato, has agreed to Aug. 18 as the date for the heavyweight champion's title defence against Roy Harris.

Al Weill, co-promoter of the bout, had vetoed a date later than Aug. 18.

But D'Amato's lawyer, Julius Rosenberg, says the champion's manager is already to accept the later date if the Olympic Auditorium Assembly is willing to set the Art Aragon-Carmen Basilio fight back to September. This bout has been scheduled for Aug. 28.

Weill disclosed Tuesday that Patterson will receive 50 per cent of the net, two-pats, while Harris will get a flat $100,000.

Rangers Chummy With Quakers

SASKATOON (CP) — The affiliation between New York Rangers of the National Hockey League and Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Hockey League will be stronger than ever before, Muzz Patrick, Rangers' general manager, said Wednesday.

Patrick said he has several players in mind for Saskatoon but declined to mention names.

He added: "I'd say not more than eight of last year's (Ranger) team will be back and those who are will have to fight hard to earn their places on the club. We have a good supply of players from which to pick the Quaker lineup for the 1958-59 season."

Rangers open their training camp at Niagara Falls, Ont., starting Sept. 14.

Sports Centre Takes Season's First Loss

By PETER CARVER

Corbin Lock handed Sports Centre their first defeat last night by whipping Bob Blaind's crew 13-8.

"Sonny" Holloway was tagged for only 8 hits while Sports Centre collected twelve base knocks from their lineup.

Doug Murray pounded a triple and a double for the losers. Corbin Lock 014 024 13—13 8 0

Wanted; Sponsor For Senior B Hockey Club

ST. THOMAS (CP) — St. Thomas Senior B hockey fate now rests with some unknown person or group who will take over the franchise vacated by last years' Royals executive.

In announcing the franchise was available the St. Thomas Elgin Memorial Arena Commission said they would not undertake to operate a team themselves.

A meeting of the executive of the hockey club was held June 16 and it was decided that obstacles in the path of operating a team are insurmountable. The executive said lack of interest both from players of last year's club and from fans were factors in their decision to quit.

Pitching: Stan Williams, Dodgers—Rookie right-hander walked seven, but struck out six and blanked the Phillies on four hits 3-0, pitching no-hit ball after the fourth inning for his second victory, second shutout.

Hitting: Elston Howard, Yankees—had two of New York's six hits, one a two-run homer that proved the clincher in 3-2 victory over the Indians.

Firemen Urge Restrictions on Sale of Fireworks

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— A resolution urging restrictions on the sale and use of fireworks was endorsed Wednesday at the annual convention of the Provincial Federation of Ontario Professional Fire Fighters. It calls for the sale of fireworks to adults only and that they be sold not sooner than one week prior to Victoria Day.

Delegates also endorsed a demand for a 15-per-cent salary increase for federal fire fighters retroactive to Jan. 1. Federal firemen now are paid $2,700 to $6 - hour week, $300 below the average salaries of municipal firemen.

A resolution passed called for amendment of the Ontario Municipal Act to allow municipalities to pay all sick-leave credits on retirement instead of the 50 per cent the act allows.

NEWFIE ONLY

A novel suggestion by Fergus Brown (PC — Vancouver Kingsway) was made Wednesday during the health insurance debate.

He proposed that the plan be financed through postage-stamps but before he could elaborate he was called to order by Speaker Roland Michener. All he will say now is: "We're not debating sweepstakes."

Mr. Browne hoped the government would consider his suggestion, which, he said, would help pay the cost of wider insurance provisions that had been urged by the opposition.

Paul Martin (L—Essex East), former health minister, and Rosmaud Bourque (L—Montreal Outremont-St. Jean) endorsed the government for not including costs of tuberculosis and mental patients under federal cost-sharing.

He said this might be one reason for the reluctance of some provinces to sign up.

As a province of Ontario, he said, he objects to the fact that the hospital insurance plan will not be as wide as that in Newfoundland. Patients in and out of hospitals in Newfoundland will be insured, while only inpatients in Ontario will be covered.

Marcel Martin (CCF—Timiskaming) described the proposed changes in the act as "a dividend for the government" because they did not go far enough.

U.N. COMMITTEE

Italy withdrew permission for Budapest to send a minister to Rome. It also called its minister home from Hungary, officially to report on Nagy's execution. It was not a full diplomatic break because lower-ranking charges d'affaires remain in both capitals. Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella said the government acted after starting consultations with Italy's NATO allies on joint action by the Western powers to protest Sunday.

MARCH IN PROTEST

In Oslo, several hundred persons braved a violent thunderstorm and drenching rain Wednesday night to join in a protest march to the Soviet Embassy and the Hungarian legation, heavily guarded by mounted and mobile police.

The marchers, Hungarians and Norwegian students, delivered a written protest at the Soviet Embassy.

Employer delegates of Western countries walked out of an International Labor Organization conference in Geneva when the Hungarian delegate began to speak.

Imre Nagy, the ruling Hungarian Communist party's premier, will attend a proposed visit by West German parliamentary delegation to Moscow in October. A spokesman said "current high feelings" in Hungary was the chief reason.

An aid from Vienna asked athletes throughout the world to boycott sports contests with Hungarian Communist representatives participate.

DESERONTO

Council Faces Heavy Agenda At Meeting

DESERONTO — The regular meeting of Town Council was held on Monday night with all members present. One vacancy still remains to be filled by council.

On a request from Rev. G. Ewald of the local Pentecostal Church for permission to hold public meetings on the street, Reeve Alfred thought such meetings should be held in the church. However on motion of K. Howard permission was granted to hold such meetings in the town park.

A letter from the town solicitor regarding the Drews Co. brought forth information that the company was trying to secure more property west of Mill St. The letter was filed. The Department of Health at Queen's Park notified the clerk that the by-law appointing a Medical Officer of Health had been received and would be given consideration. Acting on a request of the Library Board, council granted a further $59.14 to enable the board to qualify for a larger grant.

The resignation of Mrs. L. Ross, town clerk, from the position of town clerk and tax collector was read. Mrs. Ross stated that the resignation would be effective as of June 30th and the reason was because of undue criticism. A. Marks moved that the resignation be laid over to June 17 and that a closed meeting be held. This motion was carried. Mrs. Ross requested that the resignation be dealt with immediately and was refused.

REPORT ADOPTED

Reeve Alfred read a prepared report from the Finance Committee regarding the auditor's report. They made a recommendation regarding outstanding taxes, the installation of water mains by the Public Utilities as public improvements and requested further information from the Cemetery Board on their equipment. They felt that the insurance carried on the public school was not sufficient.

The auditor's report was accepted on motion of H. Howard. Councillor Cockerham, the latest appointee, introduced the matter of road repairs along the highway and after some discussion council was informed that the town was responsible for some 33 feet along the shoulders of the paved road. On motion of Councillor Gill, it was decided to have no recess for the summer.

Mayor Sweetnam brought up the subject of ratepayers waiving access to the town dump to dump garbage and after some talk it was decided to have a key available with Councillor Stubbs. H. Howard moved that notice be published in the paper that any garbage can weighing over 75 lbs. would be left.

FORMER MAYOR HEARD

Dr. D. C. McVicker spoke to council regarding the town clerk and felt that the meeting of June 17 should be open to the public. He also asked regarding a member of the council, who had constructed a boat house without obtaining a building permit. P. Knight and J. Neal also spoke to the council regarding the holding of a closed meeting to deal with the resignation of the tax collector. They felt that in fairness to her, the meeting should be open to the public. They also asked council if they intended to fill the one sent now vacant.

Dr. McVicker advised the mayor of his objection to the statements made by Mayor Sweetnam in his opening address two weeks ago when the mayor said that the present group had to hold their private meetings in restaurants as the town hall was kept locked. Apparently only the office of the clerk was kept locked.

Council referred to the Streets Committee a request from the firemen for the use of part of Main Street for the afternoon of June 28.

Athens, Ankara Assail British Plan For Cyprus

New Violence Flares Between Turks, Greeks

NICOSIA, Cyprus (CP) — Violence flared today in Limassol, second largest city in Cyprus, in the wake of Thursday's announcement of a new British plan for the future of the island.

British authorities in the southern port imposed an immediate curfew after a Turkish Cypriot was shot and critically wounded.

A crowd of Turkish Cypriots stoned four Greek Cypriots after the shooting. They broke into shilling shops and other signs of impending communal agitation appeared everywhere.

A Greek Cypriot was shot dead by masked gunmen in a coffee shop at Ayios Theodoros, in southwest Cyprus. Another Greek Cypriot was wounded.

The new plan ran into heavy opposition in Athens and Ankara Thursday night.

Turkish Foreign Minister Fain Zorlu said Turkey could not accept any proposal on Cyprus which would preclude partition of the island, as demanded by 90,000 Turkish Cypriots.

Govt. Defends Failure to Act Against Hotel

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial government officials Thursday defended their failure to prosecute a Chatham hotel owner for racial discrimination.

At the same time the human rights committee of the Ontario Federation of Labor Tressed its complaint about the case in a report to the Toronto and District Labor Council. The report called on the government to re-open the case and either establish a commission to conduct public hearings or institute court action.

The case involves three Chatham Negroes who filed a complaint with the Ontario labor department under the Fair Accommodation Practices Act. They alleged a waiter last December refused them service because of their color in the ladies' beverage room of the Montreal House in Chatham.

Deputy attorney-general W. B. Common said Chatham Crown attorney S. A. Blake Ward recommended the charge be dropped because of lack of evidence and he concurred.

NO EVIDENCE

"There was no admissable evidence that Carroll could be impelled to the hotel owner," Mr. Common said. "I'm dealing with the legal aspects of the case and its other merits."

J. F. Nutland, fair accommodation practices officer with the labor department, said after hearing at conciliation the case failed and Labor Minister Daley signed an order to prosecute. But then the it had been recommended that the case be dropped.

"It had to be done by their recommendation," Mr. Nutland said.

W. A. Maxwell, executive secretary of the OFL human rights committee, identified the hotel owner as Mrs. Verlyn Campbell and the complainants as Mr. and Mrs. Carl Riddick and Miss Ruth Ladd, secretary of the National Union of Public Service Employees and president of the National Unity Association, a Chatham Negro organization.

West German Army Organized On Group Basis

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German Army is being reorganized on the basis of smaller, efficient, mobile, hard-hitting combat groups, Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss said Thursday.

The 20,000-man division is to be abolished in favor of brigades of between 3,000 and 4,000 men, he told a press conference.

Strauss said the change in German organization was a logical one made because of the equipment of the Soviet Army in east Europe with atomic weapons and the coming supply of such weapons to NATO forces.

He said two model brigades were now being formed to try out the new organization in next fall's manoeuvres. The reorganization was to be completed by 1962.

Northwesterly winds will bring clearing to the north this afternoon and to the south Saturday morning.

MINES START SUMMER SERIES WORK SHUTDOWN

Aimed at Ending Giant Surpluses

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Mines throughout the once-great Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's black diamond empire will begin closing Monday in a staggered series of summer shutdowns aimed at eliminating giant surpluses.

H. C. M. Gordon, general manager of the subsidiary Dominion Coal Company Limited, announced the closure plan Thursday. The Cape Breton mines will be closed a total of seven weeks from Monday to the week beginning Aug. 4 to 18.

About 9,000 miners, 4,500 fewer than ten times ordered two decades ago, will receive 'no pay cheques for five weeks of the closed-mine period. Unemployment benefits, if paid throughout the shutdown, would cost the taxpayers $1,000,000. Two weeks of suspended production, from Aug. 4 to 18 in Athens and Ankara Thursday night.

Turkish Foreign Minister Fain Zorlu said Turkey could not accept any proposal on Cyprus which would preclude partition of the island, as demanded by 90,000 Turkish Cypriots.

GERMANS DEMONSTRATE AGAINST A-WEAPONS

Waldemar Von Knoeringen, deputy chairman of the Social Democrat party, addresses a crowd of some 10,000 at a rally in Hanover, Germany, to protest arming Germany with nuclear weapons. The banner reads: "Away With Rockets — Away With (Josef) Strauss (West Germany defence minister.")

North African Arab Lands Plan Consultative Assembly

TUNIS (Reuters) — Moroccan, Algerian and Tunisian, and rebel Algerian leaders resumed their four-day conference today to discuss the establishment of a consultative assembly of North African Arab countries.

Abderrahim Bouabid, Moroccan deputy premier, said the talks are "developing in a satisfactory manner."

The consultative assembly is the second of three measures recommended at a conference of political party delegates last April in Tangiers.

The first measure, a permanent secretariat of the United Arab Maghreb (West Arab countries) was officially established here.

The third is the establishment of an Algerian government-in-exile. It was to be the focal point of this conference, but it is understood that the Algerian Liberation Movement (FLN) delegation now is unlikely to press immediately for this step.

It would be unpopular at present in Tunisia and Morocco, both in the process of trying to get French troops out of their countries.

Tunisian and Moroccan recognition of an Algerian exile government would almost certainly lead to the rupture of relations with France and a break-off of negotiations for the withdrawal of French troops.

France has been fighting for Moslem insurgents in Algeria for the last 3½ years.

Khrushchev Gives Russian Farmers Incentive to Produce

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Communist party has announced another step in Premier Khrushchev's plans to beat U.S. agricultural production by giving Russian farmers more incentive to grow more.

The party's central committee announced collective farms will no longer be required to deliver a large part of their output to the government at a fixed low price.

Instead, a new pricing system will be established for the entire output of collective farms. It aims to introduce an element of competition for low-cost, efficient production.

In the past, collective farms have sold their produce at lower levels. The government fixed a low price for products delivered as compulsory quotas. Additional voluntary deliveries to the government, at a higher price, and surpluses sold on the open market brought a still higher price.

The committee said the new pricing system would be less arbitrary, with prices bearing a closer relation to production costs.

The principal idea behind this plan is to "enable the collective farm to give Russia's 130,000,000 farm workers higher incentives to produce more and cheaper foodstuffs and raise food standards above those of the United States and other Western countries.

At the same time it was announced that the powerful central committee had decided to elevate two men as alternate (non-voting) members of the party presidium.

This means that the presidium, ruling body of the Soviet Union, now comprises 15 full members and 10 alternate members.

The two new appointees are: N. V. Podgorny, the Ukrainian Communist party chief; a post which was held by Khrushchev for many years until 1949.

D. S. Polansky, premier of the Russian Soviet Federated Republic was appointed to this post earlier this year in succession to Frol R. Kozlov, whom Khrushchev nominated as a first deputy premier and party secretary.

The agricultural report was submitted to the committee by Khrushchev.

The committee noted that in recent years the Soviet Union has approached the volume of United States agricultural output in a number of products and in certain items the Soviet Union has even surpassed the level attained in America.

In output of milk the Soviet Union last year reached 96 per cent of the United States production. Output of butter is slightly higher than in the United States.

The Soviet Union more than doubled the United States in production of wheat, trebled it in production of sugar beet and produces 2½ times more wool.

Soviet agriculture has all the prerequisites at hand to overtake the United States within the next few years in per capita production of meat, milk and butter, the report said.

The committee decided to institute state purchases of agricultural products from the collective farms.

There will be no more compulsory deliveries of agricultural products.

'Squealing' About Bribery Attempt Brought Beating, Threat of Death

OSHAWA (CP) — Harry Andrews of Courtland, Ont., said in court Thursday he was threatened with death by a man hiding under the wheels of a truck for "squealing" to police about a bribe attempt.

He was testifying at the trial of Earl Lloyd Willard, 36, of Courtland, charged with attempting to defeat the course of justice by offering Andrews' son, Willard, 17, a truck and $500 to confess to the theft of a telephone coin box.

Andrews said he told police a man attempted to bribe him into taking the blame for the theft he did not commit. Magistrate Frank Ebbs received judgment until Monday.

Earlier this month Powell received nine months in jail for stealing the coin box. Willard's son drews was jailed for a month for falsely telling police he committed the crime.

Harry Andrews refused to give evidence Tuesday and was held as a material witness.

He said Powell, out on bail on the theft charge, first offered him the truck and money if he would admit the offence. He reported the incident to police.

He said the day before he was scheduled to testify he was beaten by Powell and another man.

SAYS LIBERALS PUT SMOKEWAVE AROUND NORAD

For Political Gain Charges Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has accused the Liberals of laying a "smokescreen" around the Canada-United States air defence agreement for political advantage.

His charge was made at the close of a Commons debate on ratification of the North American air defence Agreement (NORAD).

Liberal forces joined the Progressive Conservatives in ratifying the agreement by a vote of 200 to 8, the only opposition coming from the CCF.

Mr. Pearson argued earlier that NORAD should have been set up through the United Nations Security Organization and that it involved loss of Canadian sovereignty. Mr. Diefenbaker replied to that argument by saying that NORAD "strengthens NATO, which is all that matters."

The Commons today shifts to the start of the eight-day debate on Finance Minister Fleming's budget, presented last Thursday night.

The concluding phase of the NORAD debate — closed off by Mr. Diefenbaker's replies to criticisms made during the day — was a mixture of good humor and sharp exchanges.

Mr. Diefenbaker laughingly accused Paul Martin (L — Essex East) of over-indulgence at a party in the Winnipeg Free Press for the launching of the speech on NORAD last week.

Mr. Martin laughed and waved a copy of the speech, which he had flattered, agreement. The Commons should celebrate.

However, Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Martin must be congratulated for making minor changes "to improve the language" of the editorial.

Moments later, the wrangling started when Mr. Diefenbaker reiterated arguments that the NORAD plan had been initiated by the Liberal government before the June election last year which put the Conservatives in power. Opposition Leader Pearson said the matter had never been discussed by the Liberal cabinet. Under Commons rules Mr. Diefenbaker should accept the statement without a comment. Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he accepted the denial, but quoted from a document which said the Liberal government was not able, on June 14, 1957, to "finalize" the NORAD agreement. The link between the election and the Liberal government's resignation June 21.

Mr. Pearson asked what document Mr. Diefenbaker was reading from.

Top Winner On Quiz Show Will Get Loan

NEW YORK (AP)—A good looking Brooklyn girl, unemployed and unmarried, applied for a bank loan Thursday.

"She'll get it as fast as the papers are drawn up," said a bank official, "She's got the best security in the world."

The girl was 22-year-old Elfrida von Nardroff, all-time top money winner on any television quiz show. Her security is the $253,000 she has won so far on NBC's Twenty-one.

She can't touch the money until she quits. She still could lose some of the money, but the odds against losing it all are high.

Elfrida resigned her job as a personnel manager last May to study for her weekly quiz session. Since then she has borrowed money at least once to pay the rent while she kept winning.

Toronto Youth Kidnapped by Knife-Wielders

TORONTO (CP)—A 17-year-old youth told police Thursday night three youths kidnapped him and took him for a ride at knife-point before stealing his wallet and his clothing.

Police said a warrant has been issued for arrest of the trio who live in the Dufferin - Bloor district of Toronto.

The youth told me to stop on a deserted road near Bolton," Skid more told police.

"I thought I wouldn't, one of them grabbed me from behind and threatened something with a knife my neck. He said it was a knife and I had better stop or else.

Cool Wave Due To Arrive as Summer Starts

TORONTO (CP)—Summer begins officially at 5:37 p.m. EDT Saturday but weather charts suggest that mother nature pays little attention to the calendar.

Cool spring weather is expected to continue in Ontario over the weekend with temperatures a few degrees below normal.

A cool wave from the Prairies by tonight will have spread across all of Ontario. There is a chance of a shower or thunderstorm today on the arrival of the cool air. The weekend will be a sunny dry weekend with temperatures rising to near 70 on Saturday and perhaps a few degrees warmer on Sunday.

Yugoslavs Plan Protest Against Nagy Execution

Red Says Trial Secret To Avoid West Action

BELGRADE (Reuters) — The Yugoslav government said today it would lodge an official protest with Hungary against the execution of Imre Nagy and his associates.

A government spokesman said the Yugoslav ambassador in Budapest has been summoned to Belgrade for consultations.

Nagy, 63-year-old former Hungarian premier at the time of the 1956 revolt, was given sanctuary in the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest when Russian tanks and troops crushed the uprising. He was arrested by the government. Nagy was promised safe conduct to his home, but was arrested as he left the embassy.

LONDON (AP)—A crew of Russians demonstrated in front of the Danish Embassy in Moscow today in protest against anti-Soviet outbreaks in Copenhagen over the execution of Imre Nagy and his Hungarian associates. The demonstration, a rarity in disciplined Moscow, was reported by Moscow radio.

Moscow radio was angered at the news of the death of Nagy, stoned the Danish Embassy in Copenhagen Tuesday night and smashed some windows.

Today's big play on broadcast from various Moscow enterprises was that Danish police stood idly by as the building and cried out with demands that the Danish government should carry the hostile calies of Danish reactionary elements against the Soviet Union.

The demonstration followed a formal protest to the Danish government by Moscow Thursday.

UN Head Opposes Sending Troops Into Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today confirmed his four years mission in troubled Lebanon with a call on Premier Sami Es Solh.

It is believed they discussed the work of the United Nations observers now quietly building up to its proposed strength of 100 officers a day to Lebanon.

Observers were sent to Lebanon on the authority of the United Nations to ensure that there is no illegal infiltration of personnel or supplies across the Lebanese borders.

Government sources here said Hammarskjold is opposed to the landing of an Anglo-American expeditionary force to patrol the Lebanese borders.

Official Lebanese sources said Hammarskjold, who conferred Thursday with President Camille Chamoun, felt his force of 100 observers would be adequate to supervise the borders of revolt-torn Lebanon.

His arrival Thursday brought a new challenge in the fighting which has swept the country for six weeks, causing thousands of casualties.

KANKAKEE, Ill., (AP)—Unable to start his disabled motorboat, Robert Just, 44, was swept over a dam in the Kankakee River Thursday as witnesses watched helplessly from shore. Police said Just had been manoeuvring his boat in the middle of the rain-swollen Kankakee River when the motor failed.

Wandering Sea Lion Flips Past River Mouth, Heads for Open Water

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — Canada's wandering sea lion flipped eagerly past the mouth of the Thames River Thursday night and forged into the open water of Lake Erie.

No one knew for sure whether he was making a vain attempt to regain sea water or just wanted to return to the United States.

The bewhiskered, year-old seal pup covered an amazing 150 miles down the Thames since sliding under a fence at Springbank Park in London. Onc shortly after he arrived from California Tuesday.

Experts gave him only a month to survive in fresh water. After that his eyes will be damaged and his chances of making it to the ocean—even if he could negotiate Niagara Falls—would be slim.

Hundreds of people turned out on Chatham Bridge as the seal capee chugged past at an estimated 15 miles an hour.

Ernest Ide, who runs an auto dealer in this town five miles from Lake St. Clair, witnessed the final stretch drive down the Thames and the triumphant entry into open water.

"It looked like somebody swimming, then it went under and flopped up again. It was going fast—too fast—and I thought, nobody swims like that.

Wall of Secrecy Around Weapons May Be Lowered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed 345 to 12 Thursday a bill authorizing President Eisenhower to plan for sharing certain types of atom weapons, information with allies.

The measure is expected to get quick consideration in the senate, possibly today.

Lowering substantially but secretly the wall of secrecy drawn around U.S. nuclear weapons production, the bill would permit at all already capable of producing atom weapons to exchange with allies certain materials for weapons production with the United States.

Defence and Atomic Energy Commission officials have said repeatedly they would not now qualified for such exchanges but likely to become in time Britain. Discussions of terms of an agreement with Britain are expected to begin soon.

The law does not authorize delivery of weapons themselves. Officials have said any placed, for example, in NATO countries, will remain in U.S. custody.

Bonarlaw Man Killed Taking Walk on Tracks

Struck by the westbound Belleville-Peterborough passenger train as he was taking his morning walk along the CNR tracks at Hoard's Station, Mr. John S. McKeown, 78, lifetime resident of the Bonarlaw district was instantly killed Thursday morning.

Mr. McKeown was staying at the Snare Nursing Home at Hoard's and was accustomed to take a morning walk along the tracks. The accident occurred about a quarter of a mile west of Hoard's Station.

The train, said to be running close to an hour late, came on to Mr. McKeown, suddenly around a curve. The engineer blew his whistle, startling Mr. McKeown who fell clear of the track.

Born at Bonarlaw, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William McKeown. His wife, the former Margaret Meiklejohn, died four years ago. He was a member of Christone United Church.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. W. J. Barlow (Laura) of Bonarlaw; Mrs. Reginald A. Gee (Lillian) of Sidney; Mrs. Russell Rowe (Marjory) of Cobourg and Mrs. Don Gates (Betty) of Toronto, and one son, Clarence, at home.

Also surviving are three brothers, Alfred of Vancouver, and Fred and Thomas of Springbrook, and three sisters, Mrs. William Irwin, Belleville; Mrs. Will Morrow (Susan) of Peterborough, and Mrs. Harry Welch (Kathleen) of Toronto.

Gas Company Keeping Close To Schedule

Lakeland Natural Gas Company is keeping fairly close to its schedule of installing domestic gas mains in the West Hill district, it was noted today by City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull.

Today pipeline workers are installing mains along the crescent and streets between Bridge and Catherine Streets in the Isabel and Octavia street district while are also working on streets intersecting North Front Street.

Another crew of pipeline workers are also installing pipe along Bridge Street east from Pinnacle to John Streets.

The engineer said the pipeline installation in the West Hill area was about the earliest possible by about two weeks behind the two-month schedule, which had been set at the commencement of the work.

"Considering rain and other setbacks they are working fairly close to their schedule of two months", he said.

According to the program laid down, the city engineer installation of the mains in the West Hill district will be completed before the general work on the East Hill is started.

Accused In Reitman Kidnapping

German immigrant housekeeper and former patient at 8 B.C. psychiatric clinic, Mrs. Greta Goede is charged with the kidnapping of two-year-old Joel Reitman who was returned unharmed to his parents. Mrs. Goede, arrested in Toronto, told police several stories before she admitted she had taken the boy from his Montreal home. She denies that she wrote the ransom note demanding $10,000 from the Reitmans. A woodcut is shown as she appears in her passport photo. She left after six hours of interrogation by police. She came to Canada in 1954.

Sidewalk Plan Being Done by P.W. Department

The city public works department's 1958 sidewalk replacement program is now well underway but some work originally planned to be done this year will be held over because of installation of domestic gas mains.

The result this year's sidewalk program will be carried out by city employees, rather than by contract, it was noted today by City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull.

So far this year some new walks have been laid in the Crescent View Ave., district, while replacement of other defective walks has also been done in the East Hill district where it would not be affected by gas-pipe installation.

Now the public works sidewalk crew has been swung over to the West Hill and are currently working on Charlotte St., where old city walk is being replaced.

Earlier a section of walk was replaced on Parker Street and a still further section on this street will be replaced.

'Let's Have Disagreements, Gems in Chest of Liberty,' States Visiting U.S. Editor

TRENTON — "There will be no worries between our two countries so long as we do not always agree on issues." This was the comment of George Hill, editor of the Record Register, Coalgate, Oklahoma, who was one of the 25 U.S. editors to visit Trenton yesterday.

"May we always have disagreements," said the editor, "to me the most priceless gem in the treasure chest of liberty is the right for free men to disagree."

Mr. Hill also mentioned meeting Alex Gilbert in Cornwall and pointed out that the friendliness shown to them by him. Mr. Gilbert was formerly of Trenton where he was manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The editors were welcome from various points of the U.S., have been making a tour of the province under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity. In charge of the tour is Colin MacDonald of Toronto.

Guest speaker for the luncheon was Senator W. A. Fraser, who thanked the Chamber of Commerce for "this opportunity to speak and publicize Trenton to these prominent visitors from the U.S."

Senator Fraser told of the many industries which have located in Trenton and prospered here.

"To make Trenton a better place to live in" he continued with me," said Senator Fraser.

FINEST TOWN IN ONTARIO

He told the editors he knew a little about the newspaper business saying he "had learned the hard way" and that he intended to learn more. He told the meeting he was very happy Trenton was one of the towns chosen to entertain the editors. He said Trenton was the finest town in Ontario and that one cannot know the province without knowing Trenton.

In amplifying his interest in the industrial life of Trenton Senator Fraser said he was "prepared to donate an industrial site, 10 acres more or less, to any industry which wants to come to Trenton."

Councillor Vern Lange presented the editors with a memento of Trenton, saying he hoped it would not be another fifteen years until they visited Trenton again.

The official civic welcome was extended by Mayor Wilbur Burtt, who said he was sorry they could not stay longer and see more of the town.

The touring newspapermen arrived at noon, were feted at a luncheon in the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall and left for Toronto at 3 p.m. The tour of Ontario ends tomorrow at Niagara Falls. Then they will leave for their homes in the U.S.

Alex Wilson, president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the guests on behalf of his organization and it was a privilege to play host to such distinguished guests.

It was stated that yesterday's dinner was the largest gathering the Chamber of Commerce has had in some time and high praise was extended to John Fetter, who organized the dinner and all entertainment.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion served dinner to the 93 persons who attended the meeting.

Will Drill More Test Holes In Hope of Obtaining Water

TRENTON — Water continues to hold the limelight at many meetings of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission. This was noted at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the board room of their offices on Bridge Street.

A. E. (Bert) Atkinson was in the chair for the meeting.

The next test holes will be drilled in the area to the north of the first expected to get under way today in the gravel pit belonging to Jack VanAlstine. Following this test drilling the crews of the Underwater Water Supply Company will move to Wooler Road. It is expected that three more borings will be made. This will substantiate quantity of water located and will be no more test drillings and it is then expected the commission will turn to the possibilities of using surface water.

Some discussion was held on the cost of drilling and it was brought to the attention of the board that although it is costing $11 per foot the company is using equipment which is faster and more efficient, thus saving in the long run.

Mayor Ross Burtt, who also is chairman of commission, said other places are also having water trouble and that they are getting rid of their wells and turning to surface water and filter beds.

The mayor said a representative of Gore and Storrie has informed him two more filter beds will be the cheapest and fastest way of solving the water supply in Trenton.

James Page, manager of the commission, said if there present drillings failed to produce a quantity of good water supply it will end the issue and they will have to turn to using surface water.

Speaking on the cost of piping water he mayor said he felt it would cost a considerable amount if they were to pipe it too far to the pond. A Quinte main costs $43,000 a mile to install.

Cliff Baker, also a member of the commission recommended that the board give immediate consideration to increasing the productivity at the present filter plant. He said the summer can come and go so fast that nothing may be accomplished. He recalled that last October they had started to pump more water for this year but had not got it on yet. He felt it was not too early to be thinking about next year.

Speaking on the filter plant Mr. Page told the meeting each of the two beds there now can handle 1,000,000 gallons and can be forced to handle 1,250,000 gallons if required.

The Commission was also informed the men are having trouble with the bearings in the pond. They are apparently replacing their shoes each day and making it almost a daily chore for the water crews to uprove them. He said they will seek permission from the proper authorities to get rid of them.

The commission also decided to increase the charge for persons who request service reconnection, after the power has been cut due to default of payment for hydro power.

The charge will be boosted to $2 if the men are called during the day working hours and $3 if they are called after regular hours.

Mr. Page said the commission will be going all out to collect bills after which he felt were in for a busy time. Many people feel on the consumer's part. He said for those who can't pay the bill they will co-operate in trying to reach some kind of an arrangement for payment. He told the commission 100 were in connection for disconnection last month and this costs the PUC considerable amount of money.

He explained that the customer is given a total of 20 days after his bill has been sent out to pay and then if not paid the power is cut off. He said the PUC will not tolerate anymore back accounts. He did say, however, they would be glad to cooperate if the persons involved came in to see him and make arrangements.

Is Given Month For Assault

TRENTON — Cecil Lewis of 116 Division Street was sentenced to six months in jail after being found guilty on a charge of assault causing bodily harm when he appeared before Magistrate T. R. Wills in a special court yesterday. Lewis had entered a plea of not guilty and was represented by R. Gregory Butler, John A. Pringle acted for the crown.

Constable Sid Vickers testified for the Crown.

In passing sentence the Magistrate told the accused that if he appeared before him again in the near future on a Liquor Control Act charge "you will really be in trouble. I will send you away for as long as I can and a cure will be accomplished."

Hamlet Opens Stratford, Conn. Summer Season

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP)—The American Shakespeare Festival has launched its fourth summer season with an oddly compelling interpretation of Hamlet.

The melancholy prince becomes a wildly mercurial fellow in the portrayal by Fritz Weaver, one of Broadway's impressive young players.

Director John Houseman has shaped the enterprise about Weaver with obvious intent to cast free of hackneyed concepts of the classic.

Played in a setting of sliding cascades of ladders and dark metal, the 31½-hour performance includes portions of the play usually left out.

The first night audience Thursday night displayed repeated enthusiastic appreciation of what was being done.

Weaver, a lank and angular chap, strides through his part with a series of abrupt inflections and unpredictable nuances in an interpretation that should improve with added performances.

One of the evening's highlights was Hiram Sherman, a recognized master farceur, as Polonius. Others in the company include Ruth Carnochan as Geraldine Fitzgerald as the king and queen; Barry Hyman as Horatio, and Inga Swenson as Ophelia.

The large troupe has not responded uniformly to the Houseman challenge, but the finest of the festival's long-range ambition of high repertory has come closer with Hamlet.

The company's second offering, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," arrives Friday.

Uncover Indian Burial Ground

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) Workmen excavating for a septic tank unearthed an Indian burial ground in nearby Serpent Mound provincial park Thursday.

The remains were found three feet under the surface about 200 feet from the burial mounds. An archeological investigation is due to start digging in the area next week. Twenty-two bodies and many artifacts were uncovered last year.

cused's police record told the Magistrate. Lewis had been sentenced several times under the LCA.

"You are a menace when you are drinking," the Magistrate told Lewis.

The Magistrate allowed sentence to begin from the date of arrest, April 17.

Two women and a 19-month-old child were reported to have been injured by Lewis.

Wendall Brown, 21, of Trenton was fined $50 and costs on a charge of impaired driving when he appeared before Magistrate Wills last Tuesday. He was also prohibited from driving a car for six months. Brown had been charged after he was involved in a crashed into the front room of a house on Marmora Street after losing control of his car and over a sidewalk and lawn.

In giving evidence in the case Police Chief Jack Taylor told the Magistrate there were skid-marks for 99 feet. He said his officers had brought the man into the station after the tragedy and after tests did not feel the accused was intoxicated but was on the borderline.

Boy Found Dead In Rowboat

CALABOGIE, Ont. (CP) — Police today were investigating the unusual death of 15-year-old Richard Dupuis.

The boy was found dead in a rowboat Sunday on the Madawaska River near this town about 60 miles west of Ottawa after a fishing with his father, William.

Mr. Dupuis told police he asked the boy to row the boat to a bay where it was usually kept while he retrieved a flat tire on his car. The father returned to the boat about a half hour later to find the boy lying in the bottom of the craft.

An autopsy showed the boy had a few small pebbles in his lungs. Crown attorney H. G. Walsh of nearby Pembroke said this could indicate the boy "drowned somehow."

HE SAW WAR FROM BOTH SIDES

How many Canadians, during the Second Great War, openly walked the streets of a country under the control of the Nazis, known to them for what he was, and just as openly returned to London?

The first answer which springs to mind is "None" for that is wrong by at least one. The one is Pierre Dupuy, recently appointed Canadian ambassador to Japan.

"Canadian Business" contains an item on his wartime activities which, we feel certain, are little known in Canada. At that time Mr. Dupuy was charge d'affaires of the Canadian legation to France and also minister to all the governments in exile in London. The Vichy regime in France had broken off diplomatic relations with Britain. "It was decidedly unpopular with the Canadian people as well as other peoples warring against Germany because of its collaboration with Hitler, and there were many demands that Canada break relations with Vichy," says Canadian Business. But the Canadian government kept up its link through Dupuy who paid regular visits, saw the old Marshal Petain) and walked the streets of Vichy under the watchful eyes of Nazi agents. That was because Mr. Churchill wanted to keep a link and asked Mr. King not to sever Canada's contact."

We find it intensely interesting. Mr. Dupuy's role was obviously well known to officials in Ottawa, but we wonder whether many Canadian people were aware of the fact that Canada had a diplomat who moved freely in and out of territory occupied by the Nazis. We can understand Churchill's desire for continued contact with the Petain regime, but we wonder that prompted the Germans to permit this contact to exist. They must have believed that it benefited them in some manner, or else they would not have permitted it.

Perhaps this was part of the price for getting Petain and the other members of his government to collaborate with the Nazis. The French can be a stubborn people at times, though de Gaulle took the bolder, braver way, Petain was not without some iron in his makeup.

THE ESKIMO — THE DAIRYMAN'S FRIEND

We suggest that chambers of commerce in the Quinte district take the initiative in organizing a fitting welcome Route to the Eskimo. All dairying districts, throughout the world, should join in.

Prove to be the best friend the cow ever had.

Of course, we have to admit that the Eskimo is not thinking about the maintenance of a high rate of consumption of butter and cheese when he has the good sense to go through the motions of contracting heart disease. Nevertheless, he can now be elevated to the position of Exhibit A in the dairy industry's defence against every real menace to its existence - - the charge that its diet with a high fat content clogs up arteries, producing high blood pressure, coronary thrombosis and early death. The Eskimo, as a Montreal surgeon, Dr. Harry Lawson, points out, has a diet exceedingly high in fat and low in starches and sugar.

We had written this far, and made these deductions, when we paused to read further in The Canadian Press article on Dr. Lawson and his 18th medical mission to the north. There we discovered that Dr. Lawson had put the case for the defence of the dairy industry much better than we can.

"Dr. Lawson," reports The Canadian Press, "is an enemy of what he calls the 'anti-fat fads' of modern age, with their theories that since high chloresterol content is present in the arteries of heart victims, a high fat diet must mean the affliction. 'Eating fat doesn't make you fat,' he told the medical group. 'In fact it's the simplest way to reduce'."

Pass the butter!

VETERAN PILOTS RETIRE

Is flying a young man's game?

Almost everybody would reply in the affirmative and the layman can think of many reasons why this should be so - - the need for good nerves and fast reactions, the rapid change in planes which must make it necessary for older flyers to "unlearn" much that experience has taught them and which deprive them of that advantage of experience older men enjoy in many other fields.

Reports this week, though, Vancouver saw two living denials of the theory that the air age is for the young. Capt. Kenneth Dewar of Vancouver and Capt. Norman D. Forrester of Edmonton were officially retired from the Canadian Pacific Airlines. Both men are sixty, an age at which many in even routine occupations are thinking of writing "finis" to their working lives.

The Vancouver Sun says that Capt. Dewar and Capt. Forrester were "the first two fliers in Canada to reach retirement age as pilots," which serves as a striking reminder of the brevity of the air age. Both were pilots during the First Great War and they were the only ones still aloft when they unpinned their wings on Monday.

Incidentally, Capt. Dewar has 23,000 hours in the air to his credit with never an accident and only one near-mishap, when he was forced to land a float plane in an oat field after the linkage between the plane's throttle and carburetor failed. We wonder how many truck drivers can say they have driven 23,000 hours, or 11½ years on a 40-hour week, 50-week year basis, with only one near-miss.

'Mermaids' Grow Scarce

—National Geographic Society

The world's original mermaids are fighting extinction.

Manatees, the bulky seagoing mammals that superstitious sailors thought were human fish, now enjoy widespread protection. Popularly called sea cows, manatees literally eat tons of shallow waters along the Atlantic coasts of Africa and the Americas. The first-rate manatee ranges from the West Indies to Mexico and Central Africa.

Treading water with its paddle-shaped tail, a manatee will munch up to 100 pounds of its vegetable diet a day. Sometimes it feeds itself with its flippers — like a matron in mittens eating asparagus. At a big specimen may grow 15 feet long and weigh a ton. Considering its sunken eyes, bewhiskered muzzle, and sackliike figure, it is hard to believe it could have inspired the legend of beauteous fish-tailed damsels.

Yet the manatee has a gentler personality. Unable to defend itself, it browses in brackish river mouths, rich in succulent water plants. It often works its way close to boats. One Florida skipper, shallowing suddenly, found himself high and dry, half-submerged, basking cow. Man and manatee ended up equally upset — and frightened.

Florida manatees delight in eating the leaves of the water hyacinth, a plant that chokes the city streams. They sometimes seek food in fresh water, but must eventually return to salt water. Too much cold weather can kill them. Men have harpooned them for their meat which tastes like veal.

Manatee mothers usually produce a single baby. The cow bears her 60-pound calf in the water, then rolls the baby mammal to the surface to start its breathing. At intervals she deliberately dunks the infant until it is at home under water. On its first swimming lessons, the baby often links flippers with its mother's and cruises along beside her. Father manatees, an equally devoted parent, hovers anxiously in the background. Also built at the Miami aquarium would nudge his mate with a flipper to remind her that Junior was due for some air. Nursing her calf, the cow manatee claps it to her breast above the surface. It may have been this manatee pose that started the mermaid stories among early explorers.

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

HO! FOR BELLEVILLE AND PROSPERITY!

The Belleville district was one of great opportunity 125 years ago.

According to William Hutton, whose letter to his wife in 1824 was noted last week, the district offered much land adjacent to potential immigrants.

Hutton called attention to the low cost of certain goods and the high wages to be gained in the district's new industries.

"Boards are very cheap, 40 shillings a hundred, wheaten flour at work very high, 6 shillings 7 pence per day. I wonder much that Mr. Ogle Roberts do not come out, and also tailors and shoemakers. They would make a fortune in a short time if they were industrious. I would recommend everyone I could to come out."

A further reference reveals the prosperity of the times:

"Milling is a great business here. Millers have not been less than two mills to be let or sold."

Additional inducements to immigrants were his claim that "good cleared farms could be had in various places at only four or five shillings an acre; and that there were "no taxes", except a one shilling levy per acre; and that there was "land shooting" to be had.

As to the 185 acre farm he had purchased about one mile west of town, Hutton had this to tell his wife who had not yet arrived in Canada:

"I will not raise your hopes about it, but it certainly pleases me — fine soil, beautiful situation, close to one of the best markets in Canada, and a most healthy climate. There has been no case of fever and ague since 1829. It slopes beautifully down to the edge of the Bay, and of course water is plentiful, a great consideration. Even the unimproved land is covered with beautiful white clover.

"There are eight or ten acres rather too near the limestone rock, but this rock can be raised with a spade in the form of stones, suitable for building fences, which in reality will be requisite, i.e. when timber for fencing becomes scarce in the district of country is said not to grow here, and that of this country is not good fence. Now, however, the shallowest part of it is well covered with shanrock, and will afford a full bite for milch cows or sheep."

Thus did William Hutton describe the estate he had purchased, the land which today surrounds the Trent Road residence of Mrs. W. N. Ponton.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE VIRTUE OF TRYING

People sometimes have wrong ideas regarding their religious duties. Many people are continually overcome with fear of hypocrisy. "If the world only knew how evil I am," they confess to themselves, "I would indeed be an outcast."

This appalling the extent to which very excellent people torture themselves by a continuous contemplation of their own iniquity and shortcomings. They look at themselves so constantly have no religion at all, yet their lives are kindly and full of much worth. "Here I am," they say. "I am supposed to be a firm religionist and I believe in God and am, yet what a horrible sinner I am. And this other person w h o professes no religion at all is kindly, sacrificial, tolerant, and apparently free of serious vices. What good does religion do me, anyway?"

The difference between t h i s and unsaved man — be it ever remembered — is that t h e unsaved man pays little attention to his sin, perhaps loves it, indulges himself in it in a state of continual despair because of his iniquity. But the saved man is a fighter. He is a sinner, but he is a sinner who continually fights his sin.

Be sure that on the last great day God's question will be not how good are you, but how good did you try to be.

Stolen Money Did Them Good

St. John Telegraph-Journal

The Ten Commandments are still to be reckoned with.

Three teen-agers broke into a high school at Canaanka, Mich., and stole $71. They spent $6 on a movie and candy. Then they broke into the school again to return the remaining $65.

Caught by police, they explained their action in returning the unspent loot was the result of the sermon they had seen. "It was a real good show. The kind you don't forget."

It was "The Ten Commandments."

"My dear," said he, 'tomorrow
An evening off I beg of you.
I have a pleasant box in sight.
A session with a jolly crew;
Some five or six good fellows
Will meet
At Green's, a little game to play."
Said she: "No more you need repeat;
I'll bet his wife's away."

"My dear," said he, "don't wait for me;
In candor now I wish to state
It's very likely I may be Detained at Green's till very late.
At social sessions such as this
One never knows how long he'll stay;
The fun I do not want to miss."
She merely said: "His wife's away."

"I shall hob nob with royalty,
With kings and queens stand pat, perhaps,
And proud and haughty I shall be,
I'll lord it o'er those other chaps."
"You've said enough, my dear," said she,
"There's nothing left for you to say.
Your little talk convinces me
Beyond a doubt his wife's away."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 20th., 1938

Canvassers recently collected $395.00 for the Quinte Bay Beaches. The money will be available to expand work in civic work progress.

From the file copy at this time in 1888: — Mr. Andrew Snider of Huntingdon township, who is, we believe, the oldest surviving native of Belleville as it was first laid out, gave the Intelligencer a call today. Mr. Snider who is in his 80th. year, was born in a small frame house near where Hyrsaile fir now is opposite Campbell Street. His recollections of the early days are most interesting among them being the fact that in his boyhood days there was no bridge over the river. Eventually the first bridge was built of logs with a filling of cedar logs and was erected on the site of the present lower bridge. Before the bridge was built, crossing the river was made in canoes. We trust that he will live to see many other improvements in his native place, possibly the bridge across the bay.

Mrs. and Miss McGowan, Mrs. Roy G. Stafford, Mrs. P. H. Wills and Mrs. W. H. Reeves are the hostesses at the Bay of Quinte Country Club tomorrow.

Mrs. Clifford Maybee and Mrs. George Hagerty were the hostesses at the East Belleville Golf Club this afternoon.

30 YEARS AGO

June 20th., 1928

Will supervise boys' camps. The Belleville Boys' Work Board has induced the board of directors of the YMCA to release Joe Shortt, the general secretary, and Ralph Mendels, of Moira Lake, director from duty in order that they may direct the boys' camp at Moira Lake. The Y's Men's Club and some of the directors will supply the necessary relief during their absence at the camp. Mr. Shortt and A. H. Melburn will leave here tomorrow for their home in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Charles Mott and son of this city are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Mastin, in Prescott.

From our file copy at this time in 1898: The barge Hunter sailed from the Grand Trunk Point Anne today in tow of the tug Beaver for the Cornwall Canal. The steamer Merritt will arrive in this port tomorrow and will be open for charter for excursions. The Sunday school picnic season will soon be here and will also be kept busy. The liner Caspian, enroute east from Toronto, was in and out of this port on time last evening. There are always quite a number of people at the dock to see these big boats come in. Mr. H. L. Pullen, well - known insurance adjuster, went to Madoc today to adjust a fire loss.

40 YEARS AGO

June 20th., 1918

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Belshaw of Stirling were visitors in town today.

The Misses Kathleen and Lillian Manley have left for Detroit, Mich., where they will visit their brother, Mr. T. J. Manley.

The barbers in this city are planning to take a basket picnic. Seven of the ten master barbers own cars and the outing will take place on a Wednesday afternoon in the near future.

Rector to be inducted. On the evening of June 24th, the Rev. W. G. Swayze will be inducted as rector of Christ Church Parish in this city. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Blagrave, who is now rector of St. Mark's Church, Parkdale, Toronto. His Lordship, Bishop Bidwell of the Diocese of Ontario will conduct the service. Following the service a reception will be held in the parish hall.

Mr. D. Grass has left to spend some time at Crowe Lake.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING LONELY

Few things eat into the heart more damagingly than does loneliness. Nature's flowers and animals are companionship. Few people can happily endure loneliness for any great length of time. We crave the association of those people who have many of the characteristics that we have. A congenial friend is one to whom we can well go, from time to time, things that defeat, to a large degree, all loneliness. The associations with friends is to form a steady habit of reading. Books defeat loneliness far in advance of all else. Time spent reading as a few hours spent in browsing among books in a second-hand shop! Many a "sleeper" has been thus discovered. Time and again I have lost myself in one of these worthwhile book shops, leaving it regretfully, all loneliness "gone with the wind". Another plan that has often conquered loneliness is to hunt up some one who, too, may be lonely. Get in touch with such a one, if you can, and invite that one to dine with you. Big things have come about through acting on these suggestions.

Great men and women, who have a v e dedicated their lives to some useful cause, rise above very lonely folks. There are compensations, however, that few ever learn the value of. Those who join that select group of unselfish human beings who have learned the secret of happiness dismiss all loneliness, for they a r e too occupied with the joy of service to others to worry about any loneliness. They have made the sacrifice of a dog that willingly dies upon the grave of its master.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HEMORRHOIDS ARE MUCH THE SAME AS VARICOSE VEINS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 51. A few years ago I was told that I had skin tags in the anus. Are skin tags the same as polyps? What are polyps, and what are piles?

"For over a year now I have noticed a little blood on toilet tissue, but have no pain whatsoever.

"Dr. Molner, if polyps are removed is it possible for them to grow back again? Is there any danger in not doing anything about a condition such as I have described? — E.S."

Not too long ago I answered a brief letter containing your last question. The answer is yours to let such a sign (the blood clots) go. Find out the reason. The reason may be trivial. It may be serious. But then when you know the cause, it is elementary to decide what to do.

To outline some of the serious, and not-so-serious possibilities, let's take up your question. Skin tags are not polyps. And piles are polyps.

Let's start with piles, or hemorrhoids. These are simply dilated veins —much the same as varicose veins. In fact, they are varicose veins, but they are in the anal area.

There are "internal hemorrhoids," meaning that they are near the anal opening. They may or may not protrude.

Now suppose an external hemorrhoid has been drained by a physician, or (as sometimes occurs with small ones, but not with large ones) it has succeeded in absorbing by itself. The skin tag is what is left — a tag of skin, resulting from the swelling which formerly existed. The skin tag is harmless.

POLYP IS A GROWTH

A polyp is a totally different critter. It is a growth, sometimes of somewhat mushroom-like shape, which grows from the mucous membrane. They may be in the rectal area, or higher up, in the colon.

They may, indeed, appear on the mucous membrane of your mouth, stomach or whatever. Once removed they usually do not grow again, although others may form, and sometimes they seem to come in clusters. But not always, by any means.

Often they are benign — but in the colon they may be a forerunner of a malignancy. Therefore, the sensible thing to do is to have them removed as a guard against cancer. Dr. Hiram E. Cosler, a great authority, has found such polyps to become cancerous in such a high percentage that he insists that in this area they should always be removed when found. Do you see? Have them out before they show any sign of being cancerous.

To return to the blood-spotting, that can be from any of these causes: Hemorrhoids, a fissure (or small crack in the skin), an ulcerated polyp or other ulcer, or even from a tumor. There need not be any pain at all to arouse the seriousness. Again, some of the trivial causes may, on the other hand, be painful. The only safe rule — the only rule I will suggest — is to have your physician find out the cause as soon as you notice any such spotting, and put your mind at ease.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please send 'Lost Secret of Reducing.' I am enclosing 5 cents and long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Thank you. P. S. Love you, love your column. Don't ever stop."

We love letter! My deep belief is that reducing is hardest always, for those of us who need it the most. Therefore I look at the facts of the problem and not fool any of the other jokers — and the "Lost Secret" is all fact.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you write something about Marie-Strumpell disease, what it is thought to be the cause and what to do about it? — C.B."

It is rheumatoid arthritis of the spine, akin to rheumatoid arthritis of any of the other joints — and its cause, therefore, is not known. The treatment and spinal arthritis is rather involved, of course.

Measles can be fatal to young children! For an explanation of the seriousness of this disease, write in care of this newspaper, requesting my pamphlet, "Measles, Mumps, Rubella." Please send en-close a large, self-addressed stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Consistency Is No Virtue

Ottawa Journal

Bertrand Russell has been taken to task by some critics because the views he holds now are not the same as he held 13 years ago. In the Spectator, Hamilton, Russell writes a guest editorial explaining why, 13 years ago, he opposed war which grows from the Soviet threat war against the Soviet Union and why he has been able to threaten them successfully sometimes now we understand must co-exist.

What interests us about this is not so much Russell's view on atom bombs and world peace but the stillness of people who put such a value on consistency. We have long felt that to make consistency a virtue is nonsense yet how often are we assailed because we ourselves do not think today as it did yester-day on some matter! Russell has the right answer.

"My critics seem to think that, if you have once adopted a certain policy, you should continue to advocate it after all the circumstances have changed. This is quite absurd. If a man sets out by train with a view to reaching a certain destination, and on the way he learns that the train is wrong, he will not consider the man guilty of an inconsistency if he gets off the train and employs other means of reaching his destination. In like manner, a man who advocates a certain policy in certain circumstances may very quite quite different policy in different circumstances."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two acquaintances of mine, living at least two hundred miles apart, have lately suffered t h e same bitter experience.

Each is a countryman. That is, they are city families which, in quest of what you might call gracious living, moved out of cities to farms; bought and remodelled old farm houses; sold most of the land, but retained a few acres to give them the feeling of countrymen.

An along came the provincial highway department and re-surveyed the roads in front of their farms in the process of widening them and converting them t o modern highways suitable for modern traffic.

And if there was anything more than modern traffic they w e r e trying to escape from when they moved to the country, my friends have not as yet discovered it. The improvement crews cutting down the streets of trees that line the highway. Along came the thundering bulldozers.

Trees need now practically cuts off their noses. Tranquility is gone. All day long, they have to be aware now of people in a hurry, swishing past.

Which is rougher? they want to know. "The natural economy of the welfare of the individual? The public right or the private right?"

My answer is: for Pete's sake, never live on a road.

Head for the hills.

Cow in Well Halts Firemen Fighting Fire

WELLINGTON (Special) — When the volunteer fire brigade of this lakeside village attempted to get water to put out a blaze, they found a cow blocking their way.

The cow had fallen through the rotting planking that covered a well, a few minutes previous to fire igniting the home of Gordon Beerwey, two miles northwest of here.

The firemen huffed and puffed and succeeded in extricating the animal. Then turning their attention to the fire they extinguished the blaze before the house was entirely demolished.

The fire started outside the Beerwey residence, originating, it is believed, by faulty wiring of an outside light.

Mrs. Berwey was awakened by her wheat she thought "was a heavy rain falling," which proved to be the crackling of the flames. She aroused the household and all reached safety.

An alarm brought the village fire brigade which succeeded in stopping the flames under control but not before extensive damage was done to the roof and walls of the house. Later damage was heavy in the lower floors of the frame home. No one was injured.

No one knew how long the cow had been in the well, but it was estimated only a short time. More serious results to the animal might have occurred if fire had not broken out in the Beerway home.

WANDERING

"I thought it was a seal and wondered where on earth it came from, but there it was. We were about 100 feet away from it as it swam into the lake and headed for open water. We couldn't tell where it was headed.

"But the general direction was towards Detroit, 45 miles away."

Two weeks after the Public Utilities Commission in London, which operates Springbank Park, made a vain attempt to intercept the sea lion, Thursday, ...

He slipped through their clutches at Wardsville, 17 miles above Chatham, although they were armed with cages, nets and a recording of a sea lion barking from the mate he left behind.

The hunt was abandoned when word came that the yearling had made open water.

"We've probably seen the last of the seal," said A. L. Furanna, manager of the commission. He added that another "Pinkys Californians" will be ordered, at a cost of $150, from the California Ocean Aquarium.

Seek Copper

A 1,000-ton salvage vessel, The Droxford, and her 32-man crew will spend the summer anchored off Gaspe in the Gulf of St. Lawrence seeking to salvage copper ingots on one-ton copper bars from two ships sunk during the Second World War.

Location of the ships, victims of German torpedoes, is shown on this map by two crosses. A cargo of copper from the ambers Greek freighter Mount Pindos was captured last summer from the same area. The Droxford is owned by Risdon Beazley Ltd. of England, world's largest deep-sea salvage firm. British diver Frank Higgins, working at 800 feet below the surface, set a record for deep-sea salvage last year. He will be working with the Droxford this year. The wrecks are 17 miles from the Gaspe coast.

Forest Fire Protection Demonstrated

TWEED — Parents and teachers of Tweed Consolidated Home and School Association met at the new Chief Ranger's office of the Department of Lands and Forests on Wednesday evening.

District Forester, Dick Passmore, welcomed the group to the newest Chief Ranger Division office in the Tweed district. The division came into being last summer and an office was built adjoining the former radio communication offices.

After the words of welcome, Lloyd Fiegel, acting Chief Ranger, was called upon to demonstrate the workings of this new division, the first part of which was the fire protection of the area. Then Hugh Dorman, supervisor of Fish and Wildlife told of the role the conservation officers play in relationship to trapping in the Tweed area.

The radio communications set-up was ably demonstrated by Gordon Fraser who also showed a new type of radio with which Frank Cole is experimenting for a special type of intercommunication with fire towers. To conclude an interesting tour, Mr. Fiegel took the group to the warehouse where all the fire fighting equipment is kept.

At the conclusion of the tour, the people drove back to the Tweed Consolidated School where the installation of officers took place with Mr. S. Howard Connor, principal of the T.C.V.S. conducting the installation ceremony.

The president, Mrs. Barker, thanked all those who had helped so faithfully during the year, and the secretary read the minutes of the last annual meeting as well as a report of the work undertaken this past year. The treasurer's report was given and the cups which were to be given out at the Field Day were displayed at this time.

The attendance banner went to Mrs. Jackson's room.

Stan Walter, the new president, called upon Mr. R. C. Passmore for a few words. The latter thanked the group for an opportunity to show them some work which is carried out in the Tweed district. Mr. Walter then thanked the retiring president and the past year's executive for a good year and expressed the hope next year would be as successful.

Stirling Turns Out Booklet for 100th Birthday

Stirling celebrates its 100th birthday this summer. And to commemorate the event gala festivities are planned. In order that visitors to the village and natives of Hastings County mark the centennial, a special committee has produced a souvenir book which is a credit to everyone, who had a part in its production.

The book, bound with metal rings, contains 108 pages of interesting data about the village and a goodly assortment of advertising from business firms, stores, associations and individuals.

Donald W. Rodgers, centennial committee chairman, has written a few remarks which are printed on the first page of the book. Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker has inserted his own personal note of congratulation, as has Lee Grills, MP for South Hastings; Elmer Sandercock, MP for West Hastings; Senator W. A. Fraser; Hon. Sidney E. Smith, MP for Hastings-Frontenac and Secretary of State for External Affairs, and Premier Leslie Frost.

The book is dedicated "to all those who have labored and built that we might live and live more abundantly."

Numerous articles on the history pertaining to the village of Stirling and its outlaying districts are included in the contents. The book will be read with great interest by people of all ages as it is filled with data that is not to be found readily available in the convoluted form elsewhere.

Contents of the book include such articles as the history of the village, the naming of Stirling, early settlers, general industries, general living conditions, Stirling as a trading centre, old buildings, firer, the fire department, the medical profession, lights, the telephone, telegraph, sports. Also included are histories of the various lodges and service clubs in the village.

Members of the centennial book committee are D. A. Montgomery, chairman, Mrs. W. T. Elliott, secretary; R. Rulin, H. Baker, J. B. Belshaw and Mrs. Roy Bush.

Scientist Away From Home 6 Yrs. Found in Hollywood

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — One day six years ago Albert Clark Read, a scientist at the California Institute of Technology, said goodbye to his wife, patted his son's head, left home —and disappeared.

The FBI, police, family and friends were baffled. The trail led 50 miles east of San Bernardino, then disappeared.

His wife, Florence, never gave up hope that he would return.

Wednesday he was discovered working as a groom at Hollywood Park here.

"I don't know why I left," he told reporters. "I was—still amnesiy and confused.

"The day I left I sold my car, took a bus and went to Phoenix. I got a job handling freight."

USED NEW NAME

Later he got a job handling horses and returned to California working at various tracks. His identity was discovered though a routine physical exam. He was using the name Alfred C. Reese.

"I'm still stunned," he said, "but I'm getting to feel a gradual relief that I will no longer have to live with this secret.

"It's a mixed up life. I can remember every detail of everything I have done for the last six years. But I can't tell you for sure why I left my wife and child."

Reed, 51, a Caltech graduate and Second World War test pilot, was working as an aeronautical consultant on a secret project when he disappeared.

Will he return to scientific work?

"I don't know," he said. "I love horses, you know. They're wonderful, intelligent, sensible creatures. I enjoy working with them."

But his homecoming was marked by sadness. He learned that his wife had died in December, 1955, of cancer, his son adopted by a cousin.

NATIVE ART

The MAYAS, aboriginal Indians of Yucatan, were skilled in stone carving and architecture.

SAYS LIBERALS

The prime minister said he was reading from a memorandum of the chiefs of staff committee, made up of the chiefs of the armed forces and a chairman, Gen. Charles Foulkes.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals had adopted a "strange and mystifying" attitude in "hogwash and dustcovers" on the NORAD matter. They had tried to scare people on the part of Canadians.

The main argument of the Liberal Opposition last week was that the agreement should have been submitted to Parliament for approval before NORAD itself was established. Mr. Pearson said his party supports the principle of collective defence.

Army, Navy Air Force L.A. Ends Season

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans in Canada held its monthly meeting on June 16 in the men's club room, Front St.

President Galbraith opened the meeting.

As this meeting was the last for the summer, there was no new business. Several of the comrades went to Ottawa on May 24 to attend the quarterly meeting of the Provincial Command. After the day's business session, the Ottawa Ladies' Auxiliary served a delectable dinner, followed by a social evening with program and dancing.

After church Sunday morning came a tour of the Parliament buildings, then lunch and home.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Ottawa unit for an enjoyable weekend.

A pot-luck supper was later enjoyed.

President Galbraith wished everyone a nice summer.

Teacher Says Children Should Start School at Age of Two

BY EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Children should start school at two years of age and not six, Mrs. Dorothy Stendahl, whose own three-year-old, Wardie, has already been in school for a year.

"True, at a little older is the age to start preparing children for primary school, and progressive work through nursery school and kindergarten is best, and so do I," said Mrs. Warren.

But not so Mrs. Fred Meyers with Mrs. Kenneth Gare and Mrs. Earl Stickle winning the prizes.

The hostess and conveners served refreshments including ice cream.

large size, shapes they can fit together, lots which are simple to assemble but don't fall apart and versatile enough to put to use in many ways.

Learning to paint is another activity children cannot always get at home.

Nursery school they have plenty of paint, paper and equipment, and they are supervised with paint without damaging the walls or furniture.

STARTING EARLY

Through the Ontario Council of Childhood Education children are encouraged to participate in playing with other children and learning accustomed to being away from the parents.

In kindergarten a child is "ready for" to classroom routine, so that when he enters grade school he is ready to sit at a desk all day.

"Going to grade school after the early years at home can be quite a shock to a child," said Mrs. Warren. Teachers working with very young children are convinced that early preparation for school is a tremendous help to the children, and to the primary trade teachers."

Wellman's WMS Marks 60th Anniv.

RAWDON — On Friday the members of Wellman's Women's Missionary Society on the Rawdon circuit entertained in honor of their 60th anniversary.

The church was decorated with a profusion of roses, peonies, and other flowers, making a beautifully decorated anniversary cake in shades of yellow and green was prominently displayed.

Over 150 ladies attended from Mount Pleasant and Bethel on the Rawdon charge, Stirling, Carmel, Brooks, Hillsboro, Sylvecrest, Springbrook, Eggleton, and Trenton.

Guests were received by Mrs. Arthur Brooks and Mrs. George Watson, and Mrs. Wilfrid Sine and Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins acted as ushers.

Mrs. John Cartisle, president of Wellman's W. M. S., presided and gave the call to worship. A hymn was sung with Mrs. Gerald Clancy at the piano accompanist. Mrs. Byron Seeley read the Bible lesson, and Mrs. Frederick Beckett led in prayer. Solution based on "God's Example." Mrs. James Pollock sang "Living For Jesus," and Mrs. Gerald Clancy led closed with another hymn.

Mrs. Jack Ferguson welcomed the large number of visitors. She paid tribute to those who pioneered in the W. M. S. organization that said 60 years of missionary work was quite an achievement.

A vocal duet was rendered by Mrs. Donald Heath with Mrs. Harold Pringle at the piano accompanist. Mrs. Ernest Spencer, Mount Pleasant, recited a poem, entitled "Missions Are A Pure White Star." Mrs. Oliver Willis and Mrs. V. Jarvis, of Springbrook rendered a vocal duet with Mrs. William Mathews as accompanist. A piano duet was rendered by Mrs. Arthur Pryar, of Carmel.

Pringle, Janet Louise, Moira, and her sister, Mrs. Frederick Beckett, sang "God Will It So," with Mrs. G. Tucker as accompanist. Mrs. Clayton, Thompson, of Hoards, gave a reading entitled "Missionary Builder." Mrs. G. Depon, of Eggleton, sang a solo, and was accompanied by Mrs. Marion Bonter. Mrs. Gordon Bailey and Mrs. Gordon Coleman, of Lisoodle, rendered a duet, with Mrs. Carman Silse as pianist. Mrs. William Petherick, Eglestone, played the accordion music. Mrs. William Wilkins, St. Pauls, Stirling, sang "Tell It My Task," with Mrs. Herb David as accompanist. The president declared the offering.

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Lincoln Ketcheson, president of Belleville Presbyterial.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. Elliott quoted a story from the book "Wide Windows," written by Mrs. Jean Thomas. This gave a moving description of the hardships endured by missionary auxiliaries years ago in various places in Canada.

"Grandmothers always found time to help build churches, and organize societies. Among those courageous women of the days of yore sacrificed to keep the W. M. S. alive," Mrs. Elliott said.

Mrs. Elliott then gave a few highlights of the recent Dominion Board meeting held in Toronto. There were 30 missionaries present on furlough or retired. Seven receiving appointments and four scholarship students in attendance at that meeting.

"It fairly is read of many unfinished tasks and that is just as true today as then," she said. "The large budget is for maintenance only and there is no provision made for building or necessary repairs.

She stressed it is easier to give money to a good cause then it is to give yourself, and said there is great urgency for consecrated men to share with those of other lands their knowledge and skills.

Mrs. Emma Rainie, a charter member of Wellman's W. M. S. was presented with a life membership of that organization and said the members were proud to be able to present their diamond jubilee.

She informed her audience that in 1957 Mrs. Lucy Thompson, retired missionary to Korea, was guest speaker at a circuit Women's Missionary Society at Wellman's Church.

She then displayed the first record book of the Wellman's Church W. M. S. and read a list of officers and charter members.

In June 1901 Mrs. Massey organized a W. M. S. at Mount Pleasant and Wellman's carried on with the old organization themselves. The names of several members of the first 25 years were read.

Several women who attended Wellman 40th anniversary in 1938 were also in attendance at the Diamond Jubilee.

Mrs. Oman Dracup gave a brief memorial tribute to those women of the early days who were deeply interested in women and children of other lands. That little group caught the vision of the great need to organize missionary societies all across Canada.

Their present membership is about 300,000 adults and 150,000 younger members, and the women's Missionary Society has an annual budget of over one and a quarter million dollars, she said.

"The W. M. S. is concerned for people, especially women and children all around the world," she said. "It is" concerned that the whole human family should know and accept the redeeming love of Christ."

She then read the aim and object of the W. M. S. This organization seeks to unite all women of the church for the World Mission of Christianity. The speaker stressed that to join a local W. M. S. in any congregation means a membership in the World Wide Mission and will be willing to share her talents, time, and money in promoting this great fellowship of world-wide enterprise.

Mrs. Dracup said the women have found that holding fast to these missionary visions has not always been easy. Missionary women are faced with indifference, and lack of funds but their lives should inspire the members of today to give time, talent, and money to help further the work, remembering the hymn "We Give Thee But Thine Own."

Mrs. Byron Seeley expressed thanks to all who had assisted on the program and to those who came to listen and enjoy the fellowship. The president also voiced thanks and closed with prayer.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of Wellman's W. M. S. and the anniversary cake was cut by Miss Emma Rainie.

Mrs. George Carlisle, president of St. Paul's, Stirling W. M. S. expressed thanks on behalf of the visiting groups.

Present district officers in attendance were: Mrs. Charles Johnston, Trenton, correspondence secretary; Mrs. Maurice Clancy, mission band secretary, of Eggleton; Mrs. Gerald MacMillan, literature secretary, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. George Carlisle, vice-president, Belleville west section; and past president, Mrs. F. Elliott, Tweed.

It is hoped all W. M. S. women in attendance at this 60th anniversary will have a renewed interest in their own organization as it seeks to carry on its world-wide missionary task, literature secretary, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. George Carlisle, vice-president, Belleville west section; and past president, Mrs. F. Elliott, Tweed.

Princess Beats Queen Again In Horse Race

The sisters rode — in riding pants and flying scarves — in a highly unofficial gallop at the Ascot race course near London.

It was Margaret's third straight victory over the Queen.

They took to the saddle in the morning, before the race crowds arrived. In addition to the royal sisters, the runners included the Duchess of Norfolk and Queen Frederica, Prince Philip, and the Duke of Gloucester.

Witnesses could not agree who came in first. But all agreed Margaret beat the Queen.

The royal contest actually was first. Another said the next went to the Duchess of Gloucester.

Prince Philip and the Duke of Gloucester, the Queen's uncle, were last.

Queen Victoria Brownie Pack Holds Banquet

The Brownies of the 5th Belleville Pack from Queen Victoria School recently entertained their mothers and special guests at a mother and daughter banquet which was held at St. Andrew's parish hall.

Tables were decorated with brown and yellow streamers, yellow tulips and iris. Each Brownie received a plaster emerald of a toadstool and brownie owl with their name and pack number on it.

The head table was also decorated with yellow tulips and iris and they were flanked by brown and green candles. The Brownies sat down to an excellent dinner which was served by Mrs. J. McKenna and helpers.

The Brownies introduced their respective mothers or guests.

Connie Sherrell thanked Mrs. McKenna for her hard work and presented a small token of the pack's appreciation to her.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Brown Owl Rita Minett introduced the guests at the head table: Mrs. James Sacrerbe; District Commissioner Mrs. Dalziel Cassidy; Tawny Owl Marjorie Little, and Area Commissioner, Mrs. Diamantides.

District Commissioner Mrs. Kuntze spoke briefly to the mothers urging them to co-operate in the formation of an auxiliary which in the fall would be divided into three areas of Belleville and district. Also to carry on by expressing her appreciation to the leaders for their efforts.

BADGES PRESENTED

The following badges and assistance stars were then presented by Commissioner Kuntze and Brown Owl Minett:

Golden Bar Badge and one year star to: Alice Bell, Gail Brock, Sharon Crane, Janet Downey, Marie Goulos, Evelyn Johnson, Donna Ridley, Sharon Sager, Tawny Christopher and Nancy Welsh. One year star to Hazel Kelly.

Golden Hand Badge and two year star to: Mary Diamantides, Joy Jeffcutt, Linda Hitchon, Cathy Gilchrist and Shelagh McCaughey. Two year star to Marie Bell.

Three year star to Katherine Kilbank and Judy Robinson.

Three year star and swimmers' badge to Judy Little.

Three year star collectors' and writers' badge to Rosalyn Minett and Carol McBride. Three year star and collectors' badge to Connie Sherrell.

The Brownies also entertained with three short sketches, the first one entitled the "Pot of Gold" was performed by first year girls, the second by the Brownies told of their "Golden Hand Adventure" and the final presentation was a one-act play enacted by the third year girls and called "The Midnight Burial."

Kathleen Kilbank and Connie Sherrell thanked Brown Owl and Tawny Owl for their able leadership during the past years, and they were each presented with a gift from the Brownies.

Graduation Gift

By TRACY ADRIAN

If youre wondering what to give your favorite girl graduate, here's a suggestion. This handsome piece is welcomed by any girl — and it will be equally useful whether she is going on to higher education or venturing into the business world.

The one pictured is a fine jeweled-lever Swiss watch that is tailored enough for daytime, yet goes right on after-five dates. It has a gold mesh band and one of the new oblong dials which are so easy to read at a glance.

Readers' Friday Column

as conducted by Mary Moore

Question: . . . woulo you help me out on two or three things? When making bread what factor contributes most to a fine texture . . . I make very good rolls and buns but cannot seem to get the same texture in bread . . . I find that 400 to 425 deg. is too hot . . . the top gets almost black . . . I have given up cannulizing sugar — it never works . . . on low heat after a long time it starts to harden in lumps like rocks and never melts . . . would love to make your caramel custard . . . Do you have a recipe for Eccles Cakes. How do bakers get so many good coconaut on the sides of a cake? Do they use a sort of spray gun. Throwing them on never seems to work . . . how long is it advisable to keep cooked bran, wheat germ and gelatine. I have some over two years old. Should I throw them out? . . . Margaret G.

Answer: Throw out the wheat germ for sure and get fresh, it would be better to get fresh bran too. The gelatine too, but deterioriate that I know of, if kept clean.

The fine texture of bread is det rmined mostly by kneading which requires about 6 to 8 minutes — which is a long time, but the dough itself is a better guide for it will look full and rounded, smooth, satiny and tightly stretched. You can see lit'l' gas bubbles under the surface. The dough should feel springy and elastic to the hands. Eighty-five deg. is ideal for rising temperature, but you can achieve this with a light bulb over the covered bowlful of kneaded dough. Or set the bowl in a deep pan of warm water that your hand is comfortable in. To test for "doubled in bulk" press 2 fingers deeply into dough. If holes remain when fingers are withdrawn, dough is likely doubled. Baking temperature is 400 deg. for 35 to 40 minutes. If this temperature burns the top of your loaf oven thermometer is not registering accurately or loaves are too near top of oven.

TO CARAMELIZE SUGAR

Stir 1 cup granulated sugar in frying pan over medium heat until a rich gold color. Continue stirring while you add slowly 1-4 or 1-2 cup boiling water (amount depends on purpose for caramel syrup) and sputtering and lumps subside and dissolve. Pour into jar and keep covered for future use.

The bakers put 10 or 15 lbs. of chopped nuts or cocoanut on a tray and pick up a handful and apply it to frosted sides of cake by patting — the excess falls to the table and is of course gathered up and applied again. This is not wasteful in a big operation, but might be considered so for one cake, especially if the nuts or cocoanut picked up bits of frosting before. Eccles Cakes' filling for Eccles Cakes: (Small quantity) One-half lb. sieved sponge cake crumbs, 1 lb. mixed currants, sultanas and peel, ¼ oz. spice, ½ cup molasses (light) or corn syrup, a little water to mix. This is spread between strips of puff paste, baked and cut in slices.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

A DIFFICULT SITUATION FOR ALL CONCERNED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My stepdaughter, 30 years of age, who teaches school and lives in a large city quite a distance from where we live, is engaged to a man whom none of her family has met. They met a few months ago. She is a lovely girl and active in a church in the city where she lives. She has never been here, but comes occasionally for a weekend and Christmas. Her mother died when her mother was now deceased, and we saw her once or twice a year.

Now she wants to come here to rest for a month or six weeks, and then, in August, be married here, wearing a formal white wedding dress, veil, and so forth. Her father (a cardiac case) has had a stroke and is too nervous to undertake a formal wedding here, a town in which she knows no one. He prefers that she have a quiet wedding in the city where she lives. May we have your comments, please?

Reader.

There are too many personal factors in this situation for anyone not familiar with all of them, to advise the wisest procedure. Since your husband's daughter "comes occasionally for a weekend," I should think she would have observed that her father is not in a state of health to take on any occasion that would be a strain, if he had been invited this, surely she will when she comes for a longer time to her home. However, we can't help wondering if perhaps, as she is happily making her plans for marriage, she longs to be married where h e r father can be with her at her wedding.

The fact that she is wishing to be dressed "like a real bride," white wedding dress, bridal veil and so forth, to mean a "formal wedding" . . . she may wear wedding dress and bridal veil, have the simplest of weddings, just their two attendants (o n e each), and yet wear a long white wedding would be too much for h i s strength, then you and your family should talk it over and decide by what is obviously t h e wisest course.

SHOULD WEAR HATS TO RELIGIOUS CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I have been invited to a garden wedding to take place in July. We practically never wear hats, but we think we should wear hats during this religious ceremony, just as we would in the ceremony were in the church. Right? — Else R.

Right.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. F. E. — Lorraine is too shy.

Lorraine .E — I don't feel like going out anyway.

Mrs. F. E. — I want to help my 16-year-old daughter who is having boy trouble — maybe I should call it lack-of-boy trouble.

Most girls of her age have gone out quite a bit, but Lorsine has only had two or three dates in her whole life. She is a nice-looking girl but she lacks confidence and is much too shy. I tell her she must speak up and she should not be afraid of approaching b o y s and talking to them, but she seems to hang back like a child when she meets boys.

She is a particular boy she likes and I told her she should go right over to him and start a conversation, and hint there was a particular movie in the neighborhood she wanted to see. She came home in tears and said he didn't pay the least attention to her.

Lorsine E. — I'm never going to pay any attention to Mother again. She tells me to do the craziest things. They don't work out the way she says they will.

This boy looked at me as though I was crazy when I suddenly stalked over to him out of the blue and started blabbing about this movie.

I am getting so sick and disgusted with myself that one thing I just don't feel like going o u t, anyway. I know I'm never up where I am with boys, but I can't help it. If they don't pay any attention to me, I'm never going to look at them.

It doesn't do me any good to talk to Mother about my problems because she starts yelling at me for being shy and backward. Then I hate myself for it, but I go on being the same way.

The Council: Mrs. F. E. c a n help her daughter by trying to be a bit calmer and more detached in discussing this whole thing for her daughter she is going overboard and sharing all the girl's own emotions.

She is hurt, humiliated and angry that Lorsine's encounters with boys are not successful and the intensified these feelings in the girl.

Because she is so identified with Lorsine's problems, Mrs. F. E. tries to act out various solutions as an imagined they ought to be. She would like to walk up to that boy herself and take charge of the situation from then on.

But she can't do that. Lorsine has to do it out of her own impulses and in her own way. She is not out of such a situation because she is acting a role that doesn't even come out of her own imagination.

If Mrs. F. E. will take a step back and look at the problem, she will see things are not so terribly serious. Lorsine shows she wants to meet boys and is merely going through some of the difficulties of finding her way in a new country. Some girls seem to know t h e right rules almost from birth. Most have to learn them and some never do. but a girl w h o wants to find it as much as Lorsine appears to will eventually have some success.

In the meantime, Mrs. F. E. should try to get Lorsine to calm down and to join clubs and church groups where she can meet boys in a relaxed atmosphere.

She should be encouraged to be active in everything that interests her. Gradually she will find herself making friends without even thinking about it.

Hand-Braided Rugs Glorify Home

New Technique for Floor Coverings Is Described

By VIRGINIA F. WALTERS

Why not surprise the man of the house by making a wool rug? These braided, reversible floor coverings are worth about $500 in a 9 by 12 size, they're fun to do, and last virtually forever.

A new technique is unique in that each braid is connected separately, rather than being just one long succession of braids with the color changing at each end.

Plan the rug first, the size can be anywhere from 3 ft by 5 ft to 15 ft. by 18ft. You may prefer a solid color, but it is less tedious to work with several colors.

Decide whether the rug is to be a thick one, requiring suiting material, or of average thickness in which almost any wool material may be used.

Cut the material in 1½ inch strips to fit in special braiders which fold the raw edges of the material on the inside. There is an inexpensive gadget that fits on your scissors and cuts the material the exact width.

After the material is cut, roll it according to color. Figure the size of a centre piece for an 8 by 10 ft. rug this way: subtract one dimension of the rug from the other—8 from 10, for instance, leaving 2. Multiply the figure by 2 and add 6 inches.

The result: You need 4 feet (2 multiplied by 2) 6 inches (the 6 inches added) of braid for your first piece. Fold it in half, side by side, and connected. This extra 6 inches are allowed for waste in connecting the braid end to end.

The second braid is connected end to end, then the third and so on. Start braiding, placing it around the preceding braid, allowing about six extra inches for the connecting braid.

In using metal braiders, keep the folded end to your left. No folds, stitches or raw edges will be visible. When material is inserted, cut it first at a diagonal. Then it will run easily through the opening of the braider.

Pin the top of the braid together, so it won't work itself loose. It will remain tight if you use a furniture clamp at the beginning of the braid, moving it as your braid gets larger.

When you almost reach the end of the strip, cut the end off at a diagonal. Take the same colored material, cut it at a diagonal opposite the angle of the other one. It is best to use a baseball stitch with strong carpet thread, and butt joints.

When two strips are butted (joined), the stitch will not be visible. When the braid is long enough to fit around the previous braid, plus six inches, stop braiding. Cut end of the braid so it will not come loose, and you are ready to add another row.

Attach braids to the rug with a special weaving needle, using heavy waxed linen thread. Insert the needle through the top of the rug first. (Any part from the centre piece on is considered the rug.) Tie a square knot at the end of the thread, leave about 3 or 4 inches of thread beyond the knot for the purpose of tying it to the other end of thread from the last of the braid as it is brought around and joined together.

The end of the thread from the beginning of the braid, tied with the end from the last part of the braid, is what keeps the braid together. Most of the end of the thread is clipped away, with a handful or so tucked invisibly between the loops of the braid.

Weave thread through the rug, then braid, then through the rug again, as you go along. The thread should be woven through every loop of the rug, whereas at the curved ends some loops of braid being attached are skipped at top and bottom to allow for fullness. This permits the rug to lie flat without buckling.

HOW TO TIE SQUARE KNOT

Use your own judgment as to where to skip, but do not skip more than two loops at each curved end. (A square knot is tied right over left, turn under and then left over right — and under. Then pull tight. This type of knot will not pull apart.)

The purpose of leaving the extra six inches on each braid is that one must cut off part of the braid for each end when connecting and the braid must be continuous, without the connected part being noticeable.

Before making this cut, secure the end of the braids with safety pins — pin the matching strand of material from one end to the matching strand of the other. Each strand must be cut at a diagonal then, just as in the butting process mentioned before.

Pull that part of the braid tight, so there will be at least an inch and a half of material to hold on to while butting the sections. After connecting the braids at a diagonal, fold to the left, then stitch sides of small section together — about two inches.

Go on to the second strand of braid, then third, repeating the process. When three sections are joined, pull braid to normal looseness and your row is completed. No one will detect the joining place. Weave the last section of connected braid to the rug, tie the ends of thread together to add on to your rug, and proceed to the next row.

Hedge as Fence Builds Itself

Hedges have been called fences that build themselves. They can be used as screens for privacy and for windbreaks.

Masses of shrubbery can be used north and west of driveways and walks to trap snow and reduce snow shovelling work.

Hardy hedges can be formed with privet, common barberry, forsythia, weigela, bayberry and small viburnums. Rugged evergreens often are used for snow fences along highways — Canadian hemlock, Austrian pine and Norway spruce. These call for careful landscape planning, however, since they eventually grow to block summer breezes.

Water Softener Is Now Standard In Many Homes

Water softeners are becoming standard equipment in many modern homes. In hard water areas, new units have been found to pay for themselves in savings in soap and detergents.

The Water Conditioning Foundation reports that in a typical area where water is moderately hard, as much as 1 1-3 pounds of soap may be destroyed for every 100 gallons of water used in bathing, laundering and house cleaning.

When soap is added to hard water, a certain amount of the soap is used up in taking the hardness out of the water. This is so much lost soap as far as washing effectiveness is concerned.

An objectionable by-product of soap in hard water is the familiar soap scum which shows up as a ring in the bathtub, a dull film on freshly washed silver and glassware and a gray overcast on laundered linen.

In many communities water softeners are rented by the month from established service organizations.

BRICK IS BEAUTIFUL

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

A brick home has several virtues.

The brick's beautiful and, even more important, it requires little upkeep. There's no need to schedule a painting job every two years. Brick stays attractive almost forever.

All this is reason enough why both of today's homes are good bets.

FOR NARROW LOT

Design H-365-KF, pictured above, is ideal for a narrow lot. It's 29 feet, 4 inches wide.

From the entry, you can step, at right, into the living room, then has an exit to a hall, where there's a side door, a stairway to the basement and an entrance to the attached garage.

Design H-328-KF comprises 23,686 cubic feet.

a good-sized area with a corner picture window, two small side windows and a huge fireplace.

To the left of the entry is a dining room, adjacent to the efficiently-arranged kitchen.

At the back of the house two bedrooms and a bath open off a centre hall that provides access to the living room or kitchen. In the hall, there's also a stairway going down to the full basement, where there's a storage room, a separate fruit room, a large recreation room and heating and laundry facilities.

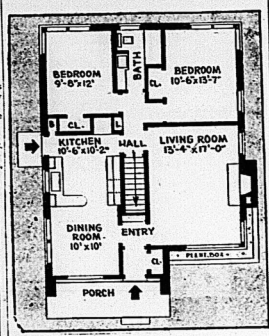
Design H-365-KF comprises 20,496 cubic feet.

TWO-BEDROOM PLAN

The second house, H-328-KF, is another brick two-bedroom plan. The bedrooms are at right, each a corner room and cross-ventilated.

The living room's at front with a fireplace, flanked by bookcases, highlighting a side wall. It opens on the dining room, which is adjacent to the kitchen. Both kitchen and dining room look out on the back yard.

The dining room opens on the rear terrace, while the kitchen has an exit to a hall, where there's a side door, a stairway to the basement and an entrance to the attached garage.



BOTH BEDROOMS and the bath are at back in H-365-KF. At front are living and dining rooms. The kitchen adjoins the dining area.

Do It Yourself

Stair Remodeling Easy For Amateur Carpenter

By J. RALPH DALZELL

Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Many readers are planning to remodel attics and basements and have asked how to improve the stairs leading to them. Two procedures can be followed, and the work is easy to do and materials are not expensive.

Picture V shows typical stairs with their parts named. Basement stairs seldom include the wall boards or the risers between treads. Attic stairs usually have both items involved. Where wallboards and risers are not included, follow this procedure:

Remove badly worn or dished treads and have a woodworking mill or shop sand them flat and smooth. After replacing them on the stringer cut pieces of quarter-inch plywood to form risers. Nail them to the vertical edges of the stringers. Fill cracks, nail holes and the like with spackle or water putty and paint or enamel to suit.

More attractive improvements can be made on stairs having wall boards. If treads are worn have them sanded as explained. Add risers if necessary. If the stairs squeak, nail the treads securely to the stringers. Asphalt tile will improve the appearance of the stairs. Fit the tile to each tread separately as shown in picture W. Spread the recommended adhesive on the treads and apply the tile. Nail half-inch quarter rounds against the risers and screw metal nosing strips along the nosings to help keep the tile in place. Then paint or enamel the risers and wall boards as preferred.

HOW TO STOP SQUEAKS

Picture X shows typical details of the under side of stairs. Picture Y shows the grooves in a stringer. The ends of the treads and risers fit into these grooves and are held in place by picture X.

The glued joints of wedges and blocks sometimes break loose and allow the treads to spring when walked on. This causes squeaks. If the under side of the stairs is open locate all loose wedges. Apply glue to them and then drive them solidly into place. Apply glue to loose blocks and nail them into position again with small finishing nails through them and into the treads and risers.

When repair work cannot be done from the under side, use two-inch finishing nails to fasten all squeaking treads and risers about two and a half inches apart as at point A in picture Z. Drive the nails diagonally through the treads and into the risers. Use a nail set to sink the nail holes and fill them with plastic wood stained to match the stair finish. If squeaking persists, drive finishing nails diagonally through the risers and into the treads as blocks and wedges shown in picture X.

Q. — Should I use asphalt tile where grease is likely to be spilled?

A. — No. Grease will damage the tile.

WIRE SHELLACKING

If you are making wire connections, coating the bare wire with thinned, white shellac will protect and insulate the wire.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. — How can grease spots be removed from new wallpaper?

A. — Mix fuller's earth with a commercial spot-removing liquid. Apply the paste a quarter of an inch thick over grease spots, let it dry, and remove with a soft brush. Repeat if necessary.

Sunday School Lesson

It Is Not a Private Affair

By ROY L. SMITH

There is great need of clear thinking on a variety of matters which are, just now, the subject of much discussion in the public press as well as private conversation. The American people, for example are dedicated to the proposition that every man is entitled to liberty and freedom. Thomas Jefferson's great sentence, "That government is best which governs least" is cited in defence of much restlessness.

NO COMPLETE LIBERTY

There is a simple fact which is overlooked in much discussion of the question of freedom. In any organized society it is necessary to sacrifice some lesser liberties in order to be assured of the larger freedom.

The white line down the centre of the pavement is the symbol of organized society and liberty guaranteed under the law. As taxpayers we own as much of the pavement on one side of the road as we do on the other side. But as good citizens we surrender the right to drive where we please in order to gain the right to drive on one side in some reasonable safety.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 22: "Who Are The Strong?" Judges 6:1—8:23; 13—16.

T.is principle of surrendering the lesser liberty for the sake of gaining the largry freedom goes down to the very bed-rock of good government. A people who cannot discipline themselves are sure to find themselves disciplined by tyrants.

DRINKING IS NOT PRIVATE

This week's Sunday school lesson is draped about the story of Samson, the Hebrew giant, whose private quarrels with the Philistines involved the nation in great hazards. The whole story is a perfect illustration of the fact that a man's private interests may become matters of great public concern.

"What I drink is my own business. This is a free country, and no one has a right to interfere with me in my private affairs."

The argument is freely used in connection with the whole matter of alcohol, and is both indefensible on logical grounds and impossible as citizenship procedure.

No man's drinking is ever strictly private. The hostess, for example, who serves liquor and sends drivers out on the highway with alcohol in their bloodstream has incrased public hazards. The drinking driver who becomes a public menace increases the insurance rates for every abstainer. The drinker who contributes to the problem of absenteeism in industry raises the cost of living for all men. In an almost interminable list of situations the drinking of the individual becomes a matter of public interest, and even of public concern, in the end the non-drinker pays the costs of all drinking, along with the drinker.

SPIRITS AND THE SPIRIT

There is a theory, widely accepted today, concerning the problem of alcoholism, which says in effect that, the drinker is one who, feeling a lack within himself, turns to alcohol to fortify himself.

It is one of the fundamentals of the Christian faith that there is a spiritual power available which will enable the individual to face even the worst that life has to deal us, and which will enable him to overcome difficulties.

The case is, therefore, relatively simple. Either we turn to spirits or The Spirit.

One of the difficulties that most of us face in seeking divine help is the fact that such help is given only to those who are willing to accept the responsibility of disciplining themselves. He who expects the Spirit of God to enter in upon his life must be prepared to live the kind of life that will be acceptable to a God of purity and justice.

He who turns to spirits enjoys a brief release from his anxieties, but when he returns to sobriety, he finds all his problems awaiting him, and some of them have incubated during the period of intoxication so that they are vastly multiplied.

Champlain Lived and Died Unaware He Started First White Settlement in Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—The man who founded Quebec City 350 years ago lived and died unaware that he had started the white man's first permanent settlement in Canada.

Festivities and ceremonies in the old city start June 21 to mark the anniversary of the landing at Quebec of Samuel de Champlain and 26 men on July 3, 1608. The little expedition, sailing in a barque from a French-operated fur - trading post at Tadoussac 125 miles down the St. Lawrence River, started to build a home and fort on the point of Quebec.

Champlain hoped the move would be a step toward the establishment of a permanent commercial colony in the new world.

VISION OF CITY

In his writings—they comprise six large volumes—he visualized a city in the St. Charles River Valley, a rolling area just behind the rock promontory that is the site of Quebec City today. He would be called Ludovica—Latin for Louis—and would be guarded by a bastion on the point of Quebec.

With expert judgment he picked out of the area that centuries ago bordered the St. Lawrence spots suitable for settlement. In addition to Quebec, he chose sites on which Montreal and Trois-Rivieres were built.

Only eight of the 29 pioneers survived the first winter before Champlain ordered one man "strangled and hanged" for conspiring to sabotage the expedition. He argued and pleaded with his financial backers in France, men who had put up money in the hope of fast profits from furs. He urged France to send settlers to North America to establish a full colony.

It is one of the quirks of history that when he died in 1635, he was unaware he had the foundation of a French colonial empire that lasted more than 100 years and permanently implanted French culture in North America.

CIVIC COMMITTEE

There were 150 French on "la pointe de Quebec" to mourn his death, a pitifully poor lot with little support from France while British - founded Boston, settled only five years before his death, had a population of 2,000 and Jamestown, in Virginia, was the centre of a British colony of 6,000.

Champlain died without knowing the king of France was to dismiss him from his post as governor. Louis XIII, ignorant of Champlain's death, issued a decree removing him from office three weeks after his burial.

Thus died the man whom historians have placed among the top figures in the exploration and settling of the New World.

But, with the passing of time, Champlain has emerged as a bold man, bold in his vision of a prosperous colony in a continent his contemporaries ridiculed as a wasteland, bold in the way he dedicated his life to his dream.

Champlain was born in Brouage, France. The date of his birth—probably between 1567 and 1570 — and his parental background are still a matter of debate. Possibly he was born and raised a Huguenot. Certainly many of his early associates were Huguenots or Calvinists, but he was a Roman Catholic during his adult life.

PROTECTED AT COURT

Historical documents show he enjoyed special protection in French court circles. He was raised a marine and a good rapher and apparently travelled extensively before undertaking a first trip to North America in 1602.

He sailed up the St. Lawrence, exploring the Saguenay River, adding Trois-Rivieres as a "place proper for inhabiting" and stopping at Montreal. Farther west Indians pointed to the Ottawa River and indicated that, still farther on, there was a large body of water. In Champlain's mind, he had found the western passage to the riches of the Orient.

But he was unconvinced it could be reached easily. And, in 1604, when he returned to North America a second time he and the leaders of the expedition headed for the Atlantic coast where an unsuccessful attempt was made to settle, especially at Port Royal, now Annapolis Royal, N.S.

When the French abandoned the seacoast, Champlain talked his backers into returning up the St. Lawrence and it was after leaving his ship at Tadoussac that he set out for Quebec with the authority to set up a fur-trading post, but determined to start a colony.

RIGID PERIOD

From that time on, his life became a succession of disappointments, failures and tragedies.

The British adventurers, the Kirke brothers, captured Quebec in 1629 and held it for three years before surrendering it the French. During this period Champlain returned overseas to make sure France would not simply cede the area to the British by default. He was his point and returned to Quebec, but up to the time of his death, settlers he was accompanied were few.

In —1610, Champlain married Helene Boulle, a 12-year-old girl and a Calvinist. The marriage brought him a handsome dowry which helped finance his voyages.

The girl, baptized a Roman Catholic in 1613, came to Quebec in 1620 but returned to France in 1624. There were no children.

St. Helen's Island, near Montreal, was named after the child bride.

Bank Committee Sits While House In Session

OTTAWA (CP) — A motion authorizing the Commons banking committee to sit while the House is in session was carried on a vote of 19 to 52 in the Commons Thursday.

In a 15-minute debate the combined Liberal-CCF forces opposed the motion on the ground that the need for committee meetings while the House is sitting has not been shown. They were concerned that concurrent Commons and committee sittings would over - extend their thin ranks. The 25-seat House has 48 Liberals and eight CCF members.

There was some name-calling, touched off by Work Minister Green, government House leader, who said the Liberals were "whining" but not very successfully. The CCF, he charged, had "lifted a number" of Liberal amendments when the House was in session.

Howard Green — "Jest a Second" — said Mr. Green had merely proven he had been "thoroughly disciplined" when he was in opposition.

Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said that the duplicate sittings should not be requested "by a government that knows that they now did to sit Moodays and Fridays "instead of Wednesdays, to be known as T-to-T members"—MPs who get out of the Commons for the Thursday-to-Tuesday Liberal party.

MINISTER REPLIES

Mr. Green, whose Conservative party is in favor of its successful 1957 election campaign on promises for the Atlantic provinces, disrespect for Parliament, rose to reply.

"We're not going to be bluffed by all this phoney talk about the House not being properly interfered with," he said.

The motion was a routine and proper one, presented by committees under Liberal governments and Conservative ones. It was repeated assurances that committees would not meet at the same time as the Commons unless it was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Winch asked if the Liberals, said Mr. Green, "backed up by their colleagues in the ushers of the House" (the CCF), were merely a smokescreen to try to convince the public the government was being unfair to Parliament.

Mr. Howard said Mr. Green's speech showed the minister's skill at forging the issue with smoke screens.

Nasser Must Approve Before Hammarskjold Can Move

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The bitter truth about Dag Hammarskjold's mission to Lebanon is that he won't be able to do anything unless President Nasser approves.

The United Nations secretary-general has won remarkable personal respect through his efforts at "quiet diplomacy" but few believe he can take the pressure of Lebanon unless Nasser is willing.

This is just another way of saying that Hammarskjold's hands will be tied unless Russia will cooperate with him, since Nasser now is generally thought to be among Soviet camp followers.

That the unbridled prestige of the United Nations can be reinterpreted in a crisis between East and West has been shown in Hungary.

The UN committee on Hungary has succeeded in bringing to the world a sounding board of indignation, practically speaking, in regard to the Russian suppression of the Hungarian uprising of 1956. And the committee continues to be used in the bald announcement of the execution of Imre Nagy and his leadership.

There is an essential difference in that the UN Hungarian committee was never allowed to conduct an on-the-spot investigation in Hungary while Hammarskjold and his officers now have free movement in Lebanon.

There's an even more essential difference in the case of the UN Emergency Force in Egypt. Israelis and Arabs alter the Suez picture.

It is possible that Nasser and his planners in the United Arab Republic figured that his arms had already been substantially achieved before they agreed to the visit of UN observers to Lebanon.

Certainly the pan-Arab plans of Nasser are being served by the fact that the Lebanese fight has taken on aspects of a religious war between Christians and Moslems.

Since practically the whole Lebanese population is composed of Arabs, religious conflict will almost definitely work to the benefit of Nasser. If the Egyptian dictator succeeded only in splintering the Moslem power group from the pro-Western Lebanese government, he would achieve a victory—and so would his Communist friends in Moscow.

If the Lebanese regime of President Camille Chamoun were toppled, Nasser would win only in a victory but a coup in his Middle East political campaign.

It is increasingly clear that in Nasser Russia has captured the most popular figure in the Middle East and has found no such candidate to command Arab popular feeling.

PM Opens Privy Council Room To 30 Children

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker opened up his heart — and the Privy Council Chamber—to 30 Toronto school children Thursday. He even made two of them temporary acting prime minister.

The boys and girls were from the Grade VIII class taught at Scarborough's Eastview Public School by 23-year - old Donald Weir, Mr. Diefenbaker's stepson-in-law.

The ecstatic youngsters are here on a three-day junket, for which they raised $800 by running doughnut sales, turkey raffles, dance recitals and a fun fair, held in the school.

Besides getting a thorough class on parliamentary procedure, taught personally by the prime minister, they have visited the Parliament Buildings, the Mint and are staying at Ottawa's finest hotel.

After their 45-minute session with the prime minister, during which he received them in his private office and then took them into the Privy Council Chamber, they drove out to have a picnic lunch with Mrs. Diefenbaker at the prime minister's official residence.

SITS IN PM'S CHAIR

Mr. Diefenbaker invited 14-year-old Keith Reed to sit in his East Block office chair while the group was being photographed.

Noticing that Murray Greenwood was too small for the swiveling chair, Mr. Diefenbaker called the youngster back into the circle and asked the schoolmaster if another shot so that Murray would have a picture with his own face showing.

In the cabinet room Mr. Diefenbaker placed 14-year-old Allan Hawley in the prime minister's chair, and then identified to the youngsters each of the portraits of oval table whose cabinet part each was playing.

The prime minister then impressed upon the pupils that they must be ready to step behind before Canadians. "I never saw it myself until I became prime minister," he told them.

37,500-Acre Greenbelt for Ottawa Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Government backing to provide Ottawa with a 37,500-acre greenbelt ring curbing urban growth has been announced.

An official of the Federal District Commission, charged with handling the 25 - year plan for beautifying Canada's capital, called it a far-reaching action to assist what may be an international first in urban development.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday in the Commons that the government is prepared loan the money to acquire Ontario land running three-quarters of the way around Ottawa. Parliament's approval will be asked this session.

He set no price but the FDC has spent about $15,500,000 to date on acquiring land in the greenbelt area and estimated two years ago that buying the remainder would cost in the neighborhood of $20,000,000. Purchase of the thinly-populated land may be finished in several years.

WITHIN FIVE MILES

Under the original 1950 plan, the greenbelt would contain a population of about 600,000 within five miles of Parliament Hill. Present population would flow to satellite towns beyond the belt.

Ottawa's current population for the city proper is listed as 222,000 and that of the metropolitan area at about 345,000.

Between 500 and 600 owners are affected in the greenbelt, most in the neighboring townships and Nepean and Gloucester. They would be offered current market prices and farmers displaced would be encouraged to remain on their lands at fair rentals.

Serious Crop Losses Loom As Drought Hits West Areas

WINNIPEG (CP) — Drought is threatening to cause serious crop losses in Canada's western breadbasket.

Hay crops in some areas already are reported almost beyond help.

More than one - half of the West's 70,100,000 cultivated acres are affected. Worst threat is in an area south of a line through Medicine Hat, Alta., Saskatoon and Ozmi, Man. However, one bright spot is that farmlands in most of Alberta and parts of northwestern Saskatchewan hold the promise of a good harvest.

Manitoba faces the worst pasture and feed problem since 1936. Saskatchewan officials also foresee a serious feed problem next winter.

Only a general penetrating rain —almost immediately—can avert a farming disaster.

Cool weather during the last three weeks and a good supply of subsoil moisture, especially in heavy and summerfallow land, has helped carry crops through the spring drought.

Because most grass and pastures in the southern sections have suffered heavily from lack of rain, farmers are being forced to livestock as a means of disposing of feed. They may face big losses in bad grain years also will be hard hit.

The provincial Saskatchewan officials to put into effect an emergency fodder plan and to ask Prime Minister Diefenbaker what federal aid would be forthcoming.

A department of agriculture spokesman said hopes were pinned on a general rain which would permit farmers to plant late catch crops such as millet and corn to replace non-existent hay supplies.

Without immediate relief there was the prospect of a run on the feed cattle market—and a drop in milk production.

$4 Million Spread For Destroyers At Shipyards

OTTAWA (CP) — Estimated cost of destroyers of the same class will be spread among three shipyards varies by as much as $4,000,000 or more, Defence Minister Pearkes disclosed Thursday as Commons estimates went before committee.

He gave estimated cost figures for the Restigouche class destroyer, six of which are being built in five different shipyards. The seventh, the Restigouche herself, was commissioned earlier this month.

Estimated cost of the Gatineau, being built at Lauzon, Que., was $17,152,000 while the estimate for the Terra Nova, exactly the same type of ship, was $21,839,000. The Terra Nova is being built by Victoria Machinery Depot.

In reply to A. D. Hales (PC—Wellington South), Mr. Pearkes said there is no fixed price arranged between the shipyards and the defence production department before construction begins.

Mr. Pearkes said destroyer contracts are not let by tender. They were allocated to the various shipyards. This was considered desirable to maintain a nucleus of trained shipbuilders if expansion was required as it had been in 1950.

"That is not a satisfactory way to spend the taxpayers' dollars," Mr. Hales said.

Bingo Becomes Big Business With Prizes, Cash Profits Reaching Millions Annually

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An anti-bingo campaign spearheaded by the United Church in Newfoundland has drawn attention to the fact that the pastime has become big business in Canada with prizes and profits running into the millions of dollars annually.

Once considered a child's game, it now is almost exclusively an adult affair. Prizes range from household gadgets to cars and $15,000 homes.

Both the United Church and Anglican Church have petitioned Parliament to make all bingo illegal. But as the law stands, religious and charitable organizations are permitted to conduct the games occasionally without fear of court action.

There is no interference with bingo games permitted at fall fairs such as the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto or where shouts of "bingo" and the drone of the numbers-caller can be heard on the Midway from morning to night.

GAME A TRADITION

A spot check by the Canadian Press of bingo operations in about a dozen large and small communities shows the game is thriving with only a few cases of legal action against promoters.

The United Church opposition made itself felt in Newfoundland several months ago when it protested a weekly bingo and succeeded in having it closed. Also, a well-organized profes sional promoters were running the game and handling little of the proceeds to charity.

More recently the church's Newfoundland conference adopted a resolution saying "present-day general and illegal bingo in particular is spreading to the larger and smaller centres of Newfoundland and has reached such proportions as the Corner Brook Lions Club's mammoth with prizes in excess of $10,000."

A resolution called on Attorney-General L. R. Curtis to enforce the Criminal Code and he issued orders to the RCMP to stop a Lions bingo scheduled for June 6 in Corner Brook, disappointing an estimated 5,000 persons who came to play. The following day the Mounties told the Corner Brook Chamber of Commerce bingo that day would also have to be cancelled.

TOPPED ADVERTISING

The Corner Brook general followed up by asking an investigation of disposal of proceeds of a St. John's bingo. Also, other bingos in Corner Brook and St. John's and warned a St John's newspaper that bingo advertisements would not be permitted in future.

However, small bingos are reported still being held in Corner Brook.

The Criminal Code section 179, makes it illegal, among other things, "dispose of any goods, wares or merchandise by any game, lot, chance or any games of mixed chance and skill in which the contestant pays money."

But clause 2B of section 168 says a place is not a common gaming house if it is used "occasionally by charitable or religious organizations for the purpose of playing games" and "no person receives any profit directly or indirectly from the playing thereof, or any part of the proceeds thereof is to be used for a charitable, religious object."

The meaning of the word "occasionally" apparently is loose enough that the Criminal Code can permit as much bingo-playing as they want. However, some organizations, including the Waterloo, Ont., Chamber of Commerce have petitioned the ministry of justice for a clearer definition of the term.

Bingo is a major fund-raising activity for many service clubs. In Ottawa it's a $500,000-a-year business for the Lions, Kinsmen and Richelieu Clubs and the Canadian Legion. The games held under police licence attract more than 50,000 players a year. One coming outdoor game will have a $15,000 house as top prize and more than 8,000 persons are expected.

MANY OPERATE

H. F. Dix of Bazaar and Novelty Company, a Toronto firm renting bingo equipment, says between 25 and 30 games operate each week in the city with prizes from $5 to $50. Some Catholic parish organizations are frequent sponsors and Mr. Dix says although every parish in the city holds at least one bingo.

In the Kitchener-Waterloo area of Ontario, fans can play the game nearly every night of the week. Cash prizes range from $500 to $3,000 plus a new car at most games.

Four service clubs alternate in sponsoring bingos fortnightly at the Kitchener auditorium and the event is the biggest single drawing card at the Arena, attracting an average of 2,500 players, more than winter hockey games.

J. M. Harper, acting crown attorney, says as long as there are no complaints, no charges will be laid.

In cities in other parts of Canada the story is generally the same.

London's Bus Strike Ends

LONDON (Reuters)—London's marathon bus strike today closed down 40,000 bus workers voted to return to work.

The seven-week strike ended as a majority of the capital's 116 garages and four maintenance depots agreed to accept new wage proposals made by the government-owned London transport commission.

Meanwhile, 3,500 London dock workers—idled for weeks by the striking Stevedores—today voted unanimously to return to work Monday.

The bus strike stemmed from a dispute at Aldenham, central meat market. Stevedores came out in sympathy with meat truck drivers and the stoppage spread to 32,000 dockers. Of these, 13,000 returned to work this week.

Cannot Count Operating Room Instruments

HALIFAX (CP) — Spokesmen for the Canadian Medical Association say surgeons cannot keep counts after surgery are impossible.

Dr. G. W. Armstrong, president of the Canadian Medical Protective Association, said Thursday it is risky probing for instruments in a patient's body and time which could be used in completing an operation would be wasted.

"The count is just not feasible at all," Dr. Armstrong said in an interview. "It is a greater risk to submit hundreds of thousands of patients to X-rays. There is involved.

"From the operating room's point of view, it is not possible to carry it out. By the end of the operation, the surgeon himself hasn't an accurate count."

He was commenting on a recent incident at an Ottawa hospital in which forceps were accidentally left in a patient's abdomen.

LEBANON REVOLT CONTINUES

Two Lebanese soldiers run on the root-top terrace of a parochial school at Tripoli to firing positions as fight goes on between the army and rebels. The terrace overlooks the old city, stronghold of rebels. There are sandbags against the balustre. President Chamoun has asked that U.N. forces take over the protection of Lebanon, accusing other Arab countries of supplying arms to the rebels.

Forty-one years of teaching at the public school of Stoney Creek, Ont., have ended in retirement for R. L. Hyslop but his name will be perpetuated in the school itself. At a testim dinner, 600 persons attended, many of them fathers and who were taught by Mr. Hyslop. "Education official" years of service were a record in Canada and acc naming of the school in his honor. Before his offi Mr. Hyslop joined his pupils for his last game

Says Shrubb: "There's life left in the old man yet. I think I shall be able to get my knees up a bit."

Ginger C. was second, beaten by a neck, and the favored Turn of Me Loose was almost three lengths back.

Jet Marine, which has a habit of stopping after speeding out of the gate on top, never faltered in the six furlong race. The chestnut covered the distance in 1:10 3-5.

Mike DeJohn Fights Baker

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Mike DeJohn, a handsome heavyweight with a great potential, is a 7-to-5 choice to whip hulking Bob Baker of Pittsburgh in a 10-round boxing bout tonight.

A hot contender eight months ago, the 26-year - old Syracuse slammer ran beside a decisive victory over the 31-year - old Baker to get back in the limelight.

DeJohn scored a sensational one-round knockout over then unbeaten Alex Miteff of Argentina last October. Mike appeared to be the dynamic new personality the drab heavyweight division needed so badly.

But the easy-going youngster was beaten by a decision by Cuba's Nino Valdes last April.

Tonight's fight will be televised by NBC starting at 10 p.m. EDT.

LONDON (AP) — An Indian, an Australian and a Swede Thursday knocked out the last two Americans seeking the men's singles title at the Queen's Club tournament—final warmup event before the big Wimbledon championships.

Today Darlene Hard plays Miss Varner and Miss Snow meets the South African champion, Bernice Carr.

Thursday's play, which also resulted in the third round elimination of Australia's Neale Fraser, seeded third for Wimbledon, and Ham Richardson, Cincinnati, in a men's semi - final which includes two Australians, Anderson and Bob Mark. Lundquist and the South African left-hander, Abe Segal.

Lundquist was the big surprise. He upset Fraser 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the third round, then went on to beat Shea.

Birds' Bonus Bill Heavy

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Paul Richards' conviction that he has a shot at a winning baseball team is to develop your own players has cost Baltimore Orioles in the neighborhood of $600,000 in bonuses.

He spent $110,000 bonus of the year Thursday to John Papa, 18-year-old right-hand pitcher from Stratford, Conn., and it was a whopper. An Oriole spokesman identified it was in the vicinity of $95,000 to $65,000.

In all, the Orioles have given bonuses of more than $4,000 each to 19 players since Richards became manager in 1955. Only one bonus player now on the Oriole roster is Billy O'Dell, a southpaw pitcher signed when Jimmy O'Dell settled for one of the smallest bonuses, $12,000.

Marie 'The Body' McDonald Has Fallen in Love Again

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'm in love," said Marie McDonald, her large eyes sparkling.

Harry Karl again? No, no. That's all over, she said.

"I've got my final decree, thank heaven," she explained, speaking of the show manufacturer she has sometimes been married to.

The new man in her life is George Ergotis, a moneyed co-owner of Las Vegas' Flamingo Hotel. He's the reason she stayed over in Las Vegas last week after finishing a singing date at Jo Desert Inn.

Does this mean marriage?

"If we can work it out, it does," she replied. "He's trying to get a divorce from his wife, from whom he has been separated for seven years."

WOULD QUIT CAREER

Though she's enjoying the upsurge in her career which began after her 24 - hour disappearance 18 years ago, she's willing to give it all up for George.

"He wants me to quit working, and I might consider it," she said. "I like my work, but I am willing to make sacrifices for real values."

Marie disclosed these secrets on her first day of film work in seven years. She is returning to co - star with Jerry Lewis in Getaha Boy.

Marie seemed unharmed after her weekend adventure in Nevada, where she was taken to a hospital after an overdose of sleeping pills.

DENNING HOAX

Her explanation: After a gay evening, she swallowed six tranquilizing pills — by mistake—and called her doctor. No after effects. In fact, she was catching up on her sleep the next evening.

Marie said she still hopes to see Justice done in her disappearance and reported the case is receiving unrelated. "If it's a hoax, let them prove it," she challenged.

The actress told authorities in January 1957 that two men had snapped her from her home and held her prisoner for 24 hours. A truck driver found her 150 miles away on the desert. Police and the county grand jury investigated but no arrests were ever made.

United States Open Champ Tops Pack in Flint Tourney

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A new attitude, a new driver and some mail tablets "to keep me from getting so dogtone hungry" had Tommy Bolt in front of the pack that entered the second round of the $52,000 Flint open golf tournament today.

While the newly - crowned United States Open champion trotted into the lead in one of the richest tournaments on the circuit, the game's biggest drawing card was in danger of failing to survive the 36-hole cut for the second straight week.

Sam Snead, a pre-tournament favorite despite the fact he failed to qualify for the final 36 holes of last week's U.S. Open, had a six-over-par 78 that left him nine strokes off the pace.

Al Balding of Toronto had nine hole scores of 34 and 38 for 72. Four strokes back of him was Stan Leonard of Vancouver. He had 39-37—76.

HAS NO LETDOWN

Bolt's three-under-par 69, fashioned mainly from a blazing putter that counted seven one-putt greens, pooh-poohed the so-called letdown that has plagued such golfers as Carey Middlecoff, Ed Furgol, Jack Fleck and Dick Mayer after their national Open triumphs.

"I had my letdown the day after I won it," said Bolt, who claims he has abdicated as king of the club throwers. "I stayed in bed all day. Just couldn't bring myself to get up. Maybe there is extra strain and stuff like that but I don't notice it now."

Bolt holds a one stroke advantage over Bill Casper Jr., of Apple Valley, Calif.

Only 15 from a starting field of 140 had par-or-better scores. And 39 of the competitors had scores in the 80s, against par of 36-36—72.

"It's just plain tough," said Jack Burke Jr. "and the guy who shoots a 64 or 65 here should be given a saliva test."

Gary Player of South Africa who finished second to Bolt in the Open, had a 74.

80 Years Old Hits Homers But Can't Run

STOCKVILLE, Neb. (AP)—Mrs. Charlotte Phillips Thompson concedes she's not the base runner she used to be.

"I hit as many home runs as anybody on the team," she says. "But I seldom get past first base because I more or less stand and vibrate when I run. I must be getting old."

It's all right Mrs. Phillips. A woman who will be 80 next Nov. 6 is entitled to slow down.

Mrs. Thompson is a rural school teacher. She does her playing with the kids in the school yard. It's not running but rules that give her trouble during the football season.

"I don't quite follow them," she says. "I yank the kids out of the pile and if they're not bloody and are able to walk, why that decides the winner. Sometimes I get stepped on."

Mick Has Pain, May Have to Leave Lineup

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mickey Mantle finally admitted Thursday there is pain in his right shoulder but insisted he doesn't want to come out of the New York Yankee line-p.

Manager Casey Stengel doesn't want to take his star centre fielder out of the lineup, however, but he indicated he may have to.

"I have a catch in the shoulder which doesn't let me take my regular cut at the ball swinging that hard," Mantle said. "But there isn't enough pain there to be the reason for my batting slump. I'm just not hitting, that's all."

Stengel said Mantle took an x-ray treatment in New York last Monday, another here Wednesday and that Mickey would have a third and final of the series of penetrating beams today in Detroit.

Before Thursday, Mantle was batting .476 righthanded and .228 lefthanded. A year ago he averaged .342 left handed with 26 home runs and .414 right handed with eight home runs. His present homer output is eight left and four right.

Mantle suffered the injury in the third game of the 1957 world series when Milwaukee second baseman Red Schoendienst sat down heavily on him as Mantle slid into the base as pitcher Bob Buhl tried to pick him off.

Petes Nip Hamilton 10-9

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The Peterborough Petes scored seven runs in the last period to defeat Hamilton Lincoln Burners 10-9 Thursday night in a Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game.

Larry Ferguson, Cyril Coombes and Paul Parnell each scored three goals for Peterborough, who moved into a third-place tie in the association standings with Long Branch. Ken Ruttan scored once.

Ivan Thomas and Wally Ridgewell each scored twice for last-place Hamilton with Len Moses, Sam Grogin, Ross Powless, Tony Damico and Jake Bomberry tallying one goal each.

Jockey Killed When Horse Bolts Into Rail

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A spectacular spill in Aksarben race brought a violent end to Jackie Westrope's 25-year riding career.

He passed the pack on the outside and was leading by 2½ lengths from the wire, when his mount bolted into the rail. Westrope was thrown.

The 40-year-old former national riding champion hit the rail so hard, a track official said, he bent almost double—backward—around it.

Westrope began big-time riding at 15 and in that year—1933—rode 201 winners to become national champion. In the ensuing years he had 2,439 winners from a total of 17,135 mounts. In money winnings he ranked 19th nationally with a total of $8,944,007.

A friend who accompanied him to hospital after the accident said:

"There wasn't a mark on him. But he was all broken up inside."

No inquiry is planned at the track. "The only one at fault was the horse," said a Hollywood Park official.

OTHERS WHO DIED

Fred Smith was killed at the same track in 1951. Other jockeys claimed George Woolf at Santa Anita in 1946 and Richard Thompson at Gulfstream in 1932.

In his quarter-century of riding Westrope boosted many a Christmas horse to victory in big stakes races. Among his wins:

The 1938 Santa Anita Derby, on Stagehand; the 1939 San Juan Capistrano, at Santa Anita, aboard Cravat; the 1954 Jersey Stakes, with War of Roses.

He rode Honeymoon to victory in the 1946 inaugural of the $25,000 Hollywood Oaks, the race in which he died.

Softball Results

Temple's Bantam Bobcats whipped Whalen's Real Estate 18-10 in a battle of home runs at CNHA Park last night in a bantam softball fixture.

Temple's pounded four circuit blasts, one more than recorded by Whalen's. The losers built early 13-3 lead with Whalen's coming back to make it fairly close late in the game.

Larry Lewis hurled the distance for the victory, giving up 11 safeties. He fanned 11 while walking five. L. Rowbotham was hit hard on the Whalen mound but fine relief pitching by Larry McFee who took over in the fifth slowed down the winners. McFee whiffed six and passed four while Rowbotham passed four and did not strike out a batter.

Holloway paced the Bobcat hitters with two home runs and a single while Jerry St. Dennis had a homer and one single. Rickey Coe also homered while Jury had a triple and single and Millar a three-bagger.

Donald Toon sparked Whalen's at the plate with a home run, double and single. Mike Murphy homered and singled, McFee hit a lone homer, L. Waddel doubled and Dave Reid singled twice.

Ontario Hydro hammered out a 15-6 victory over the Bankers in a City Commercial softball league fixture played at Prince Charles School grounds last night.

Dodgers Waive Oil Rights Chavez Ravine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Dodgers have relinquished all interest in oil revenues from Chavez Ravine where they hope to build a stadium.

The announcement was made at the start of trial for three taxpayers' suits designed to block the Dodgers' contract with the city for the Chavez Ravine property.

Dodger counsel Pierce Works told the court that Walter O'Malley, Dodgers president, had written Mayor Norris Poulson June 13 waiving oil rights.

As originally proposed, the contract specified that half of all monies received by the city from mineral rights were to be used to set up a trust fund for the Dodgers' youth program.

HALIFAX (CP) — The Easter seal campaign for funds to aid crippled children raised $1,500,000 in Canada this year, the Canadian Council for Crippled Children and Adults disclosed during its annual meeting.

Dodgers' Plight Is No Fault Of Manager

BROOKLYN (AP) — Los Angeles Dodger president Walter O'Malley strongly indicated Thursday that Walter Alston will return as manager in 1959.

O'Malley said he and General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi agree the club's present poor plight was not Alston's fault. Dodgers are in the National League basement.

"We can't blame Alston for what has happened. The move to the coast, the makeshift park, the uncertainty of the election, these things created an emotional turmoil that affected everybody."

Asked why he gave up on Don Newcombe, who won his first night following his trade for Johnny Klippstein and Steve Bilko four days ago, O'Malley said:

"He obviously couldn't win for us any longer. A change of scenery may be just what he needs."

O'Malley said he is encouraged by Duke Snider's apparent return to batting form. Duke has been hitting at a .600 pace since June 1. 1536.

Willie Mays Has Physical; Back Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, leading National League hitter despite a two-week slump, was expected to rejoin San Francisco Giants today after an overnight hospital stay for a physical checkup.

A hospital report said only that Mays had been examined Thursday and remained there for the night. A hospital spokesman added, however, that Willie probably will be released today, or tomorrow at the latest," and that a report of the examination will be given Giants manager Bill Rigney.

Rigney, who benched Mays for the first time this season at Pittsburgh Wednesday night, said Willie appeared run down with a possible touch of the flu, but expected to have him back in the lineup tonight at Philadelphia.

NO HOLDS BARRED!

There is going to be a lot of fun come Sunday, June 29, at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

That is the day Steve and Joy Bowerman, Jack and Dolly Diamond, and Peter and Anne Acton launch their inaugural "Mr. and Mrs." golfing tournament.

The Quinte Club has been a little lax in respect to this type of tournament. Other district clubs make these affairs an annual event with a minimum of quarrels, few arguments, no fisticuffs and practically no divorces.

This is the Bay of Quinte's first attempt at a mixed tournament, and while nobody is fearsome of the results, anything could happen. We know of a lady who played with her husband last summer in a mixed foursome, and who threatened to crown him with an eight iron if he didn't improve his game. He didn't. He escaped being crowned but the breakfast table was silent for a month while he lunched and dined down town.

That just shows what could happen, but actual results are of a far happier nature.

At least it should clear up some domestic arguments if only on the day's play. Of course the old man could be off his game a little, especially if the Saturday night poker session proved to be a lengthy affair, or, he had taken one too many for the road at the weekly bathtight stag party.

Or the little woman may be a trifle off par too, due to the strange company. After all, this guy she is playing with usually sees her but three times a day across breakfast, lunch and dinner tables, most of the time not that often. So how is she supposed to know what kind of a golf game he plays. All she has is his word for it, and she knows what husbands are, especially when it comes to that greatest of all golfing fibs, the seriously men.

To make matters simple for the layman, as we understand it, the men and their wives pair off with like couples in battles of the fairways. The man plays with his own spouse, so the subsequent verbal battle or compliments are confined to one household. There is no playing with another man's wife, you can take that whichever way you like, for this Mr. and Mrs. Golfing Tournament is strictly a serious business. Who knows how many households' fate depends on the eventual outcome.

Of course there are ways and means. Perchance the little woman, who has more time than the bread-winner to exert around the links, is a mite better and can spot the old man a half-dozen strokes and still beat him before breakfast. She could, if she wanted, preserve the dignity of her household and not let the old duffer collect on her insistence, ease up a bit, and allow him to shoot an even score even at the risk of game loss.

Or say, if the old man shoots somewhere in the 70's and the little woman is something of a duffer, on the golf links, that is, there is no point in showing off your good golf and humiliate the other half by her lower form. Shoot anywhere in the sixties, and then drop dead with surprise. If you don't, she will. But seriously men, if you're that much better than the boss, ease up on those driven putts, and what have you, even if your pride suffers a little.

Might better have the pride suffer than re-live, re-hash and re-play the game at least a hundred times, and have your personal goods pointed out to you that many times at least. It all adds up to "Peace, Ain't it Wonderful!"

After all a golf game is only a golf game, but wives are priceless possessions, even on a golf course. You can laugh out a golf game as a big joke, and forget about it, but just try that with the frau — and see how far you can get with it.

In any event it's going to be a lot of fun, regardless of the eventual outcome and consequences. There will be nothing too serious about it unless Joy Bowerman pulls out in front of Steve; Jack Diamond passes Dolly and Pete Acton shows his best golf and sneaks a lead on wife Anne.

Couples will be here from the Trenton, Picton and Napanee clubs, who will be no novices to mixed tournament play, since Mr. and Mrs. tourneys have been on their game agenda for a number of seasons. The guest players will be dined at a post-tournament clubhouse fiesta. The draw will be published in this newspaper either Wednesday, June 25, or Thursday, June 26.

Milwaukee's Standout Lefty Loses 3 in Row to Chicubs; White Sox Shut Out Boston

By The Associated Press

Those winter tracies that peddled power for pitching have helped give Al Lopez' Chicago White Sox four shutouts in five games. But they're still seventh in the American League race, 11½ games behind.

Jim Wilson, Dick Donovan and Billy Pierce, three old hands, pitched consecutive shutouts, and after taking a five - home run pounding from Boston Wednesday, the White Sox beat the Red Sox 4-0 Thursday on the two-hit pitching of Early Wynn.

The veteran righthander, acquired from Cleveland, now has a pair of two-hitters for the season. Thursday's showpiece, in which he faced but 30 men and didn't give up a hit after the sixth, was his 36th major league shutout and his 10th two-hitter in the big-time.

Yet the White Sox didn't gain an inch on the first-place New York Yankees, who rapped five homers and struck out 13 as they gave up a second-inning single by Frank Malzone and a ninth-inning single by Frank Sullivan 4-2).

Andy Carey hit two of the Yankee homers, giving him a total of eight. Both were off reliever Bob Lemon. Home runs by Enos Slaughter and Elston Howard gave New York a 2-0 lead in the second against rookie Garry Bell, who was the first to three decision. Hank Bauer got the other Yank homer, while Rocky Colavito hit his 11th, with one on, in the ninth for the Indians. Johnny Kucks (5-3) went all the way with a eight-hitter.

The Orioles, in last place behind new manager Jimmy Dykes, took it on Gene Woodling's two-run homer in the eighth off Ned Garver, who has lost three in a row. Ken Lehman won it in relief for the Birds.

Lil' Albie Pearson doubled home a tie-breaking run in a two-run seventh for the Senators, then tripled home the winner in the ninth. Dick Hyde saved Russ Kemmerer's fourth victory, putting down the Tigers after they scored two unearned runs in the ninth. Paul Foytack (5-7) dropped his third straight.

Marlins Trim Toronto Again; Royals Beaten

By The Associated Press

Montreal Royals have piled up an impressive won-lost record in the International League mostly on the strength of their hitting. Occasionally they win with strong pitching.

Thursday night they tried a different approach. They stole five bases against Havana Cubans. But at the end the Cubans had won 3-2.

Sandy Amoros stole three bases and George Anderson and loser Joe Bizer each swiped one.

The Cubans spotted the Royals two runs in the opening inning. They got one of them back in the third when Ellio Chacon doubled and scored a moment later on Dan Morejon's sacrifice fly. They got the tying and winning runs in the fifth. Gustavo Zangrillo and scored on Nino Escalera's double. Escalera scored when the three to the plate by Anderson was stole.

The other games saw Miami Marlins beat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-1 and Richmond Virginians slaughter Buffalo Bisons 9-1.

Dick Bunker of Miami scattered four hits scoring his sixth victory in eight decisions. He was the only one in the Miami batting order to go hitless. The Marlins, leading 2-1 in the fifth, exploded for four wrap-up markers in that frame. Woody Smith batted in three runs with a pair of hits.

Jim Bronstad of Richmond pitched a neat three-hitter for his fourth triumph. He has lost five. He had a two-hit shutout till the ninth.

Senior Baseball

By The Canadian Press

A secret of winning baseball games is near-perfect defensive play but one wouldn't know it by glancing at Senior Intercounty Baseball League statistics.

Three games Thursday night turned up 22 errors. Oakville Oaks trimmed Brantford Red Sox 12-4, but each club erred four times. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen edged Guelph Merchants 7-6 in a contest that saw nine errors, five by the losers. London Majors beat Hamilton Beavers 5-3, greatly assisted by five Hamilton miscues.

Oakville and Kitchener remained tied for first place and continued to run away with the pennant race in the nine-team league. They have 9-3 records. The closest team is London with a 6-4 record.

Canada's No. 1 construction job

Like all construction experts, Ford engineers put quality first. Ford's heavy girder frame has five cross members for extra rigidity. Its bowed-out design lets you sit lower in the car for a more stable ride. You're safer, too, within the protection of the massive frame rails.

The heavy-gauge steel used for the body of your Ford is the same as that used in many of Canada's highest priced cars. All parts of the body are interlocked for maximum strength and resistance to flexing. Then body and frame are bonded together into a single, solid, silent unit.

To the safety of sheer strength, Ford adds the safety of Lifeguard Design. Features like the deep-center steering wheel, double-grip door locks and optional padding for the instrument panel offer an extra measure of passenger protection.

Ford's high quality standards pay off for you with a car that's worth more when you buy it... when you own it and when you come to sell it. Ask your local Ford Dealer for a demonstration. The proof is in the driving.

Ford's roof and body insulation is the most complete in its field. It seals out heat and cold, soaks up sounds for a quieter ride.

Eighteen live-rubber mounts cushion body from frame in serious and hardtops. Vibration is damped out for greater comfort.

Five steel cross members span the roof in sedans and hardtops—one is tapered to two up three in competitive models—for added safety.

Ford's front seat backs are contoured to cradle you and not to the floor pan. This added inch or more of seat is flying forward in impact.

Point Anne's 8-7 Win Over Bobcats Had Everything in Softball Book

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Home runs, errors and double plays were the main item on the softball menu last night as the league-leading Point Anne Comettmen shaded Bellevilla Bobcats 8-7 to record their 4th consecutive Belleville and District league triumph.

The win, one of four honors down the centre, the Bobcats came up with a couple classy ball-hawking at the Comettmen's one while Belleville bootthe ball on 3 occasions and Point Anne four times.

While the game did not produce "A" softball the hot rivalry between the teams made for a hard-fought game until the final out was recorded. Players and coaches alike became involved in several arguments with the umpires and the opposition which ended only when the participants were threatened with ejection.

A pair of Bobcat's veteran hurlers, Pat Maracle and Carson Green, opened each other on the mound neither getting much support especially in the early innings.

Maracle lasted the route for the Bobcats and was charged with his. Carson accepted the loss, giving up nine hits before being relieved for Bob Green in the seventh. Maracle fanned three batters and three batters going at the end of four frames but the hitters took over from there as Maracle fanned four and passed five. Carson fanned one and walked five. Green neither walked or fanned a man in his 1 1-3 innings of being relieved for Carson.

The team exchanged two unearned runs apiece in the initial frame. Hits by Guidolin and Barclay and two Point Anne errors gave the Pats a pair while Jackie Elliott's bunt single and then scored the runner. Point Anne took the lead for keeps in the fourth, a walk, Jackie Elliott's base-hogger, an error and Maracle's fly ball scoring two runs.

Point Anne had two hits, a sacrifice and a walk and did not add another hit fifth; they took an 8-2 lead in the seventh. Bobcats opened with a line drive homer sliding under the throw at home in a close play. Batchelor drew a walk but Gilmour hit into a double play before Jack Elliott Sr. and son Jackie bit back to back singles. Gary Goyer then drew back with a home run over Guidolin's head in deep left field. That was all for Carson.

Bobcats got a pair back at the eighth and would have had more if not for a Cementmen double play. Barclay walked and Faulkner singled before Cousins lined into the twin-killing. Bob Green then smashed a homer over Goyer's head in left. It was his only trip to the plate and his second homer of the season.

Pimple's crew came within one run of a tie in the ninth as Bob Hull and "Pep" Guidolin lined singles and Bert Faulkner slammed a home run between the left and centre fielders. Doug Hull gloved Cousins' liner to end the game.

Jackie Elliott Jr., with only one hit previous to last night's game paced the Ox-pointers with a double and two singles. Dave Jones clubbed a single and double while Gary Goyer and Doug Hull homered. John Batchelor and Jack Elliott Sr. also hit safely.

Bert Faulkner poled his homer and two singles to spark the Cats while Don Barclay and "Pep" Guidolin each had two singles. Green homered. Floyd Crawford doubled and Bob Hull had a one-bagger.

Lineups: Bobcats — Russell, Brown, Crawford, B. Hull, Guidolin, Barclay, Faulkner, Cousins, Carson, Casey, Green.

Point Anne — Carr, Jones, D. Hull, Batchelor, Gilmour, Elliott Sr., Elliott Jr., Goyer, Marsden, Scott.

Umpires—"Shud" Ether (P), Al Kelleher and Harold Bawden. Time 1:30.

LIFE SUSPENSION

TIMMINS (CP) — Joe Katona, goalkeeper for Hungary in the Porcupine District Soccer Association, has been suspended for life for striking referee Jock Brown during a league match. As the soccer league is affiliated with the Ontario Association and the latter with the Dominion body, the suspension will mean that Katona will be unable to play organized soccer in any part of Canada.

Marlene Meets Former Champ In Women's Open Golf Final

TORONTO (CP) — Two "comer" winners, one seeking her third straight championship, meet in a day in match play over the Thornhill Golf and Country Club course for the Ontario women's open golf championship.

Marlene Stewart Streit, of Foothill, Ont., who won the title in 1956 and 1957, tees off in the final against Mrs. Marguerite Marr, 37, of Calgary, who lost to Mrs. Streit last year.

Foothill's five-foot- one, 115-pound golfer advanced into the final by defeating 1952 Canadian Open winner Rae Milligan of Calgary 1 up Thursday. Earlier in the day she routed Kay Hellner of Woodbridge, Ont., 4 and 3.

Miss Marr whipped Mrs. J. H. McCarter of Lambton, Que., 6 and 4. Earlier she had beaten Noreen Laing of Toronto, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Strit had never lost to Miss Gay in match play until last August when the Calgary golfer eliminated her in the second round of the Canadian ladies' Open at Montreal.

FROM KITCHENER

And although the two women will represent the East and the West in the interprovincial playoff, Miss Marr will be accompanied from Kitchener and Mrs. Streit, 34, was born at Cobourg, Ont., near Calgary.

Both golfers have had plenty of experience in match play title finals. Miss Gay has been runner-up three times, twice to Mrs. Streit, in the Canadian ladies' amateur. Mrs. Streit has Canadian, British and U.S. women's Amateur titles to her credit.

Thursday's Streit - Milligan semi - final provided the best match of the tournament so far. The match was squared four times. Miss Milligan having the lead on three occasions and Mrs. Streit twice.

A putt on the 17th decided the issue. Miss Milligan played her third shot to the green, about four feet from the white to which Mrs. Streit chipped on, nine feet away. She dropped the putt for a birdie four and Miss Milligan missed the shorter distance.

Empire Games Field Trials Start Today

SASKATOON (CP) — Canada's British Empire Games track and field trials get down to brass tacks today.

The first event was scheduled this afternoon in the two-day program that is to determine the 22 members of the Canadian track and field team for the Empire Games in Cardiff, Wales, next month.

The array of talent assembled among the 138 contestants was impressive, particularly in the track events. With good weather and track conditions, several Canadian records could fall. The forecast called for fair weather and little or no wind.

The men's 440-yard hurdles, in which George Shepherd of Port Colborne and the University of Toronto Scharlo, a favored, has a limited entry with four competitors but there is a big field in practically all other events.

The mile has 25 entrants. It was to be run in two heats today, then an eight-man final tonight. Bill McLaughlin, University of Southern California student from Toronto, Don Loadman of Regina and the University of Houston, and Ed Morton of Winnipeg and the University of Arkansas are favored.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, June 21, 1958

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Take care you are not extravagant this a.m. Then the rest of the day and night is special insofar as business and social affairs are concerned. Also, add another item here and there (not costly) to abode and so add to its value.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Drown your worries in work today, preferably around the home. Get into your old duds and enjoy doing some painting, carpentering, fixing draperies, etc. Late P.M. have friends in for coffee and conversation, or relive a little party.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Dashing about shopping, calling on the trade or on friends and relatives splendid today. But be sure you do not procrastinate and just sit about mulling things over and over in your mind. P. M. enjoy some amusement or sport with comrades.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Analyze quickly just what must be done in your social sphere and then roll up your sleeves and all chores. Don't give in to temptation to fly off somewhere. This is a step forward in the right direction. P. M. be happy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Fine day for investigating new businesses, houses, operational activities of others and bargains. Here you can better your own situation. Be economical and plan to let your money operate safely and wisely for many years ahead.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — It is imperative you sacrifice this day of comfort at home and get out to see all with whom you have any close dealings and be sure there are no complaints. Aim even higher with them. P.M. have a good, jolly time.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A day to bring greater comfort and harmony into your home. See that all are well provided for, even unto the dog, or other pet, the plants in your garden, etc., etc. Fix that easy chair, sink, other gadgets. P.M. have fun.

If your child is born today — The wonderful child born today has some very remarkable and most loving qualities. The sky is the limit to your beloved progeny if you have the wisdom to give the most broad education and treat him or her like a little king or queen. Also, teach early about the birds and the bees, intelligently. Then there is no limit to the attainments in this chart.

Preston Widow's Battered Body Found In Garage

Storekeeper's Slaying Not Work of Robbers

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — Police today sought a motive for the slaying of a 43-year-old widow, found lying in a pool of blood Friday in a garage adjacent to her country general store.

The battered body of Mrs. Helen Rahman was found by Stanley Armstrong after a farmer noticed several customers turn off the United Arab Republic into this town between Galt and Kitchener.

Mr. Armstrong, a part-time employee, found everything in the store in order and went home. Later he became uneasy and returned to search the garage.

Police said Mrs. Rahman was killed following a struggle. No weapon was found. They have asked area residents to report any person wearing blood-stained clothes. The slaying robbery was not a motive.

Results of an autopsy were expected today but a preliminary police examination showed several injuries.

VISITED SISTER

Mr. Armstrong said Mrs. Rahman went to the hospital Thursday then to visit a sister Thursday night after they locked the store at 10:30 p.m. Preston is three miles southeast of here.

Mrs. Howard Gellow of nearby Bespeler said her sister left for home shortly after midnight. She was not seen after that.

Many Students Wasting Time In Some Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is seeking a solution to the problem of what to do with loafers and laggards in secondary schools, says Education Minister Dunlop.

Dr. Dunlop said Friday night in a public affairs address on the network of radio stations he has been told there are many students wasting their time in some schools, disturbing students who wish to work and hindering the work of the teachers.

"There is no simple solution but a good deal of study now is being given to this particular situation."

Dr. Dunlop said if he had listened to criticism of emergency summer courses started in 1953 for elementary school teachers, Ontario's schools would now be in a state of chaos. No class-rooms would be closed for lack of teachers next September.

NO HIGHER

A survey of graduates of the summer courses had disclosed the percentage of failures was no greater than among teachers who have taken the regular one-year course.

This year more than 1,100,000 students were enrolled in Ontario's secondary and elementary schools, with almost 39,000 on the teaching staff.

"During the next school year these numbers will be considerably increased. The total cost of operating the system for this year is $180,000,000. Legislative grants last year were $101,000,000. Increased to meet this year is $133,000,000 this year. Grants to universities exceeded $21,000,000."

Two Killed Near Warren

WARREN, Ont. (CP) — Two men were killed and four children injured in a two-car collision Friday night on Highway 11 one mile west of this Sudbury area village.

Killed were Telesphore Labelle, 50, of Sudbury, and Fernand Carwas, 24, of Val d'Or, Que.

Injured were four of the 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Laurent Savage of nearby Sturgeon Falls: Guy, 14, Louise, 12, Claire, 10, and Collette, 4. They were riding in a car driven by Labelle, their uncle.

The vehicles apparently sideswiped. Police said debris was littered all over the highway.

Labelle was heading towards Sturgeon Falls where he had planned to join Laurent Savage, father of the children, on a fishing trip. Mr. Savage had been visiting him in Sudbury Friday and decided four of the children would return with their uncle while the rest of the family went along with Mrs. Labelle, came in Mr. Savage's car, which drove ahead.

Mr. Savage, whose wife and Mrs. Labelle are sisters, said he noticed Labelle's vehicle was not behind him but thought he may have stopped for one of the children who are often sick when driving.

When he failed to show up at Sturgeon Falls it was feared Labelle had encountered trouble and the group decided to return and investigate. They arrived on the scene minutes after the removal of the body by an ambulance.

HAMMARSKJOLD LEAVES BEIRUT TO VISIT CAIRO

Jerusalem, Amman Are on Itinerary

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Dag Hammarskjold left today to visit other Middle East trouble spots after apparently failing to make any headway toward ending this six-week Lebanese rebellion.

As he flew to Israel after two days of talks, a bomb exploded only a few yards from the president's palace.

The United Nations secretary-general was to visit Jerusalem and the Jordanian capital of Amman on the way to Cairo, capital city of the United Arab Republic which Beirut officials charge is supporting the rebels trying to overthrow Lebanese's pro-Western government.

Jordanian officials said Hammarskjold would meet King Hussein and President Jamir el Rifai in Amman. UN headquarters in New York announced the secretary-general would discuss Cyprus, an Israeli enclave in Jordanian territory, and Jerusalem where Lt.-Col. George Flint of Outremont, Que., was killed by Arab fire May 26 while heading a UN truce team.

DISCUSS UN FORCE

The UN announcement said one topic Hammarskjold in Cairo would be the UN Emergency Force which is separating the Egyptian and Israeli troops along their border since their 1956 war. Hammarskjold is to have talks was expected to be the Lebanese situation. Hammarskjold is to return to Beirut Monday or Tuesday and fly back to New York Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the Lebanese government announced action against the rebels as sporadic small-scale fighting continued. Warrants were issued for the arrest of 17 rebel leaders on charges of inciting terrorism and rebellion.

Ontario Grains, Hay and Potatoes May Be Short

TORONTO (CP) — Cold, dry weather in the last six weeks has slowed prospects for most crops except for a good crop in Ontario prunes, hay and potatoes.

The provincial agriculture department Friday reported most grains daily temperatures in May averaged two to four degrees below normal last year. Precipitation this spring averaged far below normal—in many cases less than half last year's averages.

Yields of fall wheat and rye are expected to be almost up to average, with only slight damage from winter killing.

Spring wheat, oats, barley, corn, tobacco and many vegetables are "extremely disappointing" and growers and specialists had "lost heavily" in recent weeks. The early crop had grown slowly in the cold, dry soil and sowings and the date of the first marketing was likely to be delayed.

Child Has Meal With Neighbors Not Knowing Parents in Jail

TORONTO (CP) — Eight-year-old Ann Claffey breakfasted with neighbors today believing her parents were visiting sick relatives.

They weren't. Mr. and Mrs. John Claffey Friday were remanded in jail until Monday awaiting sentence on a charge of stealing groceries worth $7.49.

They pleaded guilty, offering no defence except to say they were hungry.

Ann fell asleep Friday night unaware of her parents' predicament. An uncle moved into their small rooming house to look after her and neighbors brought food.

James Claffey said after his release he had gone to bed.

"She'll never know what's happened. As far as she knows her parents are away visiting. I think it's best that she doesn't know anything different," he told Ann her mother will be home any day."

He said she had fretted a little during the afternoon but he had managed to convince her all was well.

The Claffeys came to Canada last summer from southern Ireland. Mr. Claffey, a magistrate's clerk, said she stopped to talk to Mrs. Claffey.

No mention was made in court of the couple having a child. Magistrate Douglas Bigelow said later he didn't know of the child when he ordered the couple to be detained in jail.

Salvation Army Maj. Grace Purnell, head of the magistrate's court, said she stopped to talk to Mrs. Claffey.

"I asked her if she had a daughter but there would be nothing to worry about, not that I could see," Miss Purnell said. She said they had come to court expecting the worst and had made arrangements for their daughter's care during the weekend."

Maj. Robinson said she offered to look after the child as long as was necessary but Mrs. Claffey was confident Ann was in good hands. Her only concern was her daughter might find out her parents were in jail.

Toledo Plans Tranquilizer For Sea Lion From London

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—How do you recapture a slippery sea lion that has tasted freedom in the Great Lakes?

That problem was being mulled over today by Paul Schlon, director of the Toledo zoo.

The 100-pound sea lion led a slick-like harbor patrol and Skeldon a merry chase up the Maumee River Friday.

The pursuers finally gave up, deciding they had no way to capture the seal without injuring it.

Skeldon today was waiting for another sighting report from the harbor patrol before launching another sea lion chase.

"We might use a capture gun," he mused to a reporter.

What is a capture gun?

"That's an air gun—well, it is powered by gas, actually—which fires an aluminum syringe. You give him a shot of tranquilizer, and . . ."

The sea lion escaped a London, Ont., zoo, where it arrived before its entrance was finished.

It made its way Thursday to the Thames River, and then to Lake St. Clair, the Detroit River, Lake Erie and the Maumee.

Skeldon said the sea lion probably can survive for a long time in the river.

Little Rock's School Board Gets Leave to Oust Negroes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Judge Harry J. Lemley today granted the Little Rock school board permission to oust 33 racial integrators at Central High School for 2½ years.

The decision, revealed by mail in the U.S. district court clerk's office here, permits the school to resume the segregation students don't enroll.

Lemley heard the board's petition for a three-day hearing here June 3-5. The proposed suspension was opposed by lawyers for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Nine Negroes were enrolled under protection of federal troops at Central High last September. One was expelled and another graduated early.

Lemley said in his order that Central integration might be suspended without the school board having conducted either collectively or individually, in contempt of this court."

Attorney Orval Faubus conditioned the 2,000-pupil high school last fall and ordered state troops to turn away nine Negroes despite a federal court order declaring that the Little Rock graduat plan for de-segregation begin. He withdrew the troops in face of a U.S. district court ruling that he and other state officials were interference with desegregation.

President Eisenhower then ordered federal soldiers here to quell rioting and to enforce the court order for desegregation.

In the hearing before Lemley this month, school board witnesses asked the suspension on the grounds that the situation would be the same during the 1958-59 school year as it was the past year. The first year of the integration was marked by harassment of the Negroes in the school halls and threats to bomb the building.

Wayne Upton, president of the school board, quoted Faubus as saying he might again call out troops as he did last year.

School Superintendent Virgil Blossom told Lemley a suspension was needed to prevent the improvement of community feeling toward the integration.

Tunisia and Morocco Oppose De Gaulle Plan for Algeria

TUNIS (AP) — Tunisia and Morocco stood beside the Algerian rebels today in rejecting French Premier de Gaulle's offer to grant Algerians full French citizenship instead of independence.

The governments of Algeria's two North African neighbors refused to consider the plans for continued French control over Algeria, outlined by de Gaulle as an Algerian tour two weeks ago, and again supported Algerian independence.

But they also refused to back the Algerian government's guerrilla, a move that would surely antagonize France, presumably and mean an end to economic aid they receive from France. Both Tunisia and Morocco were under French control until two years ago.

The three-sided policy statement from Morocco, Tunisia and the Algerian rebel war cabinet was issued Friday night after five days of talks.

The communique represented a victory for the relatively moderate Tunisian and Moroccan premiers in the 3½-year-old military offensive which so far has been the sole hope of winning independence for Algeria.

While meeting with the rebels here, Moroccan and Tunisia also held talks here which resulted in a two-sailer agreement to co-ordinate closely toward setting up a North African regime that even-

Refinery Stops Importing Oil From Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Province says one Washington state oil refinery will cease importing Canadian oil and a second refinery is cutting down on its stockpiled 500,000 barrels of Middle East crude.

The newspaper says the second refinery fetches has taken no Canadian oil, in direct contradiction to testimony presented to the Borden energy commission.

It learned Friday that the Shell Oil Company refinery at Anacortes, with a capacity of 60,000 barrels of Canadian oil a day, will halt Canadian imports, probably in July.

ually could include an independent Algeria.

Signs came from Paris that the massive policies of Tunisia and Morocco are bearing fruit. Maurice Schumann, chairman of the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee, said France plans to withdraw her land forces from the two countries, leaving only air and naval units. Agreements to cut the number of French troops in the two countries have been announced within the past week.

OPPOSITION TEES OFF ON BUDGET CALLED 'TORY'

2 Non-Confidence Motions Presented

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal and CCF motions of non-confidence in the Progressive Conservative government's record economy are before the Commons.

The two opposition groups teed off as Finance Minister Fleming's deficit budget Friday and the eight-day debate on the government's 1958-59 blueprint will resume Monday.

William M. Benidickson, Liberal financial critic, moved a double-edged non-confidence motion saying the government "has failed to provide leadership" with recession in Canada's economy, and "is moving toward greater trade discrimination while other Western countries are moving toward widening them."

The budget's forecast of a $648,000,000 deficit was deficit-financing design "not to be followed by deficit."

The budget would stimulate neither jobs nor confidence.

CCF House Leader Hazen Argue's amendment regretted the budget "contains no action to boost basic income tax exemptions" and said it also would counteract an inflationary loss of purchasing power affecting "particularly pensioners."

PRESENT FIGURES

Present basic exemptions are $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married ones. Mr. Argue said the CCF favors raising them to $1,200 and $2,400, adding that Mr. Fleming when in opposition in 1954 had suggested the same amounts.

Richard A. Bell (PC-Carleton), Mr. Fleming's parliamentary assistant in the last parliament, explained the government, saying most staff members criticized by opposition members were down-graded.

No tariff increase was of major significance, he said, and all the changes had been negotiated "in full conformity" with the company agreements of the General on Tariffs and Trade.

Mr. Benidickson, describing Mr. Fleming's budget speech as "driving small talk with a few figures," said Canadians are becoming tired of "government by speech and hoopla." Mr. Fleming had said it was a "bold" budget.

Tax reductions of $8,000,000—Mr. Benidickson said derisively.

Mr. Argue said that in last year's election campaign the March 31 election the Progressive Conservative party showed its preference for "tax reductions, cuts and increased pension and other benefits."

"Now we see the conservative face — the Tory face — without the mask on. This is a Tory budget, a depression budget."

Drew Declares Need for Militia Greater Today

GUELPH (CP)—The need for militia training is greater now than ever before, Brig.-Gen. Jean Drew, former Montreal mayor and Canada's representative on the United Kingdom, said Friday night.

"It would take many insanity to start a nuclear war but we have small wars going on all over the globe and Canada is not being fought by artillerymen and other traditional services."

Mr. Drew visited the 11th field regiment which he had joined 31 years ago as a gunner. He was 2nd Lieut. of 15 years ago. Now an honorary colonel, he gave up active command of the regiment in 1935.

Conservatives Honor Diefenbaker On Anniversary of Start of Rule

OTTAWA (CP)—It became official today on the first anniversary of one era and the beginning of a new one in Canada's political story.

A year ago today even the weather seemed to change atmosphere surrounding a government change-over. There was bright sunshine in the morning, with the promise of a torrid afternoon.

Today was cloudy and hot and the Liberal cabinet arrived to tender their resignations to Governor-General Massey, an action heralded by the stunning upset election victory of the Progressive Conservatives on June 10.

More waiting. Then a taxi approached the front of the long curving driveway. In it rode a Prairie lawyer on his way to become the new prime minister.

The Progressive Conservatives under John Diefenbaker had formed a record of the political throne, ruled over for the previous 22 unbroken years by Liberals.

Perhaps future historians will describe the change as the start of a Progressive Conservative era. From this close vantage, it cannot possibly be remembered as the Diefenbaker era.

It was before the onslaught of John Diefenbaker that the great Liberal edifice, constructed so meticulously by the late Mackenzie King and held together by his successor, Mr. St. Laurent, began to crumble before a nation's not-quite-believing eyes.

Duplessis Plans Court Action Against Devoir

Rejects Lesage Demand For Gas Company Probe

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis says he will go to the courts to obtain justice next week against the Devoir as a result of a Montreal newspaper's series of articles. He called them "dirty propaganda."

Commenting on the series by Le Devoir about the sale of the gas - distributing system of the publicly-owned Quebec Hydro to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation the premier told a press conference Friday:

"I have already endured with much patience the libellous articles that Le Devoir has been guilty with regard to me."

Mr. Duplessis did not specify what court action would be taken.

It was a "unfortunate," he added, that other newspapers had carried information published by Le Devoir.

"I say unfortunate because the paper or person who repeats a defamatory libel is equally responsible in the same way as the person or newspaper that initiated it."

ALLOWS THREE MONTHS

The premier said the law allows three months after publication to have recourse to the courts.

Replying to a Le Devoir reference to Jean Lesage, Liberal shareholder in the gas corporation, as a director, Mr. Duplessis said:

"I have no need to add that neither directly nor indirectly has Mr. Lesage had any gas shares or bonds issued and I have never acquired directly or indirectly interest in the corporation."

The French - language daily said in its series started a week ago that a $30,000,000 contract accompanied the transaction by which the privately-owned gas company received the honor-bodied gas - distribution system of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission.

It named five Quebec cabinet ministers, four municipal councillors and the premier's executive secretary as present or former shareholders in the corporation.

The press conference also saw the premier reject a demand by Jean Lesage, Quebec Liberal party leader, for a royal commission inquiry into the sale. Mr. Lesage had represented a "regrettable attack on the responsibility of cabinet ministers" by the present Quebec government and former Liberal government.

MADE "HONESTLY"

Mr. Duplessis said the transaction was made "honestly" and "authorized by law." He told of steps in the legislature leading to the completion of the acquisition of natural gas - distribution rights. Prior to the passage of the bill had received, unanimous approval by the legislative assembly and the legislative council.

He described as "evident proof of unpardonable ignorance or singularly bad faith" a Le Devoir and Montreal Tuesday by Jean Drapeau, former Montreal mayor and Montreal executive of the Civic Action League, that the transaction was illegal and the Montreal Crown property was sold without authorization by provincial cabinet.

Mr. Drapeau made the demand at Quebec City Monday, basing it on a request from the gas corporation for rate revision. The premier said the "irrefutable truth" about purchase of gas properties by his office and Le Devoir.

Loses Control As Door Opens, Hits Two Cars

Losing control of his car when the door on the driver's side swung open, as he was negotiating the right hand turn at the corner of Dundas and Front Street, Douglas Maracle, Shannonville, was fined $10 by Belleville General Hospital this morning after his car slammed into two parked autos near the corner of Front Street.

Maracle left out the driver's seat and was dragged a short distance along the street as the car gradually swung wide, sideswiping the parked car of an American tourist and coming to rest against a second parked vehicle. The entire front of the Maracle auto was demolished while the side of the American auto was stove in. No witnesses and three small children in the Maracle auto were unhurt.

Coincidding with the time of the accident provincial police received a call from a Toronto motorist that a "weaving" car had almost forced him off the highway east of the city.

The licence of the "weaving" car was identical in number with the Maracle auto, minutes later involved in the accident in Bellevilles.

James Durant New President Of Bridge Club

Another successful season of the Belleville Bridge Club was concluded last night at the Shrine Club, when the annual meeting of the club was held, officers elected and prizes won throughout the season distributed. The ladies' night to entertain the women, who so kindly looked after the visitors during the winter's play, will be held on Wednesday, July 2nd, at Columbus Hall, when a dinner will be served and bridge played for the remainder of the evening.

James Durant was the unanimous choice of the members to head the club in the coming season as the club's immediate past president. Ed. Lewis, vice-president; Ross Murphy, secretary - treasurer and directors are Doug. Black, Skid Vandervoort and Ross Bailey. L. E. McLean was chosen as honorary president. "Skid" Vandervoort, who has been the efficient secretary-treasurer of the club since its inception 14 years ago, stepped down from the post after last night's meeting and on the doctor's instructions. Keen regret was expressed that he was resigning but all were glad to know that "Skid" will continue in the club as a member.

In recognition of his service to the club during the year the outgoing president, who is also a charter member of the club, was presented with Vandervoort with a beautiful copper tea service. "Skid" was taken completely by surprise at the gesture and thanked all for the fine co-operation during the years and said that he would always treasure the beautiful gift.

The incoming president distributed the prizes after the club's meeting with Arnold Wolfenden and Doug Black winning first place. Jason Bowen and Ross Bailey were second and they also won the slam points prize with Lt. CAS Approves New Schedule Of Salaries

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society was held on Thursday. Mr. C. B. Morgan, the president, presided.

Mr. J. Fred Wilson, the chairman of the personnel committee, introduced a by-law to establish a new schedule of salaries, personnel procedures and working regulations for the employees of the Society. In his remarks Mr. Wilson said, "These personnel practices and this salary schedule present a realistic approach to the problem of attracting and retaining academically qualified and experienced staff." The by-law was approved.

Mrs. R. E. Follwell, chairman of the property committee, asked for approval by the board of the purchase of timber screens for windows, the sodding of a portion of the lawn, and for laying of concrete tile blocks to form a hard-surfaced play area, and the construction of a garage. The Receiving Home and Observation Centre, Mrs. Follwell also announced that the painting of the exterior of the Receiving Home was now complete. Following the approval of the committee's recommendations, the board expressed the appreciation of the board of directors to Mrs. Follwell for her splendid work.

Mr. C. L. Hyde reviewed the financial position of the Society at the end of May. He also announced receipt of the sum of $511.35 from the estate of the late James A. Roy. It was the unanimous decision of the board that this money in connection with necessary expenditures on behalf of the unmarried mothers.

254 CHILDREN IN CARE

In his monthly report Mr. B. R. "Bill" Kerr, Children's Aid, stated that there were 254 children in the care of the Society at the end of May. Eleven children were admitted during the month, Mr. Kerr reported. Mr. Kerr announced the resignation of Mrs. Fraser, Welfare Worker, B.A., and Mrs. Dianne Wooley, B.A., and the appointment to the staff of Miss W. J. Hamilton, B.A., M.S.W.; Miss Enid Swerdfeger, B.A.; Miss Ronda Payne and Mrs. Constance Groat, B.A., who resigned from the staff early in the year. Mr. Kerr said, "Mr. Halpaski will be working in our Protective Department and his duties will be confined to the city and Mrs. Groat, Miss Payne and Miss Swerdfeger will work in the child care department, so our field staff is now at its full strength."

The Board concured in a resolution from the Council of the Township of Toronto in the County of Peel expressing the Minister of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare's amendment existing child welfare legislation so as to make it possible for the province to order a municipality to contribute towards the cost of child care beyond beyond the age of 18, when the court has seen fit to extend wardship beyond that age. The resolution pointed out that many adolescents were continued to maintain children in the care of the Children's Aid Society beyond the age of 18 so as to enable them to either complete or continue their high academic, education or technical training.

NOT ABLE TO COLLECT

As the law now stands, these municipalities are being discriminated against as they are not able to collect the normal 80 per cent payable by the Province of Ontario to municipalities in relief of their Children's Aid Society expenses.

In speaking of the resolution, Mr. Kerr stated that in the last year the society had spent $1,000 maintenance and clothing of five boys and girls given by John Telford, 375 Pine ? st, and Audrey Benson of Tweed.

Milk bottle thieves were active yesterday in the East Hill district with one resident complaining that $1.80 in change had been taken from his milk bottles..

Cold Front Arrives With Official Summer

Summer arrives officially this afternoon at 5:57. Spring made its exit quite noticeably yesterday and today when a cold front moved into the Quinte district from the north west. The filtration plant on the Trent Road recorded 0.06 inch of rain since Friday afternoon. High temperature today is expected to reach the mid 70's degrees and the low will be somewhere around 49.

The Department of Transport meteorological office at RCAF Station, Trenton reported this morning that the current cold front made its appearance over the Quinte district at 2:30 p.m. yesterday. At about 4 p.m. Friday the wind began blowing from the southwest but later in the day it changed suddenly to the northeast. Highest wind velocity recorded at the air station Friday was 30 m.p.h. at 5:30 p.m., one hour before the gusts abated.

On the average, though, the wind shifted from the southwest was about six miles an hour. Early this morning it changed to northwest, the wind velocity stepped up to 14 m.p.h.

The daily forecast at the RCAF station today said, "It was a sudden change which moved into this area this morning. Wind velocity averaged 14 m.p.h. across the frontal front."

The temperature dropped gradually Friday night and, by 7 a.m. today the thermometer read 49 degrees.

What is the forecast for Sunday generally speaking? Cool with a temperature about 75 degrees.

Monday afternoon another cold front is expected to appear to send showers over the Quinte district. A five-day weather forecast prepared in the U.S. says that one inch of rain is expected to fall between June 20 and June 24. Temperatures are to be four to eight degrees below normal.

Pet Skunk Taken From Car

Thieves sometimes have a yen for the strangest things — at least that is what is just the work of a prattical joker.

The very rare Tom Broad, canteen operator at Oak Lake, today is missing a pet skunk.

Mr. Broad had been the pet skunks in a box and last night his children were playing with the box. The skunks were left in the box, which in turn was left in the car.

This morning one of the skunks was missing and according to the owner it couldn't have disappeared without help.

Days of Sherman Adams As White House Power Over

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The days of Sherman Adams as a White House power may well be numbered.

President Eisenhower says he "needs" his flinty assistant, but there is growing doubt as to just how long the president can resist the demands made in all possible.

Mr. Dietfenbaker was showered with gifts and praise at salmon and roast duck dinner attended by Conservative Commons members, senators and 30 members of the party's national campaign committee.

The gifts included a massive 13-volume set of the Oxford English dictionary, a scroll signed by all 207 Conservative Commons members — a number "without precedent in the history of any party in Canadian history"— and a silver tray inscribed with the signatures of the 17 Conservative senators.

Mrs. Mrs. Diefenbaker, who accompanied her husband on his two strenuous election campaigns, received a mink stole described:

Mrs. Clive Diefenbaker in warm appreciation of your great contribution in the elections of 1957 and 1958."

Earlier, in an interview, Mr. Diefenbaker said he thinks the main accomplishment of his government will be the establishment of national unity to Canada. He said he is also pleased with satisfaction from support from differing racial and religious groups in Canada.

A little bit heavier and considerably more weighty, he took over from the Liberals last June 21 after the June 10 election. Now in the public he leaned back and chatted in retrospect on his first year as head of Canada's government.

The prime minister riffled through the day's mail. There were seven or eight letters addressing him as "dear Dief," most of them from strangers.

"Now, that sounds nice," said Mr. Diefenbaker, obviously savoring this familiarity.

Some offered congratulations or suggested minor favors. A couple suggested he be made a senator. Others asked if he writers could have spared themselves worry, for Mr. Diefenbaker explained that he paces himself according to his energies and the work in front.

"I sweat over the big decisions," he said, "but once I make the decision, it's final and past and that's all there is to it." He said he is not any worrying about second thoughts, he said. Once he's made important decisions, the prime minister said he works slavishly, and he doesn't want to seem to spill from him like water from a spigot.

"I'm not that sensitive, not set out of having someone else write my speeches," he said.

CASE NOT CLOSED

Though Eisenhower may feel he has closed the case with his "needs" statement, Opposition leaders were quick to say this week of his need for Adams, the Democrats are not through with the issue alive until voting time.

They still are smarting over the charges of bribery which Adams hurled in the 1957 presidential campaign against those in former President Truman's administration who allegedly took mink coats and other gifts from persons who had business to do with the government.

From the viewpoint of the Democrats, it may be just as well if Adams remains as the president's right-hand man. Some of the hurled in campaign oratory may scatter off on Eisenhower. Only last autumn Mr. Truman called the Republican 80th congress "the worst in history."

Mr. Charles D. Lundy, C.L.U. of the London Life, was moderator of the panel. Mr. Lundy will also call continue for the second year L.U.A.T. course and Mr. Lundy will moderate this one also.

This course given by The Life Underwriters Association of Canada is designed to give the Canadian underwriter a better knowledge of the life insurance business, so that he may be able to give better service to his clients and policyholders.

UN Committee Opens Study Of Execution of Hungarians

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (AP) — The United Nations Committee that condemned Russian for suppressing the 1956 Hungarian revolt reopened its case at a private meeting today on the executions of four revolt leaders.

The committee meeting came after continuing protests and protests over Hungary's execution last weekend of former premier Imre Nagy, Gen. Pal Maleter and two journalists.

Hungarian refugees stoned the Soviet Embassy in West Germany Friday while Russians fevered for an attack on the embassy in Copenhagen by smashing Danish Embassy windows in Moscow.

The acting chairman of the UN Special Committee, Sir Leslie Ronald Walker of Australia, said it would "consider the facts as they are known and what steps the Committee should take."

Diplomatic sources said there was sentiment in the Committee for asking the Soviet Union for a statement on its responsibility in the case. Russia has in the past refused to co-operate with the committee.

The sources also said Yugoslavia might be asked for details on Hungary's pledge of safe conduct for Nagy to leave the country. A committee report a year ago said Soviet forces arrested Nagy as he left asylum in Yugoslavia's Budapest embassy on a safety guarantee. Nagy's successor, installed successor, Premier Janos Kadar, is Yugoslavia called the ambassador home from Moscow Friday and prepared a stiff protest note to Hungary on the executions.

Ernest Meinstorp of Denmark, a Committee member, said the group might prepare a special report on the execution. The UN Special Committee has investigated overwhelmingly approved the original condemnation, report. Fifteen countries representing the Committee are Tunisia, Ceylon and Uruguay.

Making the Right Decisions

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

How often we look back to yesterday's decisions, wondering if we reached the right conclusions and spending our energies retrying the cases. We have not learned the secret of closing the door behind us.

We are told that baseball managers and players suffer after losing games and lie awake replaying the innings, asking themselves why they did not do this or that. (I imagine their wives are tactful those nights.) I sometimes wonder if there is such a thing as a good loser.

The Bible often stresses the importance of controlling the backward look. Jesus said, "No man having put his hand to the plough and looking back is fit for the Kingdom of God." On another occasion He said, "Remember Lot's wife."

However you may interpret the Old Testament story of Lot's wife, her tragedy was that she kept looking back to the place she was leaving rather than looking forward to the place she was going.

A second suggestion in making decisions is to determine the end we want to reach even though we cannot see clearly all the means of getting there. I have the greatest sympathy with young people in these troubled and uncertain times.

I recall how I came to my college graduation undecided about my lifework. And I realize how much more complex life is today with so many more specialties plus the interruptions of military service.

To be sure, no young person today knows quite where he or she will be a year from now. But is there anyone who cannot decide now what kind of a person he wants to be a year from now or ten years from now?

DIRECTION AND DESTINATION

I once read Lindbergh's book, "The Spirit of St. Louis." When he sat alone in that plane headed out over the Atlantic, his mind was open to many uncertainties, for he was doing something never done before. But he was settled on the question of direction and destination.

Thirdly, when we have reached a decision, we should do something at once to clinch it. The Chinese have an ancient proverb: "The longest journey begins with the first step."

When we clinch our convictions with action, we strengthen our ideals into standards. In common use there is quite a difference between an ideal and a standard.

An ideal is something we aspire toward; a standard is something we hold ourselves to. We have lots of lofty ideals today; in fact, we have higher ideals than our grandfathers about many things, such as world peace and industrial justice. But we need to strengthen these ideals into standards of action.

When a person of high standards and decisive action appears in our midst, we feel his strength. He disposes men to follow him. It is men of decision who, when a fire is raging, can calm the crowd and prevent panic. It is men of decision who bring order into a demoralized community and rally it to the fight of righteousness.

It was said of William Pitt that he formed his plans with such promptitude and executed them with such vigor that no man ever spent five minutes with him in conference without leaving a braver man than when he entered.

This day will leave each one of us either weaker or stronger. If we hear some call of duty and do nothing about it, he shall weaken the foundation of our character. In a day which calls for positive action to replace so much prevailing negative criticism, let us each in his own place, clinch our convictions of righteousness by some decisive deeds.

PRINCESS TAKES JOB

Finally, some of us are bedevilled because we start too many things we do not finish. We have so many irons in the fire and we change them so often that we handle or get hot. We do not go after them hammer and tongs like the village blacksmith, and weld them into some finished object.

Life has grown more complex since the days of Longfellow's village blacksmith. But we can practice one of his principles:

"Each morning sees some task begun
Each evening sees it close,
Something attempted, something done
Has earned a night's repose."

Some of us are given to procrastination. Maybe we ought to do as the late Dr. Richard Cabot of Harvard. He said that when he was tempted to put things off, he asked himself to name another time which would really be better and then he would mark it down in black and white and let someone else know about it in order to remind him. In that way he usually convinced himself there was no time like the present for doing what needed to be done.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

A Famous American Minister

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Tuesday, June 26 — If American Protestants had saints, the famous Congregationalist minister Henry Ward Beecher would by now probably be well on the way to canonization. He has been called the greatest Christian preacher since St. Paul.

The power to stir people with his oratory was an inborn gift with Beecher. It is said that even in his college days he had the ability to speak movingly on any subject. This certainly does not mean that Beecher was only an eloquent speaker with a bag of forensic tricks. He really h a d something to say.

At Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, where he spent most of his ministry and where he reached h i s peak, his constant theme was love. He believed and preached that the love of man for man is the fulfillment of God's law.

He once defined religion as "a life of liberty in love." This is much like the Jesuits' "love God and do as you please," meaning, of course, that one who loves God will cease to do the right thing.

The Beecher family was renowned for its combativeness and Harriet Beecher Stowe, Henry's sister, wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in 1848, and had grown by the time of the most influential — and inflammatory — books ever written.

Henry, though he did make speeches for the Union in England, was not nearly s. active in the Abolitionist cause as were the other Beechers.

He believed slavery would die of its own accord as the conscience of the nation was awakened. He thought he could see the end coming without any need for a rabble-rousing movement.

There are many stories of Beecher's quick and penetrating wit, and one of the most illustrative has to do with an encounter he had with the atheist Robert Ingersoll. Beecher and Ingersoll, despite their irreconcilable points of view, were good friends and often were guests in each other's homes. Ingersoll, of course, d i d not believe in God. He saw no Creator behind the universe.

One evening he dropped into Beecher's study for a chat and found there a the new globe map of the world, which the minister had just acquired. In admiration he said, "Henry, this is a splendid globe. I must get one. T e l l me who makes them."

"Go to one," said Beecher. "They make themselves."

Beecher was born on June 24, 1813, lie died in 1887.

A HAPPY UNION

Thursday, June 26 — It was on this day in 1204 that t h e Evangelical and Reformed church, now popularly known as the E. and R. church, was formed at Cleveland, by the union of the Evangelical Synod of N o r t h America and the Reformed Church in the U.S.A.

The Reformed Church, a German group holding Calvinist rather than Lutheran theology, came into America in the 17th century with the great wave of German immigration into Pennsylvania.

The Evangelical Synod, also largely German, had existed since 1840, and had grown by means of mergers of local groups in various parts of the country.

The unique and happy thing about this 1934 union was that it was all done on faith. The t w o bodies agreed to join forces and then talk about terms. All organizational details were worked out and adjusted after, not before, the merger.

The E. and R. church now has nearly a million members.

WATER POWER AND CANADA'S FUTURE

The biggest bang in the history of the celebration of Canada's Dominion Day will this year mark an important milestone in our history. The explosion of thirty tons of dynamite will blast away a coffer dam and will permit the waters of the St. Lawrence, the nation's mightiest river, to rush towards the nation's greatest engineering feat, the hydro-electric dam which has risen above the dried river bed just west of Cornwall.

When the huge turbines start whirling, they will be writing finis to one of the most inspiring chapters in the history of Ontario, the harnessing of this province's vast water power resources. The HEPC has told us that the St. Lawrence is the last undeveloped water power source of major importance.

We should be wrong, though, to infer that because a chapter is closing in Ontario the same holds true for Canada as a whole. The Royal Bank's monthly letter for June deals in detail with the natural resources of Canada and refers to hydro-electric power as one of our industries which is most important in the processing and development of all others." In spite of the development of all major water power resources in Ontario, Canada as a whole has utilized less than a third of the country's recorded resources, says the Royal Bank.

"Water flow has been an important natural resource in Canada from the time the first settlers set up their water-mills to grind grain," says the Bank's monthly letter. "The quantity of power available brought this country's economy from one based largely on vegetable growth and raw resources to one more than 70 per cent industrial. Canadians are now the second largest per capita consumers of electricity in the world.

"Since 1901, when hydro-electric installation was less than a quarter of a million horsepower, Canada's total climbed to a million in 1911, three million in 1921, six and a half million in 1931 and to nearly 20 million in 1957. This latest figure represents less than 28 per cent of the recorded water power resources."

The Ontario Hydro has already found it necessary to supplement hydro power by steam plants for the generating of electricity. Electricity produced in this manner will cost more, but there is hope that eventually nuclear energy may provide a cheap method of meeting the increased demands for power which are certain to develop in this province.

Nevertheless, it seems evident that in the years that lie ahead the possession of undeveloped sources of waterpower will provide other parts of Canada with an opportunity to expand. Far from being troubled by this possibility, Ontario residents ought to welcome it. The part can be no healthier than the whole and it is essential to Canada's continued economic health that industrial development should not be concentrated too heavily in this province. Much of the undeveloped water power resources lie in the vast hinterland of Quebec, but other provinces, too, have untouched sources of cheap power which should assist them to compete with Ontario, in the years ahead, in attracting new industrial enterprises. Ontario need have no fear of this competition. It already has a long lead over many of the provinces in industrial development and industrial attract industries. It does not appear that over-optimistic to suggest that the existence of undeveloped water power resources elsewhere may very well provide the needed balance wheel to keep future growth in other parts of Canada in line with that of this province.

I do not see any other difficulties that prevail against this invention (the aerial ship) save one, which seems to me the greatest of them all, and that is that God would never surely permit such a machine to be successful since it would create many disturbances in the civil and political governments of mankind.

Where is the man that can fail to see that no city would be proof against surprise when the ship could at any time be steered over squares, or even over courtyards of dwelling houses, and brought to earth for the landing of its enemy?

Iron weights could be hurled to wreck ships at sea, or they could be set afire by fire balls and bombs.

(Francisco Lana, in "On the Aerial Ship," published in 1670.)

HIS LITTLE GIRL

So you feel, little girl, and you bumped your knee,
And you want me to kiss it and make it well?
Yes, that is the reason you run to me.
And that is the pitiful tale you tell.
You didn't notice that stone that lay
In your path as along you pranced and skipped;
You never saw it at all, you say,
Till suddenly all in a heap you'd tripped.
"Kiss it, daddy," you say to me,
As I take my arms you sobbing run,
To show me the bruised and battered knee;
"See what the naughty sidewalk done;
See how it hurted your little girl."
And I kiss the spot that is red and sore
And brush from your forehead each tousled curl.
Behold, there are smiles on face once more.
Ah, little girl, through the lane of years
Strolling, stretching out far ahead,
Many a bruise will start your tears,
Many the stones where you must tread.
And your daddy prays when your days are grim
And you have troubles you want to tell,
You still will come in your love to him
That he may try to make each wound well.

Let Them Play Golf Together

Ottawa Journal

Prime Minister Diefenbaker comes up with a notion (before Wesleyan University) that members of the Canadian Parliament and the U.S. Congress might meet together from time to time to talk over Canadian-U.S. relations.

An excellent idea. The Journal thinks, provided it be carried out in the right way.

And the right way could hardly be two committees weighed down by a lot of food, nutrition and cluttered up in their thinking by briefs and statistics; the sort of starchy creations that invariably raise more hackles than questions and seldom have answers for the questions they pose.

What is needed, we suggest, is what might be a lot of good, would be a series of informal meetings, sort of "get-together" gatherings where the best and brightest of our MP's could confer with the best and brightest Congressmen for a week-end of golf or fishing or for those days when they seem to be days when they seek relaxation.

For example, what would be wrong about the right people here asking former Rhodes scholar Senator Norman Lambert to sachsuets young Senator Kennedy to set up a group of both parties from the Senate and House of Representatives and have him up here for a weekend of golf or fishing at the Kingsmere?

Lloyd George once said that he got farther with France's Premier Briand when he met the same of golf than he ever could with him across a formal official table. Locarno, it could almost be said, was born between theirs.

Nothing much of a legislative character ever was born of informal gatherings between MP's and Congressmen. But the good will and understanding born of such get-togethers in the right place which such get-togethers must bring.

Anyway, we commend our idea to Mr. Diefenbaker.

Looks Like His Business

London Observer

It is said that recently Mr. Dean Acheson met the head of the American Red Cross, General Gruenther. He asked him when he was going to take over the Foreign Department. The general demurred, and said he thought that the rumors that he was to take over from Mr. Dulles were long since dead.

That was not quite what Mr. Acheson meant. "Aren't you," he asked, "in charge of disaster areas?"

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IT APPEARS TO HAVE BEEN GENUINE

A prominent writer died recently in a New York hospital. He had been interested in the subject of religion. Much that he wrote was characterized by a worldly-wise smile and a touch of suppressed the standards of good taste.

As he entered the hosp'tal on what proved to be his last illness, he said to a nurse in the admission, what religion he professed. She smiled and replied, "None at all. I am a confirmed sceptic."

His death notice some months later contained a remarkable statement. This man during h i s time in the hospital came in contact with a group of unusually religious people. In fact, it was a branch of the Christian church which in former times he would have decried as characterized by superstition and sterile formalism. But he made the discovery t h a t there was one part of this humble group of worshipers a devotion to truth and a grasp of reality which he had never enjoyed.

He submitted. Many will say that as he confronted death he grew afraid and was willing to accept standards of faith which gave some assurance of salvation. But it appeared to me that this man must have been something vastly greater than that.

He really seemed to have "got religion." It was almost a death bed confession, but it appears to have been genuine.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my fishing cronies has for five years past spent a very treasured week in June each year trout fishing in a particular lake on which there are a few cabins owned by the Old Sportsman and guide.

One of the treats during the week is a visit to a quite small lake some distance away that is full of beautiful big trout of five and six pounds. No guests are allowed to visit this lake except in the company of the old guide himself. He takes great care of the lake, permits only so many of the fine trout to be taken, and restricts the fishing to fly fishing only.

To reach this little lake from the main camp is a walk over a fairly rough trail a mile and a half long. It twists up hill and down dale; and the angler is glad to see the little lake at the end of the hike.

This June, my crony was at the Parliament Buildings and s a t some aerial maps of the district. To his astonishment, he observed that the small lake was actually situated not four hundred yards from the far end of the large, lake, and separated from it only by a ridge. When he arrived at t h e camp, he demanded of the o l d guide what was the idea of the mile and a half hike.

"How long," he demanded, the o l d boy, "would the fishing last if I cut a trail over that ridge?"

The best fishing is hard to get at.

The large Richardson Cruiser the "Clarendon" one of the fastest yachts in eastern waters, owned by Mr. George Metcalfe, Deseronto, has been purchased by Mr. Harvey MacFarland of Picton and is being delivered there this week.

Mr. Charles T. Dolan of this city was elected an honorary president of the Ontario Retail Druggist Association at the recent meeting of the association in Hamilton.

Mrs. E. T. Austin, Cedar Street, has returned home from Detroit, Mich., where she visited her sister, Mrs. Margaret Welsh.

A deposit of mica has been discovered on the farm of Mr. David Wellington, Elm Hill, concession of Rawdon township. The find is reported to be a fine one and the first survey of the property is being made.

Prescqu'ile Park commission has ordered an abrupt stop to activities of treasure hunters on Proctor's Island, near Presqu'ile, which have been carried on for some days by a man in search of a treasure of $30,000, believed to have been buried on the island by his grandfather many years ago. He is said to be assisted in his hunt by a prospector and inventor who has been using a specially designed "treasure detector" for the purpose. A dispatch from Brighton states that Mr. Grant Quick, chairman of the Presqu'ile Province Park Board states that no permission has been given to dig or blast on the island and that he will visit the island and see for himself what is going on.

Jap Script For Western

Chicago Tribune

A mystery item in Miss Hopper's movie column headed that Yul Brynner had bought a Western scenario and is going to make a western out of it. We have a hunch that Brynner, starring Walter Simmons, formerly our correspondent in Tokyo, that the Japanese are still addicts of westerns, eating them up like a bowl of Sukiyaki. Still, it seems a bit strange to recapture the old west by seeking authentic Nisei color for the film.

The most logical explanation is that the Japanese television TV has drained off so much of the available western plot material that the only possible new twist is to transfer the purple sage of Rondo or Reno, Nevada. One may easily imagine the fanning battle of the Hokay corral on Hokkaido, for example.)

Mr. Brynner, with his shaven sconce and oriental manners, will probably appear, from the days of "The King and I," could easily pass for an oriental. Will he ride while Seesaw Hayakawa, who is still around winning "Oscars" through the mail, sits in the old day of William S. Hart, could be the head man, holding up the stage coach. The cast could be filled out with unemployed Japanese generals, most of whom became bowlegged sitting on horses at military reviews. They already possess high heeled boots.

Counted Pigs For Insomnia

The Times of London

The best way of wooing sleep is to count sheep jumping over a gate. That is the rule, inscribed in letters of stone, engraved on the tablets of memory, a precious fragment of childhood lore. The school of thought which finds meditative hedge for gate may just be tolerated and can be condoned in spite of its mistaken notion, as being within the fold, for under ordinary circumstances the orthodox can be suffered. Sheep, that is lack of fodder, highly inclriated benevolence on their faces, must follow one another in single, file, become momentarily airborne as they rise at the imagined obstacle, and then pass out of the vision of the inward eye to make way for their successors until the senses, feeling they have had enough, surrender to oblivion. This is the drill, and, whatever shortcomings it may have in practice, no other is permissible.

The faithful, then, must have been shocked to the core when the Chancellor of the Exchequer declared in the House that, when he was Minister of Agriculture, he had counted his animals by counting Danish pigs." Pigs, whether Danish or not, are more often counted on his mind at the time and even constituted a problem in the measure — and it is hard to see how this would help.

And what about pigs and what are they supposed to be doing while the farmer is counting them? A crowd of pigs, a heaving sea of pinkish hides, is there for nothing in particular, would be of precious little help to the sleepless man, isolated and counted it would merge back into the indistinguishable. The progress of sleep would have to be done again and would probably end in the tearing of the hair rather than to a state of gentle and relaxed repose.

There are difficulties, too, if the pigs are the subject of an imbolle. Pigelet, to be sure, can show a remarkable degree of power over a short distance, but the mature pig, a pig, for instance, like Napoleon, with all the Empress of Blandings, is not celebrated in the annals for the debate as to whether pigs have wings has long been decided in the negative, and, however a flying pig is on a par with a whistling pig, it is not a very happy example of fantastic improbability. And that goes for Pegasus as well. Pigs, notable as trencherment, preserve their dignity, as it were, by resolutely presenting a front of solid impassivity to the world in a static and imposing disinclination to bumble.

Sheep can, on occasion, be quick enough off the mark, and the contribution to the sum of work overtime at the task of seeing them as so many would be considerable. But nocturnal Grand National, but, at the thought of a leaper in the same sort of activity it balks. The Chancellor of the Exchequer was on the wrong track in his search for a recipe for sleep —sheep it must be, and sheep jumping over a gate.

Temperance Law Strange

Windsor Star

A complex law has caused an uproar in an Ontario village.

The Liquor Licence Act has been blamed for the operation of illegal liquor outlets in Dublin, a village community in Perth County, Perth and adjoining Huron counties are under the C.T.A.

The C.T.A. is supposed to dry up an area, but there are many openings through which liquor can find entry.

This act bans the sale of liquor in any form, but tolerates consumption of liquor by persons of any age in any place.

Under this law, arrests were made on only two charges: for the sale of liquor and for drunkenness. Simply having liquor of your own in transit, if it is somebody else's liquor, cannot be arrested.

A policeman could pass a man drinking from a bottle of whiskey on a main highway and all he can do is warn.

And anybody with a case of beer in his car doesn't have to worry. A policeman who owns it or where he got it. In other words, anybody can bring in and keep their own business without being able to do anything about it.

The C.T.A. has also led to the birth of many of the famous "bottle clubs." Members have their own case of beer in the club, with their names or number marked on the carton, and then can order another from a restaurant. The result, "customers" come from miles around.

It is a strange way to practise temperance.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SURGERY THE BEST COURSE IN CASES OF HYDROCELE

"Dear Dr., Molner: I have been to my doctor and have been told I have a hydrocele. I've had it for around two years and had it drained about a month ago. The doctor says the only thing that can be done is surgery. Do you agree? I've never had anything like it before. It just seemed to come on all at once. — O. S."

Hydrocele (pronounced hydro-seel) is one of those things that doesn't seem to be very well known by the public. Unlike some of the "popular" ailments, if you want to call them that, hydrocele doesn't accumulate much publicity or concentration — nobody, it often seems, has ever heard of it until he encounters it personally.

For all that, it is not rare, as things go in the experience of physicians, so we continue to have the same experience explaining it to people who find themselves concerned with a situation they never heard of before.

Essentially it is an accumulation of fluid in the scrotum, occasionally more often on the left side although it can appear even on young children and infants.

Infection sometimes is the cause — but more usually we are unable to discover any specific cause. It just happens.

TAPPING IS ONLY TEMPORARY

The fluid, after it accumulates, can be "tapped," or drawn off through a hollow tube, but this is not permanent, plus medication, may put an infection in but as a generality it is much wiser to consider it a chronic thing, and tapping as a temporary measure. The fluid will usually collect again.

There are cases of individuals who have had this tapping done numerous times over a period of 10 years, hoping to avoid surgery, but this they are fast abandonly convinced that surgery is the correct course.

The surgery, itself, does not take the toll of the patient's strength as it does with some more severe operations, and he is back at work in a few days, as good as ever. Or maybe we say not only as good as before the operation, but a good deal better.

Surgery, after one or two tappings, is by far the best course, and it saves time, trouble and concern on the part of the patient. And it certainly is the only positive means of ending the trouble.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any harm in taking a laxative every day for weeks at a time for the purpose of losing weight — D. S."

No. And besides that, it won't help, basically, in reducing, except by indirect stimulation of good health. Habitual use of laxatives is one of the best ways of causing constipation. Along with this comes hemorrhoids, and if they reach the bleeding point, then anemia and general lassitude are likely to follow. A high price to pay for a "reducing method" that doesn't work! And why should laxatives help one reduce, anyway? They are designed only to force the discharge of residue from which you have already absorbed the life-sustaining calories!

"Dear Dr. Molner: When I scold, my five-year-old daughter she holds her breath so she actually passes out on me. She does it even when she falls down. Her older brother used to do the same but is all right now. We took him to our family doctor about it, he said it was only temper. But we are so worried about her. Should we take her to one of the big hospitals? Mr. and Mrs. D. — Ont."

I wouldn't. Have your doctor give a general check, of course — but this aspect of temper is much more common than people think. It is not serious. It is, in fact, pretty close to being the true tantrum. Many a child has this or her breath that long — but if they truly pass out, they automatically begin, then, to breathe.

Mt. Pleasant Rawdon WMS Organized 1901

RAWDON — Mrs. Milford Wrightsman was hostess for the June meeting of Mount Pleasant - Rawdon Women's Missionary Society attended by 13 members and two visitors.

Mrs. Herbert Smith, president, opened the meeting and read a selection, "Winning Others." Mrs. John Holmes played quiet piano music as a prelude. Timothy 4 and a message written by Rev. Leslie Weatherhead, was read.

The program was arranged and conducted by Mrs. Ralph MacMullen who read a poem from the Missionary Monthly entitled "The Witchery of June." Mrs. Frank Joffs read the Bible lesson. The convener gave the devotional message based on the poem, "You Are Writing a Gospel" a chapter a day and that is the gospel according to you."

The said in part: "In this 6th month of June it is 57 years since Mount Pleasant - Rawdon WMS was organized in the old Methodist days. In 1958 the 45th anniversary was observed. Mrs. James Williams served as president for the first ten years and in 1912 a Mission Circle with nine girls was organized with Mrs. Robert Forster as leader.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE

The group sang a hymn and Mrs. Carleton Potts paid special tribute to those women who have served this organization in the early years of 1900. She also remembered missionaries, Miss H. Barbara, a hospital visitor in Vancouver, B.C.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang a hymn written by a minister's wife in Toronto, for a special musical program.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell read an article entitled, "Women Builders and Overseas Missions" from the booklet, "Your Church". The Mission Board carried on 16 different types of work and appoints 250 students yearly to mission fields. The overseas missions are located in seven countries — Japan, Korea, India, Korea, India, northern Rhodesia, Angola in Africa, and Trinidad.

Mrs. Ross Joffs read from "Missionaries Reporting" the story of Miss Beulah V. Bourns and her work as a missionary nurse at Severance Hospital, Seoul, Korea. This gave a vivid picture of empire, slave of refugees, a milk station that provides powdered milk for the babies, and the great work accomplished by the Korean Nurses' Association.

KOREAN BACKGROUNDS

Mrs. Harry McAdam read an article entitled, "Korean Background" from "Journeying with the Year." This gave a description account of that land and said about 650 years ago Marco Polo is said have interested the Christian religion into Korea. During World War II, the United Church had missionaries and five stations in southeastern Korea. All these had to be given up and all were sent only work in South Korea by the Church. The Korean people are eager to learn more about Christianity and its message of love and hope that some day their world problems may be solved.

Mrs. Ross Joffs displayed the new Study Books and introduced the auxiliary book, "Concerns of a Continent," written by James Hoffman and his assistants.

This new study book points out common problems and shows how various countries can help each other. The story begin with Columbus' discovery of America in 1492. The chapters tell of mission work in Alaska, amongst the Indians and in Canada and the United States. Both have problems such as illiteracy, alcoholism, and other evils.

The chapter on Canada stresses that her immigrants are world-minded and are assisting mission work in other countries. There are also stories on the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, and the Caribbean Islands. Here 16,000,000 people live, and Cuba is the largest island.

Mrs. MacMullen also gave a brief address regarding the primary and Junior Study Books for the younger groups. She outlined the new book "Middle East Pilgrimage," which gives up-to-date news of 13 countries.

The Christians of the world are fellow pilgrims with the people of the Middle East", she said.

The president conducted the regular business and the treasurer received $72.66 todate for this quarter. Plans were made for the annual party at the hall in July when the younger groups will be entertained.

The stewardship secretary read, "The Art of Patience"; the citizenship secretary read an article, "A Home for Boys and Girls", from the book "Tomorrow to Dawn". The mission band leader gave a report of the Medoc conference. A letter regarding the World Day of Prayer was read from the "Sister - council of Church Women."

Refreshments were served by the lunch convener, Mrs. Oscar Merrick.

2 Open Sewers Piped, Filled In Past Week

TRENTON — At least two of Trenton's open sewers have been piped and filled over during the past week and another is slated to be done during this coming week, Mr. Aldersey, town engineer, said yesterday.

The town crews have finished the piping of the open sewers running from Bay Street southerly along Fuendorf and the one which ran between the dump and Bay Street. The open ers were on Guelph Street is the next on the list and is expected to be finished during the weekend.

Mr. Aldersey also reported that prices have been asked for the storm sewers, sanitary sewers and water lines along Geauga Street and once they are in hand work will also begin.

He also reported that the work on the new extension to the Trenton Public Building on the corner of Meyers and Ontario streets is underway with the walls already up and the cross beams for the roof in place. The roof was being put on yesterday and it is not expected that the actual construction work will take much longer.

Traffic counts will be 40 by 60 feet and a portion of it will store one of the fire engines when the town hedge is closed or partially closed for repairs and painting.

The new grader has been working on the dump for the past few days and is doing an excellent job there. Charles Vickers has been named the permanent driver for the machine and yesterday was level, smooth and ready for use. The new sewer line has just recently been installed.

Mr. Aldersey also reported the men who were cutting and removing trees, shrubs and streets have completed their work and left the area.

It is expected that work on the Dundas Street hill will be the next large undertaking this summer for the public works department.

Sprinkler System, Heating Plant For New Centre

TRENTON — Two new bylaws were given first, second and third readings and another was given only first and second readings at a special meeting of Trenton Council held in the Board Room of the Municipal Building last night.

The special meeting started at 8 p.m. and lasted until 10.30 p.m. with all councillors present. Mayor Ross Hubbard received the report of Town Clerk-Treasurer O. W. Larry read the new by-laws.

The first reading was by-law 1296R, which authorizes the mayor and clerk to enter into a contract with the Albert Defosse Construction Company to repair and build town sidewalks and curbings at a total expenditure of $10,973. Mr. Defosse's bid was the lowest of the tenders handed in to the town clerk.

By-law 1298R also passed the three readings and gave authorization to issue debentures to the amount of $140,000. This money will be used to finance the construction and equipping of the new addition to the Trenton High School. Work on this is already underway. The debentures are issued for a 20-year period and the first will be redeemable in 1978.

The third by-law, which was also given the first two readings, was No. 1296R which will authorize the issuing of debentures to the amount of $96,500 for work in the Community Centre, including sprinkler system, $5,000; electrical work, $4,000; heating, $4,200, and drainage work, $1,800.

The debentures will be payable in annual instalments period and will also begin in 1959. The sinking fund annual repayment will be about $6,100.

It was noted during the reading of the by-laws that the town's total debenture debt now stands at $1,328,015, and the total assessment for the town is $11,367,970.

Following the passing of the by-laws the council meeting adjourned and reconvened as a committee of the whole to interview three men who had applied for the post of town assessor. The post has been left vacant since the recent resignation of K. K. Kenney.

Although the committee did not decide on the new assessor last night they plan to study the applications further and will reach a decision at a meeting expected to be held at the end of next week.

Councillor Ray Fox heads the committee responsible for the town assessor's appointment.

Woman Slightly Injured When Cars Collide

TRENTON — Mrs. Velma Irene Hill, 41, 69 Catherine St. Trenton, was treated in hospital last night for bruised ribs after the car she was driving was in collision with another at the intersection of Catherine and King Streets.

She was released from hospital and permitted to go home following treatment by Dr. W. W. Weaver.

The second car was driven by Alex Rivman, R.R. 5, Trenton, and damage to his car was estimated at $100 to the front end.

According to police reports the Rivison car was proceeding south on King Street and the other vehicle being operated by Mrs. Hill was going north on Catherine. Mrs. Hill told police the engine pedal of her car stuck and the car went through a stop street and into the path of the other car. Damage to her car was to the left door and window, windshield, rear left panel and rocker panel. Cost of repair was estimated at $150.

Dave Camp was listed as a witness to the mishap which occurred at 8.10 p.m. and was investigated by Constable Sid Vickers.

Miss Helen E. Wright, 84 Campbell Street, damaged the car she was driving to the extent of $150 when she hit a fire hydrant on Sliters Avenue yesterday at 5 p.m.

Mrs. Wright told police she had stopped to let out a passenger and was too close to the hydrant. She said when she pulled away the front of the car hit the hydrant and dented both right hand doors of the car. No charge was reported to the fire hydrant.

Det. D. C. Bradshaw of the Trenton police force investigated.

64 Children Enjoy Visit To Toronto

TRENTON — Two chartered Rathbun buses carried 64 children and three teachers to Toronto from Trenton yesterday to attend a day long tour of the big city.

The children were the Grade Six students of the College St. school and they were accompanied by their principal, Mr. J. Hamilton. Teachers Mr. Delong and Miss Green, as well as the school nurse, Mrs. Haslam, attended the trip.

Drivers of the buses were Clarence Brooker and Henry Hall (Hank) Shaw.

The party left the College St. school at 7.30 a.m. and at 11.20 a.m. arrived in Toronto on schedule for their visit to Fort York at the foot of Bathurst St. From there to the Port they arrived at the Canada Packers plant at 11.45 where they had their lunch and then spent until 2.30 p.m. visiting the various exhibits there.

At 2.30 they left for the permanent buildings and after seeing these made a trip to the Riverside Zoo. The buses carried the students to the various points across the town.

They left the Zoo at 4.5 p.m. and after a stop in Bowmanville, where they spent an hour and a half for supper, they arrived back in Trenton at 8.45 p.m.

The trip was conducted by Kiwanian Ted Parker for members of the Kiwanis Club.

Before the meeting closed a card was signed by all the members and will be sent to Arthur Duncan of Batawa, who is in Trenton Memorial Hospital being treated for injuries suffered in a recent highway accident.

It was noted that although Mr. Duncan was not a member of the group he had helped the Kiwanians on many occasions.

Girl Struck By Car While Moving Motor Vehicle

TRENTON — Tiny Brenda Shenberg, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Shenberg, 123 Sidney Street, has all but forgotten her experience last Wednesday when she fell from a moving car, her father said yesterday.

The youngster had taken from the car her father was driving when he came to a stop at the Meyers bay about 5 p.m. near the Hotel Gilbert.

Mr. Shenberg said he was going to pick up the child's mother and because of the heavy traffic was travelling slowly. He said he was just passing the Hotel Gilbert on Dundas Street West when he heard his daughter crying, "Daddy, Daddy!" and as he looked around he saw the door was open and his child running down the street after the car.

He said it all happened in a moment and he stopped the car and jumped out to get the tot. He said she was scratched around the arms and face and had a nasty bump on her forehead. He bundled her into the car and rushed her to the Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment.

He is home and feeling fine now Mr. Steenburg said and he felt the child was more afraid her father would leave her on the road after she had fallen out than she was hurt in the accident.

He said he has no idea how the door came open as he had locked it. He left to pick up his wife. He felt that his daughter may have been playing with the lock-and unnoticed by him.

Brigade Called To Fire on Hydro Pole

TRENTON — Two flashes could be seen in Trenton at 2.30 a.m. today when hydro wires crossed after being burnt out by a fire on one of the hydro poles about two miles from town on the Wooler Road.

The fire was noted by a passing motorist and he reported it to Constable Garry Davis on duty at the police station who in turn called the local fire department.

After calling the reeve concerned Elmer Sager and Ernie Nerton rushed to the scene in the municipal truck. They were assisted chiefly for fires outside of town limits.

On arrival the firemen found the cross arm on the hydro pole burning. They put out the fire and in a field behind a sub-station near Webb's Service Station.

As in some hydro fires, when the firemen noted the blaze was out the power was building and left it for the hydro crews, who had been called by Bernard Webb. The firemen reported that the wires had tangled around one another and had fallen to the ground or across the road and were, therefore not a threat to motorists.

When the wires crossed, causing the two flashes, the lights dimmed in town blinked out for a matter of a second each time but came again at the same time.

Cause of the fire at the top of the pole was not known.

for Dick Burnet and Bob LaMorre.

Kenny Smith of Oshawa was guest for the night and was welcomed by the Kiwanians. A letter from Keith Johnston was read, telling the club he had been transferred to Toronto and would be taking an active part in the club in that city. Al Georgeson introduced by Kiwanian Ted Parker for membership in the club.

Before the meeting closed a card was signed by all the members and will be sent to Arthur Duncan of Batawa, who is in Trenton Memorial Hospital being treated for injuries suffered in a recent highway accident.

It was noted that although Mr. Duncan was not a member of the group he had helped the Kiwanians on many occasions.

Kiwanians Use $900 to Help Boys and Girls

TRENTON — Kiwanians held one of their shortest meetings of the year last Thursday night when they met in Hotel Gilbert for their regular weekly session. During the business session which followed a brief sing-song led by Kiwanian Bill Brown, president, Grant Gooding, treasurer reported that well over $900 had been realized on the Lady Lamp pegs. This money will be used to send boys and girls to a summer camp for a week.

Elephants Rehearse for Circus

The best schooled herd of performing elephants in the amazing less than 1,000 pounds as compared to her more pondtrous sisters who tip the scales at upwards of four tons.

Elephants are worth their weight in gold to the Circus, not only do they appear in the performances, but they play a vital part daily in helping install the cages and wagons in the Clyde Beatty menagerie and in pushing quarter poles upright in the Big Top.

There is something about the huge beasts that never fails to attract the circus crowds. Always so mighty and at the same time meek — especially where they stretch out their long trunks in quest of their favorite delicacy peanuts and more peanuts.

A multitude of fectures and innovations, together with nearly 200 internationally renowned circus stars appear on the program of the great tented Clyde Beatty Circus.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Lay a Foundation for Retirement Before That Vital Time Arrives

By THOMAS COLLINS

A good retirement, as a rule, must grow from some sort of plan you planned before you retired.

It cannot be something fresh to you. It must be something you have already established a liking for. Something comfortable.

A survey among people who are retired will show you this. Occasionally a retired man will come along to prove it to you. This week comes Norman B. Brannen.

Mr. Brannen had a job in a manufacturing plant. He retired at 65 with $108 social security and $150 company pension, for a total of $258 a month. His wife, at 58 was seven years away from Social Security.

"I always had a little farm in mind," he says. "After passing 50 I thought about it a great deal. I had been raised on a farm as a kid, and I was pretty well convinced that the best life, and possibly the best security, was on a little piece of productive land. . .

LAND EXPENSIVE

But it took money. Around an urban center, where his job was, farm land ran from $300 an acre up. Even 50 acres would t a k e what equity he had in his home and pay his savings.

"I never could bring myself to the point of stops necessary and to the idea of commuting from a farm to my job every day.

He let things slide. At 65 he did not want to bother with a farm.

"It was the same with a job. As I procrastinated on the farm I began to think of having a job after I retired. Twice I ran across jobs paying virtually the same as mine that wouldn't require me to retire at 65. Both times I chickened out. I just didn't want to quit my company after 28 years.

"But when I retired I couldn't get a job. . .

FARM MADE

Mr. Brannen's wife, watching him move closer to 65 with no farm made, urged him to invest in some school and study something new that would interest him. It seemed like a good idea. He felt too young to it. At 65 he felt old.

She urged him to develop a hobby. That was a good idea. He never did. At 65 a hobby seemed inadequate.

"After I passed 64, I knew I had to get on with something, but since nothing came completely, my wife and I began discussing where we would live, with sunshine, even fruit fish. We had no kinship with any spot because home, except what vocations had given us. That wasn't enough kinship to build up a household and move to.

"At 65 we decided it was more comfortable to stay home. Safer, too."

What does all this add up to? "It adds up," says Mr. Brannen, "to the total fact that a person is fed through a queer — and — partly real, partly psychological — to the day of retirement.

"After that he's not so employable, not so courageous, not so ambitious and not so interested in anything as he was day before yesterday.

"He's not fit candidate so pole his foot into anything he has not tested earlier with his toe."

Mr. Brannen says he his studied other men who have waded through his same indecision before he made up his mind. Interest, and yank it over the retirement barrier.

"Retirement can be a disease that makes you unattractive for, and uninterested in, anything except sitting and not being embarrassed. A man (or a woman) must have his motor running before retirement. . ."

As for Mr. Brannen, misfortune took care of things. His wife required an operation after he retired. The operation bill was $1,158. The $258 pension couldn't help.

He and his wife moved to the farm home of his wife's brother to catch their breath. They stayed — to buy five acres of the latter's farm for a trailer home and a commercial strawberry patch.

Bike Demolished In Collision With Truck

A part time newspaper carrier rubbing for a friend who is on a weekend trip to Ottawa narrowly escaped serious injury Friday afternoon when he was knocked from his bicycle by a truck making a right hand turn.

Police said that Joseph Hoard, age 11, of R.R. 2 Belleville, suffered only bruises and a shaking up as the truck demolished his bicycle at the corner of James and Bridge Streets. He was taken to the office of Dr. Austin Walters for examination.

Biggest worry of the boy was that it was his friend's bicycle which was demolished.

"It's not my bike, it's not my bike," the boy told the officer repeatedly as he viewed the twisted remains of the bicycle he had been riding.

Police said it appeared the boy had been riding down Bridge Street till close to the truck and had been cut off by the vehicle when it turned right onto James Street.

Softball Game Called Off

A Belleville and District Softball league game between Trenton Legion Juniors and the Frankford Legion, scheduled for Frankford last night, was called off when the home team refused to take the field.

Umpires Harold Bawden and Bill Hunter were present, as were the Trenton Juniors, but Frankford claimed the diamond was too wet and would not play the game. According to Bawden, umpire-in-chief of the newly Quinte Umpires' Association, Frankford refused to turn on the lights to play the scheduled game.

The umpires stated that the field was in playable condition at game time. The fixture was scheduled for 8.15 p.m.

Charlie Brain, coach of the Trenton club, has indicated he will protest to the league executive, saying that his team be awarded the game.

As for Mr. Brannen, misfortune took care of things. His wife required an operation after he retired. The operation bill was $1,158. The $258 pension couldn't help.

He and his wife moved to the farm home of his wife's brother to catch their breath. They stayed — to buy five acres of the latter's farm for a trailer home and a commercial strawberry patch.

Floral Emblems of Canada

Philadelphia Lily of Sask.

by Lavonia Stockelbach

As home seems best after an absence from it, so one's native land after years of exile reveals beauties that time had dimmed and others that had never even been noticed. Garden flowers are lovely and can be a solace to one worried by the daily grind but a greater joy is the wild flower that has no association with the toil of man. To that vast ready-made garden, to those myriad flowers that grow unbidden, we seek the battle, to return with delight.

One considers the lilies: one really sees them. The daub of a child's creation is not a daisy or a buttercup have passed, and one has time and knowledge to appreciate a petal, a stamen, and the more knowledge the greater the love and the appreciation.

Again it differs from the orange lily prescned to you in the twelfth of July in Belfast when they have their delightful pageant celebrating the victories of Louis XIV over Europe in the Battle of the Boyne. It is a light orange with a deeper shade at the tip and base and the stems with many, thick lance shaped leaves.

So it is an easy matter to distinguish between the Saskatchewan emblem and either the orange lily or the tiger lily.

It was to be equally easy to find one, so we started out in the early part of the beautiful evening of late June, going northward from Regina for a distance on a good and well travelled road. Upon being asked if I minded a gravel road, and not knowing what a gravel road meant, I said not at all so we turned off on the main road where we should fine lilies, but before finding one we came to a slough—a near little pool where evening of many water fowl were nesting. A grebe was carrying to his mate a piece of some water growing plant either for a decoration or for the forming of their nest. She received it in and turned over an egg while he swam low in the water for some other bit. Nearby was a male phalarope, that curious creature in the spring when the females are dull colors while the hen, who was nowhere around, is brilliant with the brilliant feathers. Such a number of the most interesting waterbirds were loudly engaged in their usual work when on the other side of the pond appeared my first lily of the season.

OWL SURVEYS SCENE

A little owl not more than ten inches long accompanied with a barn owl's eighteen inches. He stood on his little mound and had taken over from a prairie dog's home, stretched himself to his full height, put his two funny long legs, bowed, or seemed to, with his funny little head and looked over the pond to us in the car and beyond us at the setting sun.

There he stood, and perfectly still except for the movement of his head and beautiful golden eyes. Sometimes, he'd utter a speedy softness to catch a field mouse or a grasshopper, but most of the time he just stood, a comical wise-looking and engearing little creature.

"We have given a friend invited me to use his mind erected on the prairie within a few feet of the manure covered mound so that I could at ease study its feathers, its feet, its eyes, and all that was his, including his caste hearing. Also I am supposed to be writing about a floral emblem, I must refrain myself from again dilating on the hospitality of the prairie people.

So we stayed in the car, watched the household duties of the accomplished yellow-headed black-birds, and all of the creatures one sees on the prairies and the lovable little burrowing owl roaming at the gorgeous sunset which, reflected in the slough,

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

The problem of teaching safety habits to children on our streets, highways and byways is a year-round challenge that is simply worsened during the two holiday months each summer. With more cars on the roads and adventure drawing them on every hand with extra thickness than at any other time of the year, it is fitting that we think of this as the school prepare to close their doors in a few days. We can talk all we wish about the great natural resources, the untapped hinterland, recession and prosperity but it remains an unchallenged reality that the nation's real wealth is to be found in its children.

Within the past couple of days we have had our attention drawn to two items that emphasize safety both for the adult and the child. Medicine Hat in Canada is reported to have hit it in the leading safety city on the North American continent, that is for a city of its size and population of 20,000 or more. It all started with a newspaper reporter on the front page. After a number of days of death free accidents the newspaper published in block form the fact that the city was so proud of its accidental death on its streets due to traffic. The idea caught on. Driver responsibility and the city's organizations have swung in behind the record and now the safety of the individual and a community point of pride. It pays to be safety conscious. It does pride. It costs nothing and does not affect the tax rate. It is worthwhile. Medicine Hat Alberta City. Belleville could copy and not lose face. Or is it? The Ontario Imperial Oil Review for this item.

Then we spotted a couple of pictures on the front page of the monthly review of the Imperial Oil Limited. In N.Z. there are two units touring all the schools in each island. Complete with safety. Model cars and bicycles, building jays, and traffic lights, intersection crossings and road signs —all in miniature — are used to teach children the rules of the road. Maybe the Ontario government might borrow the idea? N.Z. experiment, and, too, it might copy it to the great benefit of the children of our province.

A profitable weekend thought seems to be a thought about safety. The cynic claims that safety is merely a matter of timing which is out of our control. The conscientious citizen will say that even if this is so, why not try to postpone untimely fate and its consequences.

'The Auld Sod' Is First Home Of All Good North Americans

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Shannon, Ireland — The man across the aisle from us on a U. S. plane seemed to choke back a sob as the rocky strip of coast below broadened into a sprawling land dotted with farm houses and lined by stone fences. "The auld sod," he muttered.

It wasn't his mother country any more than ours, and yet his emotion sprang from the welcome sight of land after the long morning of trailing over wet gray clouds broken only by an occasional glimpse of ocean.

But more likely he felt, as many North Americans do, that the Emerald Isle was his abiding last home; in the sense that "all good Americans go to Paris when they die," all good Americans came from Ireland before they were born.

Only seven hours before it had been a dark 1 A.M. in Gander, Nfld., the plane departing Europe to the Shannon Airport. It is barely introduced when Irish ingenuity and the time-refined European sense of taste that we have yet to fully appreciate.

On our own continent, airport terminals are seldom distinguished. Either bizarrely modern or depressingly antiquated. In Ireland and in Europe they are usually stocked with a little dusty, overpriced trivia and their restaurants serve meals that are more often than any other kind.

By contrast, Shannon Airport, despite its modernistic architecture, can boast: (1) One of Europe's finest chefs; (2) the introduction of one of the world's most rewarding beverage experiences — Irish coffee — in the department store, birthplace of the free port idea, that freezes $3,000,000 last year and is Ireland's largest single commercial enterprise.

Though it was early in the day when we arrived, Chef Bill Ryan was on duty preparing bacon and eggs. At home these would have been hustled by a short order cook, the bacon served in a tasteless crisp, the egg whites burned and the yolks hardened.

But here we had meaty, gently broiled thick slices of bacon and large-yolked tender eggs, fresh as sunflowers, all cooked with a loving individual care suggested at breakfast in restaurants at home. There was homemade bread and marmalade with fresh churned butter, and hot coffee in silver pots served by attentive white-jacketed waiters. It was all much more like a good hotel dining room than an airport coffee shop.

The Irish claim to have created whiskey and it's probably true, because if one Irishman had not thought of it another would have. Investing the Water of Life was mothered by necessity in Eire's cold-wet climate. It was just as inevitable that Irish coffee should have been invented, presumably for travelers whose bones had been pierced by the wind and rain.

Conceived by some sainted genius as coffee ("strong as a friendship," a sugar ("sweet as the tongue of a rogue"), whiskey ("smooth as the will to live") and it warms the blood and restores the soul for the traveler's long hours between stations.

When Shannon first opened as a transatlantic jet stop for the international airlines after the war, another Irish mind originated the idea of duty-free shops, the world's products available to customers merchants at duty- and tax-free, the savings to be passed on to the travelers.

Items such as liquors, French perfumes, Swiss watches, German cameras, Irish linens and woolens, Scottish cashmeres, china and crystal, thereby became available to travelers before reaching the levels in their countries of origin, and travelers soon were making a point to take flights stopping at Shannon just to shop.

The idea died since has been adopted elsewhere in the world, most notably in the Caribbean where some items are even cheaper than in Shannon, but this remains Europe's biggest bargain store and the world's best known. Around the duty-free counters are crowded with shoppers who have bypassed Paris' perfumes and Switzerland's watches to buy them here while their plane refuels.

What is already a rewarding food, coffee and bargains, I enjoy usually feel good all the way across the Atlantic.

Mrs. Dorothy Long Heads Dominion Board of W.M.S.

By EDNA USHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A greyhaired, motherly woman with two teen-age children is chief of an organization with membership of more than $1,000,000 a year and has a membership of 1,250,000 women.

Mrs. Dorothy Long, 57, of Toronto, has been elected for a second year president of the Dominion board of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada.

Soft - spoken Mrs. Long has a determination that seems to find the 32 women missionaries required per year abroad, and the 40 women workers needed for churches in Canada. But she is not the typical activist.

"I have faced difficulties before as the wife of a church minister," she said.

ALWAYS ON MOVE

When she married Rev. Ernest Long in 1921, he was United Church minister at Tillsonburg, near London, Ont.

"We were in Tillsonburg two years, and then troubles began," she said. "Then Mr. Barrie and the depression came. Seven years later we moved to Kingsmill, and then took a church people involved, as workers or management, in the great mines strike. When we moved to Montreal the war was on, which didn't make it easy there."

Mrs. Long studied English and history at the University of Toronto, taught school for two years at Norwood, near Peterborough, and then took a bursary scholarship at a woman's college in Philadelphia.

Back in Toronto she resumed teaching, and in 1928 obtained a bachelor of arts degree. She had completed a course in philosophy before she married, but then took up arts to get her arts honor doctorate until 10 years later.

She began church work as a Sunday school teacher, and after her marriage became active in women's associations and women's missionary societies of the churches she attended.

She held local, regional and provincial offices in the WMS until she was appointed to the Dominion executive.

WIDE PROJECT

The WMS of the United Church trains and supports single women missionaries to Canada, Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Trinidad, India, Angola and Northern Rhodesia, and assists in church development.

"All the areas we serve want women missionaries to help them develop and expand service to the people," she said.

Scarf Magic

By ALICE ALDEN

The classic foulard becomes the chic accent this year, when accessories are as important to individualize simple dress lines. Precise foulard patterns in sun-drenched colors show off on white canvas of silk twill. For double impact, how about flaunting a brace of fine foulard scarfs? One gay dirndl stalls collar style to drape up a collarless jacket or cardigan, while the other, folded in half, makes a matching out-of-the-(that cleans with a damp cloth) protects the under-lay of interwoven fine silk strings. The non-porous silk frame is rhinestone accented and the lining is of the both silk.

BRIDE-TO-BE TRIES TO JUSTIFY DECISIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon and, as all girls do, I started planning my wedding when I was a young girl. While planning, I always mentioned to my dearest and closest friend that she would be my maid of honor. However, now I have been told that it is only proper for the bride's sister to be maid, of honor or, if married, matron of honor. I have three married sisters, one of whom sings at weddings, recitals, and so forth. The sister I was considering most is several years older than I am, and has never been an honor attendant. I would very much like to have her also sing at my wedding, and the only way she can do this is to be a bridesmaid. I would like to do the right thing without hurting either my friend or my sister. My other two sisters would not feel at all slighted, since they have each already served as an honor attendant in a wedding, and also as having a daughter of each of these two sisters as my flower girls. Will you please help me to decide?

— Bride-to-be

Actually, haven't you already made your own decisions, based on your own reasons? Customarily, as you have been correctly told, when the bride has any sisters, one of these is asked to be her honor attendant. Since y o u have considered this choice by inviting your friend to be your honor attendant, you yourself will have to make the decision between having your sister or your friend. Incidentally, I've never heard of not inviting a sister to be an honor attendant because she already has been an honor attendant in a wedding. And I've never heard of not inviting a sister to be an honor attendant because her daughter has been invited to be a flower girl. You may understand these reasons for not inviting your sisters to be attendants . . . but are you sure they understand them?

My advice is that you reexamine your plans realistically, so you will "do the right thing," as you say you want to, and so you will have no regrets in t h e future.

RECEPTION'S OVER WHEN BRIDE AND GROOM LEAVE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're to be married on a Saturday in September, church ceremony at 3:30 o'clock, reception in a hall immediately following. We will have to make definite plans for leaving the reception, and so my mother suggests that on the receptionand invitations we have engraved "Reception, 4 until 7 o'clock." Instead of the usual "Reception immediately following the ceremony." I don't think this will be necessary, but she thinks if we don't name specific hours, the guests will stay on and on. Do you agree? — Bride-to-be

No. When the bride and groom leave the reception, the reception is over, and wedding guests know that they are expected to move on immediately.

Women's Activities

Prior to the close of the meeting a gift was presented to Mrs. F. E. Madden by Mrs. G. Meikljohn with Mrs. J. Murphy expressing appreciation of her work while here.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

MARSH HILL — The June meeting of Marsh Hill W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Campbell with 13 members and three visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, opened the meeting with a reading, "Popularity".

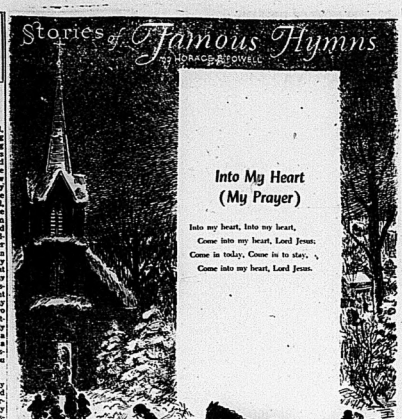
Four members contributed to the birthday box.

The members reported sendmaking thank-you calls.

Mrs. Bert Seazles, Christian stewardship secretary, gave a reading, "The Offering Plate".

Mrs. Fred Campbell, treasurer, read a letter from the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada and Mrs. Walter Underfield gave some thoughts on "Temperance".

Mrs. Allyn Finkle was in charge of the special program on "Christian Giving".



Some of Christendom's most precious evangelistic songs were born in revival meetings, inspired by moving spiritual experiences.

The prayer-hymn, "Into My Heart", was so inspired. Its words and music were written by Harry Clarke, an evangelist and song leader who at one time was associated with the great revivalist, Billy Sunday.

The inspiration for the hymn came to Mr. Clarke one night while he was praying with a young friend he was seeking to win to Christ during a spiritual service in Pennsylvania. The young man had come to the altar at the front of the meeting hall. Kneeling there with Mr. Clarke he confessed to the evangelist that he never had learned how to pray. Mr. Clarke suggested that he open his heart to Christ a n d ask the Saviour take complete control. The same meeting which inspired them. And as a result of the singing of the story goes — many other souls were won for Christ that night.

Then the young convert began to pray very earnestly and he cried out: "Oh, Jesus, come into my heart today, and come in to stay."

Moved by the prayer appeal the evangelist decided to present his message in the chorus which Christians have come to know and love so well. He began to write as many times as the singer prayed that work so quickly that his lines were ready for singing later in the service.

Red Wonder Can Now Wear High Heels

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

BY ROY ESSOYAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

MOSCOW (AP) — High heels have come to Moscow. You can see one whole window display of them, two to three inches high, at GUM department store on Red Square.

But a one - man survey indicates that few Moscow women actually wear them. An afternoon's walk in downtown Moscow disclosed one. An evening stroll cited three.

Meanwhile, GUM's window display is packed three deep with sidewalk gawkers, as the store's window displays usually are.

"How lovely," says one young girl, "how stylish."

"How dainty," says a woman beside her.

A couple walks up.

"Look at that," says the boy, "they aren't ours, are they? Must be imported."

A middle - aged woman explodes:

"How on earth can anyone walk on those things?"

A teen-ager beside her sighs: "They must be the latest thing."

MORE LIPSTICK

There is more lipstick in evidence now than there was two years ago, more clor in women's clothes and even something resembling style in some of them. Smart clothes aren't denounced as capitalist decadence as much as they used to be.

The women's shoe department at GUM shows some improvement over a year ago. Now there are some benches where you can sit down and try your shoes on before you buy them.

There are a dozen varieties of low-heel shoes, unattractive but solid. There are no high heels in sight.

"What high heels?" the saleslady asks when yo finally get to her.

"The ones in Ire window display downstairs," you persist.

"Ah," she says with a mysterious smile, "that's upstairs, in the shoes-under department."

So you go up another flight of stairs.

A sign on the door says the shoes - to - order department is closed and that it is open only on certain hours of certain days. It doesn't say what those hours or days are.

Sidney S. — Sandra has to find a respectable guy.

Sandra S. — He thinks he can do whatever he pleases.

Sidney S. — My wife and I have been married three years, but for the past year we have been husband and wife in name only. We have lived under t h e same roof as a matter of convenience. Certain problems are ironed out and we can get a divorce.

My wife has been having an affair with a married man. As far as I'm concerned, that's her business. What does bother me is that is going to happen to our 10-month-old son after we a r e divorced.

Sandra says this man is going to get a divorce and they'll g e t married, but I've spoken to this guy and I can almost guarantee he has no intention of going through with a divorce. He is to satisfied with his life as it now is.

I don't want our son brought up in an immoral home. I tell Sandra she's got to find a respectable guy who w a n t s marriage.

Sandra S. — It's all very well for Sidney to tell me what to do to create the right kind of home for the baby, but he thinks because he is a man he has a right to do whatever he pleases.

He was the first to be unfaithful and has since been running around with a whole series of different women. He says that's all right because it doesn't affect the baby.

The man I have been going with says he sincerely loves me and the baby and plans to make a home for us.

He says he has told his wife about me and it is just a matter of time until she gets ready to give him up.

They have no children so we don't expect to have too much trouble about getting the divorce.

It is really a laugh the way Sidney has been acting — trying to pick my next husband for me, as if he were my father. I think he's only.

* * *

The Council: It is all really quite a laugh — for everyone except the baby.

Sandra and Sidney should be aware that if strict justice prevailed they would both be denied custody of their child.

As it is, the can see Sidney is in no position to restrain his wife from going her merry, madcap way unless he wants to fight for custody of the child. Under t h e circumstances, that would be quite a fight.

Sandra may well be bitter at Sidney's attitude, but he has does remain that she will probably be the one who must make a home for her child.

This is at least one matter in which she may not right to ride roughshod over law and morality.

Instead of attempting to p l e Sandra's second husband, we give some serious thought to the question of how to bring Sandra to a complete sense of h e r responsibilities toward herself and her child.

This calls for help from someone with more moral authority than Sidney now has. This couple can well use guidance from a clergyman, a lawyer and a family agency social worker.

Readers' Saturday Column

as conducted by Mary Moore

Question . . . like thousands I read your column every night . . . you know just how to hit . . . . first the heart then the stomach . . . what could be more conducive to good living . . . . like everybody I have a problem . . . my youngest of 3 is being married . . . want to have everything nice but haven't got much of what it even stuff to do it with, but they both graduated here and have a host of friends . . . there will have to be a wedding breakfast for 30 at home and a dinner later for 200 guests. Would I be able to prepare the breakfast myself with help to serve? Do you think it best to buy the food myself for the evening meal or have a caterer? I have a very fine woman I can get to cook and serve the meal for $100 if I buy the food . . . Mrs. E.P.T.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

SATURDAY
(Guests)

Chilled Pineapple Juice with Finger Foods: Potato Chips with Dip; Cheese-stuffed Celery, Hot Ripe Olives; Broiled Beef Cakes with Mock Bearnaise (see Thursday); Mashed Potato Pyramids; Whipped Glazed Carrots; Tossed Green Salad; Strawberry Shortcake (see Monday); Coffee.

Answer: Since you are so sure of the ability of the woman you can get for $100. I think you should save many hours of mental buying the food for her to prepare. Catering charges would be much more for 200. I am mailing to you my sheaf of wedding reception releases and the release giving food quantities to buy for large numbers. If you have good kitchen and serving help I think you would enjoy getting the breakfast — but don't give yourself any more work for the remainder of the day. Hire help to clean up the kitchen.

Here you like this menu for breakfast: (Of course you would not make enough of each item for 30 since there will be a variety.) Grapefruit halves or fresh fruits compote sections in marashlino juice in sherbet glasses or chilled canned figs; scrambled eggs, baked sausages, baked glazed back bacon, grilled veal kidneys, cinnamon buns and Swedish coffee cakes or date bran muffins, lemon marmalade and raspberry jam, coffee, I wish you the very best.

Question: Is there something on the market to keep moths away that won't have an odor later . . . here is a recipe our family is very fond of: Funny Cake Pie (Courtesy Red Rose):

Time Important As to Cure For Snake Bite

CALGARY (CP) — Miss Irene Ashley says that whenever a person was bitten by a snake in the Hsipaw village in India where she spent five years, the first question was:

"What time did the snake bite you?"

The question, and the answer, were quite important because they would determine the serum to be used.

It seems that different kinds of snakes have their own particular times for travelling.

Miss Ashley, a missionary for Apostolic Church of the Pentecost, spent five years on the west coast of South India.

The village, 32 miles from Colombo in the southwest corner, is one narrow main street and was "far from modern."

Most of the small houses were made of mud and stone with thatch over poles, or matted down smoothed to a cement-like surface and allowed to dry.

CONSIDERED CLEAN

"They were considered to be very clean," said Miss Ashley. "And they were soft to sleep on . . . and of course they put no fresh cow dung every year."

The farmers make their living by growing rice in plots not much larger than a small garden and by raising a few cattle which are allowed to roam at large. Beef was not eaten by the missionaries because it was covered with dirt and masses of flies.

"Occasionally we ate mutton which was really plain old goat," she said, "but mostly we ate chicken which we could kill ourselves."

Vegetables eaten raw were first washed in a solution of potassium permanganate and then rinsed with boiled and filtered water. Sometimes food to be cooked was given the same treatment.

Telling of her arrival in Calgary for a year's stay with her parents, Miss Ashley said: "When I saw the streams of cars tearing by, all on the wrong side since I'd grown accustomed to left-lane driving, I just felt plain scared."

Miss Ashley, born and educated in Calgary, went to India in 1953. Except for some time at Bible college at Victoria, B.C., she had never been outside Alberta.

WEE WOMEN
"The budget's still balanced! I had them turn off the electricity!"

Petite Dress

By ALICE ALDEN

The ability to individualize current fashion, adapting it to her own ideas and type, makes Lily Pons one of the world's best-dressed women. The dainty diva selects her dresses with great care for her private life as well as for her professional appearances.

For the glamorous soprano Guy La Roche has fashioned a short dinner dress that is well worth study by a petite woman. The accent is on the beautifully curved flower pouf skirt that is neither short nor long. It contrasts well with the simple, sleeveless bodice. Line is given to the dress by the long row of hand-covered buttons of the same white satin organza as the dress.

Cake

1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup shortening, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla.

Lower Part: 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup cocoa, 1-2 cup hot water, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla. Pastry for a 9-inch pie crust. Mix top part like cake batter. For lower part combine sugar and cocoa and add hot water and vanilla. Line pie plate with pastry. Pour in cocoa mixture and pour top part over it. Bake at 350 deg. F. for about 40 minutes. Lovely.

Answer: You can buy "mothproofers" in pressure spray cans. I know of at least 5 on the market ranging in price from $2. for a 1-lb. can to $1.39 for cans containing about 11 cu. They do not leave a disagreeable odor. Thank you so much for the Funny Cake Pie. I heard of it and made it once years ago, but am glad to be reminded of it.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A heart-chilling story of kidnaping came out of Montreal, from the fashionable Mount royal home of Cyril Eastman, 2, and his wife, Dorothy, 26.

Paul Eastman, 2½, a sturdy boy with fair, curly hair, was kidnapped last Saturday but the parents kept the news as quiet as possible until Tuesday — at the command of the kidnaper—when the mother made a tearful radio plea for his return.

Newspapers, radio stations and news agencies had complied with an earlier police request to withhold news of the kidnapping because a ransom demand said the child would be killed if police were notified.

The parents left $18,000 in the woman's wash room of a bus terminal as asked in the ransom note, but it wasn't picked up.

The break in the case came when an Ottawa taxi driver, Alfred Royer, reported that a blonde woman had left the child with him to mind but then didn't come back to pick him up.

When the girl went to Ottawa and found that the boy was theirs, Greta Conrad, a 20-year-old immigrant maid was arrested in Toronto and charged with the crime.

BRIDGE COLLAPSE

Eighteen men died in a few thundering minutes in Vancouver's First Narrows bridge that has completed Second Narrows Bridge crashed into Burrard Inlet in the worst disaster in Vancouver's history.

The accident derailed other bridge disasters, especially the collapse of the Quebec bridge on Aug. 29, 1907, when 90 workmen were killed.

Vancouver, more than 30 workers were rescued and taken to hospital, many suffering from steel girders. Skin divers went below to find missing bodies.

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of British Columbia was appointed by the provincial royal commission to conduct an investigation.

BUDGET NEWS

Canadians put away any hopes they may have had of a tax cut soon after reading the first full-scale Progressive - Conservative budget brought down by Finance Minister Fleming.

Tax reductions of $26,000,000 a year—less than $2 annually per capita if it were to be figured on that basis—were spread through the Progressive - Conservative budget for a deficit of $648,000,000, a peacetime record.

For the remainder of the current fiscal year that started April 1, the indicated tax reductions are $8,000,000, a drop in the deficit to an annually rate of $32,000,000. It was the first non-Liberal financial accounting in 22 years.

It was described as a cross your-fingers budget in view of the recession, and included boosting of tariff protection for industries hurt when there were no tax increases of significance.

NEW PARTY

The Progressive Conservatives emerged for 43 years in Manitoba's legislature yesterday defeating Premier Douglas Campbell's Liberal-Progressive coalition.

But the Progressive Conservatives won just 26 seats, less than an over-all majority since Campbell's Liberal-Progressive Coalition captured 19. There are 57 seats in all.

Progressive Conservative Leader Duff Roblin, grandson of Manitoba's last Conservative premier and CCF Leader Lloyd Stinson ruled out any possibility of a coalition government. The CCF won 11 seats, Social Credit didn't have a candidate and there was one independent victor.

REBEL FATE

The world was told at last what was the fate of Imre Nagy, who defied Russia as Hungarian premier during the 1956 rebellion! He was executed.

The Hungarian ministry of justice followed up a Moscow announcement of Nagy's execution with scant details, not even saying when he was killed. Also executed were former defence minister, Pal Maleter, one of the leaders of the anti-Soviet revolt, and two other associates of Nagy. Others were let off with prison terms.

The announcement was considered a warning to Yugoslavia, whose President Tito had been quarrelling with Moscow, and also set back hopes for the long-dis cussed summit meeting between East and West.

CYPRUS OFFER

Britain offered an "adventure in partnership" to Greece, Turkey and the people of Cyprus as a solution for the turbulent affairs of that island colony.

Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd planned to go ahead with those portions of the program not dependent on Greco-Turkish co-operation.

The plan involves establishment of a system of representative government, with both Greek and Turkish representatives, but no change in the international status of the island group as a crown colony while details of the partnership are worked out.

NEW REPORT

The United Nations released a report stating that Israel's Lake Tiberias, A. Flint was killed last month while intervening in a fight between Israeli and Arabs at disputed Mount Scopus, near Jerusalem.

He apparently died instantly from a sniper's bullet from Jordanian territory, while trying to reach a wounded Israeli soldier, the report said.

Flint, 47, native of Ostremont, Que., and chairman of the mixed UN Israeli-Jordan armistice commission, earlier had pleaded with both sides for an end to fight and approached the scene of action carrying two white flags.

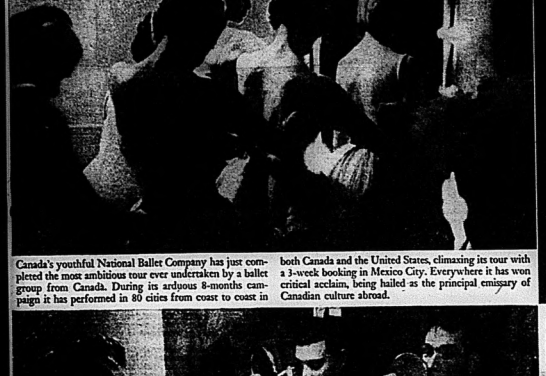
The National Ballet of Canada

Ambassadors of the Dance



Canada's youthful National Ballet Company has just completed the most ambitious tour ever undertaken by a ballet group from Canada. During its arduous 8-months campaign it has performed in 80 cities from coast to coast in both Canada and the United States, climaxing its tour with a 3-week booking in Mexico City. Everywhere it has won critical acclaim, being hailed as the principal emissary of Canadian culture abroad.

There are 15 men and 26 women dancers on tour. The group, which had its start 8 years ago in a draughty third floor walkup near Toronto's waterfront, earns an average of $80 a week while on tour.

While the company has been particularly commended for its youthful sparkle, zest and vitality, the polished professional stature of its artistic director and founder, Celia Franca (a graduate of London's famed Sadlers Wells) is reflected throughout the company.

Rooting Chrysanthemum Cuttings

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

For a really fine array of color from late summer until late fall you cannot beat chrysanthemums. Now is the time to prepare for that show.

Plan to have a good quantity of vigorous bushy plants to set out where you want a mass of color in mid-August. Since this is the time to begin nipping back your present mum plants you h a v e plenty of potential plants on hand. The established plants should be kept pinched back until six weeks before they bloom. With early bloom types this will be the first week of July. Late mums can be pinched back until late July or the first week of August.

The nipped off ends should be about six inches long. Select the best to root. Have ready rootone, a rooting hormone, some peat or sphagnum moss and some p l a s t i c. Cut plastic to eight by twenty inches. Soak moss in hot water. Squeeze out excess moisture and spread moss along one long edge. Dip half an inch of the cut end of the plant into water then the rooting powder, shake off excess powder and arrange one inch apart on the moss. Turn two inches lower edge of plastic up over the moss and plants and roll up like a jellyroll. The top end is left open. Place an elastic band around bundle and place in a wide mouth jar on a window sill in a good light.

ROOTS HAVE FORMED

By the end of two weeks good roots should have formed. Plant the cuttings in good soil in two or three inch pots. You can place the pots in a flat and pack between and around the pots w i t h damp moss, or you can sink the pots in a garden row where they will receive light shade in the afternoon. Keep the soil around them damp but not wet.

In a month or six weeks they will be ready to set out into a bed or border, or you can put them up in larger pots and hold them in reserve until the early annals have finished blooming.

In the meantime keep t h e m growing vigorously by feeding them every two weeks with a balanced liquid, or dry fertilizer and keep them pinched back to make compact plants.

Spray every two weeks with an all purpose spray, or dust to combat such pests as red spider and aphis. Aphis, by the way are said to be responsible for transmitting 21 viruses.

Chrysanthemums should be moved on a dark day, just before a rain, or in the early evening if possible to lessen shock. They may be moved at any stage even while in full bloom without wilting if you will soak the soil before lifting, take all the root with a ball of earth and soak the soil around the transplanted mum for a few days after moving. Keep the soil around all mums loose by shallow cultivating. The root system lies close to the soil surface.

HOCKEY MEET!

By the time you are flipping pennies to see who gets the funnies' page of this edition, the Eastern senior "A" hockey league will be in full cockab up around Pembroke way.

We do not know what is on the agenda at this summer meeting, but we imagine the question of the league pool, what Whitby wants, etc., will launch some red-hot discussions.

The question of the schedule may or may not come up as this matter is usually left to the midsummer or early fall meeting.

But while on the schedule question, the statement issued by McFarlands' manager Bruy Denyes the other day to the effect the Macs will play at least 44 games in the Eastern League met with the general approval of the circuit clubs.

It was reported at the Kitchener meeting that the McFarlands would play exhibition games only in their own loop. This started the wheels of amusement turning. Sports editors rushed to typewriters to put the bills on the Macs in general and Denyes in particular, but the error was discovered in time to prevent the wrath of the sports milliwrights showering the innocent shoulders of the McFarlands' manager.

Players will likely come under discussion and the most of the managerial moguls present will be talking with tongue in cheek and looking like wise old owls and saying little or nothing. However, it is a cinch that the entire manufacturing roster is shopping—and shopping early—for players. Some of the boys are not pulling any punches and are getting their bids in early.

Kingston is already on the prowl and the grapevine has it Bus Lapson, colorful ex-playing coach of the Whitby Dunlops, has come to terms with the management in a playing coach capacity. Bus should do right well east 'o here. He did all right up west.

Pembroke, as was noted in a recent column, is starting from scratch and will lee a brand new club of fast-skating youngsters, spotted with a few Giesebrechts (just tell us how you're going to keep those ears, or some of them, at the club?). Jimmy Buchanan, the new coach of the Lumber Kings, figures he has the remedy to cure the Pembrokian ills and enable them to line their sights on the Allan Cup.

Cornwall, the "mad lock" squad of the circuit, which taken it on the button twice year after year, whichever way you look at it, and still comes back for more, will be back again and if you can take the word of those two optimists, Ray Miron and Frank "Old Iron" Orr, the Chevies will be possessed of new power, new faces, and practically new everything.

Says Mr. Miron: "We have always had a lot of obstacles in Cornwall for operating senior "A" hockey, but we kept on going in spite of it all. Cornwall is a poor hockey town at times. We get by on less support than any team in Ontario, yet keep coming back every year."

"But," he added, the optimist that he is, "we feel that with the support of everyone wholeheartedly behind the team we eventually will come up with a winner."

Manager Denyes of the Macs, who overheard Miron make the statement, agreed. "That is right," he said. "In Belleville I do not know what we would have done without the undying support of our Boosters' Club and the hundreds of other fans. We could not have possibly won the Allan Cup. Neither would Whitby without the solid support of its citizenry."

"With the pros out of the game now, this will hurt us in Cortwall." Miron went on, "as we have been dickering for two months with Orval Tessier, who undoubtedly is the best player, potentially, outside the National Hockey League. The Boston Bruins think so anyway."

This forced Manager Denyes' hand. He admitted that he is interested in Tessier, and has written him to that effect. He would be available to the Macs for this season only, then he would, if negotiations are successful, join the Cornwall Chevies. The Chevies' management is doing its best to assist the McFarlands in getting the services of the starry Tessier.

Cornwall-born Orval Tessier played junior with Kitchener, later going to the Montreal Royals for two seasons. He played four games with the Montreal Canadiens in 1954-55, and the next season played 23 with the Boston Bruins, later going to Hershey. In 1955-56 and 56-57 he played with the Quebec Aces, winning the President's Cup in the latter season with a points record of 81, made up of 43 goals and 38 assists. He is a centre player.

Snarling Bengals Tame Yanks For Sixth Victory in Row; Bucs' Witt No Joke to Bums

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The long patient Pittsburgh Pirates have plucked another ball pitcher off the farm and now are just a game short of second place in the tight National League race.

The Bucs, winning seven of 10 in a jump from sixth place to third, have counted three of those victories from rookies Curt Raydon and George Witt, both sturdy righthanders who were allowed to develop slowly in the minors.

Witt, recalled only Sunday from Columbus of the International League, gained his first major league victory Friday night, giving up but six hits while striking out eight as the Bucs beat last place Los Angeles 2-1.

The Milwaukee Braves took a three-game lead with a 7-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Philadelphia knocked off second-place San Francisco 5-4, and the Chicago Cubs whalloped Cincinnati 10-3 in a game held to eight innings by rain.

Witt, an 8-year veteran at the minors, gave up a total of six walk, two retired by relief pitcher Art Ditmar after Dodger run in three singles in the fifth.

Bob Buhl, who has won fifth for the Braves, but needed relief help from Don McMahon, Eddie Mathews, Johnny Logan and Hank Aaron his home runs for the Braves, who have won seven straight and clinched it in the seventh on relief pitcher Billy Muffett and Aaron's two-run homer for a 4-2 record.

WALKS IN WINNING RUN

It was Aaron's 11th home run of the season and his second clam in the series.

Two Cub errors scored seven runs in the first off Bob Purkey, the righthander who has lost his third, two in a row to Chicago. Tony Taylor led off Dutch, who scored the frame with singles, scored the spurt the same way. Both were forced at second in three runs; as did Sammy Taylor. A pair of errors by Frank Bolintineanu that drove in all the Reding runs.

The Phils won it in the ninth when losing reliever Fuben Gomez (5-6) forced Ted Kazanski to run home with a bases - loaded walk. Willie Jones and Wally Post each drove in two runs for the Phils, delivering singles that tied it in the seventh and chased starter Mike McCormick. The Giants got their four off Curt Simmons in the seventh, unearned. Jim Hearn pitched only the ninth but won his first.

Bill Norman, new boss of Detroit Tigers, talks a lot like old Casey Stengel, manages a bit like Casey Stengel and wins a bit like Casey Stengel. He also happens to be 5-0 against Casey Stengel.

Willie rambles somewhat in conversation, but apparently the Tigers are hep to his live.

Twelve days ago the Tigers were in last place and Norman was managing Charleston in the American Association. Now the 47-year-old Norman has an 8-3 record in the majors and the Tigers are a half-game shy of second place.

Before a home crowd of 53,168, Detroit knocked off the American League leading New York Yankees again Friday night, winning 7-1 with a pair of big innings, some fine pitching from Jim Bunning and a crushing pinch hit. That's a perfect copy of the Stengel pattern.

SIXTH IN A ROW

It also handed Stengel and the Yankees a six - game losing streak from one club the Tigers started the string under ex - manager Jack Tighe. That was a time since 1953.

Detroit City retained a share of third with Detroit by beating second-place Boston 3-2. That left the Tigers three games ahead of the first Sox. Chicago White Sox gained fifth place, beating Baltimore 5-3. Cleveland and Washington were rained out in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. Bunning (4-4) — tops in the majors this season—and although he had his troubles in shading Bob Turley (10-3). The lean right-hander squelched the Yanks on 5 hits with a third consecutive victory.

The Tigers scored three in the sixth, capped by a two-run double by Al Kaline. A Yankee's pinch hit by Virgil Trucks' pinch single collected four more in the seventh off Virgil Trucks' appearance.

Gil Coan (2-2) won his first decision with the White Sox, shutting Baltimore on three hits in 3 1-3 relief innings. Ray Boone, traded by Detroit Saturday with Shaw, clouted a two run that gave the Sox the lead in a four-run sixth.

Ralph Terry (5-3) won his third in a row for the As over Dick Tomanek (4-3), former Cleveland southpaw and yet another Kaiser involved in Sunday's shifts.

Would Ban Pro Boxing In Michigan

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Joseph L. Cahalan, chief physician of the Michigan-Athletic Boards of Control, Friday recommended abolition of professional boxing in Michigan.

"I've given this a lot of thought and believe boxing in this state should be made illegal in the state," Dr. Cahalan said.

The doctor's views were expressed at a meeting of state boxing officials and doctors with cuss ways of keeping a closer check on the physical condition of fighters.

The session was prompted by a fight March 24 in which Ring Vidmer knocked out Detroit heavyweight Johnny Summerlin. Summerlin died several days after the fight that he had passed the Michigan Athletic Commission's pre-flight physical examination although his left side was numb-ed from a blow to the nerve condition.

Dr. Cahalan was not the examining physician involved.

Harness Racing

HULL, Que. (CP)—Buddy Hanover from Collingwood captured the invitation pace at Hampton Park Friday night. Driven by Orville Edwards, Buddy Hanover stopped the mile in 2:16.

Commander from Hull was second and Follow Jim from Morrisburg, Ont., third.

Ontario horses captured the two trotting events on the card. Stormy Joyce from Gilford, driven by Howie Lamb, won one in straight heats. Almer Holmes drove Rip Van from Milton to victory in the other tred. Time for the mile was 2:20.

Winners of D paces included Bonnie Direct, Owen Sound, Vic Lutman was at the reins as Ronnie C. ran the mile in 2:15 3-5.

Will Select Canadian Team For British Empire Games

SASKATOON (CP)—Some joker here has ordered a batch of headache tablets for the committee of delegates to choose Canada's track and field team for the British Empire Games in Wales, next month.

The gesture was appropriate in view of the performances in the Canadian track and field championships, which also serve as trials on which to base selection of a 22-member team for the Games in Cardiff.

Sprinters in men's and women's 100-yard finals couldn't be separated by the timers—and the times were good.

The championships end today when the selection committee will retire to choose the seven women and 15 men for the trip.

WINS THE MILE

Ed Morton, 24-year-old Winnipeg school teacher pulled Friday's surprise, turning on the steam in the last quarter to win the mile and leave favored Wes McLeod of Toronto and Don Leadman of Regina among the also-rans.

Morton's time of four minutes 10.2 seconds won't stack up against the pick of the world's greatest of Australian and British runners but his finishing spurt marked him as a possible point winner in Wales.

The mile, with 19 entries after two heats had scratched, was run in two sections.

In the slower section, Bruce Andrews, a 16-year-old runner from Guelph, turned in a creditable 4:19.2.

Eleanor Haslam, 19, of Saskatoon, Canada's best Canadian native record in two heats, then equalled it in the 1954 British Empire Games and who now has become eligible for the Canadian team, matched his Games record time of 9.6 seconds to win the 100-yard final here. Agostini lives in Vancouver.

He was followed closely by Stan Levenson of Toronto, who was clocked at 9.6 with Agostini.

Terry Tobacco of Victoria, recovering from a tooth infection, ran a sparkling 47.6—about half a second off the Empire record—to win the quarter mile.

George Shepherd of Port Colborne, a 30-year-old whose best events are 440-yard hurdles, finished second to Tobacco in 48.

Jackie MacDonald Gelling of Toronto, often a Canadian national team member, surprised even herself when she established a national native record in the women's shot, throwing 45 feet 4½ inches. Five more than her previous record. She had only briefly and decided at the last minute to enter.

In the hammer throw, Warre Dickson of Vancouver made a strong bid for a team berth throwing 170 feet 1½ inches for a record that exceeded the old mark by nearly 12 feet.

On the Tracks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) Silky Sullivan returned in defeat Friday to the track where he won his first race. The big chestnut gelding finished last in the $10,000 feature race at Hollywood Park won by Alwar.

Not many expected the big Kentucky-bred son of Sullivan to win the short six furlong distance, especially against such speedsters as Alwar, Bryan G., Calpe and Father John, who finished in the order.

Silky dawdled along as usual and began his celebrated comeback—but both horse and fans knew he came thundering down the stretch but only beat Radio Ray's in the field of 10.

TENNIS POSTPONED

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) Friday night's matches in Jack Kramer's pro tennis tournament were postponed until today because of rain.

Maxwell Rules No Decision To End Main Bout Brawl

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Bert Maxwell while a house detective in a large Toronto factory, does not believe in "easy" boxing decisions.

The rotund Albert, who refereed seventeen between inside private eye assignments, did not let his fist scrapping to find his pachyderm packages, once they're on duty.

They'll do their shenanigans inside the ropes or go home but with a "No Contest" verdict hanging on their shoulders.

That's what happened last night following a rip-roaring spine-tickling main bout when the Hurowski brothers, Reggie and Stanley monopolized the ring and refused to allow Dave Brazil and Yukon Eric the use of the canvas.

Bobo and Eric who had whupped the daylights out of the slatternourished pair seconds before, had been unceremoniously tossed out of the ring by the hotheaded brothers and mounted a four-corner guard to shield all and sundry from Bobo aboard.

It was a slam-bang, bang-up, knock-down bout before a seasonal record crowd with the Hurowskis determined by all means at their disposal from eye-gouging to rope strangling in an effort to subdue the popular Bobo and his pal the Yuke.

The tournament battled for twenty-eight minutes in the first fall before Bobo was pounded, kicked, battered and whomped into semi-consciousness by the Hurowski-Exchange brethren and forced to concede the fall.

It was glitterred in the second episode. It took the bone-crushing Wagon Wheel Wrestling Bobo just two minutes to send the Hurowskis slithering in the dressing room with the defeat tacked on them.

The third fall looked in the bag for the Yuke and Bobo after they had unscrewed a bit of a storm. They took over and hurled the brethren about the ring until the Hurowski blondes saw red and tossed their partners out of the ring and that was that.

There was no return. The brothers declined everybody to enter the ring while Mr.Ies Maxwell chalked up the contested gladiators. Finally his eyesight gave out and he signalled the referee to call it a halt to the horseplay.

Bobo's eight-foot plant Paul Bunyan gave a four-minute exhibition with a hairy scrambling Scot named Howitt. The huge wrestler had little trouble in shading the 145-pounder and finally pinned him before spending a half hour signing autographs.

"Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkinson will be in the ring Friday in an action-packed preliminary with the pair battling through the 45 minute limit.

Pro Football On Up-and-Up Says Report

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's pro football business has excellent prospects of growth over the next few years, a study by Toronto firm of management consultants concludes.

The study, involving detailed investigation of the nine pro clubs, with particular attention to Hamilton, showed that no pro clubs have recorded downward attendance trends over the years 1950-57.

The report was prepared to help the Hamilton sports board decide whether it was economically wise to enlarge Civic Stadium or build a new park.

Under the plan, if the seats are available and the Tiger-Cats remain a contender, they expect to sell 28,400 seats — an increase of 9,000—by 1965.

BIGGEST CROWD

The study showed that Hamilton has had the biggest attendance increase over the last several years, gaining from an average 10,200 in 1950 to 20,000 last year.

The only two cities that didn't show an appreciable increase were Toronto and Montreal. Toronto Argonauts averaged 18,000 for the last five years, Montreal 17,000.

The experts estimated that clubs can count on 80 per cent of the seats being filled.

Some are already operating at that figure. Seats filled as high as 113 per cent and never less than 90 per cent, while Montreal has had at least 90 per cent and Vancouver also has operated well above the limit.

Orval Tessier Wants to Play With McFarlands Next Year

Cornwall-born Orval Tessier, Quincy centre player of the Boston Bees Assn. and formerly with the Boston Braves and Canadiens, may be back in the Quinte area to play with the Belleville McFarlands next season.

Tessier is rumored staying at his home in the scenery city following the close of the season this effect, stating he would be willing to "take any time."

"I know Bob Hinderland and talked with him once last season," Tessier said in his letter. "I also know a lot of your players and am very much like to play with them next year."

The Cornwall Cherries will not stand in the way of their getting one playing wig the Mac. Inter Manager Ray Wilson is looking his best to help the Belleville club acquire his services — for the Cherries will not be in the league next year Cornwall can and will claim the player.

Tessier played junior hockey with Kitchener, skipping senior ranks and turning pro with the Boston Bruins. He was traded to Canadiens and the Boston Bruins, where he very lightly at the end of two seasons when he was rated one of the most brilliant centres in the league. He was signed by him with the "President's Cup" in 1941 as a Bruin.

"Our big trouble is getting Tessier reinstated," Manager Wilson said yesterday. "I understand he was to report to the Portsmouth Indians last season but he did not do so. He is the property of the Boston Bruins who think very highly of him. I am going to contact Bruins manager Lynn Patrick right away. I do not think he will refuse when he learns we want Tessier to play in the town's hockey tournament."

Leafs Take Over First Place; Royals Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs, last year's International League champs, have completed their long climb from the depths of the second division to the top of the pack.

The Leafs backed Jack Crimian's shutout pitching with 10 hits against Havana Friday night for a 5-0 victory that moved them into first place, a half game and .003 percentage points in front of runner-up Montreal.

The Royals lost an opportunity to cling to their precarious lead when they dropped a 6-3 decision at Miami.

In other games, Richmond defeated third-place Rochester 6-0 and Columbus edged Buffalo 7-6 in 13 innings.

Crimian scattered seven hits in his eighth win against six defeats. He struck out six and walked two. The Leafs won it with single runs in the second and third off starter Emilio Cuccie. The first run came across on singles by Rocky Nelson and Ted Thompson and a throwing error. The Leafs added their last run on a home run by Thompson's single and a sacrifice fly by Stan Job.

TURNS TO ROW

Miami won its third in a row with Bob Conley going all the way to defeat Ted Bowsfield in a five-hitting the Royals. With the score tied 2-all in the eighth, the Marlins got two runs on a home run off Charlie Babb.

Richmond's Dukes banked Richmond to its fourth straight, eight-hitting the Red Wings. Four double plays helped Dukes.

Paul Pettit's clutch hitting and a batting practice pitching by Jack Arroyo won for the Jets. Pettit, who homered with one on in the seventh inning, drove in two runs to chase home Bill Causion with the winning run.

Mike Dejohn Verdicts Baker

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Rangy Mike DeJohn of Syracuse won a unanimous but unpopular 10-round decision over big Bob Baker of Pittsburgh Friday night in the War Memorial Auditorium.

Referee Joe Palmer and judge Dick Albino each had DeJohn the winner by counts of seven points to three with one even. Judge Harold McGrath had it 7-3 for DeJohn.

There was nothing close to a unanimous decision. The fans, hoping for more dynamite, booed during the late rounds.

This is Baker's first fight in six months and he showed it. DeJohn easily outboxed the ring's fifty opponent through the first three rounds and then went to work.

DeJohn, using his longer reach to advantage, scored with his left jab to the head.

It wasn't until the fourth that Baker got going. He had Mike reeling from the nose in the second round and in the fourth he opened a bothersome cut over DeJohn's left eye. That hampered DeJohn's vision and there was blood flow from the eye cut. DeJohn picked up speed again and won the sixth, seventh and eighth to clinch the decision.

SIGN FOR FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Scanlon, unbeaten San Francisco lightweight, and Willie Pastrano of Ottawa and Valley Stream, N.Y., Friday were signed for a 10-round match July 18 at Madison Square Garden.

Quebec League to Operate With Assist From National

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Hockey League, confident of a shot in the arm from the National Hockey League, decided Friday night to go ahead with operations next season.

Despite reports that the young pro circuit was on the verge of folding, the league executive took this pessimism when the meeting adjourned. All clubs went into the red last season.

A further meeting was called for July 24. By then it is expected plans for help from NHL clubs will be crystallized.

If this help is forthcoming there were freely expressed opinions that the five-team QHL might be expanded into a six-club, or even an eight-club, circuit.

The QHL feels there should be more than token sponsorship of its teams by NHL clubs. The Montreal Canadiens, owners of each NHL club but possibly also a pool financial contribution by the NHL, it was suggested. Also according to the needs of each club in the major circuits.

SUPPORTED IN FAVOR

The NHL clubs, following the major league baseball pattern of weeks ago, have been reported decidedly in favor of continued operation of the QHL. How far the six major circuit teams will go in the way of assistance is the principal point.

There was no official statement as to the extent of financial expansion of the QHL, but it is believed several cities are under consideration.

They include Ottawa, Sherbrooke and Cornwall. Montreal Royals Ottawa Junior Canadiens have operated in both Ottawa and neighboring Hull, Que., have recently decided to confine operations of the amateur team to Hull.

New interests who have taken over the auditorium in Ottawa were named down when they applied for a berth in the American Hockey League.

There were reports that the Ottawa interests now will consider re-entry into the QHL.

Mickey Goes To Hospital For Treatment

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Mantle went to a hospital Friday for rest and final x-ray treatment which physicians hope will enable the New York Yankees' outfielder to play the rest of the season.

Mantle took his first treatment for his leg Monday and the second in Cleveland Wednesday.

Marlene Defeats Mary Gay For Third Open Title in Row

TORONTO (CP)—Showing none of the tension she claimed when she started the tournament, Marlene Stewart Streit walked off the Thornhill Golf and Country Club course Friday with her third straight Ontario women's open championship.

Before the tournament she said: "I'm not driving well and these girls up here hit such long balls."

Goldriven Friday by Mary Gay of Calgary, she moved with delicate precision through assorted irons, rarely using the middle, and putted with the precision which has won her United States, Canadian and British four years crowns.

"I like to play in championship competition," she said after her 2 and 1 win. "It makes me sharp."

Mrs. Streit won the first hole, but reeled back down when Miss Gay, who won in 1953, took the fifth and ninth. Mrs. Streit finished the front nine in 40 three over par, and Miss Gay took 38. TURNING POINT

Mrs. Streit pulled even on the tenth but lost the 11th. At the 14th Miss Gay missed a 25-foot putt as Mrs. Streit parred from 10 feet to tie. This was the turning moment in the tournament.

Mrs. Streit is the four time winner of the Ontario Open, and the first woman to win three in a row. She had beaten Miss Gay three times previously in a final.

Miss Gay had the putting advantage on the 15th and 16th to win the match, the sank a 15 foot putt on the birdie hole and 35-yard 15th while Miss Gay just missed from 10 feet after her second shot landed in the rough.

On the 16th Mrs. Streit made a two-foot putt to put out for a par four while Miss Gay was conceded a par when she three-putted from 30 feet.

Mrs. Streit sank a 40-foot putt for a birdie on the 17th and Miss Gay, her ball lying three or four feet deeper in the rough.

SUMS UP DAY

Mrs. Streit was one-under par for the last eight holes. Miss Gay took 36 and summed up the day: "I guess I'm just not meant to win."

The five - foot - one, 115 - pound champion said she couldn't expect to win as often in future because she has invested so many other interests since her marriage. She may not practise as much, but she has the temperament of a winner that responds to tough competition.

Gene Littler Dark Horse in Flint Tourney

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Tourney golf is getting all the attention and Sam Snead made news by joining the 150 golfers who have talked about most by the golfers themselves in the $12,000 Flint Open is Gene Littler.

Although he has only one victory in his last two years, the little guy from Singing Hills, Calif., is rated as the dark horse in the big event.

Littler who won the San Diego Open at an annual Flint event ago is just two strokes off the pace in the U.S. Open last week.

The second round Friday was washed out by a heavy downpour after only half the field had completed the 18th hole. Since rules specify that all play must be completed under such circumstances, the field will play 18 holes Saturday and 36 holes Sunday and windup with the final 18 Monday, one day later than planned. That has the temperament of a winner that responds to tough competition.

Ike to Golf In Ottawa Next Month

OTTAWA (CP) — When President Eisenhower golfs here during his visit next month he'll use the golf cart that caught the fancy of former prime minister Mackenzie King and which he drove in a visit to the U.S. two years ago.

The president is expected to visit with U.S. Ambassador Livingston Merchant against Trans-Canada Airlines' fleet and either Vice-Admiral H. G. DeWolf, chief of naval staff, or Senate Speaker Mark Drouin.

The electric-powered cart is used between greens and to travel from hole to tee. During his visit to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, in 1956 the president and Mr. St. Laurent rode together in it during a golf game.

Mr. St. Laurent said it provided a relaxed way of talking over mutual problems.

Mr. Diefenbaker isn't a golfer but he usually rides along with his guest during the game at the Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club.

Nothing Wrong With Willie

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays' batting eye has been tested and found in perfect working order, but serious ailment but he will be kept in the hospital, at least today to undergo further tests.

The star centre fielder of the San Francisco Giants entered hospital Thursday for tests because he has been feeling tired. He has been in a batting slump in recent weeks.

Dr. Stuart W. Cosgriff indicated Mays probably would remain in the team in Philadelphia during the weekend.

The Causes of Boating Accidents

A friend and I were boneflshing one day, cruising the flats east of Julia Island when we met a fantastic side of Key Largo, Florida. A skiff approached us out of Garden Cove, driven by a little five-horse outboard. This craft was the usual 12-foot, 4-inch "runabout" really — length 16 ft., beam about 5 ft., and free board about 18 inches.

In this skiff, so help me, were eight people, four adults and four children. And there they were, heading out for the fish and ready to do some fishing. What with the load on board, I'm sure that the gunwales were not far above the eight inches above the water. We watched them for a while, standing out through the ground swell toward the barrier reef, several miles offshore. Then we saw one of them they were still right side up. Finally, the whole thing disappeared.

Nobody, and that includes this department, takes much pleasure from reading statistics unless those figures have a direct relation to the reader. However, if you spend money for boats, motors and such information as the Outboard Boating Club of America has compiled is worth much more than passing notice.

DISREGARD OF RULES

The fact which was brought home quite strongly on reading this report was that a very small percentage of boating accidents are unavoidable. Most of them are due to lack of experience, thoughtlessness (which is another way of saying stupidity) and downright disregard of the rules of courtesy and common-sense boat handling.

For example, more than 33 per cent of the boating fatalities throughout the nation could be attributed directly to "foolish operation, such as standing up in the boat, turning too sharply, etc."

It must be remembered that America's pleasure-boat fleet is more than tripled in the past ten years. In 1957 alone, 250,00 small craft were added to the previous total. In that same year, it has been reliably estimated, 6,071,000 pleasure craft afloat and in use on the nation's waterways.

To our way of thinking (and the use of the word "our" is by no means confined to anything in a great many friends and acquaintances who have boats), the Safe Boat Commission (and boat handlers) the regulatory measures and the safe operation of pleasure craft are deplorably lax.

Today if a person wishes to drive an automobile, he or she must submit to tests for skill and safety; must practise driving under qualified supervision; and must obtain a driver's license. Similar tests are required to demonstrate fitness to drive to qualify for one of the enforcement authorities. That is the law in all but a few states. Yet any body who can afford to master is entirely within the law to operate a pleasure craft at 16 or 18 years. On the very face of things, this sort of boating code doesn't make very much sense.

All right, what to do about it? First of all, boats should be licensed just as automobiles are licensed and for approximately the same fees. Then, for a person to operate a boat — any boat — that is powered by more than 10 hp should require a license, issued by the state of his residence. These tests, essentially similar to those we would go a long way toward curing our boating ills.

MONEY NEEDED

But to set up a system of this kind and, more important, to enforce it, requires a great deal of money. After all, enforcement officers must be paid; licence plates cost money; central administration offices must be financed. The job of putting such

Here is an interesting commentary on boat fatalities — over a period of seven years, 37.11 per cent of the fatal accidents involving boats whose operators were in the 20 — to — 40 age group. You can draw your own conclusions.

People are strange creatures, most of them anyway. Nine out of ten of them, who may be moderately polite in other walks of life, become boors when they get behind the wheels of cars.

Then the rule is — three cheers for me and to hell with the whole world. The same sort of thing seems to hold good with boats, too. Politeness is an unusual courtesy are thrown overboard when most folks get their hands on the controls of a boat.

Last, but by no means least, we have with us always the aquatic cowboy who seems to find great joy in making life miserable, not only for the fishermen, but for other pleasure boaters. You know the type: goodness knows you see all too many of them if you spend much time on the water.

For these, the Outboard Boating Club and the American Chain and Cable Co., of Detroit have launched a national campaign whereby any boater can show his disapproval of an aquatic cowboy. It is the agreed signal to extend the hand in all sorts of legible fingers closed and thumb pointing down. It means "Thumbs down." It means "I have pains not to have anybody give me the 'thumbs-down' signal this season. Your boating days will be happier.

Not Only Got Birdie, He Killed It

EDMONTON (CP) — Jim Watson, Calgary golfer playing in the international oilmen's golf tournament here, got the unusual birdie on the eighth tee Thursday.

Watson's drive struck and killed a sparrow in flight. Warke went on to win the hole and his match with Pete Lawrence of Edmonton.

Canadian Football League Opens Its Two-Day Meeting

WINNIPEG (CP) — Discussion on an interlocking schedule for the 1959 season was expected to provide the fireworks today as the Canadian Football League opened its two - day meetings here.

Eastern and western delegates appeared to be far apart on their thinking on the controversial matter, which has been hanging fire for several years.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union teams were unanimous for adopting a full interlocking schedule for the 1959 season, but Big Four officials who have done any talking at all have balked at the move as too costly.

Jake Gaudaur, president and general-manager of the Canadian champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said an interlocking schedule was the "ultimate aim" but he thought time still were "several kinks to be ironed out before it became a reality."

Ralph Parliament, president of Winnipeg Blue Bombers termed statements that it would be costly as "nonsense."

Parliament said the nine professional clubs in the two major leagues couldn't help but make money on the scheme. He had a brief, containing a tentative schedule and travel costs, ready to present to the CFL, which governs the governing body of the game and Big Four after the season.

TO ROTATE TROOPS

OTTAWA (CP) — The second major replacement of Canadian troops with the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East will begin in September. The army announced Friday that most troops are being rotated after a one-year stay and that about 50 officers and more than 500 other personnel will be flown to the Gaza Strip by the RCAF from Montreal during a two-month period.

Swift Aussies Shoot for Mile Record

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A pair of swift Australians shoot for the world record in the mile run tonight in the 70th annual national AAU track and field championships. Two international marks already have been established.

Herb Elliott and Merv Lincoln won their mile heats with ease Friday night to set up their duel over the clay track at the Bakersfield Stadium tonight. Elliott won in 4:01.4 and Lincoln in 4:07.2.

World records fell to home-grown athletes in the hammer and discus throw competition.

Boston's Harold Connolly whirled the 16-pound ball 225 feet 4 inches to surpass the record of 220-10 set by Russia's M. P. Krivonosov at Moscow in 1956. Ohio's speedy Glenn Davis ran the hurdles in 49.8 seconds to lay claim to his third world record.

The Buckeye runner heats the official time of 50 seconds in the metre hurdles at 49.5 seconds. A second record fell to Davis with the flat in 45.7 to clip a tenth of a second off that standard.

Connolly, who had his injection to ease pain in an injured left collarbone, got all his second tosses on his final throw.

Olympic champion Connolly, 26, was a high school teacher in Brighton, Mass. He weighs 222.

STAMPS SIGN TACKLE

CALGARY (CP)—John White, 240-pound tackle who played with Saskatchewan Roughriders last season, has been signed by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, it was announced Friday.

...Notch Cast Replaces ...h Shore for Summer

By BOB SCHOMAS

...(AP) — There's to cast his lot with TV for ... while. He's lining up a number ... musicals to present as spec... tacculars.

...picture for ... at 8 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Tommy Sands rock and rolls his way to movie stardom in his film debut in "Sing Boy Sing," Twentieth Century-Fox CinemaScope production also starring Lili Gentle and Edmond O'Brien, playing today for the last times, with "The Storm Rider," rousing Western adventure, in CinemaScope, co-starring Scott Brady, Mala Powers, and Jill Williams.

AT THE PARK

Plenty of Chills, Thrills In Double Terror Program

First Showing

Suspense and excitement, with a constant overtone of brooding terror, keynote "Attack of the 50 Ft. Woman" and "War of the Satellites", two full length films combined for a double bill opening Monday at the Park theatre. The twin-shock program has added value because both pictures are as timely and up-to-date as a news story from today's final edition.

"War of the Satellites", starring Susan Cabot, Richard Devon and Dick Miller, is classed as pure science-fiction but today's strides in interplanetary research are so tremendous it is hard to separate the truth from fiction. Certainly this production is believable in every scene and action-packed sequence.

The picture, produced and directed by Roger Corman, relates the efforts of Earth, working through the United Nations, to speed space ships aloft and assemble a satellite in the atmosphere.

The first ships are violently destroyed by a mysterious force obviously generated by an enemy in outerspace. These events are followed by a direct warning to Earth and the deadly war begins. The picture has exceptional pictorial qualities in the striking 21st Century sets and brilliant special effects.

The supporting cast includes Mike Fox, Robert Shayne, Jerry Barclay, Eric Sinclair, Jay Sayer and Mitzi McCall.

"Attack of the 50 Ft. Woman," starring Allison Hayer, William Hudson and Yvette Vickers, is a terrifying masterpiece of suspense, terror that relates how a monster space ship lands on a mountain on the California desert and sets loose a giant monster that terrorizes the countryside.

Packed with shock after shock, the picture reaches almost unbearable tension as the satellite-monster spreads terror, death and murder throughout the area and finally transforms a beautiful young woman, played by Miss Hayes, into a hideous 50 foot horror.

The shock-killer adds additional excitement and chills to the film as she goes berserk, tears apart buildings and in one tremendous scene squeezes a man to death in a giant hand.

Others in the cast include Roy Gordon, Ken Terrell, George Douglas, Otto Waldis, Frank Chase and Ellene Stevens. It was produced by Bernard Woolner and directed by Nathan Hertz from a screenplay by Mark Hanna.

Gain Finals British Tennis

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Varner, an El Paso, Tex., physical education instructor better known as a badminton player, gained the women's singles final Friday in the Queen's Club tennis tournament.

The 29-year-old Texan turned back Mrs. Margaret du Pont of Wilmington, Del., 6-1, 6-3 and became the only singles survivor of the 10 American men and eight U.S. women who began this pre-Wimbledon test. The Wimbledon championships open Monday.

Miss Varner, former holder of both the U.S. and all - England badminton crowns, will meet Bernice Carr of South Africa for the women's title. Miss Carr eliminated Louise Brown of Ventura, Calif., 6-2, 8-6.

Two Australians, Mal Anderson and Bob Mark, gained the last round in men's singles.

Anderson, who holds the U.S. title, swept past Jan Lundquist of Sweden 6-2, 2-6, 6-4. Mark, one of Australia's lesser players, beat Abe Segal of South Africa 10-8, 2-6, 6-3.

TV NOTEBOOK

By JOHN WETTLAUFER

Experts are regularly trying to assess the impact of television on children's minds. Here, for what it is worth, are a few actions and reactions of small fry doubtless after exposure to TV.

When asked by his father to give him a rough idea of the time, a five-year-old who hadn't yet mastered the ability to tell time, studied the clock and reported back: "The big hand is on the bottom and the little hand is on Channel 2."

A midwest family took delivery of an expensive organ and a young daughter was heard to complain: "Isn't there something we can put on the roof to show we've got it?"

Oh, well, as one philosopher remarked: "Kids are no longer afraid of the dark. They know enough to call the TV repairman."

Speaking of repairmen — if you're in the dark regarding whom to call for top-notch TV repairs, let's have a little light on the subject. CIRCLE TV SERVICE makes a specialty of first-class repairs which get right to the root of the trouble. This results in quicker, more permanent and, naturally, more economical work. Try CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 368 Coleman St., for better work. Phone WO 8-6791; in Trenton phone Zenith 6-3800.

FAMILY HOME!

ONE OFTEN READS about a large number for sale but only to be disappointed upon inspection to discover it is unsuitable for a large family. If you have a family of four, you will find this home is just right. Not yet it is new and modern. The upper floor has 3 bedrooms and half are room enough for the largest family. The lower bedrooms and bath. On the main floor is a large living room, dining room, kitchen, etc. Then there is that you would like — a 2-car garage. Situated on a large lot with full basement for your future needs. Situated in a quiet district on a paved street. You would be near to your place of employment. We are asking $13,500. Can we arrange a showing for one of these long evenings?

Tyendinaga

TYENDINAGA RESERVE

TYENDINAGA — Christ Church, Tyendinaga Mohawk Indian Reserve, has been redecorated and now presents a bright new interior. The side walls are of pale aqua, with lower border of buff color and these are separated by a gold band. The recessed windows are also buff colored and the ceiling is white.

The first service in the church setting was in commemoration of the 174th anniversary of the landing of the Mohawk Indians. Much credit is due Mrs. Jobey Maracle who started a fund several years ago to restore the church and this later developed into community fund for decorating the church.

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Tyendinaga — The Friends and Neighbors Club held a surprise party recently in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brant on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, presenting them with an electric percolator.

Mr. Brant was also thanked by Mrs. Norway Maracle for the work that she had helped to do on the Reserve.

About 15 members were present at the party. Cards were played.

Refreshments were later enjoyed, and included a special anniversary cake made and presented by Mrs. Norway Maracle.

Following the christening of little Claudia Alyn Emmanuel, at Christ Church, Sunday morning, June 1st, Mr. and Mrs. Jobey Maracle held "Open House" for friends of the family in the afternoon.

Miss Donna Joy Maracle, of Hill View Farms, with friends, motored to Ottawa, Quebec and other parts of Ontario.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON
FORMS OF FEEDING

Watching nestlings being fed is often highly amusing. If papa always arrives from the east 1 h e chances are that mama will come from the west, because individuals have their favourite food supplies and their own routes of return. Considering that nestlings ordinarily eat their own weight of food in a day and that there is no exaggeration in saying that you saw a wren bring home food 10 times in 10 minutes, a lot of excitement can be packed into a short period.

Both the food and the method of getting it into the young ones varies enormously. Eagles bring their babies whole rabbits, tear them apart, and stuff it into their gullets. Gulls often carry a fish that looks almost as big as the baby, yet the whole thing is put into one mouth. However, big fishers have unusually h u g e beaks, made for the purpose. On the other hand, most song birds offer something very small. T h e reason wrens make so many trips is because each trip represents just one very small insect or spider.

Young red-eyed vireos are eating green worms; young veerys on large, greenish white grubs. Cedar birds are almost entirely reared on insects, although the adults much prefer fruit which is not yet ripe at this date. Little chipping sparrows receive no shredded grubs, cankerworms and tent caterpillars. Cowbird children must be ready for anything, because the diet depends on the kind of foster parent.

In all these cases the food is popped into the young mouth just as it was found; but some birds prefer to feed their offspring their food. So-called fish, goldfinches regurgitate partially digested weed seeds; flicker babies get ants from their throats. Cedar waxwings store up supplies of small fruits to be produced from the esophagus once they get to the home; their several youngsters can be fed with one trip.

Pelican parents let the children dig down into their big bills to find dinner — on the contrary, hummingbirds insert their o w n tongues into the tiny mouths.

Meadowlarks give a "food call" on the way to the nest so the babies will open up in readiness. Some birds force the children to swallow food by touching something sensitive, such as the back of the little throats with their bills.

Usually robins let several youngsters have a bite from one mouthful, but the cheerful sight is a very small robin trying valiantly to swallow the whole thing.

Ivanhoe

IVANHOE — Weekend guests at the home of Mrs. Burton Reid were Mr. and Mrs. John Bitwell and family, Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mumford and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Knapstrup of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Downey of Saskatoon, Sask., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Downey, Crookston.

Mr. and Mrs. Fo r e s t Gunsolus, Barbara and Drew, were Sunday supper guests of Mrs. Bessie M. Fleming.

Mr. William MacMillan is visiting in Brighton and Toronto.

A Father's Day service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. W. H. V. Walker. Rev. Walker took his text from verse 33 of the 18th chapter of 2nd Samuel.

A basket of spring flowers was placed in the church in loving memory of John Chester Sills by Mrs. Sills, Russell and Lindsay.

Stirling

STIRLING — On Monday evening Mrs. Gladys Elliott, a past grand of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, Stirling, received the "Degree of Chivalry" in the Convention Hall of the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

There were 40 candidates receiving this dignified and outstanding degree which is given for rendering faithful service as Rebekahs.

The first charge was given by Past Grand Chief, Mrs. Ethel Greenwood of the Sovereign.

Mrs. Elliott was accompanied to Toronto by her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Morrow, Mrs. Mary Vanderveer, Mrs. Cecil Macklin, and Mrs. Alec Thew were several other members of Laurel Rebekah Lodge at the sessions of the Grand Lodge.

Their little daughter, Linda, floor-length white dress, had the honor of pinning in the badges of chivalry. The parents and members of the LA.P.M. officiated for the degree.

Police Raid Wild Drinking Party, Nab 55 Girls, Boys

Episode Described as 'Disgusting' by Officers

TORONTO (CP) — Fifty-five teen-agers and adults were arrested Sunday in a raid on the farm of Frank Reesor in nearby Markham township after he told police their wiener roast had turned into an orgy.

Police Chief Clarence Wideman, who sent 12 officers into the muddy swamp area to make the arrests, described the episode as "disgusting."

After their arrest many of the teen-agers were openly petting in the overcrowded police station. One frightened girl was seen to throw her arms around Chief Wideman's neck and, unsuccessfully, try to kiss him.

"You great big beautiful fat man," the girl shouted.

TRESPASSING CHARGES

All 55 face charges of trespassing on Reesor's farm four miles northeast of Markham village, about 15 miles northeast of Toronto. Three youths are charged with stealing a motorcycle and, in that place, one of them with resisting arrest. One girl is charged with being drunk. Other charges will probably be laid later, police said.

Nearly all of the 55 are from Toronto and members of motorcycle clubs. They wore black leather jackets and blue jeans.

The 12 policemen who made the raid stumbled into trees and swamps during the pitch-dark pandemonium. Some muddy and bruised with their prisoners. They said a number of the teen-agers escaped, some of them half-clad.

RACED AT HIM

One policeman said a teen-aged youth tried to run him down on a motorcycle but missed and crashed into a creek. At least 60 motorcycles and a number of cars were parked on the farm, police said.

Eight cases of beer, 32 empty cases and a large quantity of liquor were seized. A number of knives and clubs also were found.

Most of the 41 men and 14 girls arrested in the roundup were released on their own recognizances to appear in summonses for trespassing. Others with more serious charges were to appear in court today.

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL

A 15-year-old girl was among those arrested. She was identified as Lawrence Chapman, 23, of Toronto was charged with resisting arrest and having liquor in an illegal place. Peter Edge, 18, and Ronald Cranford, 19, both Toronto, were charged with having liquor in an illegal place. Beverley Court, 18, of Toronto was charged with being drunk.

Wideman, a steady flow of profanity poured from the crowd in the police station ahead of the arrests from the girls. After the two large cells in the village police station were packed officials found the words "black diamond riders" crawled on the walls.

DISGUSTING SIGHT

Chief Wideman, who called out every off-duty policeman from both Markham and nearby Newmarket to make the raid, said of the party scene:

"It was the most disgusting sight I ever saw."

He said motorcyclists have long held parties along the bank of the Little Rouge Creek which flows through Mr. Reesor's land.

HUNGARIANS PROTEST

These flag-carrying marchers led a parade of some 320 Hungarians past the Soviet embassy (left) in Ottawa to protest the execution in Communist Hungary of former Prime Minister Imre Nagy and four other participants in the 1956 uprising there. Three bottles of blood-red ink were hurled from the centre of the parade to break on the embassy building. Otherwise the demonstration was peaceful. (CP Wirephoto).

Hungarians Toss Red Ink At Reds' Ottawa Embassy

Report Poland Prepares Protest in Nagy Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 320 Hungarian refugees paraded past Soviet Embassy here Sunday night to protest the execution of former Hungarian prime minister Imre Nagy in a demonstration quiet except for the hurling of three bottles of blood-red ink.

But police charged a youth with disorderly conduct after a second ink bottle broke and splattered the front steps of the building on Charlotte Street in east central Ottawa; a second hit the wall near the entrance, and a third marked the wall at the top third storey.

BLINDS STAY DOWN

Embassy blinds remained drawn as the procession, organized by Rev. Angel Kovach, 46-year-old Hungarian - born priest, passed by earlier.

Father Kovach, a member of the strict Roman Catholic Capuchin Order of Franciscans here, said he did not know who threw the ink.

"I wanted this to be a peaceful demonstration," he told reporters. He organized it because he was "afraid I might do worse things like that."

Fifty police motorcycle cops walked; the others travelled in automobiles: one black limousine in front and 44 seats, carefully mainly women and children, behind the marchers.

They formed up at Strathcona Park, a few hundred feet from the new embassy which the Soviets moved into in April, 1957, after they destroyed their old embassy building on the same site 16 months earlier.

Eight policemen on motorcycles escorted the marchers past the Soviet building they sang the Hungarian national anthem. They carried placards protesting Nagy's execution and that of two of his associates in the 1956 Hungarian uprising.

They gathered in native Hungarian dress followed the leading car. With them were three men carrying a large Hungarian red-white-and-green tricolor, the centre-piece Red Eagle and a large black flag.

One placard read — "We do not forget 23 Oct. 1956," the day Russian troops put down the Hungarian uprising.

The parade moved eastwards about one mile, ending at national defence headquarters on centretown Elgin Street where Father Kovach addressed the cheers for Canada. Then they draped placards and flags on the cenotaph beside the God Bless the Hungarian People.

Father Kovach, a native Hungary in 1947, said in reply to a reporter's question, that he has relatives there.

"I am afraid . . . ," he said. "But, unfortunately, I can't take matters in hand. Russian actions in Hungary were not right. The Nagy affair is another thing."

After the second gathering, police kept a close watch on the building through the night.

FRANC DEVALUED

PARIS (AP) — France Saturday made its 10-month-long devaluation of the franc official. Since last August all transactions have been made on the basis of 420 francs to the dollar. This rate now is the official value.

WARSAW (AP) — The Polish Communist party today was reported ready to protest with its inner circles of the Communist bloc against the execution of Imre Nagy and other leaders of the Hungarian revolt.

There appeared no likelihood, however, that Polish party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka would make public complaint that would bring Moscow's wrath down on him.

Gomulka has been playing a careful role in the current fight between the Kremlin and Yugoslav President Tito. He has aided publicly with Moscow so at not to endanger the small amount of independence he has won from the Soviet party. But he has frequently hit criticism of Tito so as not to incite his restive people to an outburst that might result in a Soviet crackdown.

Informants said Gomulka's cautious line in the execution of the Hungarian revolt leaders was made clear in private speeches by foreign Ministers Adam Rapacki and Roman Zambrowski, both members of the Polish Politburo.

ASKED IF KNEW

Rapacki, speaking to party members in Poznan, was asked if he knew in advance of the execution of the killings. Informants said he replied: "I can only tell you it is my personal belief that if Gomulka had known of the executions he would have vigorously protested."

Zambrowski, speaking meeting of lower-ranking party members called the executions a brutal act. He implied that Gomulka had been assured Nagy would not be killed.

The Polish leadership followed up these statements with a direct appeal to party organizations saying it did not know in advance of the executions and would approve of them and in effect does not accept the Soviet-Hungarian contention that Nagy plotted with "counter-revolutionaries" during the 1956 Hungarian uprising.

In Belgrade, Tito's government is expected to protest formally to Hungary this week that the executions violated an agreement between the two countries.

MAY TAKE A HAND

Tito is believed to have taken a personal hand in drafting the protest.

The newspaper Politika termed the executions a "brutal warning" to anyone who opposes the Soviet Union's revived policy of close control over European satellites.

Significantly speaking with the government's approval, Politika said the executions were a "precautionary measure aimed at stirring up quarrels between our country and Hungary."

Midwesterners Resent Shifting Seaway Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Resentment appeared to be building in midwest congressional circles today over President Eisenhower's weekend transfer of supervision over the St. Lawrence Seaway to the commerce department.

A check of congressional offices indicated that the shift, long opposed by midwesterners, came as a complete surprise to them.

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.), a leading seaway enthusiast, opened the attack by calling the move ill-advised.

He said he will ask Eisenhower to reconsider his order transferring supervision of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation from the army engineers to the commerce department. Only supervision over construction of the giant waterway, expected to be completed next spring, remains in the defence department.

Father of Pupil At Little Rock Shoots Negro

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The father of Minnijean Brown, Negro girl expelled earlier this year from Central High School, shot and killed a man early today, police reported.

Detective Sgt. Lester Cranford and Clint McMurray said Willie Bob Brown, about 50, admitted the slaying of Ermer Isaac, a 68-

Brown was jailed here on an open charge investigation.

Cranford and McMurray reported that Isaac was struck by three bullets from a .45-calibre revolver about 7 a.m. in front of a grocery club. They said Brown found a .32-calibre automatic, with safety still on beneath the body.

The police report gave no details of the alleged feud between the two men.

Billy Graham Ends Crusade in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billy Graham, calling himself "God's messenger boy for Christ," ended his San Francisco crusade Sunday in the same way he overflow crowd jammed into Seals Stadium, the 25,000-seat baseball home of San Francisco Giants.

"I knew Willie Mays could fill Seals Stadium," he said from atop a platform at second base, "but I'm glad God can do it too.

"I am only the messenger boy for Christ. Give God the glory for what has been done this day."

Graham made a plea against backsliding. To those who have made a decision for Christ," he said: "Do not go back to your old ways of living or yield to old temptations and old idolatries."

NEGROES TO ASK DELAY IN RULING ON SEGREGATION

May Carry Issue To Supreme Court

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The stage was set today for another legal round in the boiling controversy over racial integration at Little Rock Central High School.

Negro attorneys were prepared for another appearance in U.S. district court Harry J. Lemley this week in an effort to ask him to stay his own order for a 30½-year integration of desegregation at the school.

The motion for delaying the order, pending an appeal, was a move to keep seven Negro students in class with approximately 2,000 whites when Central High begins its next school year in September.

Wiley Branton, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said that should Lemley reject a stay, the motion could be carried to the U.S. with Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis and if necessary to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A stay by any of the courts, Branton said, would mean that the crisis situation at Central High would be just as it was when the 1957-58 school year ended.

FILES NOTICES

The Negro lawyer filed notice of appeal and asked for a stay order soon after Lemley's sudden ruling was announced Saturday morning.

In granting the school board's petition for a delay of integration until 1961, Lemley conceded that "the Negro students in the Little Rock district have a constitutional right not to be excluded from any public activities on account of race; but the board has convincingly shown that the time for the enjoyment of that right has not yet come."

Purchase of Gas Distributing System Carried Out Ethically, Legally, in Open Says Prexy

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Natural Gas Corporation in a statement Sunday night said its organization and acquisition of the household gas - distributing system of Quebec hydro was carried out "ethically, legally and in the open."

The statement described as "damaging and completely unfounded" a series of articles published by the newspaper Le Devoir asserting that risk capital of only $50,000 and a $20,000,000 market coup figured in the transaction.

The statement was issues at a press conference in a downtown Montreal hotel by Col. Maurice Forget, corporation president.

NOT DEFENCE

Col. Forget said before issuing the statement:

"We are not defending ourselves. We want to re-establish the facts which have been reversed. Directors who have been attacked personally will be able to defend themselves in due course."

He said the company statement was necessary because of a "certain journalistic campaign started 10 days ago."

He added the press conference had been called simply to issue the statement and there would be no questions or comments.

The text:

Official statement of the management of the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

A Montreal daily paper has recently published a series of articles containing damaging, and completely unfounded accusations against our corporation. The accusations tend to incriminate honest people. In all fairness to them as well as to the public we serve and to our shareholders, we feel it our duty to re-establish the truth and give an exact statement of the facts.

At its 1953-56 session the legislature accepted unanimously the act giving our corporation the necessary powers to enable it to supply gas service in particular natural gas, to the population of the island of Montreal and other municipalities in the metropolitan region. The same act authorized it to purchase the hydro-Quebec gas distribution system.

At its next session the legislature authorized hydro-Quebec to sell the gas-related gas distribution system to our corporation.

Up to the time of the public issue of the stock of our company, its founders were its sole shareholders.

Our corporation sold to underwriting firms of Canada and the United States who had a firm commitment, a $40,000,000 issue of bonds, debentures, and 805,914 common shares at an agreed price.

From this moment these securities became the property of the underwriting firms which sold them to the public and to clients the choice of whom they were absolutely free to make. It is important to note that no one has received from our corporation nor from the underwriters not one share, bond or debenture without paying the full issue price. Therefore, the shares are transacted normally by the public according to the law of supply and demand as in the case of any other security.

It is false and ridiculous to pretend that the founders of the corporation have disbursed only $50,000 to acquire the distribution system and other assets, and it is also false to pretend that they have realized a profit of $9,000,000.

Nasser Strives to Prevent West Intervening in Lebanon

CAIRO (CP) — UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold conferred today with Mahmoud Fawzy, foreign minister of the United Arab Republic.

Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, chief of staff of the United Nations Emergency Force and chief of staff for the UN observation group in Palestine, also attended the conference.

The meeting came as diplomatic observers here pointed out what they considered that the UAR was striving to head off Western intervention in Lebanon.

Today's Hammarskjold-Fawzy session followed a three-hour secretary's four-hour discussions of Middle East problems with President Nasser Sunday night.

No details of the meeting were given but it was Hammarskjold made no statement.

The secretary-general's arrival in Cairo Sunday coincided with intense diplomatic activity.

All diplomatic representatives were summoned to the foreign ministry Saturday night and warned against "foreign intervention" in Lebanon's "internal crisis."

Hammarskjold left New York Wednesday after the Security Council failed to come to his re-

Before setting the Egyptian capital he conferred briefly with Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana. The latter, now touring independent African states, is the secretary-general's hotel for what UN sources described as a courtesy call.

Hammarskjold flew here from Jerusalem after conferring with Israeli and Jordanian authorities about the 10-year-old dispute over Mount Scopus, an Israeli enclave in Jordanian territory outside Jerusalem.

The visit failed to settle the quarrel, Jerusalem sources said.

Liberal Leader Pearson Says World Picture "Pretty Grim"

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson said today the international situation "looks pretty grim" and raised doubts whether a summit conference will be held.

Russian policy against the West appears to be hardening, the former external affairs minister told his weekly press conference. He couldn't be sure of the reasons, there may be either a new struggle in the Soviet ruling party Kremlin or Premier Khrushchev may have concluded that his soft approach to the West hasn't produced what he wanted.

"The international situation looks pretty grim," he said. "There are some pretty difficult decisions for governments concerned to make."

Not only were there now increasing difficulties in holding a summit conference but Mr. Pearson questioned whether even the Geneva conference on the level of foreign ministers' tests would be held.

Khrushchev may try to break the conference by arguing that the Western line-up was United Kingdom, U.S. and France, along with Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

"Now Russia may want to make it four all. I don't know what the attitude of London and Washington will be to that. Khrushchev may want another Russian expert or suggest a Chinese expert."

Youngsters Start Heating Boiler Of Steam Roller

Would-be youthful steam engineers with a yen for mischief resulted in a call for city firemen Sunday evening when they started a fire in the firebox of a city-owned steam roller on the Wallbridge Road.

Firemen said the boys had a head of steam up in the boiler of the roller when someone called the department to send the reels and cool things off.

"You never know what youngsters will do next," was the comment of a fire department member.

The only other call for firemen over the weekend was at the J. and J. Cash Company premises where a leak in the sprinkler system resulted in a lowering of the water pressure, which automatically turned in the alarm.

Policemen Get $300 Raise, Service Pay and Benefits In Arbitration Award

TRENTON — Trenton police men were granted a raise in wages, change in vacation schedule and service pay for constables with eight years of service and over in the findings of an arbitration board, which were released to the press this morning.

The increase in wages amounts to $300 per year for all constables and $400 per year for inspectors and sergeants. The Trenton Police Association had asked for an increase in wages of $500.

In their report the board said that after comparing Trenton with other cities and other large centres of Ontario which resemble in size and general conditions, as well as other cities generally, it was of their opinion that salary increases should be made. The salary increase will be retroactive to January 1, 1958.

The starting pay for a constable will be $3,300 with his first increase coming after 6 months of service and the second at the end of a year.

The board also granted the policemen the change they asked for. In addition after 10 years of service the officer will be allowed three weeks vacation with pay. In the past it had been 12 years.

Service pay will start after the constable has served seven years with the force. Sergeants and above will not be granted service pay.

At eight years the officer will receive pay amounting to $5 per month; at 13 years, $10; at 18 years $15 and at 23 years he will get $20 per month.

This will be the first time in the history of the Trenton Police Force, constables have been given service pay and it is generally felt it will be a sound enticement to get good recruits.

The board did not grant the police their request for a 40-hour week — a 44-hour week — although they stated they were aware of the trend in the country towards this level for a working week.

The arbitration board, which sat in Trenton on June 5, heard the arguments presented by R. E. Noonan, Q.C., town barrister, who acted for the Police Commission, and D. W. Cass, who acted for the Police Association.

The board consisted of Mrs. Jane Forrester of Belleville, as chairman and A. R. Willmot, Q.C., Brighton, and Mr. Association and F. L. Ward, Q.C., solicitor for the Association.

The board report also stated that the Police Act states: "that the Police Force of a municipality shall be appointed by the commissioners can hire a Chief Constable and such other officers and assistants as the town council may deem necessary, but not more than the Police Commissioners reports to be requisitioned."

Police Chief Outlines Plans For Traffic Training Clinic

TRENTON — "We are actively exploring the possibilities of a traffic training clinic being organized by fall," Chief of Police Jack Taylor said in an interview over the weekend.

"This would be", continued Chief Taylor, "providing the obstacles, of finance and a place to hold the classes can be overcome.

"In finances it would take from $2,000 to $3,000 for equipment to open the classes, and permanent housing is advisable since the problem of moving the equipment would detract from the smooth operation of the course."

"The course", said the chief of police, "is composed of short lectures with slides and movies. At the end of the course examinations are given and a certificate is presented to the successful students.

"A card filing system is kept on each person going through so their driving records may be checked. This is a practice which is particularly advantageous for the younger driver where proper guidance can be given when needed.

"Although the present plans do not include it there is the possibility that the Traffic Training Clinic is functioning properly actual driving and written tests may be given if proper arrangements can be made.

"The course would be especially successful in the teenage category in that basic training in the operation of a motor vehicle and the rulings of the Highway Traffic Act give the proper start and a proper observance of good driving habits follows", said the chief.

Class will be formed of three 4 hour sessions, but adult volunteers and persons sent to the school by the courts. A kit of folders and literature will be given to each student, which he can study at his leisure at home. The greater part of this literature would be supplied free of charge to the school by various insurance companies.

The only equipment needed is a reaction testing machine, a machine which tests depth conception, color and reading signs; a movie projector and a slide projector, along with a magnetic blackboard, all for instructional purposes. Fifteen tables and 30 chairs will also be required. (Each class will be of about 30 persons).

IS IMMEDIATE NEED

"With the heavy traffic on our highways today," said Chief Taylor, "and the ever increasing number of accidents causing damage, injury and death, there is an immediate demand and need for safe driving education, It has become a must and in Ontario the provincial government is becoming highly organized in this field.

"The Traffic Training Clinic is the local administration," concluded the chief, "to do its share. It should be going to be controlled. To stop accidents the driver must be properly trained and educated in the use of the motor vehicle."

Location of classes would be under Sgt. Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton police force. Sgt. Steenburgh has just recently returned from an instruction course in this field in Hamilton.

Cells at Times Overcrowded Says Police Chief

TRENTON — At three different dates during the past month the cells under the town hall set up was most prominent Police Chief Jack Taylor said in an interview during the weekend.

On May 30 there were 12 persons in the male section of five cells with cots, the rest had to sleep on the floor.

On June 6 there were 10 prisoners taken in for overnight and one was a female. This left only three cots for the nine male prisoners and one toilet.

On June 12 there were 8 prisoners and again one was a female.

The local jail has three cells and three cots in the block used mainly for drunks and two cells and two cots in the women's block. If there are no female prisoners the matron in police can use that block of cells for those males it relieves the crowding a little.

The cots are not equipped with mattresses and prisoners must sleep on the bare springs or, if there are no cots, when they are forced to sleep on the floor.

Mattresses or bedding would not last long in the cells even if this was supplied. One night a prisoner, who had been booked for being drunk and disorderly, dug pieces of wood, which were embedded in the cement floor, piled them in the centre of the cell floor and set them on fire. Police on duty had to douse him with a bucket of water and took the matches, which he had concealed, away from the prisoner.

But the room used by the officers and the "lobby" part of the station were filled with fumes from the fire, uncomfortable for the police and anyone who came into the station at the time.

There is only one toilet in the men's block and when nine to 12 men are put in there, and some of them drunk, the smell isn't very pleasant. And it isn't confined to the cell block, but goes through the whole building.

At town council meetings some time ago the need for a new police station was agreed to by the councillors, but the cost of the new building caused considerable discussion.

ISSUE DIED OUT

Following a report from the Town Planning Board and the Police Commission the council for recommendations on a site the matter of a new police station was deemed to die out. This was also aided by the lengthy discussion concerning the feasibility of purchasing a combination pumper and ambulance. Under truck and it is becoming greater all the time."

At the time of the discussions in council on the new station the fear was voiced that it would cost in the vicinity of $75,000. Although the council did not include the amount it would take to equip the building it has been estimated that could be done for another $25,000.

Overcrowding, however, is not confined to the cells. In the other rooms of the station used by the police equipment has to be piled nearly to the ceiling to make room. In the room used by the constables' room is at present being used to store uniforms, bicycles and broken parking meters. It is even necessary in some cases to pile boots in front of the lockers used by the men.

One lavatory does for the whole staff and has to be used for a "constitutional" room for the lawyers and their clients.

"It is most inconvenient for all concerned", said the police chief, and his men agree.

Community Centre Finances Reported in Better Shape

TRENTON — The financial situation of the Community Centre is gradually improving and if the town citizens will get out to evenly the Centre will soon be a going concern, Councillor Vagn Lange said following a meeting of rink board last week.

Councillor Lange is treasurer, and presented his report at the last meeting. During the report he suggested that the outstanding accounts of the Centre be paid off. He said there was money available and some of the bills had been due for a considerable time. The meeting agreed this be done.

He also told the meeting the need to economize was still great, to enable the Centre to get back on its feet financially. He said receipts are showing a profit but felt the extra help could be cut down a little and the saving effected.

It was stated at the meeting that the various rinks which were required before the season opens this fall, He said he knew there was not much money available in these repairs, but felt some of the work could have to be done before the hockey season opens in the fall.

Among the repairs were new benches for the dressing rooms, trainers' room to be repaired, fill for some areas, and a room for storage of equipment.

Ted Parker, a member of the board and also chairman of the rink, reported that to date, the meeting the Parks Board had received at its disposal $1,000 ahead with the fixing up of the landscaping in front of the Centre. It plans to put in grass where it is needed as well as to fix flowers and shrubberies. The board had done this last year but it had not been looked after.

A letter of thanks from the Trenton Kinsmen Brigade in Trenton was read by Don McPherson, chairman of the public relations committee.

The latter thanked the board for the use of the rink and for co-operation when the brigade held its courses at the centre.

BOARD CLERGY PLANNED

Cliff Baker, chairman of the board, brought to the attention of the meeting that Rev. Father L. McDonald had suggested the Ecumenical service facilities be made available to the Quinte Arithritis Society when it holds its meeting in the centre.

The doctor had said the group had felt the centre was central location for the clinic and thought perhaps the board room in the First Aid room would be suitable.

During the discussion which followed it was decided to ask the Recreation Commission to make its facilities available for this purpose. The commission's new quarters in the Orange Hall on Ontario Street are heated all the time and are also on the bus route. The pool at present would be desirable for the clinic.

If the Recreation Commission is unable to entertain the Arthritis Society's request, the Community Centre board will bring the matter up again.

Mr. Baker also suggested the board sit with Sgt. Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton police department and discuss the possibilities of the centre being designated as the Traffic Safety Clinic, which it believes would be suitable. Mr. Baker said he felt it was a good idea and the board should do everything it can to further the project.

Attending the Community Centre board meeting were: Cliff Baker, chairman; Councillor Vagn Lange and Vagn Lange; Don McPherson, Ted Parker, Norm Banfield from Capt. Gladstone, manager of the rink.

Bowling Notes

Placed in competition for the first time by the Campbellford Lawn Bowling Club and donated by the Canada Packers, the trophy was won by a Belleville rink, Bill Wright and Bruce Miller on Saturday afternoon. Twenty-six rinks, which necessitated a double draw, were drawn from Peterborough, Belleville, Cobourg, Colborne, Trenton, Brighton, Madoc, Lindsay and Campbellford. Five rinks journeyed to the northern town from the local club and included Garn Dobbs and Walter Elliott, Cleo Colling and Gordon Watkin, Bill Wright and Bruce Miller, Gordon Vince and "Davey" Davison and Bill Hazzard and Claude Tice.

Other winners in the tournament were Cy. Cooper and partner from Cobourg and Webb Kingston; Alf Burgess of Campbellford, who each won three games. The two-game high winners were Clint Mills and Bill Fuller from Trenton, while Mac Mumford and Bert Taylor of Campbellford won the one-game high count. The greens were exhilarating fast, the weather was ideal and the bowlers enjoyed a delicious dinner served by the women's section of the club.

The winners of the tournament had three fifteen point wins, the maximum, with 4 plus ones and bowled consistently all the afternoon. The other Belleville teams failed to get into the prize money but all enjoyed the hospitality of the Campbellford club.

This Monday evening another monster jitney will be held at the local greens and the members will be augmented by members from Trenton and Brighton. That is the return visit for Trenton and Brighton made by the Belleville Club last year. Three eight-end games will be played and valuable prizes will go to the winners. A buffet lunch will close the evening.

On Wednesday afternoon the Brighton Bowling Club is sponsoring a mixed double tournament and a number of rinks from the local club will make the journey to the western village. The greens are in excellent condition and the hospitality of the Brighton members is unsurpassed. There will be a supper draw with the first game called for one o'clock.

Commerce Chamber Asking Members About Lotteries, Should They Be Made Legal?

Should lotteries, including raffles, be legal or illegal?

That was the question the Chamber of Commerce asked its members in a questionnaire sent out to them on June 16.

Deadline for filing returns was Friday.

This morning Robert G. Hamilton, secretary - manager of the Chamber, said that only 62 returns have been received from an approximate 350 questionnaires mailed out a few days ago.

"It is really too early yet to make any comment about the general feelings of our members," Mr. Hamilton said. "Perhaps if we can receive at 100 completed returns, we will be better able to tabulate a fair representation of the sentiment of Belleville and district Chamber members."

Mr. Hamilton explained that the Chamber of Commerce compiled the questionnaire from a brief submitted in 1956 by a joint Senate - House of Commons committee on the subject. The local memorandum contained some exemptions.

"One Belleville businessman told me that the survey was not too clear. However, I got it from a federal government committee," said Mr. Hamilton.

FIVE QUESTIONS

Five questions were included in the local document. When the Chamber of Commerce tabulates its returns on the subject, Mr. Hamilton will issue it to the press. A copy of the report will be sent, prior to July 8, to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce offices in Montreal.

Questions asked were:

1. Do you believe lotteries, including raffles, generally should be banned with the following exemptions as recommended by the Joint Parliamentary Committee?

(a) Lotteries licensed by provincial or delegated authority in aid of charitable, religious and community purposes if they meet the following conditions:

(i) Value of prizes offered by any one organization does not exceed $5,000 in any one year.

If no expenses are paid to promoters for their personal gains or property and reports on the operation of each lottery are required.

(ii) Lotteries entailing small raffles of goods where the prizes do not exceed $50 in total value.

(3) Lotteries permitted to agricultural fair associations not exceeding a total of $10,000 yearly in connection with the pre-sale of admission tickets.

2. The present provisions of the Criminal Code relating to lotteries are capable of misunderstanding. Are you in favor of simplification and clarification of these provisions as recommended by the Joint Parliamentary Committee?

2. Do you favor the proposal that all types of advertising contests be banned since plays any part should be clearly prohibited as recommended by the Joint Parliamentary Committee?

3. The sale of foreign lottery tickets is now illegal. Do you believe importation of such tickets by the public should be prohibited as at present, as recommended by the Joint Parliamentary Committee?

Mounties Check Boat Licences, Life Preservers

TRENTON — Boats of all sizes and shapes could be seen skimming over the waters of the Trent River and the Bay of Quinte Sunday afternoon.

Everything from sail boats to row boats took to the water as a sunny mild day greeted the first day of Boating Week in Canada and the second day of summer.

Boating Week will end on Saturday and during this time the boat owners are encouraged to check on their life saving equipment as well as to practise safety measures and the "rules of the Road" for boating.

Also checking by government docks here Saturday night was the RCMP Patrol Boat and members of the crew of a 40 foot cruiser and three men.

The boat's crew checked the boat licences and life saving gear. Boats which were not licensed and others which were not safe were ordered in to shore and tied up.

The boat, which is equipped with the sleek RCMP boat and cruiser colours, is a new craft and the deck and glass of the blue and silver boat were spotless when it arrived in Trenton.

Comments from housewives who viewed it with a critical eye was high on the credit to the men who sail her," one ex-navy man was overheard to say.

The Mounties used their outboard for the checking purposes and the boat, to be officially signed into the outboard can be hauled aboard and carried "piggy-back" when they move to other ports and boating areas.

Fire Destroys Large Cottage, Loss Is $5,000

TRENTON — Loss was estimated at $5,000 following a fire late Saturday night which destroyed a large cottage at "Grove," situated at the shore end of Dufferin St.

The Rogers two storey-and-a-half frame building, is owned by Senator W. J. Roger's and other contents were owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rogers who have lived in the cottage during the summer months for the past 20 years.

Trenton firemen were called at 10.13 p.m. Saturday but when they arrived the building was nothing but a ball of fire. They in two hose lines from the only hydrant near the scene but were unable to bring the fire under control until all but two walls were completely burned. One other wall was being held up by a tree and an end wall had "bent in half."

There was no one in the cottage when the fire broke out and had made good progress before it was even noticed. Nothing from inside the cottage was saved, the only thing, Rickey, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fraser who live in the cottage next door to the cottage nearby, was at home and unharmed.

Mr. Rogers said he had some insurance on the contents and some on the building but this covered only a portion of the total loss of the building also carried a heavy amount.

It was the third fire Saturday for the firemen. The first had been early in the morning when a hydro pole on the Wooler road caught fire and a transformer overcome in at about 10 a.m. from a home near the Murray Canal when a tree fell across the top of control and a small section of the roof had caught fire. The latter was owned by Claude Robbins.

SEAWAY TOLLS

The rate of the tolls to be charged shipping using the St. Lawrence Seaway will almost certainly be a vital factor in determining the future industrial growth of the cities and towns in the Great Lakes basin. In all probability their influence will be even greater with respect to Canadian centres than those in the U.S., because the smaller domestic market makes Canadian concerns more dependent on export trade.

The schedule of tolls is thus not a private problem of the owners of the ships which will use the seaway, but is of interest to every Canadian, or at least to every citizen of Ontario.

Unfortunately, few of us have sufficient knowledge about the many factors involved to be able to judge whether the proposed schedule of tolls, just announced, will permit us to derive the maximum benefits from the seaway. Under these circumstances we have to depend on the opinions of experts.

The proposed schedule of rates was drafted by the toll committees of the Canadian Seaway Authority and the U.S. Seaway Development Corporation and concurred in by both bodies. Transport Minister George Hees, in presenting the proposed schedule to the House of Commons, said they would cut at least four cents a bushel from the cost of shipping wheat from the Lakehead to Montreal. Lionel Chevrier, the Liberal M.P. from Mont Laurier who heads formerly president of the Canadian Seaway Authority, told the Commons the rates seem attractive. This unanimity, particularly the agreement between Mr. Hees and Mr. Chevrier, makes out a strong prima facie case for the contention that the rates are reasonable.

This unanimity is provided by statements by spokesmen for the Canadian Shipowners' Association, an organization of operators of deepsea vessels, and of the U.S. Lake Shippers' Association, who respectively described the tolls as "eminently suitable" and reasonable.

The sole dissenting voice appears to be that of the Dominion Marine Association, representing owners of Canadian lake vessels. John Mahoney, manager of the Association, says that to ask ships to pay the annual carrying charges of the seaway "would probably kill the trade." The Association is completely opposed to tolls.

The average Canadian is not equipped to judge between these differing opinions but, with the vote of the experts mentioned six to one in favor of the proposed schedule of tolls, he will likely accept the view that they are reasonable, unless, and until, experience proves otherwise.

FOOD TASTES DIFFER

Ottawa and Vancouver are the Jack Sprait and his wife of Canadian cities, according to an interesting little item appearing in the latest news and information bulletin of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

During the past year or two, the Federation reports, the Federal Department of Agriculture marketing service has been making a series of tests to discover the tastes of consumers in beef-roasts and steaks.

Surprisingly enough, there is a wide variation. In Vancouver the greater percentage of consumers preferred roasts and steaks with a substantial amount of fat, while in Ottawa the result was the opposite, with the majority seeking the leaner cuts. One might be tempted to believe that the British influence in Vancouver was responsible for the leaning towards fattier cuts. The English know their beef and they know that no meat is good unless it is marbled with a sufficient quantity of fat to permit it to be cooked without drying out. But, if this is the explanation, why should consumers in Toronto take the middle ground; selecting cuts with less fat than those preferred in Vancouver, but not leaning so heavily towards lean meat as did residents in Ottawa? Offhand, we would have thought Toronto and Ottawa sufficiently alike in the racial origin of their inhabitants to have identical tastes in food -- but evidently such is not the case.

While making a speech an African politician was knocked down and slightly stunned by a bolt of lightning. Higher criticism? (St. Catharines Standard).

No Hurry Now For Reactor

Manchester Guardian

The atomic reactor at Dounreay, which has just started working, is the nearest thing to a philosopher's stone that Britain has ever had. It is intended to produce some power and at the same time to create more plutonium than it will consume. That it will do by turning the non-fissile isotope of uranium, which is not an atomic fuel, into plutonium, which is. So it is natural to think that this type of reactor would have an exciting part to play in the development of atomic power in Britain. Certainly this was the view four years ago when Dounreay was designed. But since then several things have conspired to diminish its immediate importance.

The difficulties of building and operating reactors like this have turned out to be more formidable than could have been told when the project was merely a paper design, while the technology of using plutonium as a fuel is still to be worked out. Though none of these snags is an insuperable one, it is accounted trends have made it less necessary that they should be surmounted quickly.

Four years ago there was reason to think that the main advantages of uranium would limit the need for atomic power plants could be expected, so that hopes were pinned on the use of materials like thorium as alternative fules and on the design of reactors which could breed fissionable as they worked. Geological discoveries have now, however, taken the edge off some of fears.

Uranium appears to have become plentiful enough — and cheap enough — to enable British atomic power industry to be based on reactors like those at Calder Hall which use natural uranium as fuel, or on developments of these in which the fuel is only a little enriched in its content of fissile material.

It is still the policy to carry on further full-scale power stations like that at Dounreay until the 1970's—at least a decade later than was thought likely a few years ago. But it seems that the Atomic Energy Authority will have plenty of cash to become familiar with its newest machine. On that account it will be glad of the opportunity. Dounreay is a bigger leap into the dark than was Calder Hill.

Uranium Aid To Economy

Ottawa Journal

The development of nuclear energy has begun to exert uranium, the atomic fuel, already is a bulwark of Canada's economy.

Production in 1957 had an estimated value of nearly $150,000,000 and exports were worth $130,000,000. Uranium sales ranked therefore next to wheat nearly as much as sales of iron ore and copper and higher than lead, zinc and asbestos.

World demand for copper, lead and zinc has eased and aluminum companies have become cautious about increasing production capacity. In contrast, several new uranium mines were opened and production almost tripled last year. Anyone who wants to see a Canadian boom town should visit the gold mines and go instead to a uranium centre like Elliot Lake in Northern Ontario where uranium in four years has built a modern community with rich and confident as any in North America.

The statement of Trade Minister Churchill that the government is not going to interfere in the buying and selling of uranium therefore comes at a suitable time. It should encourage enterprise in finding and expanding markets. Mr. Churchill minister has emphasized the government's policy that uranium exported be in as finished a form as possible, the purpose being to bring to Canada benefits of employment from developing the skills and knowledge available to Canadians first.

Canada is not the only uranium producer. There is keen competition of production in South Africa, France, Australia and other territories. In the long-range fight for markets private enterprise is likely to prove more vigorous than any government. It is to be hoped that contracts for Canadian uranium entered into by the United Kingdom and European countries for markets for several years but we does not run out soon and this great asset is to yield what it should.

Safe to Back Tree-Houses

Baltimore Sun

There may be safer things for a politician to be in favor of than climbing trees, but there is right offhand we can't think of any. So Attorney General Pat Brown of California, who happens to be governor, had not a moment's hesitation when he found that authorities had ordered the destruction of a tree-house that his children had been built in. It had done so without a consultation with him.

Quicker than you can say Tom Sawyer (which Mr. Brown did as soon as he thought of it, doing Huck Finn for good measure) Governor Brown declared he was asking a lawyer friend to see the boys' house could not be saved.

Frankly, if we were Senator Knowland, who is running for re-election to be governor of California, we'd drop Joe Martin, hop on the next Washington and strike out right now for the tree-house vote.

Nevertheless, Mr. Brown's male voter in California who doesn't like trees will be hard pressed on the packing case shack he put together in some convenient backyard. He'll say he only had put together, anyway.

Knowland, of course, is the first thing there is for getting up out and away from the world's drudgery. Others are generally confined to boys. Truman Capote's book about two boys who ups living in a tree hut in "The Grass Harp"; Tarzan and Jane and Cheetah lived high in one of the branches.

But the "Green Mansions," has become a symbol of the primitive pleasures of treeliving. No modern Thoreau could up instantaneously on the side of the trees as against the more reluctant authorities and that a politician jumped to the head of the parade.

Too Generous To Himself

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Some high-ranking officers in Tokio, told to stay there and the United States Army did not like his post in the Philippines, and these are some of the things attributed to him:

A plane was put at the disposal of a veterinarian in Atlanta city to come and inspect a pet bird for the general was serving for dinner.

Two servicemen were sent to supervise the building of furniture in Manila, because Manila man was dispatched to Singapore to buy shirtwaists.

Also, $23,500 was spent to remodel the general's quarters; among the furniture, some "hand carved;" $700 for golf clubs and radio in trailers.

A bar was built in the general's office; another in his airplane.

Stories of the general's generosity to himself followed Washington, and an investigation was held. Result: He was reprimanded and relieved of his command.

A soldier and patriot should be last as careful with the spending of public money as with his own.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

THE KIDNEYS ARE SOMEWHAT SUBJECT TO INFECTION

Today I'd like to cpiode a couple of common notions about kidney troubles, and also to offer some general ideas that are worth remembering. A letter from Mrs. F. W. is the immediate cause of today's remarks, but I'm including the answers to quite a few other letters on the same topic.

The kidneys are particularly vulnerable to infection — true also, of course, of several other areas of the body.

The ideas that need explaining are that (1) kidney trouble is always indicated by back pain. This isn't necessarily true. It isn't even the most common. Back pain, from that cause, isn't too common. And (2) that kidney stones are the most frequent kidney trouble. This is true, either.

Mrs. W. thought her trouble might have been from some other cause, so she had a hysterectomy. In any good hospital, these days, there is so much care before and after such operations that you can be sure they are not performed without adequate reason. "Fashionable." That day has long gone by.

So I'll say forthwith that Mrs. F. W. had good and adequate reason for her hysterectomy. Her kidney trouble was a separate matter — although (she had had two children) pregnancy is known to sometimes bring on kidney troubles. Why? I can't say exactly, but in the space of an hour or so could obtain some plausible theories.

Here, however, are the important thoughts to keep in mind. The kidneys are somewhat subject to infection. The germs can be done (and this has been done in Mrs. F. W.'s case) to have other stones, kinks or other obstructions are present. If so, treat them.

DISCOVER THE GERM

If not, look for some germ infection that has taken root. The tuberculosis germs may be guilty. The X-ray may be used to determine this. It is not a "cancer test."1)

Next, it is necessary also, in persistent cases, to discover whether the guilty germs have become resistant to one or another of the antibiotics. This happens. If one or several lose effect, you must search around for another form of treatment.

As I said, back pain is neither a reliable nor common sign of kidney infection. Pyelonephritis — which is a term for pus from the kidneys. More usual signs are frequency of urination, burning type of pain during the process, and sometimes chills and fever. Planned fever.

Likewise most of the above apply also to infection of the bladder. It is of course, closely related — and the treatment is usually going to be similar whether the infection is rooted in the kidneys or the bladder. In men, also, will usually be similar.

I suppose the above will not be of much interest to those who don't have kidney (or bladder) troubles, but for those who do, letters, that this will answer a host of questions from a host of readers.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is the unborn child affected by the mother's habit of smoking at all through pregnancy? She didn't start the child," the husband of a baby arrived but the mother was still hateful and jealous. I have known three mothers who did not want their babies, and they are all nerve children, one almost 23 now. — S. B."

It isn't the thought of the mother before the baby's birth. It is the relationship afterward. After all, what would be the outlook of a child raised, from birth, in an atmosphere of not being wanted? I leave it to you — how can people so hate babies? Yet some do.

Mr. Roberts Is Not Fair

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Roberts, the Ontario Attorney-General, is less than kind when he says that some of the more high-speed escorts for foreign dignitaries. The fact that the dear souls provide Canadian dignitaries puts emphasis on the "foreign." It is true.

Everyone knows that police in every province co-operate, and exchange information in a hustling national and provincial campaign to make things highways at high speeds in attempts to maintain their speaking schedule. The latter statement is politicus, delayed by a few last lads to shake, and late.

There's a fine impartiality in these affairs. The police have no regard for official distinctions. They clear the road for any political leader of sufficient stature.

If the police are prepared to do that with the lack comment if not the command of attorneys-general, why should similar courtesy not be extended to foreign statesmen?

Why also not police President Eisenhower during his forthcoming visit having to make a dash for an airport to keep an engagement vital to the Western world. It is important, because he is a "foreigner" the official police will be at hand to make him obey speed limits with an Ontario politician, with his escort, and police sirens, can go as fast as he likes?

HARD TO CONFRONT

The love story of Robert Browning and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, is one of the most beautiful and appealing not only in the whole history of literature, but in the whole history of the human race. They were both poetical geniuses, a most unusual circumstance in the world, and each surpassing talent to have fallen in love and marry. The love story of how Robert aimed forces himself into the house at Wimpole Street, London, where a semi-invalid Elizabeth from a tyrannical father, is one of the most inspiring and amusing tales ever told for, along with its nobility, the story contains a lot of the amusing aspects.

The beauty of a home filled with love! And then, as we survey the loveless and broken homes of this present day, we wonder sometimes, what is going to happen, at last, to our country and to the race. We cannot go on this way endless, and surely we cannot get any worse without invited disaster. The sum of the unhappiness in the world due to the inability or unwillingness of husbands and wives to get along with each other, is staggering.

People who are talking about steps in the direction of divorce should stop and ponder. The way of the lady-like cost is enormous — not in money, or just in money, but in terms much beyond monetary considerations that the money side of the situation does not seem amusing.

Broken homes — "loveless homes" who are making about our social problems today b u t they are undoubtedly the largest single factor.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

STRANGERS

How much knowledge of others do we think we have? Very little on the whole, I would say. We meet people, some who become our valued friends, but deep in their hearts are secrets and possible revelations rarely ever revealed, even during the period of a lifetime. They are our lovable strangers! Oh, how little we know, and how much more we wish we did know!

W. H. Hudson, the famous writer and naturalist, a man beloved by all who ever met him, was followed by his own brother, out of all the men he ever met, as the one whom he knew the least. Just think of the endless number of people who are daily being divorced largely because they never became acquainted! They remain strangers to each other.

Said Stevenson: "As long as we were a sort of odd wanderers, to be shunned and followed like a doubtful cadre of a caravan, we were full of amusement in return; but as soon as we sunk into common-place ourselves all of whom we met were similarly disenchanted. And here is one reason of a thousand why the world is dull to dull persons."

We hear of people "falling in love." I believe it is true that they do. There are certain mysterious chemical elements in these bodies of ours that attract their kind, though probably their opposites, but at any rate there is the record of those who were strangers when they first met.

When we fail to inspire others, or become careless in our friendships, letting the years pass by, killing the garden, we then begin to realize that a multitude of people whom we have met were not to be our friends, but o u r strangers!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Seeing-eye dogs have received wide notice in recent years, and considerable praise. But seeing-ear dogs have been with us f o r countless centuries, and their services have been so taken for granted that we hardly ever even think of it. Folklore tells us that man first adopted the dog to help him in his hunting. But it is much more probable that he adopted the extraordinary alertness of dogs: primitive man chose to keep the dog that was best able to tell of the dog's hearing as a valuable asset.

Loss of hearing is far more common amongst us humans than loss of vision. We all have a couple of my acquaintance never had children and never had a dog. Dogs in their opinion were dirty, mischievous nuisances. Within recent years they have suffered a setback in their hearing. Formerly was not too bad, since they had less to say to one another than first little dog. But behold the dog's hearing-ear dog. it is also the subject of a great deal of conversation between them, and they are a little put out with all of us, their friends, for not having forced a dog on them years ago. Power From Man-Made Lake

Light shading on this map shows the St. Lawrence River, between Cardinal and Cornwall, Ont., as it is at present. Heavy shading shows area which eventually will be flooded after July 1 when the man-made lake, constituting a power pool for the big power-house stretching between Barnhart Island on the New York side of the river and the Ontario mainland near Cornwall, begins to form. The man-made lake eventually will stretch 35 miles west of the power dam and will be five miles wide at Ingleside point. The map shows old Ontario towns that will be flooded and the new ones being built to replace them. (CP Newsmap.)

31 Tons of High Explosive Will Blast Rock Plug in St. Lawrence to Make Lake

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—With a mighty roar and a mile-high explosion, a rock plug in the St. Lawrence River will be ripped to pieces July 1 to unleash a great flood, creating a deep lake for a new international power dam in the Seaway.

Thirty-one tons of high explosive will be detonated to shatter a 600-foot cofferdam now plugging the river between Sheek Island and Barnhart Island. More than 25,000 people are expected to witness the spectacle from a safe dike two miles away.

Four hours before the blast, sluice gates at 2,400-foot Iroquois dam 25 miles upstream are to be opened to let more water into the lake area. The gates are to open at H-Hour, set by engineers for 4 a.m., EDT, Tuesday, July 1.

BIG CASCADE

At H-Hour plus four—exactly 8 a.m. EDT—the cofferdam is to blow up.

A 30-foot wall of water will cascade through the ruptured dike, then flatten out and slowly inundate 38,000 acres of land in Canada and the United States. For three days and three nights, the flood—estimated at 180,000,000,000 gallons of water, will inch over the countryside, to form a lake 35 miles long and five miles broad at its widest point.

This modern Noah's flood will drown forever the last remains of seven old river villages, settled two centuries ago by United Empire Loyalist. The 6,300 inhabitants have been moved with their homes to higher ground several miles away.

They left a ghost land, a rolling region shaved clean of trees, bush, fences and power poles to eliminate debris from floating on the flood current into the $600,000,000 Ontario - New York power dam, two miles west of downtown Cornwall.

As in Noah's time, the flood promises good things. The 23 pre-generators—half of them in Canada, the rest in New York state—will produce 2,300,000 horsepower of electricity. The new lake will form a picturesque river park, with high land on the present shore turning into picnic islands, linked by a curving causeway like jewels on a necklace.

TOWNS CELEBRATE

And the explosion is to signal the start of a gala celebration in Cornwall. The city's 41,000 residents plan a four-day Inundation Party to mark the flood with street dancing, games, parades and a fishing derby. Wooden nickels are being made for the occasion.

Across the river at Massena, N.Y., similar celebrations are planned, but the U.S. party will honor the opening of two American locks built for the deep-sea St. Lawrence seaway. The Eisenhower and Snell locks will lift canal boats 80 feet to enter the new lake. At the other end of the lake, Canada's Iroquois lock, first seaway structure finished, will raise ships another six feet to return to the St. Lawrence River channel.

The locks will take 14-foot-draught canal boats for the first of 1958, but next year they become part of the seven-lock seaway, which will be deep enough for ocean freighters with 27-foot-draught.

During the flood, more than fuses leading to 2,120 cans of explosive in holes throughout the cofferdam, and the blast will go off in four stages, all within a fraction of a second.

Balloons will mark the coffer-dam and rocket signals trailing colored smoke will be fired at intervals before the explosion.

Engineers expect boulders and debris to be tossed as high as a mile into the air. Aircraft have been warned of the danger. The shock will be felt miles away. Eight earthquake stations with recording equipment have been set up by the National Research Council to measure the tremors.

PRESSURE FLOW

Once the initial rush of water is spent, the lake level will rise at a small pace, about a foot an hour for 12 hours, then slowing to about six inches every hour.

At H-Hour plus 75—about 7 a.m., July 4—the flood will have reached its peak, and 90 feet of water will cover low-lying areas. Shipping will start up again.

"Our big concern is to keep the water going downriver so that we don't lower the level at Montreal, 90 miles away," says Keith Henry, chief water control engineer. "The idea is to let water into the power pool at Iroquois and let it out at the powerhouse and Long Sault control dam, four miles from the powerhouse. We keep some water and then floods the headpond."

Then the flood ends, the new lake—as yet unnamed—will be ready for mapping.

Meanwhile, about 60 Ontario provincial police officers will infiltrate the area, trying to keep a traffic jam from developing as thousands of persons drive to the lookout cliffs, and clearing residents from homes within two miles of the blast.

"Safety is our job," says District Inspector J. W. Reavley. "From the dike, the people will see the blast but not the dam. They'll feel the air shock waves."

BIGGEST BLAST

The explosion will be the biggest single shot in the whole seaway - power project on which 21,500,000 pounds of explosive has been used. "As blasts go, this isn't a big blast," says Ontario Hydro's construction superintendent. George Johnson, who planned the firing program.

He will be in a sandbagged bunker 3,400 feet from the cofferdam with seven other members of them official photographers.

Dr. Otto Holden, Hydro's chief engineer, will trigger the explosion by pushing a button. An electrical charge will set off

Festival Set for Start Of Shakespeare Season

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STRATFORD (CP)—The stage is set, a packed opening house is assured and final dress rehearsals have avowed that all is ready for tonight's opening of the sixth annual Stratford Festival.

The 12-week season, two weeks longer than last year's record-breaker at the box office, opens with Shakespeare's Henry IV, Part One. Already 36 per cent of the performances are sold out, a higher percentage for the same time last season, when an overall $563,000 was paid for tickets.

The second play, Much Ado About Nothing, opens Tuesday evening and the festival's third Shakespearean production, The Winter's Tale, starts Monday, July 21.

The festival also includes a music season which, besides concerts of jazz and serious music, is to see Stratford's first large-scale opera production the Beggar's Opera in the Frederick Austin version. Its first presentation is Tuesday, July 29.

Other attractions include performances of French classics by Montreal's Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde now touring Europe, and an international film series.

After a dedication service Sunday, conducted by Anglican, Presbyterian and United Church clergymen, director Michael Langham shot his opening through the final rehearsal of Henry. The last workout for Much Ado was Saturday.

APPLY LAST TOUCHES

As last year, when the company's tent - shaped permanent theatre was inaugurated, workmen were applying last touches to building and grounds during the pre-opening weekend.

Gone forever are the sweltering days of the original canvas tent, the new building having been equipped with air-conditioning equipment during the winter. Except for the copper roof, to be installed next autumn, the building has been completed.

The Arthur Meighen Gardens, adorning the landscaped grounds, achieved final shape Saturday. They are a gift of Col. Maxwell Meighen of Toronto, honoring his father, former prime minister Arthur Meighen, still resident in Toronto.

Drama critics from New York, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Western Ontario, and others from London, England, and as far west as Winnipeg, were arriving Sunday. Also pouring in were the vanguard of 900 official guests who will attend a reception tonight just before Henry begins.

CONCERN OF THE MANY

President-elect Claude T. Bissell of the University of Toronto told about 1,000 Stratford residents and members of the festival company at Sunday's dedication service that this city of 20,000 has demonstrated culture to be the concern of the many, not the preserve of the few.

FAVOUR
WHEN the housewife calls at the grocery store and orders a supply of provisions, she is not asking a favour . . . she is buying goods for which she will pay cash . . . purely a matter of business.
So with your bank. It is a business proposition just as much as the grocery store.
The grocer deals in groceries . . . the banker deals in credit. And, as the making of loans is the principal way by which his bank derives its revenue, he is as anxious to sell his credit as the grocer is to sell his groceries. And, like the grocer, the banker naturally wants to know that he is going to be paid for his goods . . . that his loans will be met when they fall due. That, too, is only good business.
When you have occasion to ask for a loan, look at it this way. Come to the Bank, not feeling that you have to ask a favour, but to offer the manager a sound business proposition which will be of profit to you and to his institution.

So-Ed Holds Convention in Geneva Park

This year's Ontario and Quebec Regional So-Ed Conference was held on June 14, 15 at the National Y.M.C.A. camp, Geneva Park, on the shores of Lake Couchiching.

Seventeen members of the Belleville So-Ed travelled by car to attend, and true to form, some of them got lost passing through Peterborough, but arrived at the camp in time for lunch.

The opening speaker for the conference was Miss Jean Palmer, the executive director of the Toronto Metropolitan Y.M.C.A., who spoke on the "Aims and Purposes of the So-Ed Movement."

Discussion workshops were organized and fruitful battles took place.

The evening finished up with a tremendous social party organized by the Belleville group, who had decorated the hall in which it was held, during the afternoon instead of resting. This event was considered the highlight of the conference and really placed Belleville on the So-Ed map.

The success of this event was due to the organizing and planning by president Jean Vickers, social chairman Colnel Lloyd and Fred Page who called for the square dancing.

Sunday morning devotions were held, followed by more discussion workshops until noon. The summing-up speaker, Mr. Ed. Wyburn, former program secretary of Toronto Central Y, gave a series of constructional criticisms of the conference in general.

The election of officers for National So-Ed for 58', 59' took place and the conference closed on a most satisfactory note.

Albert College Presents Delightful Music Recital

Albert College Conservatory of Music held the second of the annual recitals in Memorial Chapel on Saturday night with the pianos and vocal students of Mr. Egerton Boyce and the piano students of Miss Wade Handley taking part.

The guests were welcomed by Mr. Murray Irwin, a member of the teaching staff of the school, who paid tribute to the teachers who had been working the year round to give the children an appreciation of music that no one could take away from them. Though the pupils might not realize it at the time, sooner or later they would come to understand what they had been taught.

The concert was a delight to the ear and eye with the young pupils looking their well-dressed best and giving a fine performance. The selections were well chosen and given with assurance and good stage presence. The parents and friends who attended had their reward in seeing the end result of a year of practice and instruction, as the children took their turns at the grand piano.

Mr. Boyce accompanied the vocalists who added the variety to the program that rounded it out.

The numbers were:

Piano duet, "The Red Nose Clown" (Dungan), Maribeth and Douglas Wellbanks; piano, "Organ and Lemons" (Folk Song), Diane Slovin; piano, "The Clown on the Tight Rope" (Prizer), Paula Scott; piano, "Allegretto in C" (Diabelli), Nancy Williams; vocal, "Let Us Wish a Gladsome Mind" (arr. by Wilkes), Judy Thompson; piano, "Band on Parade" (Keller), Michael St. Pierre; piano, "The Jolly Roger" (Eckstein), Douglas Wellbanks; piano, "Pop Corn" (Lea), Roy Maddox.

"Why can't you ever go to one sometimes, the way other men do?"

Canadian Nurses Pay Tribute To Their Sisters

OTTAWA (CP) — Under a blue and sunny sky Sunday, Canadian nurses paid tribute to their sisters who served in two world wars.

More than 800 people—predominantly women and most of them nurses—gathered around the National War Memorial for a wreath-placing ceremony, honoring those who served and re-dedicating the services of nurses everywhere.

The service at the rose-bordered war memorial was a preface to the Canadian Nurses Association's week-long convention which opens here today with an expected 2,000 delegates. Prime Minister Diefenbaker will open the conference.

Nearly 4,000 Canadian nurses served during the Second World War and about 2,000 during the First World War.

Three uniformed nursing sisters and a student nurse standing as sentinels beneath the tall memorial brought memories to Gertrude Hallgreen of Ottawa.

Miss Halpenny—a tiny, blue-eyed woman with a bar of service medals and the Royal Red Cross Medal pinned to her blue dress—served as a nursing sister throughout the first war.

Miss Halpenny remembers Ypres where she ministered to troops gassed in that world conflict.

Among the young women standing guard was Corrine Devlin, a final year Hospital—Canada's student from the Mack Training first nurse-training school established in 1874. School for Nurses at St. Catharines

Another big week-end coming up?

Yes, a summer week-end can mean a lot of fun for you and your family. But it means a lot of other things too—many more cars on the highway, many more drivers in a hurry to start their week-end or to get home again. It can also mean many more accidents and more patients for hospital emergency wards.

If you're taking the family away for the week-end in your car, be sensible about it. Watch your speed. Avoid impatience. Drive so that you and your family —and the other drivers you meet on the road—arrive alive. After all, that's what counts.

When you're on the road, always drive at a speed that will enable you to stop in the distance between you and the car ahead. At night, drive at the speed that will enable you to stop within headlight range. If you are tired or inattentive, do not drive at all. Make next week-end a big week-end but make sure you enjoy it properly—not in a hospital bed.

Your Ontario Department of Transport urges you to observe the speed limits—slow down and live.

And suggestions for gifts f o r the groom-to-be to give his attendants: Cuff links. Studs and or stud box. Wallet, stamped with name. Bill clip. Leather travelling clock. Cigaret case or box or lighter. Key ring. Set of military brushes. Tie clip, collar pin, or matching set. Pen and pencil set, or silver or gold pen or pencil, or silver or gold knife, or combination knife-pen-pencil. Belt buckle. Wrist watch. Leather jewelry box. Filled vanity-case. Pocket radio. Camera.

Suggestions concerning these gifts for attendants: 1. These mementos of this so-important occasion should, I advise, be something durable, lasting. (Not, for example, handkerchiefs.)

2. The bride generally gives identical presents to all h e r bridesmaids, and perhaps something different (often in design or size) present, not of the same type, to her honor attendant. The groom gives identical presents to his ushers, and often a somewhat different present to his best man.

3. Many brides and grooms make a point of choosing presents that can be engraved (or marked) with the date of the wedding and or with the initials of the attendant and perhaps also with the initials of the bride and groom.

Angel Pies—Three Variations For Summer Entertaining

by Mary Moore

Note: A considered and courteous request reached me: "Mary I am impatient when you refer back to a previously given recipe. We do not have back copies. If you must refer back to a recipe please give it. Please."

Obviously we do not have the space for this. I try to incorporate the current recipes in the menus given for the same week. So if a recipe rouses your interest clip it then. More than likely I will refer to it in the current week's menus. Okay?

...ato Juice; Baked Fillet of Haddock with Cheese Sauce Topping; Broccoli; Buttered Noodles; Glazed Strawberry Pie with Ice Cream; Coffee.

long pan 9 . x 13 1-2" and 1 pan 7" x 9" greased with shortening or butter. Bake 1 1-4 hours at 375 deg. Fahr. When cool and dry cover with 1-2 pint cream whipped. Over this pour cooled Cream Filling. In top of double boiler combine 3-4 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup sifted flour, 6 egg yolks beaten. Add slowly 3 cups scalded milk, stirring over boiling water until thick. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool. Cover with another 1-2 pint cream whipped. Sprinkle top with 1-2 cup each chopped nuts and cherries. Chill 24 hours. These 2 pans cut into 20 servings. These amounts may be cut in half to serve 10. Delicious.

STRAWBERRY ANGEL PIE

To serve 6 to 10. You need only 1-2 pint heavy cream for this variation. Make half the quantity of meringue given in M. H's Angel Pie (3 whites, 3-4 teaspoon vinegar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, tiny pinch of salt, 3-4 cup sugar) and bake it in a greased 10" glass pie plate, pushing the sides up a little but do not make a high rim. Bake 1-4 hours at 275 deg. Fahr. Cool. Cover with 3-4 cup (1-4 pint) heavy cream whipped. Make half the amount of cream filling above (6 tablerpoons sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 3-4 tablespoons milk, 2 egg yolks, 1 1-2 cups scalded milk, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla). Cool. Fold in 1 cup sliced drained fresh strawberries. Spread carefully with whipped cream. Cover with 5-8 cup (1-4 pint) heavy cream whipped and garnish lavishly with whole luscious strawberries.

LEMON ANGEL PIE

Make and bake amount of meringue and cover with whipped cream, same as for Strawberry Angel Pie; but cover with lemon filling: Beat until thick and lemon-colored 4 egg yolks. Gradually beat in 1-2 cup sugar, 2 tbsp. grated lemon rind. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick. Cool. Cover with remaining whipped cream. Garnish with grated lemon rind and chopped blanched almonds.

The silk print, that perennial warm - weather delight, is available in every projected line from the trapeze to the figure-clinching silhouette. Here it is in a chemise that nods in the direction of the shaped line. The neckline is draped into bow ends that button onto the dress. There is a low - placed half - belt in back. The print comes in tones of blue, pink or orange combinations, their vividness held in check by the precise print motif.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Clive F. — If we join anything, it should be Maureen's church.

Maureen F. — Why not join the group that will be most helpful to us?

Clive F. — My wife and I have been married ten years and have three children. We are of different faiths and neither of us is particularly interested in religion.

We moved to a new community recently and I am setting up a professional practice here. My wife feels we should join my church because it would be beneficial from a social and business point of view. Also she says the children should belong to something.

I don't like joining any church for such a reason. It just g o e s against the grain. I have pretty much repudiated my religion and I don't want to come back as a beggar needing a handout. If we do anything I would rather it be her church.

Maureen F. — My church is a minority group in this community. Besides, it is a minority that don't particularly care to associate with or to have my children involved with. I don't see why life should be made difficult for them because of any connection with a religion they don't really believe in.

Clive doesn't realize that the majority of people who attend church do it for social and business reasons anyway. We would not be the only ones. We are certainly not hurting anyone by doing this.

I want to be both honest and sensible about this thing. All religions are essentially the same in their ethical teachings. Why not join the group that will be most helpful to us?

The Council: We would also like to be honest and sensible about this, but find it a little difficult in the face of so much dishonesty and insensibility.

Clive and Maureen are basically dishonest about facing the fact that their disowning of their religions is not rooted in any sound or valid understanding of what they have renounced.

It appears from both statements that they are both essentially interested in' turning their backs upon their own kind, their own families, their own heritage. Very likely, this was a prime motive in their crossing religious lines in their marriage.

Deprived of their spiritual heritage, Clive and Maureen have become frank materialists a n d make a fetish and God-substitute out of their halved for their own kind.

We don't blame Clive for being ashamed to come as his church as a beggar needing a handout. Unfortunately, he doesn't realize how big a handout he really needs.

As for Maureen, we think she is in no position to judge the motives of others in joining a church. She can understand nothing of the deep and a d feelings of individuals who are less wholeheartedly and evidently materialistic than she.

We can only answer this question with more questions. Are Clive and Maureen really satisfied with themselves as human beings now they have achieved a measure of freedom from the values that nurtured them?

Are they content to pass on to their children their own spiritual starvation and restless craving, to use their fellow creatures only for their own advantage? Do t h e y feel they have a right to deprive their children of knowledge of the spiritual values that are the oldest and deepest heritage we have?

W.I. Hears Address On Children's Aid

IVANHOE — The June meeting of Ivanhoe W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Milnes Shaw recently with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. K. Bray, opened the meeting and presided over the business portion. Mrs. W. Cooney and Mrs. John McInroy reported on the District Annual held at Eldorado June 10.

Mrs. J. B. Hagerman, convener of public relations and community activities, was in charge of the program. Mrs. Barton Haggerty gave a well-prepared paper on the motto, "No one is rich enough to do without a neighbor." Miss Margaret Wright gave a reading and a duet was sung by Mrs. John McInroy and Beverley, Mrs. Milton Shaw played a piano solo.

Mrs. Hagerman introduced the guest speaker, Miss M. Brant, of the Children's Aid Society.

Miss Brant's talk was interesting and instructive and pertained to her duties in that work.

Last Saturday night 6 of us piled into my brother's car and drove 35 miles to Mary and Orval's country home for dinner. We loved doing this for we become good friends in Florida last March and are hopeful it will not be a typical resort friendship. You know the routine: You are fast friends on the beach or on board ship and swear to write and swap visits? Six months later you can't even remember their names!

But not Mary and Orval — they are the kind you lash to your heart with bands of steel — if you are smart.

The dinner she served us was lovely and the recipe for her dessert she graciously gave me. It was an angel pie that would serve 20 if necessary.

HAPPY FAMILY

PEMBROKE — A cheque changed hands at the summer meeting of the Eastern Senior "A" Hockey League meeting here Saturday, and with it Rus Gagnon, former playing coach of the world champion Whitby Dunlops, became officially the 1958-59 playing coach of the Kingston CKLC's.

Gagnon was present at the meeting and wearing a broad smile as the cheque for $1,000 went from Kingston president Reg Walton to the waiting pudgin of Whitby promotor, Wren Blair, was Wally Brabin, former first lieutenant to General Blair and his Whitby Commandos, and now the recently-appointed manager of the Kingston club.

The Kingston trio beamed optimism. President Walsh seemed tickled with his new manager and coach. Brabin looked fondly at Gagnon like a father and his only son, while Bus was definitely optimistic over his chances to loe a strong squad wearing the Kingston colors next season. And don't say you were not told if you see Lou John Henderson standing between Kingston pipes come puck-chasing time.

"I know of at least ten players of senior "A" calibre I can get," Gagnon said, "but our present trouble is employment. We have a good, Boosted Club and everybody is co-operating." Gagnon is going all out to give Kingston a winning club next season.

Brabin was optimistic, too. "The Allan Cup is coming eastward step by step and in rotation." Wally gitsaid. "What it was Whitby and last year it was Belleville. Next year it will be Kingston."

That remark brought laughs of derision from Whitby, Cornwall, and Pembroke representatives. "See who?" asked Dunky Bahaman, newly appointed coach of the Pembroke Lumber Kings who was present with bossman Wally Lemser. "You haven't met the new edition of the Lumber Kings," he said.

Bob Bingley, new playing coach of the Cornwall Chevies, was in town Hay Mirvei's corner, asked his opota. "We've been taking it on the button for some years now," Bob said, "but next year is definitely Cornwall's year. We've practically got the ring in the bag right now even if the new pro rating will hurt our chances."

Wren Blair, attired in a pinkish red sports shirt, opened the book to give his tonsils and vocal cords fuller play, smiled to himself. "We did it before and we can do it again, despite the fact the Dunlops will be sporting a lot of new faces including Pete Babando. But a lot of the old reliable world champs will be around, too. Can't see anything but a second Allan Cup in three years for the Dunnies." Blair was one of the guest speakers at the Pembroke ten-dollar-a-plate dinner Saturday night.

Drury Denyes hinted that the McFarlands' management is making efforts to secure the services of Connie Broden, professional player who starred with the Whitby Dunlops in the world hockey tournament last year.

Bus Gagnon perked up his ears. "You won't be making any mistake," he said. "In my opinion and with due respect to Bobby Attersley and Charlie Burns, Broden was the most effective player we had over there. He is a smart all round player who can score goals and check with the best of them. The Macs would do a lot worse than Connie. He will be a distinct asset to the McFarlands.

The league made a fine gesture of appreciation when it unanimously voted a $200 honorarium to league convenor OHA president Lorne Cook of Kingston, who chaired the meeting. Cheers greeted the news that secretary of the Eastern League for it was spawned in his native district, and he has worked long and hard to bring it to its present status of the most outstanding senior "A" league in the half shaped country. He refused to accept the gift but the club representatives overruled the chair and the motion passed.

The gift was well-deserved. Prexy Cook down through the years was executive member of the Ontario Hockey Association and during his present tenure as its president, has done a man-sized job for the Eastern League in particular as well as hockey in general. He has acted as convener of the loop for many years and has guided it through the country has had better supervision. Besides this, President Cook looks after intermediate and other branches of hockey in this neck of the woods.

While he is impartial to all clubs under his jurisdiction he has a sentimental soft spot for Belleville. For Lorne Cook is an old Belleville boy who worked and played hockey here for a number of years. There was not a prouder man in all Canada when the senior club from his former home town came home with the coveted Allan Cup.

Many times he has journeyed to Belleville on his off nights to see the McFarlands play. He is a strong rooter for the Macs when they are not playing outside teams, for after all Eastern Ontario is his first love.

He is a tireless worker and has passed up his annual vacation for several years in order to devote all his available time to his hockey duties. There is not a harder working nor a more sincere man in the OHA organization than its current president. He has travelled thousands of miles, a lot of them over rough country roads in the performance of his many duties. He is a strong booster for the organization of intermediate "A", "B" and "C" hockey in this part of Ontario, transforming the former Trenton Hockey League from a losing tailspin on the brink, into well-grouped, compact, properly managed organizations. Hockey, in Eastern Ontario especially, owes a big debt of appreciation to OHA prexy Lorne Cook.

Bombers Rout Bengals 15-0 Larsen Chucking a 2-Hitter; Maglie Tomahawks Braves

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when the Detroit pitching staff was to be knighted for safe standing service to the American League race, the Yankees woke up.

After scoring one run in 37 innings against baffling Tiger pitching and losing seven straight to Detroit, the New York club cut loose Sunday with a 16-hit blast in a 15-0 rout.

Don Larsen had a two-hitter for his third shutout and sixth victory. After Billy Martin singled in the second, Larsen retired 16 Tiger batters in succession before Gail Harris singled in the seventh.

The Yankees now lead second-place Chicago Sox by 8½ games. The Athletics topped Boston 2-1 with the help of a game-saving catch by Hector Lopez and a drive by Jackie Jensel. Jack Urban outpitched Tom Brewer in a tight battle.

Cleveland broke out of a four-game losing streak by taking a pair of one-run decisions from Washington, 4-3 and 1-0. Minnie Minoso hit a home run in each game, driving in a second in favor of Jim Grant over Hal Griggs.

SWITCH LAST PLACE

Baltimore climbed out of last place and Washington dropped in when Billy O'Dell shut out Chicago with six hits for his eighth victory.

On Saturday Detroit blasted New York 14-6, Kansas City defeated Boston 8-5 and Chicago, with Billy Pierce allowing only two hits, edged Baltimore 1-0.

The Yanks knocked out Billy Hoeft in the first inning when they scored six and went on another six-run binge in the eighth against Herb Moford and Virgil Valentinetti. Gil McDougald had two doubles and a pair of singles. Tony Kubek three singles and Elston Howard a two-run homer and a double.

At Kansas City, Lopez dashed into right centre to snare Jenson's drive in the eighth with Pete Runnels on third base and the score tied. Lopez' single scored the winning run in the last of the eighth, after Preston Ward and Bob Cerv singled.

WON IN FIFTH

Cleveland came up with three runs in the fifth inning to win the opener for Ray Narleski, his ninth, although Don Mossi finished up. Vic Power and Woody Held drove in the three runs. Minoso's 13th homer of the year in the sixth inning ruined Griggs' four - hit bid in the second game.

O'Dell did a job on the White Sox who had five shutout jobs by their pitching staff in a string of seven games. The Orioles previously twice in the third off Jim Wilson.

Hollywood, Calif. — Charlie (Tombstone) Smith, 146½, Detroit, knocked out, Armando Muniz, 164½, Juarez, Mexico, 2.

Brooklyn, N.Y. — Jose Torres, 164, Puerto Rico, knocked out Joey Salvato, 168, Yonkers, N.Y., 204, Detroit, 6.

Sal Maglie wasn't kidding when he said "I'll show 'em."

The 41-year - old righthander was peeved when New York Yankees shunted him to St. Louis Cardinals June 14 to make room for Virgil Trucks, a mere 39.

When he left the Yankees he told reporters, "I still think I can take a turn . . . I'm peeved, I'll show em."

Freddie Hutchinson, Sal's new boss with the Cardinals, shared Maglie's sentiments. He gave Maglie a starting chance Sunday against Milwaukee Braves and Maglie rewarded with a 2-1 victory over the National League leaders.

The much - travelled Maglie showed signs of weariness in the fifth and seventh innings so Hutchinson sent up Irv Noren to bat for him in the eighth inning. Larry Jackson, a workhorse reliefer on relief and starting, retired the last six Braves in order.

The defeat cut the Braves' lead to 1½ games as San Fran Sisco Giants and second Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 in 14 innings on a homer by Willie Kirkland. The Giants also led their second game 1-0 when it was suspended in the sixth by the 11 p.m. curfew. It will be completed later.

TRIPLE HEAT

As a result of Sunday's action there is practically a triple heat for second place with Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Pittsburgh each 3½ games behind the Braves and separated by only one percentage point.

Cincinnati split with Chicago winning the first on Ed Bailey's grand slam homer 6-2. The Cubs staged a three-run rally in the ninth to take the second game 5-4.

Steve Bilko and Johnny Klippstein, two recently-acquired Los Angeles Dodgers, helped the last-place team win a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 4-3 and 3-2. Klippstein's relief work saved the first game and Bilko's 10th-inning pinch single scored Joe Pignatano from second base for the second decision.

In Saturday's action St. Louis edged Milwaukee 2-1, Pittsburgh defeated Los Angeles 11-7 and Cincinnati downed Chicago 9-3. The San Francisco-Philadelphia contest was rained out.

HELD MILWAUKEE

Maglie held the Braves to five hits in seven innings in a clash with 20-year-old Joey Jay who had shut out St. Louis nine days ago. Two walks by Jay and Ken Boyer's double produced the Cardinal runs in the third.

Willie Mays rejoined the Giants after a hospital check-up but it was Kirkland, just recalled Saturday from Phoenix, who hit the game's first homer Sunday. They up a tight relief battle between Johnny Antonelli and Gary Sprocch. The Giants' score in the curfewed second game came in the fourth when Daryl Spencer's and Mays' single and a bad throw by catcher Stan Lopata.

20-Man Team In Empire Games Rowing Events

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Canada will be represented by a 20-man team in the British Empire Games rowing events, if Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen officials have their way.

Limited to a team of 18, including a coach and manager, by the Canadian British Empire Games Committee, officials announced here Saturday the team would include University of British Columbia eight and fours, a coxswain for the eights; two spares, four scullers, a coach and a manager.

The team, selected after the B.C.-Trials Saturday over the Royal Canadian Henley course, is to leave St. Catharines Saturday for Montreal where it will join other Canadian athletes bound for the Games in Cardiff, Wales, next month.

Frank Read, former UBC coach who acted as team manager, said after Saturday's races that the university crews would refuse to go to Wales unless they are allowed spare men.

Larry Stephen and Jon Pearce of Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club will compete in the double sculls while Tony Biernacki of Ottawa will compete in the singles sculls.

Italian Wins Mille Miglia

BRESCIA, Italy (Reuters) — Luigi Tarnazzo driving an Italian Ferrari Saturday won the Mille Miglia, a revised version of the famous pre-war 1,000-mile road race that was changed because of accidents.

The 1,593-kilometre (988-mile) race was run this year as a regularity test instead of a speed contest. A Ferrari driven by Luigi Villoti was second and a German Porsche driven by Jo Strahle was third.

The Mille Miglia, which until this year was a screaming race from Brescia down to Rome and back again was closed down on the occasion, was changed at government order after 11 persons died last year in the crash of a car driven by Spanish Marquis Alfonso de Portago.

But even though the course was altered to keep the cars at lower speeds — which made the race more of a rally than a speed test — two drivers were killed. Guido Zerlieri and Camille Mora died shortly after the start when their Alfa Romeo crashed into the parapet of a bridge.

Aussie Breaks Mile Record Elliott Clocked in 3.57.9

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Herb Elliott of Australia was run another record - breaking mile race and started another controversy among track officials.

The lanky young miler was clocked in 3:57.9 in winning his specialty at the United States Amateur Athletic Union championships Saturday night, shading the recognized mark of 3:58 set four years ago by his countryman John Landy.

But no one seems to know for certain whether the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which must pass on all world records, recognizes mile marks recorded in tenths of seconds.

It was dealing only in fifths of seconds when Lady set his record four years ago. Landy actually ran 3:57.9, too, but it was recorded as 3:58 because of the IAAF policy.

However, Pincus Sober, chairman of the U.S. AAU track and field committee, expressed confidence Elliott's time would be recognized as a world record.

WON'T APPLY

He said the tenth-second practice was rescinded two years ago and would not apply to Elliott's effort as it did to Landy's four years ago.

"Everything else in the race was in order," Sober said.

Just a month ago Elliott broke one in another meet with Landy only to get tipped up in the IAAF's rule book. His 8 in their Coliseum relays at Los Angeles went for naught as a record because of a last-minute foul in the race turned out to be a pace setter who dropped out after a half mile. The IAAF doesn't recognize records set with pacesetters.

In racing to his third sub-four-minute mile in as many meets here this season, Elliott did it the hard way, coming off a slow three-lap time to run an incredible 54.1 final lap.

Sprinting all the way on the last quarter-mile was a fellow Australian, Merv Lincol, who finished three strides back, time in 3:58.5.

OTHER PLACINGS

Ed Moran of the New York Athletic Club was third, Fourth was Dyrol Burleson, Jr., Walters of the Southern California Striders fifth, and Don Bowden of California, sixth.

All ran a tremendous race, with Bowden clocked in 4:02.6 in sixth place.

Eddie Southern of the University of Arizona was the fastest collected world record in the 440 earlier in the evening. Southern was timed in 45.8 seconds to match the record set two years ago by Jim Lea of the University of Southern California. Just a week ago, however, Glenn Davis of Ohio State ran 45.7 in the U.S. collegiate meet at Berkeley, Calif., and that one is up for approval.

Eastern Loop Virtually Assured Of 6 Teams; Sets Low Salary Limit

Macs Will Play Forty Games Before Leaving for Europe; Weekly Payroll Cut to $1550

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

PEMBROKE — The youngest, healthiest, happiest member of the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" family took steps to consolidate its status at a summer meeting here Saturday.

The Eastern Ontario Senior "A" league, which spawned two Allan Cup winners and a world champion in two years of operation, appears headed for another successful season in 1958-59.

It will play a 10-week 56-game schedule with a definitely sure six-team playoff. It set its weekly payroll at $1,550, and put a definite thumbs-down on bonuses of any kind to players.

Belleville, Kingston, Cornwall, Pembroke and Whitby are definite entries. Ottawa-Hull Canadiens are expected to enter a team of club playing the full schedule, will give its final answer to the loop on July 7th.

The Allan Cup champion McParlands will play a forty-game schedule with the other five clubs prior to going overseas in February. In other words the other five clubs will play five games with one another, Belleville will play eight with each club.

LEAGUE DISCUSSIONS

There were near-hot discussions on several items on the agenda but the three-hour session ended on a happy note with representatives in solid co-operation on all matters boarded and deciding to meet again in Hull August 9 when a tentative schedule will be presented and discussed.

The affable loop players provoked a lengthy discussion with representatives of Kingston, who were from 15 and a spare goal, to eighteen and one. It was agreed that Kingston would carry no more than sixteen players and one goalie but the matter would come up for further discussion at the next meeting. If Kingston can't dress can sign fifteen and one.

There will be no player will affiliate with other clubs, till they get out of the group. It was agreed that the Pembroke Hull Canadiens affiliation rights because of the purported decision to operate both junior "A" and senior "A" clubs next season if possible.

Sam Pollock, Ottawa mentor, said his club had moved lock, stock and barrel to Hull. He said he wanted and intended if possible to enter a full-time club in the Eastern senior league, but would play under the auspices of the Quebec Amateur Hockey League. His junior "A" club would play exhibition games only, then play for the Memorial Cup.

Manager Drury Denyes of the Belleville McFarlands told the meeting that he was able to play 40 games or more in the season because the McFarlands were flying to Europe for the world tournament and thus would be able to play more games at home. He definitely stated the McFarlands would not play any games or enter into any abbreviated schedule with emphasis on the world tourney.

"Any playing the Macs do will be with clubs of their own league. We owe it to them, and we can get more games in our own group for the necessary conditioning," he said.

REDUCES COSTS

The league took a definite step towards the reduction of operational costs by setting the weekly payroll at $1,550. The original proposal by Tony Whitby, Belle of Whitby was $1,600 but this met with heavy opposition from Ray Miron of Cornwall, who wanted the rate set at $1,500, Kingston's new manager Wally Brabin argued that too drastic a cut would result in a lessening of the calibre of hockey. "We want to ice a good club and the 'no why cut this figure down.

Eventually the clubs agreed to split the difference and the figure $1,550 became official.

The clubs unanimously agreed to the elimination of bonuses of any description to players, but as Sam Pollock pointed out "if a fan wants to give a player a present, let him do it." The motion which embraced the salary limit clause for "the weekly payroll not to exceed $1,550 not including the bench, coach, manager, trainer. There will be, no bonuses paid players for sighing, no incentive bonuses or increases if pay if the club reaches the playoffs."

The league agreed to use the penalty time limit infringement as embodied in a rule being drawn up by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The warmest lengthiest discussion of the session was that on the division of the loop's pool receipts. Eventually this reached a satisfactory conclusion which included a modest bonus to teams taking part in world hockey or Olympics play to the extent of $200 if it plays forty or more games in the league schedule or $100 if it plays less.

The original motion by Belleville called for $150 straight bonus but Whitby seconded it to read both past and future clubs. Cornwall's amendment the amended version which above carried. Under this agreement Whitby receives $100 from the four clubs of last year's league. Sam Pollock said while his Junior Canadiens did not participate in the pool, he, too, would grant the $100 to Whitby.

Ted Kroll Knocks on Victory Door

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — It has been two years since Ted Kroll reaped the biggest payoff in the history of golf but the compact little veteran from Sarasota, Fla. is back knocking on the victory door again.

Going into today's final round of the $40,000 Flint open—one of the richest events on the professional circuit — Kroll carried a two - stroke lead. And Tommy Bolt, the 1958 Flint unsexed in Sunday's third round, said he was glad to be out of the lead for the first time in six competitive rounds.

"Let him find out how it feels up there in that No. 1 spot," said Bolt, who led all the way through last week's United States Open before skidding through this event.

Kroll fired a blazing three-under - par 69 in Sunday's third round for a total of 211 — two stroke better than Bolt and Jack Fleck of Rochester, Mich.

Toronto's Al Balding was 11 strokes back in the money at 5-over 218 total of 72. He carded a 75 Sunday. Jay Lenard of Vancouver had a 77 for a 266 total, barely qualifying for today's championship round.

Harness Racing

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Bob Norton, owned and driven by Frank McMurdo of Oshawa, was the final heat of the free-for-all and the harness race meet here Saturday afternoon as started in the first dash.

Jimmy Wayne of Peterborough also had a first in the 2.30 pace with Bonnie Hanover and Bonnie Hanover from Hagerville, Ont., driven by Ken Thompson, won the mile invitation trot in 2.04 3-4, a track record. Second Adam from Oshawa was third.

Thompson drove another Hagersville entry, Red Sails H., to victory in the 2 pace.

Lusty McKinney from Owen Sound was the winner in a fiveing event. Lusty McKinney, with Vic Lutma at the reins, stepped the mile in 2:14 3-4.

Mile D paces were won by Mr. Bobby Hanley from Renfrew. Shadydale Meribel from Smiths Falls and June Chips II from Walkerton.

Richmond Trims Wings for Pair; Royals Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weak have arisen and the strong-arm boys of the International League today were casting anxious glances rearward.

Whether the second division incumbents like Richmond Virginians, Miami Marlins and Buffalo Bisons can continue making threatening gestures remains to be seen.

But the Virginians now have a six-game winning streak going for them, having polished off Rochester Red Wings twice Sunday, 9-4 and 5-1.

Miami, which had its four-game winning streak snapped by Montreal Royals in the first game of a doubleheader, 3-1, bounced back in the nightcap for a 3-1 triumph.

And Buffalo, way down in the depths of the league (15th going for them, having polished off second place Toronto) managed as even break with Columbus Jets, taking the first game 3-1, and pulling up a struggle before dropping a 3-1 decision in the nightcap.

The scheduled Toronto-Havana doubleheader was rained out.

SIX IN FIRST

The Virginians rushed across six runs in the first inning of the first game against Rochester (four on Rance Plaas' grandslam homer) and that was all Richmond needed, although starter Ed Dick required aid from Willard Hershberger in the third.

Second baseman Roy Smalley drove in three runs and Virginia reliever with the bases filled in the seventh inning of the second game to end Jets' 11-1 victory string. Bob Wiesler the triumph.

Max Surkont was relief to Miami pitcher Don Cardwell for all its runs in the eighth inning of the opener on a wild pitch, a sacrifice, a double and two singles.

Bolt, the Royals never a chance to move into first place when they dropped the second game, Satchel Paige getting credit for three hits in his five-inning stint and Chuck Kress, newly arrived from the Philadelphia Phillies, got two singles that led to the win.

Glenn Cox, one-time Columbus pitcher, held his old mates to seven hits as he picked up his sixth triumph for Buffalo in the first game. Bison catcher Ray Hathaway had 4-for-4 and knocked in all the runs.

Jim Pendelton broke up the second game in the final inning with a single that scored Bill Onuska from second base. The latter had singled and moved to second when Bill Causion walked. Reliever Luis Arroyo, appearing in his 38th game, picked up credit with the triumph.

Ottawa-Hull Havana defeated Toronto 5-2. Miami downed Montreal 7-4, Columbus beat Buffalo 5-3 and Richmond's game at Richmond was postponed by rain.

Althea Gibson Says She Will Beat Truman

WIMBLEDON England (AP)—"Make no mistake," said Althea Gibson of New York, "I will win the next time I play Christine Truman. That's all I've got to say. I shall win."

Miss Gibson was giving a post-mortem on her match that lined up for the world's biggest tennis show—the 72nd Wimbledon championship opening today.

The 1957 Wimbledon women's champion appeared completely unshaken by her Wightman Cup defeat Friday at the hands of the gangling Miss Truman, who at 17 is Britain's brightest hope.

"You may say," she said, "that my confidence is pretty good."

Miss Gibson is seeded No. 1, Miss Truman No. 2. If seedings follow form they'll meet in the finals July 5.

Today's opening program consisted of 64 men's singles matches.

Australia's Ashley Cooper, favorite for the men's title, had the honor of opening the tournament on the ivy-clad centre court.

Unbeaten Pointers Win 8 in Row With 6-2 Victory Over Cobourg

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Point Anne Cementmen solved "Sleepy" Dawe's slants for three first-frame runs in Cobourg on Saturday night and went on from there to defeat the Cobourg Merchants 6-2 in a well played Belleville and District softball league fixture.

The victory, Point Anne's eighth in as many starts, practically clinched first place.

Cobourg in the runner - up spot have a six-won, four-lost record with six games left to play, only one against the Cementmen.

Point Anne plated their three in the first frame a big crowd while Cobourg came back with one in their half of the second. The clubs traded single runs in the sixth while the winners wrapped it up with a pair in the seventh.

Tempers became a little frayed as the clubs battled desperately for the important victory. Al Cashore, Point Anne manager was warned for tagging a base runner too hard in the fourth inning while shortstop Doug Hull was ejected from the game by plate umpire Jack Hunter for using profane language in the ninth.

Carkner hurled an effective pitching for the ninth victory of the season. He scattered seven hits over the route and fanned 5 batsmen while only twice, in the first and third frames. He did not entirely out a batter by walking three. The Merchants were hoisting on surrounding errors against Al's fastball.

Jim "Sleepy" Dawe suffered his second setback at the hands of the loop leaders this season in also going the distance. He gave up eight hits including two tossing hitless ball from the first to the sixth. Dawe struck out five Point Anne batters.

Claude Carr, first batter in the game, looped a fouble down the infield and took third on an error on the same play. He raced home on a perfect throw from the first run and John Batchelor-Jones—the third Batchelor-Jones Dawe drove in the second and third markers with a single to left fielder Dave Jones down the side out.

A triple by Pete Boncardo and an error plus Carey's fielder's choice gave Cobourg their first run. Neither side could do much with Dawe's and Carkner's slants until the sixth. Dawe Jones made it 4-1 with a solo home run drive to deep left field off the mound. Dawe got that one back for his club with a stand-up double, a wild pitch by Carkner and Jim Hart's long fly ball.

Cementmen added their two insurance markers in the ninth when Ed Jones was safe on a walk to Wardhaugh and a fielder's choice by Dave Jones at the bats with two out. Johnny Batchelor drove both runners across the plate with a long single to centre field. Cobourg used Campbell, Dawe, Jones, Jim Hitsman in the ninth and Bevan singled but died on second base following Dawe's grounder.

Clean-up batter John Batchelor topped the five-point Point Anne attack with two singles, while Dave Jones homered and singled, driving in five runs between them. Claude Carr doubled and singled while Chuck Carkner had a double and single.

Pete Boncardo with a triple and single and Dick Turpin with two singles were best hitting cause. Dawe, Bevan, Hart, Jagger while Burke Clarey and Jack Bevan had the other base knocks.

Racial Friction Comes From Knowledge Lack

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Jackie Robinson, who broke the racial barrier in baseball, when he joined the Montreal Royals International League farm club of the Brooklyn Dodgers, says much race friction between white and Negroes comes from a lack of knowledge of each other.

Negroes need to unify themselves in order to promote greater understanding between the races and provide better opportunities for their own race, he said Sunday.

Principal speaker at a meeting of the Little Rock Urban League, an interracial organization, Robinson noted he found open hostility when he reported to the Dodgers and became the first Negro player in the major leagues.

But after I had been there long enough to get to know the other players and for them to get to know me, it didn't matter whether I was colored or white," he said. "Then it was just whether I could help win the pennant."

Bob Bedard Top Man In Tennis

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian tennis rankings remained unchanged Saturday as Bob Bedard proved he's still top man, winning the Toronto Cricket Club's men's invitation singles championship.

The Sherbrooke, Que., ace who hasn't been beaten by a Canadian since 1954, trimmed Toronto's Don Fontana, rated second behind Bedard, 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 1-6, 8-6, although the scores were no indication of the play.

Bedard and Fontana later teamed to defeat Vancouver's Paul Willey and Montreal's Lorne Main in the doubles final 6-4, 6-3, 9-6. The top-seeded team had little trouble winning from Main and Willey.

The tournament here, billed as a Davis Cup team trial, wound up Saturday with the announcement from Montreal that Bedard, Fontana, Willey and Main, as playing captain, had been selected to the team which will leave Toronto today by plane for Wales. First match is June 27.

The team meets Cuba here July 3-5 in a Davis Cup tie.

Clowns Try Gags on Big Show Girls

They don't try it out on dez in the clown alley of the Clyde Beatty Circus. No, indeed. Not the astute clowns, and almost all of the funsters are astute, with America's largest Big Top, coming to Zwick's Island, Belleville, Friday, June 27, to exhibit at 2 and 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, for these lunchmakers know a more agreeable and conclusive test — that of trying out their gags before the many pretty girls among the 200 performers.

Yes, that's the way the clowns try out their track and ring conceits, and you'll admit it's nice work if you can get it.

There's another angle, and it's no trivial one — publicity as newspaper cameras. The clowns and the pretty girls, especially when they are engaged in tryouts, make great picture copy for the daily journals, for mix them up as you will, clowns and pretty girls spell circus. Now and then the cameramen throw in an elephant for good measure, and, as there are three herds of elephants and seventy star performers, they are never at a loss for picture material. Eddie Dullum, Jimmy Armstrong, Frankie Saluto and other stars among the Merry Andrews are very helpful to the press agents in these matters and the public seem to like these corners so much, too.

NEW YORK (AP) — Calumet Park put another big gold trophy into retirement Saturday when Al Glitter shouted her heels to 11 rivals in the slop and mist at Belmont Park and won the $71,450 Coaching Club American Oaks.

PURCHASE

The truth is that they supplied to the corporation a loan amount of $4,409,898 of which $1,300,000 was paid to hydro-Quebec on the agreement that they would have been forfeited to the profit of hydro-Quebec had the transaction not been finalized.

The rule taken by the founders was not only of $50,000, but was of the order of $4,409,898. The financial position of the corporation is such that it was absolutely impossible for the founders to put any other amount to make what the newspaper in question has called a "market value". In fact, the founders could not negotiate before March 31, 1958, the date when they had acquired, that is to say, 11 months after the public offering.

In addition, all these shares are still in their hands and consequently have not realized no profit. Of the 800,000 shares sold by the underwriting firms to some 8,000 shareholders comprising all classes of people and all types of institutions, a maximum of 17 per cent was the object of subsequent transactions.

The fluctuations they were submitted to and the risks they ran which they acquired were spread over a long period thus excluding all notions of a speculative gain. As we see, the "market coup" of $50,000 is a purely imaginary operation in the mind of those who write it in the above-mentioned paper.

EMPLOYEE OPTIONS

Contrary to what has been said only two of our employees have stock options. Both of these options were fully disclosed in our prospectus. Mr. Albert Dion, Mr. Cross, is a former employee of hydro-Quebec and he has not yet exercised his option on any of the shares. The other optionee was also employed by hydro-Quebec, Messrs. Stuffmann and Tellman have never received such stock options.

Moreover, they have never been employed by hydro-Quebec as they were part of the personnel of Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Co. Due to the conditions of our contract with hydro-Quebec, Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Company and Keystone Transports we were obligated to take over all regularly employed personnel in the gas service of hydro-Quebec and all those employed personnel of the other two companies, Messrs. Cross, Tellman and Stuffmann were a part of that personnel.

NOTHING HIDDEN

Nothing has been hidden of our corporation's organization and transactions. Everything has been done ethically, legally, and in the open. More than a year before the pretended revelations of the Montreal daily newspaper, our corporation had supplied to the public, in its prospectus, all information regarding its financial organization and the sale of its securities.

The prospectus has been widely distributed to the public and the newspapers have abundantly published the information contained therein in Canada as well as in the United States. This prospectus was filed with the Ontario Securities Commission, the provincial electricity board of Quebec, and the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington, D.C. as required by law.

Montreal, June 19, 1958.

The corporation's prospectus dated April 15, 1957, listed a 10, 000 shares option which was good until March 31, 1958, for Kenneth B. Lucas, vice - president of the Minneapolis Gas Company, who became general manager of Quebec Natural Gas.

A 2,000 common share option under the same terms and at the same price of $10 a share was listed for Thomas E. Cross, chief engineer of Montreal Coke Manufacturing Co. who became the corporation's vice - president for engineering and operations, also Carl A. Tellman, president of Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Company became vice-president for production and transportation of the corporation.

Harold A. B. Stuffmann, secretary-treasurer of Montreal Coke occupies the same position with Quebec Natural Gas.

21 PERSONS DIE

At Cumberland, Ont., Bernard Lemieux, 19, was killed and Robert Lalonde, 19, suffered severe head injuries Sunday when their car left Hiverside Drive in Ottawa's south side and crashed into a large tree. Coroner A. Lewis said an inquest has been ordered.

DIES IN FIRE

An elderly man, identified as William John O'Hara, 68, died Sunday night when trapped in his room in a burning Ottawa rooming house, multiple dwelling in Ottawa's lowertown-Byward Market area.

Fellow roomers said he moved into the building about a year ago and was a bachelor.

Some 16 persons were left homeless, several of them elderly pensioners who sub-let upstairs rooms in the four-storey. Two units, 146 and 148 Clarence Street, were swept by the half-hour, two-alarm fire. There was smoke and water damage at adjoining 142 and 144 Clarence.

Firemen said the fire apparently started in a bedroom filled by row and caught on to a shed. Its cause was not known.

A fireman and a woman—35-year-old Mrs. Yvonne Lebrasseur of 148 Clarence—escaped by way carrying down a ladder on his shoulder, both escaped severe injury when they fell to the ground after the fireman slipped. The woman was in hospital treated for cuts and shock. The fireman wrenched his back but returned to fight the blaze when he was freed.

Donald Howell 30, was drowned Sunday when his canoe capsized on Panagapka Lake in newly-opened Eldar Provincial Park 30 miles east of Kirkland Lake.

Police said Howell, Eldar Lake man, on a picnic with his wife, Jean, 28, and four-year-old son, Donald his wife said he was in the capsized some distance from shore. Mrs. Howell said he swam ashore, police said, then turned back toward the canoe to which he held on to cling. He was unable to make it.

DROWNS IN RIDEAU

Ubaldo Frarsccio, 11, of Ottawa was drowned Sunday in the Rideau River while swimming at Ottawa's Brewer Park.

The boy came to Canada from Italy last month to join his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benino Frarsccio. His body was recovered by other swimmers. Their efforts at artificial respiration failed. So did those of a doctor who joined them.

Alfred Alexander Hackett, 52, of Windsor was drowned in Lake St. Clair Sunday when he fell into the water while sitting on the edge of a crowded motorboat. Six other persons with him at the time dived into the water in attempts to save him but all were unsuccessful. The tragedy occurred six miles from shore.

REPORT

Hungarian refugees demonstrating outside headquarters of the Soviet delegation to the United Nations in New York Sunday, tried to crash through police lines and trampled several policemen.

SMASH WINDOWS

The demonstrators smashed three windows in the U.N. Avenue building. Seven policemen and a number of pickets were injured, none seriously. Nine pickets were arrested.

The demonstrators had been marching peacefully and handing out leaflets of the Federation of Former Hungarian Political prisoners before the violence erupted. Several firecrackers were exploded as about 30 of the pickets tried to force their way past police to the building.

It was the second outbreak of violence at the Manhattan building during the weekend. Anti-Soviet pickets broke two windows Saturday and three arrests followed.

Police in Buenos Aires drove off about 200 Hungarians who tried to set fire to the Soviet consulate.

BLESSES FLEET

TORONTO (CP) — More than 300 sailing and motor boats moored in Long Pond, Ont., Sunday, the ninth annual yachtmen's church service. About 500 spectators also gathered on shore to hear Rev. Douglas Wood of the Church of St. Andrews-by-the-Lake bless the fleet.

Power Mowers Not So Harmless After All

CHICAGO — The power lawn mower hadn't actually come into vogue in 1944, so an accident involving one was unusual enough to make news.

One of the first power mower accidents on record involved an army private who came home late in World War II to recuperate from wounds received in three invasions and was wounded by . . . a spoon!

The spoon, hurled by a power lawn mower in his front lawn, penetrated the soldier's leg and had to be removed by an operation.

Since then power lawn mowers have increased in popularity. The number of mower mishaps has increased in direct proportion.

While no national figures are available on the power mower accident problem, the National Safety Council said a study in Georgia showed that:

1. One injury in seven results in some permanent disability.

2. Toes and feet are most often injured.

3. Seven out of 10 persons injured in mower mishaps come in direct contact with the mower. The other three are hurt by objects thrown by the mower.

While the first power mower mishap may have been unusual enough to be news, such accidents today are anything but out-of-the-ordinary.

FREAK ACCIDENTS

In fact, almost every day newspapers carry accounts of mower accidents, among them such serious ones as these:

A Florida woman was killed by a blade that sailed 50 feet from a power mower and through a window pane before striking her.

A little girl was killed when her jugular vein was severed by a piece of metal hurled by a power mower.

But, according to the National Safety Council, power lawn mowers are no more dangerous than any other gadget used around the yard . . . if a few basic rules are observed. For example:

1. Unless you have good artificial light, mow only during daylight.

2. Don't use an electric mower when the grass is wet and slippery.

3. Never allow youngsters or pets near a power mower. Nor should youngsters be allowed to operate one.

4. When starting the engine, move your feet planted in a safe spot. Always be sure of your footing and balance . . . especially when mowing on an incline. On hills and banks, cut sideways, not up and down.

5. Don't refuel the mower while it's running or still hot from use. Always refuel out of doors. Don't forget, either, to store the gasoline in an approved container.

6. Shut off the mower before moving it from one level to another, or when you want to work on its underside. Never leave the mower unattended while it's running.

7. Make sure the area to be mowed is free of sticks, stones, wire or other obstacles.

8. Know how to disengage the clutch and stop the engine quickly.

"Power lawn mowers are a great time-saver . . . as any man of the house will tell you," the Council says. "But they brought with them new hazards users aren't fully equipped to guard against.

"Only if manufacturers and users co-operate can power lawn mower accidents be prevented."

RAWDON

Young Couple Honored by Community

RAWDON — On Tuesday evening a large number of friends from the Burnbrae and Wellmans community along with Rawdon friends, enjoyed a delightful party at the Masonic Temple, Campbellford, in honor of newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter.

Music for dancing was provided by Sherwood Reid and his orchestra.

Mr. Gerald Taylor showed his reel of movie pictures of scenes of Toronto and also the Carnod wedding, while Miss Marlene Carlisle showed her colored pictures of the Carter — Carlisle wedding.

The newlyweds were given seats of honor and Gerald Taylor read an appreciative address. Don Walker presented the newlyweds with a gift of money and a jewel case on behalf of the combined communities of Burnbrae and Wellmans. Several individual gifts from relatives and friends and a novelty gift from the charivari gang were also presented.

Charles and Marion thanked the group for the party and lovely gifts. Refreshments were served and an evening of merriment was enjoyed.

Novice At Helm Of RCMP Launch When 5 Drowned

Skipper Was Untrained, On First Night Patrol

PEPPERLAW, Ont. (CP)—An inquest investigating the worst single tragedy in RCMP history has been told a novice was at the helm of a 14-foot launch that carried five men to their deaths during a night patrol on wind-whipped Lake Simcoe.

The inquest was told Monday that RCMP Const. Glen Farough II, of Brandon, Man., was skipper of the boat on his first night operation and the only training he received was "to steer carefully and take no chances."

The launch capsized the night of June 7. Five RCMP men, all good swimmers, were drowned. Only the body of Cpl. Gordon Smart, 34, of Toronto, has been found. Missing are the bodies of Farough, Const. Morris Melnychuk, 25, of Foam Lake, Sask.; Const. George Hanson, 26, Canonach, Sask.; and Const. David Wilson.

RCMP Cpl. Harold Waldon described Const. Farough's sailing qualifications to the coroner's jury.

The only training he received was from me—to be careful and take no chances.

ASKS IF COMPETENT

Erick Silk, Ontario's assistant deputy attorney - general, asked the corporal if he felt the constable to be an instructor.

"I would say I was; competent. I myself never had any instructions," he replied.

Cpl. Waldon said he did not know whether the drowned men could swim. Only Farough and Hanson could.

It was his first night patrol.

There was no testimony about the purpose of the patrol but it is believed the five men had set out to raid an Indian party at a reserve on Georgina Island, in the southeast corner of the Lake, 45 miles north of Toronto.

Cpl. Waldon said he did not know whether the drowned men had been told of the raid. Only two witnesses are expected to testify.

Today's witnesses were to include Constable Ronald Dodds, who could give their views on procedures during the capsizing described by witnesses Monday.

THREE TESTIFY

Two of the witnesses said they understood the 975-pound load limit for the RCMP launch could be exceeded if the men, their equipment and a 35-horsepower motor.

Lorenzo Big Canoe, an owner of three boats who lives on the reserve, said the launch could be considered the launch to be overloaded with seven men if the headwater the night of the mishap.

Weather forecaster John Knox of Toronto said the wind-driven winds whipped over the lake Wednesday night and Thursday morning waves more than four feet high.

Chemist Douglas Lucas of Toronto said he found no trace of alcohol in the stomach of Const. Smart, Dr. W. B. McClintock, who performed the autopsy, said the cause of death was drowning. The inquest is being held specifically into the death of Cpl. Smart, who was described as a healthy 200-pounder.

Strong Language Used by Tito in Nagy Protest

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Political observers here expressed surprise today at the strong language used Monday in Yugoslavia's protest to Hungary over the execution of former Hungarian premier Imre Nagy.

They noted the implication that Hungary is not master in its own house and said this is the strongest attack made against any Soviet-bloc country in the current two-month rift between Yugoslavia and the Soviet bloc.

Observers said the fact that the Yugoslav government has abandoned its moderate and reserved attitude indicates that it has decided that there is no possibility for a return to the Soviet bloc.

In the note from President Tito's government, handed over Monday in Budapest and published here, Yugoslavia expressed its "profound indignation" to Hungary and rejected Hungarian charges that Yugoslavia had aided the Hungarian revolution.

The note labelled untrue charges against Yugoslavia and said they serve as a heavy blow to relations between the two countries.

Hungary had accused the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest, where Nagy was granted asylum for 18 days after the revolution was crushed, of giving political support to the rebellion.

Bomb Explodes As UN Chief Back From Cairo

BEIRUT (CP) — A bomb exploded within 10 yards of the United Nations headquarters here today as Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold returned from Cairo.

Hammarskjold heard the blast as he entered the headquarters. Apart from smiling briefly at one of his aides, he paid no attention to it.

The bomb caused no casualties, but it shattered windows in the neighborhood. It had been placed in a box outside a British-owned grocery store, closed at the time.

The secretary-general returned here in his bid to settle the seven-week revolt against the government of President Camille Chamoun. He was expected to see Chamoun and other senior Lebanese officials later today and to leave for New York on Wednesday.

There was no indication that Hammarskjold had won any agreement in Cairo from President Nasser of the United Arab Republic on his influence with the Lebanese rebels.

UAR officials said Nasser had reiterated to Hammarskjold his insistence that the Lebanese rebels are entirely an internal crisis.

The UAR officials said Nasser is convinced the secretary-general he was keeping hands off, but this was generally discounted here.

Hundred Die In Fireworks Blasts in Brazil

ROBLIN ACCEPTS CALL TO FORM MANITOBA GOVT.

Campbell Resigns, PC's Will Take Over

WINNIPEG (CP)—Duff Roblin, Manitoba Progressive Conservative leader, has accepted a call to form a new government.

The 41-year-old leader whose party won victory in the June 16 Manitoba general elections, answered the call from Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDiarmid Monday after the resignation of Premier D. L. Campbell and his Liberal-Progressive government.

Mr. Roblin will be sworn into office June 30. In the meantime, he will meet his caucus and rest. He said an early legislature session will be called—mentioned in the fall to implement the essential points of our platform."

The new government has 36 of the 57 seats. The Liberal-Progressives won 19 and the CCF 11. There are two Independent.

LACK MAJORITY

The Conservatives will not have an overall majority in the government. The CCF, which said it will not enter any coalition with either of the major parties, holds the balance of power.

Mr. Campbell resigned at dissolution last April 30: Liberal-Progressives 21, Conservatives 18, CCF 5, Social Credit 1, Independent-Conservative 1, Independent-Liberal-Progressive 1, vacant 2.

Mr. Roblin, who became party leader in 1954 and celebrated his first birthday one day after the election, held a press conference that the makeup of his cabinet will be announced shortly after he officially takes office.

Asked whether he expects an early election, Mr. Roblin said he will depend to some extent on what the other parties do.

Mr. Roblin is the first Progressive Conservative premier since Bracken retired. Mr. Roblin, Robinson, headed the Manitoba government.

3 Armed Men Take $10,000 From Credit Co.

MONTREAL (CP) — Three armed men Monday held up an all-night employees' credit union) and escaped in a car with an estimated $10,000 police said.

Inspector Jack Lee, Defence said the trio entered the bank as the last employees left to "sit down and be quiet."

"One of them jumped over the counter, grabbed the woman cashier and cleaned out the money drawer. The other two came into my office, levelled their guns at me and told me to open the vault.

Dufresne said he took several bags of money from the vault and gave them to the men.

Grandfather in Single-Engine Plane Flies Non-Stop New York to Sicily

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Max Conrad, a 52-year-old grandfather, wound up a storm-plagued, 4,400-mile non-stop flight from New York in his single-engined plane Monday night, tired but triumphant. He said afterwards that he "aroused fears that he had crashed.

"It was a wonderful, but very tiring adventure," said the 52-year-old father of seven children as he clambered out of his little Piper Comanche at Palermo's Boccia di Falco airport.

"I was caught in a tempest over the Balearics (islands off the coast of Spain) and had to fly only 100 yards above the sea. I also ran into heavy storms in the mountains between Sardinia and Sicily."

Conrad completed the marathon hop — his 40th and longest light-plane flight over the Atlantic — in four stages, 40 minutes. He brought his little plane down through a heavy overcast at 7:35 p.m. EDT, 1:35 a.m. Tuesday Sicily elapsed time beat his own predicted time of 15 hours by 12 minutes.

In San Francisco, his son, Perry, 15, one of 10 children, said yesterday: "Gee whiz, Dad, I've got the word."

"He made it, did he? That's just routine for pop."

Asked if his mother was worried, Perry said:

"Oh, sure, but then mom always worries."

A small crowd that gathered at the airport to welcome Conrad stepped back as officials inspected and carried him off the field.

He has spanned the Atlantic 39 times in light planes.

Guthrie's Magic Is Missed As Stratford Festival Opens

STRATFORD (CP) — Shakespeare has returned to Stratford clothed in the Canadian Festival Company's now-traditional opulence. But the Tyrone Guthrie touch that spun out the original magic is sorely lacking.

An uneven production of the Bard's Henry IV, Part One, sallow in taking off the ground that it was airborne only in the final battle scenes, opened the festival's sixth annual season Monday night.

Much Ado About Nothing follows tonight as the second offering of the repertory season. The third, The Winter's Tale, starts Monday, June 30. More than one-quarter of the performances scheduled during the 12-week season have been sold out.

Critics from Canada, the United States and Britain were divided over virtually every aspect of Monday night's presentation except costuming, the acting and the staging of the battle scenes. That division, indicating appreciation of production, characterization, delivery, pacing and emphasis, perhaps more than anything else, is the season's success.

Critical differences among the reviewers seem only to have helped Stratford's box office by sending patrons in to see for themselves.

Guthrie, who established the Stratford pattern six years ago with imaginative interpretations of Shakespeare as he found them, took away with him when he departed two years ago the sure, authoritative touch that had made Stratford productions uplifting experiences.

Michael Langham's patchy direction last year, when the critics first divided over the Canadian Stratford, seemed Monday night to have settled in for good. The evening dragged through a first act that lasted an hour and 50 minutes. Bared little before during the first two years, it was roused to life in the third only through battle scenes developed in the program by Langham, but by actor Douglas Campbell who literally stole the show on the evening's Sir John Falstaff.

Langham, in the apparent belief that Shakespeare didn't know how to begin a play, actually cut the first 40 lines during the [illegible] and of necessity from Shakespeare's earlier Richard II. That is a "compensation" in an attempt to justify the ingenuity of Henry's throne. It served only to delay the start.

But in the materials of the theatre — the costumes, properties and settings — Langham's touch is magic and the lighting effects. Stratford produces, as usual, in the grand style.

Canada's Embassy in Moscow Gets Two Extra Red Guards

"MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government stationed two additional militia men in front of the Canadian Embassy today, but it seemed unlikely that a demonstration was in the offing in retaliation for the attack on the Russian Embassy in Ottawa.

Nor was there any indication that the U.S. Embassy would be the target of a Russian crowd, as was the West German Embassy on Monday and the Danish Embassy on Friday.

Both embassies have attacked Soviet embassies in Copenhagen, Oslo, Ottawa and New York with stones and ink in protest against the execution of Imre Nagy and other leaders of the 1956 Hungarian revolution.

Only the Canadian and Bonn incidents have been reported by the Soviet press and radio, but observers was unlikely that any demonstration against the Canadian or American embassies would follow without first setting the stage by publicizing the cause for retaliation.

The extra guards brought the total outside the Canadian Embassy to four. Their presence aroused some surprise, since no [illegible] car extra guards had arrived at the Danish and West German buildings a few hours in advance of the demonstrators.

A Canadian official said they had not asked for the extra protection.

TARIFF POLICIES HOTLY DEBATED IN COMMONS

Liberals Claim Budget Protective

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal J. W. Pickersgill and Progressive Conservative J. M. Macdonnell don't agree on the tariff aspects of Finance Minister Fleming's budget.

Mr. Pickersgill said Monday during the Commons debate on the budget that in Mr. Fleming took "the first faltering steps" toward protectionism.

Mr. Macdonnell, minister without portfolio, said it wasn't clear, from the full picture, where there was any net rise in tariffs at all as a result of changes announced in the budget.

Mr. Pickersgill, MP for Bonavista-Twillingate and former immigration minister, said Mr. Fleming showed "a back-to-Bennett psychology."

But while R. B. Bennett, Conservative prime minister in 1930-35, had been "boastful" of his higher tariffs policy, Mr. Fleming had been "furtive" suggesting he wasn't really raising them.

"PRIME EXAMPLE"

The prime example of this was the new 7½ per cent tax on the anti-dumping law announced by Mr. Fleming. It would base [illegible] on the domestic value of production of an import plus reasonable profit.

Existing dumping duties are applied to imports only if they affect prices of the same being the going rate in the exporting country.

"This is, of course, of all protective devices the most drastic, financial entity in his opposition [illegible] were so minor that even the most convinced free trader" could find it said he was concerned about them.

They amounted only to a "simplification and modification" of regulations. They had all been presented to the Canadian people in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which had passed package." The Conservatives had always supported GATT.

Referring to increases in tariffs on [illegible] of cloth, he said on a whole they were "extremely small and badly needed."

"MOST FANTASTIC"

Mr. Pickersgill said the woolcloth tariff hasn't been "in many ways the most fantastic" aspect of the budget.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker had given the impression in a speech Monday that to afford a large amount of Canada's imports from the U.S. to the U.K. Yet now we put a tariff on this "classic" import [illegible].

"Small or large, the symbolic significance of this is tremendous." It was the first definite step toward protectionism, and if Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to do away with it, "there will be longer strides to follow."

RCAF Pilot Likes Russian Craft But Prefers British-Built Comet

OTTAWA (CP) — Flight Lieutenant W. B. (Bill) Carss says he thinks the Russian TU-104 jetliner is a fine aircraft, but he prefers the RCAF British-built Comets he flies on Trans-Canada.

Carss has just completed a round trip between Iceland and Copenhagen on a goodwill flight that was on display at the British Columbia centennial air show the past three days at Vancouver.

Asked whether he found any signs of an iron curtain aboard the plane during his week with the Russian crew, he replied: "I sure wouldn't say so."

Despite language difficulties, he and members of the 13-man Russian crew managed to get well, he said.

"We thought they were darn good," he said in an interview on his return from Iceland, where he left the Russians, who were bound for Moscow.

The other RCAF members: Sqdn. Ldr. William Kerelluk, navigation officer; Flying Officer Ivor, and FO Richard T. Brown of Burnaby and Vancouver, also accompanied the Russians on the trip.

Carss, a native of Kamsack, Sask., normally flies one of two Comets used by 412 Air Transport Squadron, based at Uplands airport here.

The 31-year-old pilot helped the Russian crew on radio communications with airports and other piloting details during the trip. He had a stint at the controls of the TU-104 during the Saskatoon-Ottawa leg of the return flight.

Canada's Jobless Total Dropped 150,000 In May

212,000 More Working, Close to 1957 Figure

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's unemployment dropped by 150,000 and employment rose by 212,000 in the month preceding May 24, the federal government reported today.

The spring job pickup cut the workless list to 395,000 from 556,000, though it still remained well over the 194,000 of May, 1957.

For the week ended May 24, the bureau of statistics also estimated the number of persons with jobs at 5,665,000, up from 5,453,000 in the month and close to the 5,687,000 of a year earlier.

The labor department, in a joint release with the bureau, said its registrations for jobs with National Employment Service at May 24 totalled 381,852. This compared with 825,259 at April 17 and with 309,016 in May of last year.

The registrations do not indicate absolute unemployment. The bureau's estimates are based on a representative sample survey of 30,000 households.

The unemployment figures are down from a post-war record of 590,000 in March.

The federal government service registrations were down for all regions and for each of the 4 commercial and industrial department.

WORKERS TOP 6,000,000

The labor force showed a slight increase during the month, passing the six million mark for the first time. It went to 6,031,000 from 5,969,000. This compared with 5,881,000 a year ago.

Most of the gain in employment was in agriculture, where [illegible] industries with agriculture accounting for less than one-quarter, 22,000 of the unemployed increase [illegible] construction were reported in all areas.

Non-farm employment rose to 4,986,000 from 4,767,000 in the month, with personal service [illegible] jobs increased to 733,000 from 687,000.

In addition to persons without jobs, the bureau estimated that the number of persons "without" was 19,000. This was a drop from 22,000 last month compared with 12,000 in May, 1957.

LARGEST IN FIVE YEARS

The increase in employment between March and May, the government reported, was the largest for the period in more than five years. It was most marked in the Atlantic and Prairie provinces. The upswing in agriculture was about normal.

[illegible] REGIONS

The decline in the unemployment list was greater than usual, normal in all regions, the government said.

Overall, the number with jobs rose by 50,000 to 498,000 in the Atlantic provinces; by 41,000 to 1,570,000 in Quebec; by 41,000 to 2,093,000 in Ontario; by 46,000 to 1,020,000 in the Prairies, and by 14,000 to 471,000 in British Columbia.

The figures for the employment service registrations by regions, with the previous month's figures and those of May, 1957, respectively, in brackets:

Quebec, 109,630 (139,630 — 185,029 (128,981 —101,737); Prairies, 30,416 (114,-(114,813 —81,301); B.C. 74,315 (90,303—27,585).

BC Takes Over Ferries to Block Seamen's Strike

VICTORIA (CP) — In an unprecedented move, the British Columbia government today took over Black Ball Ferries Limited to prevent a strike and to maintain a sea link between Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland.

The decision, made under the provincial Civil Defence Act, was announced at 12:01 a.m. PDT (3:01 a.m. EDT), 24 hours before workers were to strike for more pay.

Both union and management supported the move and said they will continue operating the vessels until agreement is reached.

If Black Ball had stopped operations, the island would have been isolated by water. The Canadian Pacific Railway's coast service was struck five weeks ago.

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — A 43-year-old American Indian woman was been to death with an axe Monday. A young girl, adopted by the slain woman after the girl's father was killed in prison for killing his wife, was severely wounded.

RCMP arrested a 43- year -old Indian laborer and charged him with murder.

The body of Eliza Alexander of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, was found in a cabin early today about a mile east of this interior British Columbia community.

Mary Agnes Swanson, 12, adopted daughter of the dead woman, was brought to hospital here in serious condition after apparently being beaten about the head.

Audit Report Shows Issuer Short $50,000

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says an auditor's report received Monday at Queen's Park showed a shortage of $50,000 in the books of an issuer of motor vehicles licences in Toronto.

The deficiencies were found in the books of H. A. Innes Douglas, the Star quotes officials of the department as saying.

Douglas was arrested two weeks ago on charges involving $4,000. At that time officials said an investigation had begun.

The paper says the investigation is likely to spread to other issuers of motor vehicle licences.

Trade Deficit Cut to Third In Five Months

OTTAWA (CP)—A big spurt in imports and a sharp drop in exports shaved Canada's trade deficit to $108,700,000 in May from $168,700,000 a year ago.

The total deficit for the first two months of 1958 now stands at $173,600,000, just one-third the $514,200,000 in January-May last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

May's exports reversed a declining trend in earlier months, rising to $484,400,000 from $445,-400,000 last year and reducing the five-month total to $1,952,300,000 from $1,936,400,000.

Imports continued the earlier decline, dropping in May to $486,-100,000 from $554,100,000 last year and cutting the January-May total to $2,126,500,000 from $2,450,-600,000.

CITY and DISTRICT NEWS

COUNCIL MEMBERS PLEDGE $1,455, NOT ALL CONTACTED

Members of Belleville city council have dug into their pockets to provide a big boost towards sending the Belleville McFarlands senior hockey team to Prague in quest of the world championship title.

Alderman Jack Ireland, chairman of the Macs' Overseas Fund noted at last night's council meeting that when the two of the council members still to be contacted the total of contribution or pledges was $1455.

Ald. Ireland heads up the fund with five of the McFarlands Boosters Club members also included on the committee.

The tag day of last weekend, the initial venture to raise funds to help send the Macs to Europe netted just over $1,000 in contributions.

SPLENDID CATCH OF LAKE TROUT

One of the best catches of lake trout to be recorded this season came out of Lake Loughborough near Sydenham, on Sunday last. Mr. Giles Lacelle of Parkdale, along with George Cooper, journeyed to the lake early in the morning and were back at three o'clock in the afternoon with, eight lake trout, the smallest one tipping the scales near the five-pound mark.

Mr. Lacelle stated the fish were hitting hard and everyone of them put up a strong fight before they were boated. He did not state the nature of bait used or on what part of the lake the party was fishing.

Plaque to Honor Memory of Sir Gilbert Parker

On June 27th, commencing at 2.30 p.m., ceremonies connected with the unveiling of a plaque in honor of Sir Gilbert Parker, will take place in the village of Camden East in the county of Lennox and Addington.

This plaque is one of a series being erected throughout the province to commemorate persons, places and events of historical significance. The body responsible for that program is the Archaeologist and Historic Sites Board of Ontario which functions under the jurisdiction of the Department of Travel and Publicity. The Board is composed of nine private citizens vitally concerned with the promotion of an interest in local history. During 1956-57 some sixty plaques were unveiled and it is hoped that a similar number will be put up this year.

The plaque is being sponsored by the Camden East Women's Institute whose president, Mrs. Allan Carroll, will speak on its behalf. It is hoped that Lt.-Col. G. P. Jarvis, Royal Military College will represent the Historic Sites Board. Other persons who have been invited to take part in the ceremony include Mr. David J. Rankin, M.P.P. (Frontenac-Addington); Mr. Nelson Kennedy, reeve of Camden East; Mrs. James Hegerty, Provincial President of the Women's Institutes; the Rev. R. Bloom, Rural Dean; Rev. John Weese and the Rev. Father E. Agnew. The plaque will be unveiled by Mrs. Robert Lewis and Mrs. William Dunn who are charter members of the Women's Institute. The chairman for the program will be the Rev. Canon F. George Wakelin.

Sir Gilbert Parker was one of the best known of Canada's novelists. He is particularly noted for his romances of early days in French Canada of which "Seats of the Mighty" is an outstanding example.

He was born on November 23, 1862, at Camden East where his father kept a store and served as a Justice of the Peace. Gilbert Parker was, from the time of his earliest youth, a fluent speaker and, for a short period after he left school, a lay preacher and deacon at St. Thomas' Church in Belleville.

3 of 21 Recommendations Passed by Full Committee Again Discussed in Council

Belleville city councillors wound up municipal business for the first half of the year at last night's meeting which was the last before the summer recess.

Barring one or possibly two special meetings expected in July, there will be no more regular meetings until September.

Last night's meeting was the first regular session under the new arrangement to dispense with discussion on all committee recommendation with the exception of those for which amendments are offered.

Three of 21 recommendations approved at last week's committee meeting were questioned at last night's regular session when they came up for ratification. Two of them were referred back for further consideration and the other under discussion was allowed to go through.

Council referred back the committee recommendation calling for $4,000 to be transferred from the parking meter fund to police department account to cover the cost of time spent by police officers engaged in collecting revenue from and maintaining parking meters.

Ald. Ralph Graham claimed the recommendation was ill-advised as under the municipal act regulation allowing the setting up of a parking meter fund was no provision for such costs to be held out. He asked further investigation.

On the other hand Ald. Les Diglow, sponsor of the recommendation, declared it was only reasonable that the parking fund should pay all costs of the fund, while Ald. Doug Moxam voiced the same views.

TOO STRICT CLAIM

Another recommendation deferred was the proposed amendment to the zoning by-law, which would allow a physician or dentist to practice from the home in a single family dwelling in a Class "A" residential area, providing not more than one physician or dentist practises from such office.

Alderman William Ellis objected to the recommendation on the ground that it was unnecessarily strict claiming that it ruled out the possibility of a father and son operating a joint physician's office.

In support of the recommendation Ald. Digby pointed out the by-law was the same as that of Kitchener and that of many other Ontario centres.

Alderman Graham left the recommendation was too confining stating there should be no objection to any physician or dentist operating from the same office.

The recommendation was referred back by a 9-6 margin on a recorded vote.

Third recommendation coming up for discussion was that concerning the removal of trees on the city lot turned over to the Belleville Parks Board, this work to be done under supervision of the city engineer and commissioner of works.

Alderman Doug Moxam objected to the recommendation but indicated he would go along with it providing Mr. O'Brien, currently looking after trees in the city would be taken on as a parks board employee.

Ald. Digby noted that Mr. O'Brien had his own business and would not wish to be a member of the parks board staff while this also would cause objection on the part of the board.

MOTION RATIFIED

The reason for the parks board wishing to take over tree control was that it would provide more full time work for parks board employees. Parks superintendent Gordon Nicholls has said by Ald. Digby to be a qualified arborist.

Council voted against deletion of the recommendation and it accordingly by saw ratification along with the balance of the motions passed in committee.

Gas pipe line installation again came up for discussion with Alderman Robert Temple wanting to know when the installation would be completed on the West Hill and also when str. etc. would be returned to normal.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said he expected the work on the West Hill would be finished in about two weeks and indicated the gas company would not be allowed to start on the East Hill until the West Hill was completed.

Destruction of tree roots along North Front Street by the gas company was referred to again by Alderman Don Whalen who noted that undoubtedly the trees would die. "What is going to pay the cost of replacing the trees?" he asked.

City manager Denyes noted the gas company had undertaken to have those tree roots intread of cutting them. He said the trees in front of residences were now being considered.

Ald. Ralph Graham asked what the policy was of the city public works doing private work for private citizens pointing that it had come to his attention that a private driveway had been paved by the works department

WASH DOWN TO BASIN

City Manager Denyes noted this had been done because stone in the driveway was washing down to the city catch basin.

City Engineer Turnbull said the normal policy was for residents to do the work to do private work as the city was not in business. "Unless it is some special case we do not do private work," he said.

The work in question had been done at cost, plus 20 per cent overhead charge.

Ald. J. McFarland Company of Picton was awarded the contract for surface treatment of city streets at a price per square yard of $19.

Ald. Moxam wanted to know what the policy was for replacement of streets torn up by the gas company.

City Engineer Turnbull told him the contract called for the streets to be replaced "as good or better" than they were and as far as he was concerned this would be carried out.

The J. McFarland Company of Picton was awarded the contract for surface treatment of city streets at a price per square yard of $19. This had been the lowest of four tenders received, according to City Manager Denyes.

Butcher and Grocery Store Operators Want Monday Off

Local butcher and grocery store operators want an all day Monday holiday-but a delegation of owners armed with a petition containing names of all to pass the necessary closing by-law last night went away from City Hall empty handed, request immediately granted.

The delegation was primed to have the signatures of the necessary 75 per cent of the meat and grocery store operators in securing the Monday closing, but council was not completely satisfied and the matter was referred to the next council meeting in order that all probably will be a special meeting held during the summer recess.

Spokesman butcher store operator John Black was the spokesman for the delegation.

When the by-law came up for discussion Ald. Ralph Graham noted that it was unusual for such a petition and the by-law to be before council on the same night. Questioning the urgency of the matter he asked that the matter be deferred.

Mayor Gerald Hyde noted that according to regulation such a petition and by-law could be presented to the council for consideration first being heard in committee. If the necessary 75 per cent of signatures were on the petition council was obliged to pass the by-law within 14 days, he said.

Ald. Doug Moxam questioned whether the several restaurants which also sell a limited quantity of groceries such as bread and milk were included.

He was told by City Solicitor H. A. Pringle that in such cases the important part of the business could be operated but selling meat could not be conducted by the by-law if passed.

The petition carried 15 signatures of grocery and meat store operators in the city, or just under 75 per cent.

However, there was some question as to whether Loblaws and the A&P Stores could be included as signing the petition. Management of the two chain stores noted it was against company policy to sign local petition although the manager of one of those stores did sign the petition.

Alderman Graham's amendment to defer the by-law was defeated and in turn when City Clerk Mrs. Anne Haggerty said the hall may had come to verify all signatures and when city manager Drury Denyes said he would advise passing the by-law, the Monday closing by-law was then brought down.

In doing so, however, council-is agreed that on being satisfied that the petition of 75 per cent signed they would have no alternative but to pass the by-law.

LIBERAL FORTUNES STILL EBBING

The state of the fortunes of the Liberal party is strikingly illustrated by the results of the recent provincial election in Manitoba.

After sole or shared control of the government of the province since 1915, the Liberal-Progressives must have known that the time was overdue for a change. With the recent nation-wide demonstration of the rising tide of the fortunes of the Progressive Conservatives, and with a young and vigorous leader in Duff Roblin, the victory of that party at the polls occasioned no great surprise. What is startling is the fact that, while the Conservatives were more than doubling their seats in the Legislature, the CCF was practically duplicating the feat. The PC's recorded a gain of 100 per cent plus two seats, the CCF 100 per cent plus one seat. True all these gains were not made at the expense of the Liberals -- Socred and Labor-Progressive representations in the legislature were wiped out and the number of independents reduced from four to one - - but there was evident a strong swing away from the Liberals. Those who had hoped that the CCF might follow the Social Credit party into oblivion will find small cause for comfort in these results. Some may even interpret it to mean that the Liberals are fighting for their political lives, but this can hardly be accepted by any realistic observer.

Though they now have majorities in only two provinces, the Liberals are not without fair prospects. Their fortunes are now so low that they are certain to rebound.

There are four provinces where the party in power has been in the saddle so long that changes in the next few years will not be surprising. In two of these, Quebec and Ontario, the Liberals would appear to be certain to be the choice of the voters if they decide to change the governments. The outlook in one other province, Saskatchewan, is not so clear. Here the Liberals have taken it for granted for many years that they would eventually crush the CCF, but the results of the last Federal election suggest that when the tide turns it may sweep the Conservatives to power. In the fourth province, Alberta, the Conservatives look like the best bet and the next election there will be particularly interesting because it will reveal whether the decline in Socred fortunes in the federal field is to be matched in provincial politics.

YOUNG CYCLISTS CAN BE CARELESS

A couple of mornings ago a young boy and a girl were seen riding bicycles east on Bridge Street East. When they arrived at the traffic signals at Front Street the two cyclists pulled up alongside a car that had its turn indicator signalling to the right. There was no more than half a foot between the right side door of the car and the cyclists. In fact, it appeared as if the boy thought he had pulled in too close to the auto because he tried to move his bike closer to the sidewalk.

The driver of the car rolled down a window and said to the boy: "That's a good way to get hurt, sonny."

And that was a good way for the lad to get hurt, too. Fortunately, though, the driver had seen him before making the right hand turn onto Front Street on a red light.

That was not the first time cyclists have been observed doing that kind of stunt. And it is not surprising that the majority of children riding bicycles who pull up alongside a car are of public school age. They have not yet developed an awareness of the traffic rules.

Anyone riding a bicycle, regardless of age, should be familiar with traffic rules. Those who through ignorance of any other reason ignore common sense are riding for a serious fall.

We suggest that parents and school teachers remind children that the same rules apply when riding a bicycle as apply when an adult is operating a motor vehicle. There are no trivial rules of the road for cyclists.

UNEMPLOYMENT CREATES JOBS

Even unemployment can sometimes create jobs. The normal number of employees at the local National Employment Office is 14. At the present time, owing to the larger than usual number of applicants for insurance benefits, 31 are employed. (Charlottetown Guardian.)

WHAT HE DIDN'T KNOW

I talked about how much he knew
And bragged of his powers of observation;
He smiled in an hour or two
The gravest problems of the nation.
But there were things he didn't know.
For while he sat and aired his views
His wife was wondering where to go
For money for the children's shoes.

He didn't see the patches on
The little fellow's pants and coat—
Those things he keen, observing son,
Had somehow sadly failed to note.
To hear him talk, a lot he knew;
But he'd a wife who lived in woe
And missed the joys that were her due,
And that he didn't seem to know.

Lurid Light on Red Horror

New York Times

One again a bolt of lightning has struck Eastern Europe to shatter the night and cast a lurid light on the whole horror, savagery and perfidy of the Communist system of slavery and bondage. This time it is the announcement of the secret "trial" and execution of former Premier Imre Nagy, Defence Minister Maleter and two of their journalistic supporters, the men who led the anti-Soviet revolution in Hungary in 1956 and were then, like the revolution itself, betrayed into the hands of their murderers.

Their brutal slaughter, which overshadows the fate of five other revolutionary leaders, including Hungary's first postwar President Zoltan Tildy, who were sentenced to long prison terms, has sent a wave of horror, revulsion and abhorrence throughout the civilized world. This reaction, which again documents the isolation of the regimes the Communist from the civilized world, in finding spontaneous expression in all quarters, even in those most favorably disposed toward the Communists, and even in such neutral countries as India and Indonesia.

Few free men will shed tears for the plain men and opportunists who became victims of their own inhuman doctrine. But all free men will honor and mourn them as patriots and martyrs who in a time of crisis rose above their doctrine in defence of their country's freedom and independence from a barbarous alien rule. And the free nations, particularly the people of the United Nations, to which Hungary appealed in its despairing cry for help, cannot escape a sense of shame for having been unable to help.

Imre Nagy and his companions in death are not, of course, the only victims of the Hungarian revolution. Many thousands of his hundreds were executed before them, and tens of thousands more have had to escape to freedom were deported to Russia. But what the mass murder of Nagy and his associates is unable to convey to the human mind is made comprehensible by the personal tragedy of the individual leaders. Nagy, a Communist politician deeply loyal at least because of the circumstances surrounding it.

Thus Imre Nagy, swept into power by the spontaneous anti-Soviet uprising of the Hungarian people, sought to reach an amicable agreement with the Soviets for the withdrawal of their troops and the liberation of his country. When that was frustrated by Soviet treachery he sought refuge in the Yugoslav Embassy but left it under a safe-conduct negotiated by it, only to find that the Soviets regarded his safe-conduct as merely another worthless scrap of paper which did not prevent his immediate arrest.

Similarly, General Maleter, lured by a reversal into the Red Army headquarters to negotiate for the withdrawal of the Soviet troops, never returned from that conference.

But the implications of the latest bludgeon-execution go far beyond the fate of the individuals involved, even of Hungary. It is significant that the first announcement of the execution-murders should have been made, which may be taken as proof that they were ordered by Moscow. This raises many questions as to why Moscow decided to spurn world opinion at this time after trying so hard to court it, and what further dire efforts may follow.

Secretary Dulles sees in the execution a reversion to the brutal and terroristic methods of the Stalin era, which would be a victory of the Stalinists in the continuing power struggle in the Kremlin. It would be in line with the new conflict deliberately precipitated by the Kremlin with Marshal Tito, to whom the executions are a special blow, because that chief is in violation of his pledged assurances to the Soviet Union, as also a warning to all would-be Titoists in Eastern Europe, especially Premier Gomulka in Poland, to toe the new Kremlin line.

Finally, as already indicated by Premier Khrushchev's latest note, Moscow is out to intensify the burial of the Soviet dirty deeds, if they are always, which Stalinists never wanted. On that issue may hinge the fate of Premier Khrushchev himself.

Varied Ages Of Creativity

Montgomery Advertiser

An Ohio university psychologist, Dr. Harvey C. Lehman, has published the productive peak of mathematicians and even poets to determine when genius gets its greatest impetus.

The answer varies with the profession. According to Dr. Lehman in his book, Age and Achievement mathematicians reach the height of past his prime at 34, a surgeon at 39, a composer at 34, a physician at 39, a painter at 33.

The peaks of some professions are much broader than others. For example, the surgeon and the astronomer can expect nine years of maximum creativity, from 30 to 39. The novelist, however, has a shorter time, 35 to 40, but can expect only four years of top performance.

Poetry, of all is the poet's lot. At 26, he's arrived; at 31, he's had it.

Conspicuously missing from the account we've seen of Dr. Lehman's conclusions on the short happy life of genius is any reference to psychologists' theories why they go on creating (for example, theories about creativity in other professions) forever.

Strength for The Day

OUT OF DARKNESS — LIGHT

The Nutcracker Suite by Tchaikovsky has long been a favorite of music lovers. Few people, however, realize that this glorious music had its origin in circumstances which were sad and depressing. Tchaikovsky's sister died about the time she composer began these charming pieces. Also, Tchaikovsky was most reluctant to write a ballet. This great St. Petersburg Opera commissioned him to write a ballet. This great musician put off starting work as long as he could. His efforts seemed to be without that spark of necessity. He was saddened by a personal sense of frustration, and apparently retarded in his creative efforts by an unaccountable lethargy.

But what were the results of these efforts to which he had to drive himself? The phonograph record of the Nutcracker Suite are said to be among the most popular. Their sale is enormous. Everybody enjoys its music. It is gay, inspiring, full of qualities that feed the soul, stimulate, and fill one with a happy sense of well-being.

Very often, like Tchaikovsky, we do our best work under the lash of necessity. We get up some morning feeling blue and discouraged. The tasks of the day appear overwhelming and impossible. Look back over your life, however, and you will see that some of your most happy hours a n d some of your proudest achievements grew out of just such days and such circumstances.

Its our outlets that help so much to keep us alive and interested. Just like the rivers in nature, they must have their outlets to keep away damaging floods. The child must have his outlets, too, in order that his restless energy s;ystem be appeased.

Each one of us human beings must have outlets in the shape of hobbies or special occupations of some sort. Franklin Roosevelt found in an outlet the collecting of postage stamps. Many Englishmen find in golf an outlet for their business man, must have these outlets in order to be kept interested and interesting. President Eisenhower, as all the world knows, has as his great outlet the playing of golf. A n d Winston Churchill creates happy hours with his paints and brushes.

Sunday Laws In England

By Critic in the New Statesman

I felt very guilty last Sunday afternoon. Unlike Mr. Macmillan, I'm not hardened to lawbreaking. And how many people were breaking the law at the same time? Just over the hedge in my village team was engaged not in archery (permitted on Sundays by Henry VIII for military reasons) but in playing cricket and opponents from another village were all certainly lawbreakers.

The fact is true, took a blind leap into paganism with the Sunday Entertainments Act, 1932, by throwing open museums—but only so long as they were "reasonably" open.

A "botanical garden", presumably, can lawfully be thrown open at irregular intervals. The 1932 Act even allows the Home Secretary to decree where's a local demand for them, that Sunday is to pay for its sins by a fine of £5 for each offence. Dancing is not one of the "sins" for encouraging crime, are required to hand over quite a lot charged.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

BARBITUATES ARE DRUGS THAT ARE LIABLE TO PRODUCE ADDICTION

"Dear Dr. Molnr: Would you write something about barbiturates? I have a neighbor, a good woman, who takes barbiturates regularly every night to sleep. The neighbors say she 'takes dope'. Are barbiturates dope? She is a sickly woman. She says she has heart trouble and takes medicine and high blood pressure tablets. What do you say? — C. M."

I'd guess that your neighbor not only has some physical problems but also is a worried woman who relies on sleeping tablets to give her relief from whatever problems are worrying her.

When you ask whether barbiturates are "dope" you are giving me a question that is hard to answer. Let me reply this way: The World Health Organization, which has a committee on drug addiction, officially says that barbiturates should be considered drugs liable to produce addiction." It does not, you notice, say that these drugs will cause addiction.

These drugs, unlike the opium derivatives which so invariably cause addiction, can be safely trusted. They must be watched — because sometimes they do — and sometimes they don't.

That, indeed, is a problem which right now is troubling the various state legislatures. You can't say they always will be careful. Neither can you, after any stretch of the imagination, assume that they will not be.

Many people — and here I refer to those who are under the steady care of a doctor who governs the amount to be taken, and also is carefully on the watch for any danger signs — use barbiturates for medicinal purposes without the slightest fear of addiction.

In short, some people become addicted to phenobarbital or to these drugs that they become, by definition, "addicts." Others do not.

CARE SHOULD BE EXERCISED

They are useful drugs. So, of course, are morphine, codeine and others that cause addiction if they are used other than with the greatest care.

Therefore, to answer a question that you didn't ask, I do not agree with the notion that barbiturates should be so strict, as to prescription, that a doctor has to write a special report every time he prescribes one.

On the other hand, I most positively would not prescribe these drugs to be sold as freely as, say, aspirin, vitamin tablets (much of which I suppose the misuse of laxatives), or such.

Mere use of barbiturates by no means indicates that a person has become addicted. But use is present for some, and the best rule is to be cautious. Any continued use of barbiturates — and I think this is a valid rule for any medicine — the patient should look for the reason for which continued use is required. Because barbiturates have never cured anybody of anything. They are a temporary expedient, and that's the best you can say for them. Useful at times, but never a permanent answer to anything.

"Dear Dr. Molner: There has been a discussion in our home about the nutritional value of fruit vs frozen orange juice. We don't use the total quantity every day. I contend that the left-over juice (refrigerated and used the next day) loses some of its vitamin content. Am I right? — Mrs. E. J."

The experts tell me that frozen juice starts out with very high vitamin content. Once mixed for use, it starts to lose its Vitamin C content, and this content is one of the first things to go.

Tested tips for all types of diabetics are given in my booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease". To receive your copy, write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a large, self-addressed stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the enormous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

They Converse By Whistling

Salvation Army "War Cry"

Conversation by whistling between their fingers would feel at home in La Gomera, one of the Canary Islands. The people there speak Spanish, but they also have a whistling language which enables them to converse with each other at great distances. They use a modified form of speech, says the Unesco Courier published by the United Nations.

Shaped like a tent, the island of La Gomera is a volcanic cone rising from the ocean sun down to the coast like the spokes of a wheel. For this reason it may take an hour to travel between two points only 500 yards from each other, and the islanders have therefore developed this whistling language called Silbo.

Two whistler generally puts a couple of fingers or a bent knuckle into his mouth but he modulates the sounds with his tongue in such a way that can be said in Spanish. And not to work so well with English.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the club car last week three doctors returning from a convention had a couple of other fellow passengers grouped around them.

"If you had one single piece of advice to give," asked one, "to a man who is tired, what would it be?"

"Never stay afraid," answered the physician promptly, "for one instant longer than is necessary. Fear is the most corroding of all human emotions. It has been my experience that fear is at the bottom of more human ailments than microbes or germs."

"How do you escape it?" we asked.

"Step out of it," replied the old man. "If a woman is being followed, for example, she must not run with fear, all she has to do is scream. A scream is the healthiest thing in the world. Be never afraid of your job, go and talk about it to the boss. If you think you are tired of you, don't sulk: have it out with her. If you are afraid of money, go and talk to a doctor tonight, not tomorrow. If you are afraid of a person, look him in the nose, right now. Get it over with. What most of us don't stay afraid of just an instant longer than you have to. The most terrible thing in the world is to be afraid of your fear, take a look at it, and toss it away."

The three old doctors seemed to feel better, as we did, when the old gentleman smiled at us, refilled his pipe and lit it, with lean freckled hands that had not even a ghost of a tremble.

Brand New Village Being Recreated Near Morrisburg To Preserve Storied Past

By ROBERT RICE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)—A tall, brand-new village of century-old buildings complete with cobwebs is being recreated on this Seaway Valley town to preserve the soon-to-be-submerged past.

Like Dabbled Faith, the historic river region around here is to be engulfed when a four-day flood creates a new man-made lake in July for the $600,000,000 seaway power project near Cornwall, Ont.

The spectacular flood, triggered by an explosion of a river dyke July 1, will drown the ghosts of the past, washing away the bloody battlefield of Crysler's Farm where invading Americans were defeated in November, 1813.

SUNKEN HISTORY

It will flow over 16 cemeteries with graves of two centuries ago. It will cover the last remains of dozens villages along the 35-mile riverfront, abandoned by 6,500 persons who were forced with their homes to higher ground.

A million-dollar tourist business will rise from the waters of the new lash.

Among its shores between Canada and the United States, the new lake promises a jackpot for Seaway Valley. The flood will attract 150,000 people during its four days, and 3,000,000 more will give visitors lots to see and do.

"The flood creates a fabulous tourist playground," said Paul Crouch of Massena, N.Y., mayor of Massena.

Not all are infected with optimism for the future. As president of St. Lawrence Valley Association, he predicts at least 3,000,000 tourists will visit the area annually.

They'll be able to see Upper Canada Village, reconstructed with Loyalist homes, barns, churches, taverns and shops between the new lake working canal and lock. They can watch the Iroquois Point hydro cascade through two control dams and into the 2,200,000 Ontario Hydro-New York state power dam. They'll see in 1959 ships from the seven seas sail through the locks and canals of the new St. Lawrence Seaway into the Great Lakes.

CAREFULLY PLANNED

There will be room for bike, bass and muskies. Picnic spots are being built. New beaches have been carved on the main and awaiting the flood. A causeway links islands that will exist after the flood creeps up the shore and fills the lake.

On Canadian side of the river, Upper Canada Village will fill all the buildings that are at least 100 years old, moved to the site from their original locations.

There's the red-brick Cook's Tavern, built between 1800 and 1810 and headquarters of the American invasion force under Gen. James Wilkinson during the Battle of Crysler's Farm. And the stately home of John Philip Crysler, son of Col. John Crysler who took part in the famous battle during the war of 1812. There's Louck's Shed, a wooden barn-like building where court cases were once held.

The village has been laid out to look like a typical early Canadian community, down to the last detail.

Furniture and household goods were collected from attics for miles around to fill the homes.

On the waterfront, a canal has been dug with a working lock similar to the early navigation structures and a boateau will take visitors through the lock and along the canal.

To the west is the monument erected to mark the Crysler battle, moved from its original site to the new location. It will stand at the end of a mall, a permanent marker of an historic battle at which Canadians defeated an overwhelming force heading toward Montreal for a full-scale attack.

There'll also be a pioneer cemetery, made of bricks and stones from demolished early Loyalist buildings, with headstones from the flood-threatened cemeteries placed right in the walls.

"We should be ready by the time the seaway opens in 1959," said George Tyndal of the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Corporation, a provincial crown company established in 1952.

"When the Loyalists settled here they got long strips extending back from the river. No land was reserved for the public. The big upheaval caused by the flood gives us an opportunity to obtain land for the enjoyment of all."

SET TO CELEBRATE

The park will stretch for 12 miles to Cornwall, a city of 41,000 people out for their biggest-ever party during the July flood.

"We call them I-Days," said Dr. J. A. Phillips, a Cornwall dentist who heads Mayor L. G. Lavigne's citizen's committee for the celebrations. "That stands for Inundation Days."

He said the city, Ontario's 16th largest, will mark the flood with sports events, parades, a jet flypast, power-boat races, fishing derby, street dancing and a gala Governor's Ball. Premier Leslie Frost, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Ontario's Lieut.-Gov. Kellar Mackay will attend.

"We've got wooden nickels for souvenirs, but they'll be worth more in Cornwall in 1 - Day time," Dr. Phillips said.

Once the river plug is blasted away early July 1, the public will be admitted to the flood area, because the water will inch up so slowly even a baby could crawl away in time.

They'll see beaches high and dry, with fresh sand laid ready for the rising waters to reach. They'll be able to watch the water creep under bridges built more than a year ago on dry land. They'll watch some islands vanish and new ones appear.

"Yes sir," said Mayor Lavigne, "It'll be some show. And we're going all-out to make it the greatest celebration in the history of Cornwall."

What Critics Said About Henry IV

STRATFORD (CP) — What the critics said about the Stratford Festival's opening presentation of Henry IV, Part One:

Walter O'Hearn (Montreal Star)—It was given a lively production, which also suffers from diffuseness . . . it becomes a showcase for contrasting styles. Most of the players, Canadian and British, play in a traditional manner. Robards is a brilliant Hotspur but he is that phenomenon, a method boy at large on the Avon.

Thomas Archer (Montreal Gazette) — Campbell's Falstaff is likely to set a pattern in Canadian theatre—it is a glorious bit of work. Mr. Langham has naturally staged the play as a colorful spectacle . . .

Jean Bernard (Montreal La Presse)—Stratford confirms itself once again as Canada's theatrical capital . . . The rythms and pace of the play are rapid, each scene constitutes an animated and magnificently illumined spectacle.

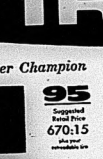
John Gardiner (Windsor Star) —Honors of the evening went indisputably to a magnificent and witty portrayal of Falstaff. Robards did an excellent job of Hotspur and from a decided American accent, Douglas Rain was a bit thin as Hal in the opening scenes, but became more robust and convincing as the play advanced.

J. Burke Martin (London Free Press)—This was among the more memorable of Stratford productions. Robards has an acting style and voice akin to Stratford and not in keeping with those of the sporting players. Players will be taking sides during the next 12 weeks on whether the magic of extra dimension we have come to expect at Stratford are still there.

Arnold Edinborough (Kingston Whig-Standard) — The standard of acting was a courtesy than any true measure of the performance. For the first night was dull and for the first two acts, very slow. When the battle scenes swirled into life in the last two or three scenes the play did pick up, but to them the audience was quiet, the actors straining and the atmosphere heavy.

Remp Thompson (Kitchener-Waterloo Record) — The festival company succeeded, in a brilliant clashing finale, in bringing life again to its festival theatre. It wasn't always obvious that this was going to happen. At times in this long, sprawling production there seemed more than a chance that this heretofore successful Canadian accomplishment might dish itself by an egg.

"Jest a Second"



"Well, if YOU aren't interested in how it comes out, I AM"

Frank Morriss (Winnipeg Free Press)—It is a proud, brave and exciting play that is waving the banner of Shakespeare at Stratford. The festival got away to a gallant start and a packed audience gave it a royal reception . . . The purists found some cause for alarm in the alterations. But Mr. Langham was out for a purpose and he achieved that purpose. He wanted sweep, fervor, high comedy and the spiritual regeneration of a young man. He got them.

Marcella Brews (Sarnia Observer)—Robards was more in the Broadway than the Stratford tradition. The straightforward delivery of his lines was arresting, however, and intelligible—which is not true of the more stagey mouthing of speeches in the cases of some of the other actors.

Herbert Whittaker (Toronto Globe and Mail, and New York Herald-Tribune)—A blazing, brutal clash of arms gives the festival a staggering climax to a production. Under the generalship of Michael Langham, who has a master-in-arms in Douglas Campbell, and an able lieutenant in Douglas McCowan, the Stratford actors again do battle in the cause of discipline right of kings, and do fight most splendidly, vigorously and intelligently . . . It is a production in the full Stratford tradition, except that it takes longer to get off the ground.

Robert Dettmer (Chicago American)—Deeper and confirmed were a source of deserving awe, and Douglas Campbell's battle sequences, for the climactic clash at Shrewsbury, had a scary desperation about them. There were performance to admire, though none that left me much bolder with a memory of marshlute, or even virtuosity. The first pitball was an impression rather than a rousing, theatrical experience, watched remotely by the spectator.

Council Told Catherine St. Bus Route Not Paying Way

Warning that foreing the Rawson Bus Company to continue an unprofitable route on the West Hill could well result in the city getting itself into the transportation business when the present bus contract expires, was made to city council Monday evening.

Referring to criticism heard last week of the bus company changing its Catherine Street route to continue down Yeomans and Moira Streets, while gas pipe lines were being laid, Mayor Gerald Hyde said he had been presented with figures by the bus company manager showing that the Catherine St. route just did not pay.

He noted that the bus management had not wanted to continue the Parker-Catherine St. route but had done so on request of council and as result had just managed to show a small profit.

On the other hand had the extra bus been running on the Yeomans-Moira St. route a much healthier profit picture would have resulted as was shown by passenger counts.

Since the Catherine St. bus had been resumed last last week a petition signed by 308 riders had been received by the mayor asking continuance of the 15-minute service on West Moira St.

"My feeling is that we are making a horrible mistake to force a private company to continue an unprofitable route," Mayor Hyde said. "We must weigh the need against the cost."

Alderman Doug Moxam who two weeks ago voiced the original criticism of the bus company suddenly changing its Catherine St. bus route, said he could see the Catherine Street route not being operated but claimed that without the Parker route a large section of the West Hill would be without bus service.

He couldn't see the necessity of a 15-minute service on West Bridge St. with Highland Ave. and Parker Street going without bus service of any kind.

A short program was given with Mr. Harvey Putman as chairman. Everyone joined in community singing followed by a piano duet by Misses Carolyn and Marlene Mitchell. Humorous readings were given by Mrs. Ross Pound, Mrs. C. Bird, Mrs. C. Bird and Mrs. G. Brenton. The Rev. Mr. McCrea spoke briefly.

On Sunday a most pleasant day was spent at the home of Mrs. Orval Boyd, 31 North Park street, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Janet Brown, who was celebrating her birthday.

Great was Mrs. Brown's surprise when her family arrived to attend the special church service with her at College Hill United Church.

Following the church service, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd held open house, entertained at a birthday dinner. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Brown; Miss Ella Brown; Mr. and Mrs. M. Finnigan, of Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McConnaus, of Stella, Amherst Island.

This was also the occasion of her eldest daughter,'s wedding anniversary.

A birthday luncheon was served later and included a beautiful birthday cake to mark the occasion.

Mrs. Brown was the happy recipient of numerous congratulatory cards, lovely gifts, and best wishes from her family for many more happy days such as this.

Girl of Fifteen Looking After Family of Five

JORDAN, Ont. (CP)—Life for a 15-year-old girl in this Niagara fruit town is solely the problem of how to keep a family of five fed, clothed and housed on $34 a week.

Jacoba van Wey should be at school, having fun and following the normal pattern of most other girls her age, but since the death of her mother in a car accident last year she has assumed the responsibilities few adults are called on to face.

In spite of misfortune, poverty and the task of caring for two brothers, sister and father, she prefers to stay in Canada rather than return to the Netherlands where relatives in her native Holland could provide.

For five years Jacoba van Wey was a successful farmer. This ended shortly with the death of his wife. He lost the farm and jobs since then have been scarce.

TOOK CONTROL

Jacoba left school and took control to keep the family united. They still have a house but $24 a week unemployment assistance money between five works out at less than $5 a week for each person. They've been living on hamburgers and potatoes, and washing in cold water.

Jacoba starts her day by splitting wood, preparing breakfast and sending her nine and 11-year-old brothers and 14-year-old sister off to school. Then she goes looking for fruit-picking jobs, returning to care for the family at night.

In 10 weeks the unemployment insurance money runs out. Before Mr. Wey can get relief he must sell his car but this is impossible as the old jalopy is needed for fruit-picking jobs.

Jacoba doesn't doubt that he'll find work. She said hopefully: "If Dad gets a job maybe we can buy some meat this week."

NO SURRENDER

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Housewife Mrs. Julia Hardy said she would go to jail rather than pay $10 fine for allowing storm water from her home to flow into a sanitary sewer, Municipal officials then withdrew the charge against her and 20 others.

WEDDINGS

DONOHUE — LANGEVIN

TWEED — A lovely wedding ceremony in St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed, on Saturday, May 24th, united in marriage Frances Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Langevin, R.R. 1, Tweed, to Eugene Donohue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Donohue, of Newburgh. Rev. J. J. Shannon celebrated the Nuptial Mass, while Raymond Kearns and Francis Keenes were altar boys.

Sister Joan of Arc presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fergus Cassidy, of Stoco, who sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Ave Maria."

Basket and vases of tulips were tastefully arranged on the altar, and at the front of the church for the occasion.

The dark-haired bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully gowned in a floor-length Elizabethan creation of fine petite point lace over tulle, with Sweetheart neckline, long, pointed sleeves, and a bouffant skirt. The bouffant skirt was shirred along the hemline to the deeper tulle underskirt. Her stiffened lace pill-box headdress was showered with sequins and pearls, which fell in a circular fingertip veil of silk illusion. A dainty necklace of pearls completed the all-white picture. She carried a semi-cascade of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Langevin, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Miss Monica Murphy, of Stoco, and Miss Doreen Donohue, sister of the bridegroom, were similarly fashioned gowns of white, embossed organdy with taffeta underskirts. Their large picture hats of stiffened chiffon were in shades matching the cummerbunds. The maid of honor was in white and aqua; the bridesmaids in lilac and white, and yellow and white. Their bouquets of mums exactly matched the colors in their dresses and hats. The ensemble was finished with round necklines, tight bodices and fingertip veils, and the contrasting cummerbunds were caught at the back into a large sloping bow, while the long gauntlets matched the contrasting shades of their ensemble.

Little Miss Margaret McCrea, flower girl, was in a dainty knee length frock of white organza with white satin cummerbund and sash. Her headdress was white feathered carnations and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink, yellow and lilac tinted 'mums, following the color scheme of the bridesmaids' gowns.

Mr. Benny Sutton acted as groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Patrick Langevin, brother of the bride, and Gordon Hughes.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, west of Tweed when over 100 guests were received by the bride's mother who was gowned in navy lace over navy taffeta accessories, and white carnation corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in powder blue lace, while accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

The tables and dining rooms of the Langevin home were colorful with pink and white streamers and baskets of tulips and lilacs.

For the wedding trip to Montreal, Quebec City and Ste. Anne de Beaupre, the bride chose a light blue suit, black accessories, white hat and pink feather-ed carnation corsage. On their return they took up residence in Tweed.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Rochester, Kingston, Belleville, Sudbury, Agincourt, Desoronto, Mattawa, Napanee, Stoco, Newburgh and Toronto.

FERGUSON — SEELEY

Pink and white gladioli, and white chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely background to the double and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, on Saturday, June 7th, at 2:30 p.m. for a pretty wedding, when the Reverend Sackville Ballmer, pastor of the church, united in marriage Audrey Eileen Seeley, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Seeley, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Seeley, to David Allen Ferguson, of Kingston, Ontario, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferguson.

Mr. Wilbur Leonard, church organist rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. James McKay, in his rendition of "The Lord's Prayer," before the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Lawrence Seeley, of Renfrew, was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white nylon marquisette lace and tulle fashioned with fitted bodice in sweetheart neckline, long lace sleeves lily-pointed over the wrists. She wore a Grace Kelly headdress and finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a white Bible crested with red roses, and rosebud knotted white, satin streamers.

Mrs. Lawrence Seeley, of Renfrew, nee of the bride, as matron-of-honor, was attired in pale blue, featuring a fitted, long-sleeved bodice with matching headdress, and bouffant skirt in ballerina-length.

Miss Janet Seeley of Renfrew, as bridesmaid, also niece of the bride, was in pink, in similar fashioned similarly to that of the matron-of-honor, but having short sleeves. She wore a matching headdress. Both attendants carried bouquets of pink and white mums.

Mr. Harvey Ferguson, of Kingston, attended his brother, while Messrs Murray Seeley, brother of the bride, Shannonville and James Breen of St. Catharines, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the wedding dinner was held at the Kiwanis Centre, bridegroom, bride's mother received, wearing blue crepe with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table was appointed beneath cascading pink and white streamers and white wedding bell with, white damask, centred by a three-tier, all-white wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and clouded about the base with white tulle, and the bridal bouquets.

For motoring around Lake Ontario, the bride donned a pale blue ensemble with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson are residing at 365 Victoria Avenue, Belleville, Ontario.

Guests were present from St. Catharines, Renfrew, Kingston, Shannonville and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by the girls of the Northern Electric Company, at the home of Mrs. James Hultquist, also at another by the congregational ladies of the Alliance Tabernacle, held at the home of Mrs. M. Baragar, Gotavia Street.

BUTLER — AVERY

Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely June wedding on Saturday, 31st, at 2.00 p.m. when Jacqueline Florence Avery, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Avery, became the bride of Edwin Ross Butler, of Scarborough, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Butler. The Reverend C. Ross Cook, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of white gladioli, interspersed with colored peonies, and ferns, in the double-ceremony.

Clifford Templer, church organist, provided the wedding music which included "Our Heavenly Father," during the signing of the register.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. John F. Avery, wore her mother's wedding gown of eggshell colored lace over satin fashioned in floor-length princess style, with matching lace jacket and Victorian collar. She wore a seed pearl-studded headdress with finger-tip veil of nylon net, and carried a sheaf of red roses mingled with lily-of-the valley, tied with white satin streamers.

She was attended by Miss Margaret Church, of Teeswater, Ont., as maid of honor, and by Misses Margaret Kane, of Belleville, and Mrs. Jean Butler, sister of the groom, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. Both were similarly attired in floor green peau de soie with white cummerbunds, green and white headdresses, and carried white baby chrysanthemum bouquets.

Mr. Robert Butler, of Scarborough, attended his brother, while Mr. Grant Butler, also of Scarborough, and Mr. Robert Avery, of Belleville, brother of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by two branched silver candelabra with tall, white candles. The bride's bouquet, on a pretty nuptial note. A buffet luncheon was served.

More Nurses Leave Canada Than Enter

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of nurses entering Canada still doesn't quite match the numbers leaving, the Canadian Nurses Association's 50th anniversary convention was told Monday.

Pearl Silver, CNA general secretary, said 114 nurses come to Canada each month—but nurses also are leaving at the rate of 116 a month.

"Nurses leaving Canada go chiefly to the United States," Miss Silver said.

In a breakdown of nurses immigrating to Canada — 1,729 in 1957 — the majority cam from Great Britain with 1,383 British nurses listed in Canada last year.

The second largest ethnic group of nurses entering Canada last year—61—came from Germany.

Miss Silver said the CNA, with an increase of 4,230 active members last year to bring the total to 45,446, had its largest membership in Ontario with 14,522—32 per cent of the total membership.

Canadian Nurses Present Pageant of 50-Year History

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifty years and more of nursing in Canada were relived by Monday night in a pure-costard pageant played by 1,000 nurse holders in the capital's Coliseum.

There were songs dances, catches of lullys, laughs and thoughtful scenes as the Canadian Nurses Association presented Cavalcade in White, on the opening night of its week-long 50th anniversary convention.

The CNA business sessions continue today with reports from national committees, a discussion of present and future nursing and a second open-to-the-public performance of the pageant in the evening.

The pageant gave just about everybody a chance to take a whack at relieving Canadian nursing history.

Professionally written and produced, it featured four Toronto radio-television stars, including singer Joyce Sullivan.

But Ottawa amateur theatre, music and ballet personalities were on stage too, along with the Ottawa Boys' Choir, cadets and graduates attending the convention.

Toronto actor Jack Scott was the narrator, introducing historic scenes dipping back to the arrival of Ursuline and Augustinian sisters in Quebec in 1639.

But far from being shock in the public's face, the CNA's presentation also proved up to date with a "first night" for the new state-like brush and dress uniforms to be worn by Indian and northern health service nurses.

Interspersed with songs by Miss Sullivan, the pageant left a glimpse of First World War nurses—in uniform relaxing at a high-kicking cancan show.

Earlier, Rev. Swithun Bowers, director of the school of social work at St. Patrick's College here, urged nurses to make the study of human relations an integral part of nursing education.

Will Evaluate Teaching Plans Nursing Schools

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Nurses' Association has launched a pilot project to evaluate the teaching systems at Canada's 174 nursing schools, with a view towards a system of accreditation.

"If the quality of nursing is to be improved, then education and preparation for that service must be improved," said Helen Mussallem, director of the project.

Miss Mussallem plans to visit a cross-section of nursing schools in all 10 provinces within the next year, to determine the quality of their programs and possibly set new goals.

WELL PREPARED

A graduate of the Vancouver General Hospital school of nursing, she holds a diploma in administration, teaching and supervision from the University of Washington, as well as a master of Arts degree from Columbia University, New York.

She said she will spend a week at each school in Canada, accompanied by a regional official, and will interview students as well as school directors.

"Some might wonder how we can make an evaluation in only a week," she said. "But before we even arrive at a hospital we will have studied a 56-page questionnaire filled out by the faculty and students on the school program."

At present there is no national professional accreditation for nursing schools in Canada.

"Accreditation has been a standard in the United States for 30 years, and we have had it on program."

Gregory F. — I want to spend my money as I please.

Mrs. H. F. — He is equipping himself to be a weight lifter.

Gregory F. — I am 17 and am having a big feud with my family about my allowance. I'll return for various jobs I do around the house I get enough. I'm to take care of my school expenses and have some left over for extras.

I feel I should be free to b u y whatever I want with the extra money, but my parents seem to think they ought to dictate that. I am interested in physical culture. I buy all the magazines on that subject and quite a bit of equipment to go with that.

I consider this a very worthwhile activity, but my parents want me to spend the money on dates and other things. I'm willing to go out with a girl if I like her particularly, but there is nobody I care for and I don't want to waste money on just any girl.

Mrs. H. F. — Greg has spent a fortune in exercise equipment in the past two years and we feel he is just going too far. As it is, he has built up his body so much it is hard to buy clothing for him.

When Greg gets home f r o m school he goes into his room and works out until it is almost dinnertime. We can't see where all this is getting him. He is equipping himself only to be a weight-lifter — and we had hoped he would go to college. His school grades are good enough for it.

We have tried to get Greg interested in music or photography, but it's no go. We have tried to get him to go out on dates with the daughters of some friends, but it doesn't work. They are lovely girls, yet he finds all kinds of faults with them. We are an impasse.

The Council: The R. F.'s have real cause for concern, but they weaken their argument when they try to dictate on the subject of Greg's allowance. He should feel free to do as he pleases with it especially since he has earned the money.

the books of our organization for 14 years, but only now are we at the point where we can investigate the mechanics of a program.

Most boys develop an interest in bodybuilding at one time or another, but when it becomes an exclusive interest it is an indication of a problem.

Like a girl who becomes overly absorbed in her physical appearance and uses much too much makeup, the boy who becomes exclusively concerned about his body has a feeling of inadequacy and seeks some artificial means of gaining confidence.

Because they do not give them access to any real tests outside the confines of their rooms, these adolescents don't gain confidence they need.

It takes a lot of tact and understanding to steer a youngster off this course. Perhaps the best way is to avoid criticism of the undesirable activity, but to bow concern for the teenager's real desire to prove his worth.

Greg can't be forced to get interested in things he far c a n from his current absorption as photography and music, but perhaps his father or some other man in the family can get h i m interested in competitive sports.

It should be pointed out to him that sports like track, swimming, boating, wrestling, football a n d baseball develop a sense of rhythm that is essential to physical fitness. He should be forced to realize that the best athletes are not mere beef.

If college is the real possibility for Greg, it might be helpful to encourage him to think in terms of teaching physical training. This will help him to focus on a goal outside of perfecting his own body.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE GROOM'S PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is to be married soon: a church wedding and large reception following. As the groom's parents, we are extremely anxious to carry out our responsibilities — both before the wedding and at the wedding. (This is our first son to be married.) We have followed your advice about making the call on our son's fiancee and her family, to welcome her into our family; and about a month ago we invited her and her family to Sunday midday dinner, to meet all the members of our family. Now will you advise us, please, about our "coming" duties? Groom's parents.

1. The groom's parents co-operate . . . completely and graciously . . . with all the wedding plans made by the bride's family. (The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding.) The groom's parents assist the groom's parents of the wedding.)

2. Lists. The groom's parents, with the groom, promptly compile their list for wedding invitations and announcements. T h e bride's mother will inform them about the number assigned to them.

3. Wedding Clothes. T h e groom's mother consults with the bride's mother about the costume she will wear at the wedding. "The mothers" wear the same type of costume; the length should be approximately the same and t h e colors should harmonize. T h e groom's father, since he is the man guest of honor, usually wears the same type of attire worn by the groom and his attendants and by the bride's father, the host.

4. Wedding Present.

5. Rehearsal Dinner. Groom's parents are very often hosts at the dinner given before the rehearsal or the supper afterward. This is an exception, as they will have so little responsibility and expense as concerns the actual wedding. Also this is a particularly thoughtful gesture, as it lifts the entertainment responsibility from the bride's parents on t h e very busy day before the wedding.

6. Arrive f o r Ceremony. Groom's parents arrive at church well before the ceremony-hour, and wait in the vestibule of t h e church until the head usher comes to seat them. (Just before the bride's mother is seated.) The usher offers his right arm to the groom's mother, a d escorts her up the aisle (her husband following) to her seat in the first pew on the right of the aisle.

7. In Receiving-line at Reception. The bride's mother will explain the plans for the receiving-line and where groom's mother a n d father are to stand. (Optional whether groom's father a n d bride's father are in line.) Most important duty: graciously to greet wedding guests, graciously to acknowledge congratulations. At the reception, when there is seating (parents' table, for example), the groom's mother, as woman guest of honor, sits at the bride's father, the host. Groom's father, as man guest of honor, sits at right of bride's mother, the hostess.

THE "MUST" THANK-YOU LETTER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it a must that I write a thank-you note to my hostess when I have been a guest only overnight? — Leona K.

Yes.

Jam For Epicures By Amateurs

by Mary Moore

This is a jam column, but I have a touch of a tip for you when you are serving your next strawberry shortcake: If you want to be lavish, make a strawberry shortcake as usual. After it is served, pass an extra bowl of halved slightly sweetened berries. At my brother's house last night the berries were put on the table out of consideration for the reducers. The reducers had them — but they had strawberry shortcake too. Everybody dipped in. An extra berry-topped if strawberries broke a generous serving of shortcake brought raves: "All this and heaven too!" — "Best strawberry shortcake ever," etc. It is so easy a shortcake to be dry.

Now to get ready for next winter. These 2 recipes are foolproof and can be made by cooks who have never made jam before with a pot and one of father's straw-berry jam is considered by jam-tasting experts' fine-textured (if one) to be the best of all jams.

STRAWBERRY JAM:

Three and one-quarter cups washed, hulled, mashed straw-berries (you will need 2 quarts), ¼ cup lemon juice, 7 cups sugar, ½ bottle liquid fruit pectin. Add sugar and lemon juice to straw-berries in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover with hot paraffin at once, adding a second coating when first is set. Makes about 10 six-ounce glasses.

NOTE:

A common error made by amateurs is to double this recipe. Do not make up a larger quantity than above. If you want more, make a second batch.

MADE-IN-A-MINUTE RHUBARB JAM:

Cut red rhubarb up very small — in less than ¼-inch pieces and measure 4 cups prepacked. To it add 3 cups sugar, stir and let stand covered, overnight. Give it a good stir, before you turn out the last lights. In the morning, bring to boil, stir it well, and allow to boil 10 minutes, stirring it occasionally. Remove from heat and put in one package of cherry jelly powder (dry). Pour into 4 hot clean jelly jars. This will be used up quickly for your morning toast and by the children on a slice of white bread after school, that it will keep well, covered, in the refrigerator. But if it is covered with double coating of paraffin it will keep very well in a cool place, for a few weeks, but don't trust it longer.

W.C.T.U. Gives Highlights Of Recent County Convention

The June meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the Y.W.C.A. with the president, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, presiding.

Some interesting highlights of the recent county convention held in Napanee were given. The provincial president, a guest speaker, said "Ontario up to March, 1958, spent $292,000,000 on strong drink. This is an increase of $14,000,000 over last year.

The number of alcoholics increased 91 per cent in the last ten years. The government revenue was $98,000,000 but what is this compared to increased human suffering, tragedies, crippilings, accidents, and loss of labor.

One citizen said, "Gentlemen, you need not give yourselves any trouble about revenue, give us a sober population, and wasting their earnings in strong drink, and I shall know where to find the money."

The Rev. Gordon Hunter, Toronto, said, "France stands at the end of the tragic road, at the present, doubtless because of the tremendous consumption of alcohol. thirty-five quarts of pure alcohol are consumed per person per year in France.

Gene Tunney, the great prize fighter said recently, "Rather give the distillery business is without conscience and without soul.

The general secretary of the Ontario Federation said, "Voluntary total abstinence is Christian ideal."

"An informed youth today will prevent alcoholism tomorrow. The education of youth can reduce alcohol given."

"A program on alcohol education coupled with fun and games, is to be launched soon, showing we need not resort to something that will dull the senses. Units in various high schools will soon be set up.

A new textbook, "Good Health Today," soon to be introduced in our schools, has an excellent section on alcohol. It encourages students to carefully examine the scientific and academic facts, and there one renders his own decisions.

The Christian Science Monitor says: "Strong drink is unquestionably an evil, and evil cannot be used temperately. Its slightest use is abuse; hence the only temperance is total abstinence."

"I am a total abstainer. No alcohol problems, whether social, moral, or economic, ever arose from total abstinence.

"If total abstinence becomes the verdict in this age, it has a good chance of becoming "a way of life" in the coming age".

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The other day a drowning accident occurred because a fishing party best crowded six people into a boat which was built to carry four, and no more. The craft foundered and two of the guests met their deaths. On another occasion a thoughtless youth leaped merrily into a small boat, catapulted over the side and almost lost his life.

These and many other drowning mishaps would not have occurred had a little thought been given to the matter and ordinary care taken.

Overloading a boat is merely inviting disaster and possibly death. Just because a boat is big enough to hold ten people, it doesn't mean you should load that many. One person per seat is plenty. And insist your passengers go aboard one at a time and make each one seat himself before the next steps aboard.

Another accident-inviting habit is to place your foot on the gunwale to board a boat instead of placing it squarely on the bottom centre of the craft. And before anyone gets in or out of the boat make sure it is securely tied to the dock.

The reason for this is obvious. With one foot on the dock and the other on the boat it is sure to move away from the wharf unless tied. So you either jump for it or land flat on your lap in the water.

And if you do much boating you are sure, at one time or another, to meet up with some of the boys in the scarlet tunics of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They are not out for fun or fishing, or to make a social call. They are out to make sure you have at least one approved life belt for each member of your boating party, and to make sure they are worn, not parked somewhere up in the "foc-sl."

The Mounties will be out in full force again this year, patrolling lake, river and creek, and if your boat is not properly equipped with the regulation life-saving equipment your boating fun is over until you conform with government regulations.

Never start your motor unless it is in neutral. If it is an old model, throttle it down. Don't stand up in your boat to start. And if you get tired go to shore and walk around for a few minutes. Standing up in the boat may land you in the water.

If you are caught in the middle of the stream of some distance from shore and a severe electrical storm overtakes you, take it easy. Slick the tip of your steel rod through an earlock opening and tie it there. With the handle in the air and the rod well into the water, you have a satisfactory conductor. Crouching low in the boat will help.

If your craft capsizes, stick with it. No matter if you are a strong swimmer stay with the boat until help arrives. Often the distance to shore is greater than it looks and cramps can attack you before you get there.

And another good rule to follow is, never change places in a boat. A little common sense along this line will avert tragedy. Most modern boats are well constructed and will give years of service without accident if foresight and care are used. Standing up or moving around in a boat unnecessarily will tend to tip the craft and throw others off balance with the result that somebody hits the water.

If you are caught without lifebelts and an accident occurs whereby you are tossed into the water, get someone to throw you the minnow bucket. In an emergency it can serve as a float. Plunge it, open end down into the water and hug it to your chest. The air trapped inside will float you indefinitely.

A rubber boot, or two of them, will serve the same purpose. Plunge them into the water and cling to them, one under each armpit.

So there you have it. As was mentioned before, a goodly number of drowning accidents and fatalities that are so common in the headlines these summer days would not have happened had a little care and common sense been used.

To summer sportsmen and others, their boat is their best friend. But she can be a fickle lady, and if not used or treated properly can act the stage for disaster which could result in fatality. Use her, don't abuse her. Use your head, and in a great number of cases accidents and possibly tragedy will be averted.

Moore Blanks Bombers 3-0 As Athletics, Tigers Win; Braves Hand Giants Shutout

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Chicago White Sox finally have put manager Al Lopez' formula for success to work: If you can't score many runs yourself, don't let the other guy score any at all.

It sounds tough, but that's just what the Sox pitching staff has been doing lately. Ray Moore loaded another shutout on the American League - leading New York Yankees Monday night with a three-hitter that gave Chicago a 3-0 victory and a share of fourth place.

Moore, another profit in that power-for-pitching trade plan put into effect by the Sox last winter, hadn't pitched a shutout in a year, but he helped boost Chicago's whitewash total to six in eight games.

It was the fifth shutout of the season for the Yankees, who were blanked only twice all last year, and their fourth in nine games.

This one cut their lead to 7½ games over second-place Kansas City. The Athletics whipped Washington 7-2 and retained their one-game lead over third-place Detroit. Then, who defeated Baltimore 3-1 in the only other game scheduled.

Moore, now 4-1, gave up nothing but singles, none after the fourth inning. He struck out four while striking out five. The Sox moved into the lead with Jim Busby on a game short of third place on a walk and Sherm Lollar's single. Busby scored the first run after outfielder Whitey Ford failed to hold Lollar's grounder.

The Sox counted three more runs, one Bob Cerv's 19th to tie Boston's Ted Williams for the Big Lead, while winning their fourth in a row. Little Marty Dickson won his fifth with a seven-hitter. He had a shutout until the seventh, then gave up three runs to Norm Zauchin and Roy Sievers, the defeated champs, who now has 13. Bill Tuttle and Hector Lopez also homered for the As, who had 13 hits and loser Russ Heman-merer (4-5) and reliever Bud Byerly.

George Susce late of Boston, won his first for Detroit in his first complete game since Sept. 25, 1955, when he beat the Yankees. The late Oriole run came in the sixth on Gus Triandos' 15th homer. Gail Harris homered off loser Arnie Portocarrero (4-5) for a 1-0 Tiger lead in the second inning. Al Kaline's sacrifice fly made it 2-0 in the third and he then tripled and scored on a passed ball in the eighth.

AUSTRIANS TO VISIT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Admiral Wien, Austrian first division soccer club, will make an eight-game tour of Canada next month, George Anderson, secretary of the Canadian Soccer Football Association, said Monday. The tour will start at Vancouver July 5 and end at Montreal July 24.

Your ace has lost three in a row, dropped a hero in stumbling along with a 5-5 record. Your most consistent winner has been the disabled list and your pitching staff has come through with only one nine-inning complete game in more than three years.

You should be dead.

Instead, Milwaukee Braves reached down to the misers and pulled out a plum named Carleton Willey, a big righthander who won 21 at Wichita last season. He was the toast of the dozen or so kid pitchers who crowded the spring camp. But come cutdown time and he was shipped back to Wichita.

Now, with Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette at 20 apiece for 10 decisions and Bob Buhl already in the win column, Willey has pitched a six-hit shutout in his first major league start and beat the second-place San Francisco Giants 7-0 Monday night.

Willey walked but one and struck out seven—giving up half of the Giants' hits to Leon Wagner, Sandy Amoros and Daryl Spencer. The Cardinals tied the Redlegs for second place by whipping San Francisco, with a 7-5 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates. Meanwhile the first-place Braves ing of Los Angeles Dodgers 6-1.

Willey walked but one and struck out seven—giving up half of the Giants' hits to Leon Wagner, Sandy Amoros and Daryl Spencer. The Braves have two more days to wrap up first off Paul Giel, now 1-2, then kept rolling with home runs from Johnny Logan and Del Crandall and Willey Mays, apparently out of his slump, hit his 10th of the season, his—the second a single for his 1,000th hit in the majors.

Mays, who has second game in the outfield for the Braves in his four-year career, first base since 1952, made a leaping stab that robbed Ray Jablonski of a three-run homer in the fourth. It was Joe's first fielding chance since moving over.

The Pirates built a 3-0 lead against the Cards, then blew it with five errors, three by Ted Kluszewski. Curt Flood had four hits for St. Louis, one a double in a three-run eighth that loaded with the help of two errors. Jim Brosnan (7-5) won it with relief help with Don Cardwell the loser.

Brooks Lawrence (5-3) won his fourth in a row for the Redlegs, going all the way with a six-hitter while the Redlegs handed Johnny Podres his sixth defeat.

Singles by Gus Bell and Roy McMillan, a sacrifice by Lawrence and Johnny Temple's single scored the tie-breaking run in a two-run fifth. Steve Bilko, former Redleg first baseman batted his first start for the Dodgers, scored their run in the second on a walk, Don Zimmer's double and a fielder's choice.

Billy Casper Wins Flint Golf Tourney

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Today is Billy Casper's 27th birthday and he has $9,000, a sterling trophy and the title of golf's leading money winner to make it a happy one.

Casper packed $9,000 worth of dreams and excitement into one final putt Monday. He made it from a distance of 3½ feet and captured the $52,000 Flint open tournament.

Casper finished with a one-under-par 71 and his 283 tournament total nosed out Masters champion Arnold Palmer and Ted Kroll by a stroke.

Palmer finished brilliantly on the Warwick Hills course with a 69, the finest of the rainy day, while third - round leader Kroll staggered in with a 75.

Those winnings for the year exceed $31,000, credited a Casper moneyour with helping him to his third triumph of the year. He was two-over par after the first nine but rain stopped play.

When things resumed, Casper caught fire and Kroll, still two stroke leader at that stage, ended. Casper birdied the fifth hole.

"PRETTY LUCKY"

"That was the difference right there," he said. "Palmer hit his after that—no matter how I hit my shots—seemed to end up in the rough. I was pretty lucky."

Bruce Lenard of Vancouver, among the leading money-winners of the tour after the $110,000 Canadian Open Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas, Nev., Casper and Palmer will get the money.

He had a 303 total and the last player went to the 302 scorers. It was the first time since the Canadian Open in 1954 that Lenard failed to win nothing.

He had a 40-36—76 for 311. Balding of Toronto had 38-40—78 for a 300 total and won $130. Lenard finished by himself out of undisputed first place on the PGA money list with $28,000. Arnold Palmer, whose winnings total $28,530, had finished and the final threesome of Casper, Ted Kroll and Tommy Bolt, United States Open champion, was coming up to decide the issue.

YEAR A TRAP

Casper's second shot to the par-five 18th green was the green on a slope near a trap. He started to chip it but changed his mind and putted. The putt drifted 3½ feet past the cup. Then Kroll putted from the fringe with his 75. Palmer.

Casper stroked in the winning putt that brought him the biggest pay cheque of his three-year career. Kroll and Palmer each won $3,900. Bolt, snarling about the rain, finished with 74 and tied with Doug Ford at 287. They got $2,450 apiece.

Ashley Cooper Wins Match Plays With Injured Thigh

WIMBLEDON, England, — Top-seeded Ashley Cooper of Australia, hampered by a thigh injury, had his troubles in defeating Geoffrey Brown of Britain in the opening round of the Wimbledon tennis championships today.

Cooper limped away for elected treatment of painful tendons in his right thigh after beating Brown, a minor British player who is a Royal Air Force flying officer, 10-8, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

It was a dreary, rainy day for the 72nd Wimbledon opening, with a crowd of 17,291, the smallest opening crowd in nearly 20 years.

Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio, the only real hope the United States in the men's singles, managed to get a first round victory although he has come a blister on his rackets hand. He defeated Enrique Martinez, Spanish No. 6 player, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

The opening day's play was confined to men's singles, with the women, led by defending champion Althea Gibson of New York, going into action today. Rain delayed early matches, one 55-minute shower sending officials, players and spectators running for shelter.

The highly regarded Austra-lians lived up to expectations, winning six of the seven matches, although the veteran U.S. player, Budge Patty outlived Australian Barrie Kendall.

Jaroslav Drobny won strong applause from the gallery with a 2-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory over France's Robert Haillet.

The seventh Czech, who plays officially for Egypt but lives in London, seemed to be cursing the ankle he strained Saturday. He appeared to be a beaten man after the third set but rallied to score probably the most popular victory of the day.

Mal Anderson the Australian won the U.S. title last summer, ousted P.J. Lal of India in straight sets 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. Other scores included:

Chicago Cubs Saw the Light When They Signed Dark

Including games of Sunday, Dark's the major leagues' hottest batsman.

While Stan Musial, his former teammate, is in the throes of a .135 batting slump over the last 16 games, Dark's batting .417 for third place in the National League with 39 hits in his last 24 trips, lifting his average from .253 to .349.

Musial was hitting a sizzling .417 on June 4. Since then he's collected only seven hits in 52 times at bat and his mark has dipped to .360. Stan is still the runnerup behind San Francisco's Willie Mays.

CONTINUES TO LEAD

Mays, in hospital for 48 hours last week, collected three hits Sunday and continued to lead the league with .380.

George Crowe, Cincinnati's first baseman, climbed 20 points to .340. In last week's games, Crowe had 10 safe blows in 18 at bats.

In the American League, 40-year-old Nellie Fox of Chicago White Sox is the second player with .336. He gained one point in last week's action.

Preston Ward of Kansas City remained third although he fell points to .323. Harvey Kuenn of Detroit is fourth though he slumped nine points to .321.*

Jackie Jensen, Boston Red Sox' slugger, walloped three homers last week to wrest the lead from Kansas City's Bob Cerv. Jensen has 19 homers for the season, one more than the As left fielder. Cerv, however, continues to set the pace in runs batted in. He drove in four runs, giving him 55 for the campaign. Jensen has 50, three more than last week.

Big Four Football League Wants Part Not Full Sked

MONTREAL (CP) — The Big Four Football League believes that a partial rather than a full interlocking schedule with the western league is preferable as a starter in meeting problems and continuation of the major loop up.

"We think it more sensible at this stage to consider a walking step instead of a broad jump," said Big Four president Ted Workman in an interview Monday.

Among the Big Four's reasons are the possibilities of delayed or cancelled plane flights, which might involve television rights and commitments, and the likelihood that full complements of eastern clubs' Canadian players might not be available for extended trips for job or business reasons.

The Big Four is expected to maintain this stand when representatives of the six eastern and western clubs meet in Toronto July 13.

BALANCES BOTH

The meeting is the upshot of the weekend discussions in Winnipeg of the Canadian Football League, which embraces both the Big Four and the Western Interprovincial.

A brief for a full interlocking schedule, detailed study and suggested schedule and estimated travelling costs, was presented at the Winnipeg meeting by president Ralph Parliament of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

It received full support of the western league. The East couldn't go along with the proposal. The Toronto meeting was then arranged. Meanwhile, the Big Four will prepare its own brief for circulation among all clubs.

"We are not maintained that the full interlocking schedule is economically unsound," said Workman. "We said many things should be discussed before it is considered feasible or not.

"We want to give the Winnipeg brief due consideration. It needs.

TWO YEARS AGO

"We of the Big Four favored a partial interlocking schedule, just as we did two years ago. We advanced the idea then. The West turned it down.

The Big Four's partial-schedule plan of two years ago was that two eastern clubs play a game each in the West one year, the other two clubs a game each the next year. Western teams would play similarly in the East, with three of the five playing either the first or second year.

Workman said also the Grey Cup game should be considered if a full interlocking schedule were adopted. He felt a partial schedule wouldn't detract from the game's present interest and glamour.

There was also the matter of key teams failing to draw even intra-league play. He felt "new faces" would mean nothing and that a full interlocking schedule might prove a novelty the first year, "but what about the next?"

Gonzales Wins Tennis Loot

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Pro tennis king Pancho Gonzales Monday night clinched the $2,000 top prize in the Tournament of Champions with a 10-8, 6-3 victory over Frank Sedgman coupled with Ken Rosewall's 6-4, 9-7 triumph over Lew Hoad.

Gonzales' record is lost in the six-match round robin. Rosewall assured himself second - place money of $1,000 with a 5-1 record.

Hoad, now 3-2, is doomed to finish fourth behind Tony Trabert, who bounced Australian Rex Hartwig 6-3, 8-6 to complete his 5-1 record. Hartwig finished 4-2 and Sedgman is 1-4. Pancho Segura has a 1-4 record.

Gonzales interrupted his conquest of Segman for a verbal exchange with one of the 4,000 fans at Forest Hills Stadium. Later, Gonzales explained the first-set incident.

"When I was walking around after a bad line call against me," Gonzales said, "one of the fans told me: 'We paid to see him, let's get going.' So I told him: 'I've got some money involved in this, too. So shut up and I'll play!' "

Amateurs' Professional Rule Not Bothering Pros too Much

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Last week's decision by Ontario senior amateur hockey teams to regulate use o' reinstated professionals has stirred little excitement in professional circles.

Ten clubs of the Ontario and Northern Ontario Hockey Associations agreed to abide by the stated pros for 12 calendar months after the date of their last professional game and also not to pay the pro teams for reinstated players.

National Hockey League club officials remained unperturbed. Some declined comment altogether.

Jack Adams, general manager of Detroit Red Wings, was the most outspoken.

"I personally don't go for the proposal. They're really in competition with us and they'd have to give me more reasons. If they're going to have an agreement with us they've got to go through with it. I don't think they really want to do it and this might save some money that way."

SOMETIMES LENDS

Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins said his club sometimes lends or sells its players when they aren't good enough for professional ranks.

When that happens "we're not interested in him anyway. We want our players to go ahead, not back."

On whether the scheme would work, he said:

"If all the senior clubs did the same thing it would be okay, I guess. But there are still a lot of clubs in the U.S. that come to status quo, especially the Western amateur and International leagues."

Stafford Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs said the move was "very well thought out", and necessary to cut costs and "operate at a profit."

He described it as a case of doing something about limiting the high cost of getting ex-pros.

General manager Tommy Ivan of Chicago Blackhawks said: "I don't know what the senior league is trying to accomplish. I don't see where it will affect us at all."

AS ECONOMY MOVE

The move was intended as an economy measure by the financially-hamstrung senior clubs, several of which reported seasonal operating deficits of up to $30,000.

In recent years the clubs have distastefully attempted to outbid each other to acquire contracts of former NHL and 'merican Hockey League players.

Whitby Dunlops stacked their lineup with several ex-pros and won the Allen Cup. They added several more and went on to win the world championship in Oslo, Norway, last winter.

The region will not apply to Belleville McFarlands, Canada's representatives to the world tournament next year.

Under present pro - amateur agreements, professionals may be immediately reinstated and eligible for amateur competition upon application by the NHL president to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Each club is limited to two newly-reinstated pros each year.

Aussie Rugger Player Wants Try With Argos

TORONTO (CP) — A six-foot-six former Australian rugger player is all set up at Varsity Stadium rookie camp Monday night and asked for a "chance to kick the ball."

He is Jim Davidson of Sydney, who played Amateur Rugby League football and was on an Australian touring team to Ceylon.

Officials of the Big Four football club said Davidson, now working in Toronto, first came to them several months ago and asked for a try out—preferably as a kicker. They said he stands little chance of making it as the club's kicker but might catch on as interior lineman.

League rules classify him as an import. If he doesn't make the team he probably will be placed in Argo's farm system.

Davidson's comment:

"With all this publicizing, I don't see how you can get hurt."

Forty-seven candidates turned out for opening sessions of the two-week rookie camp for Canadian players.

The best of the bunch will be given a further chance when regular practices start July 8. The other top prospects will be sent down for further development in Argos' team in the newly-formed Little Big Four Intermediate League.

The top prospects are headed by Paul Dodge, defensive end from Queen's University and Argos' No. 1 college draft choice, and halfback Jon Brewer from the Canadian junior champion Toronto Parkdale Lions, Argos' top choice in the junior draft.

Linemen Bill Beamish and John Casey of the University of Toronto Blues and halfback Neil Armstrong of the University of Western Mustangs are the other college players attempting to break into the pro ranks.

NEWSY TO REFEREE

CORNWALL (CP) — Edouard (Newsy) Lalonde, 80, one-time hockey and lacrosse star, is to referee a lacrosse match here July 1. The game, the first here in many years, has been arranged as part of a program July 1 to 4 to mark flooding of 32,000 acres of land for the St. Lawrence power project.

Detroit Lions President Will Operate Club

DETROIT (AP) — Edwin J. Anderson, president of the world champion Detroit Lions, Monday said he will run the National Football League club himself instead of hiring a new general manager.

The 55-year-old Anderson, one of a group of Detroit men who bought the Lions' franchise in 1948 when it was a losing proposition both on the playing field and in the ticket office, said in a statement:

"I will now actually move into an office at the Lions' headquarters and devote full time to the job."

He quit as president of Goebel Brewing Company to turn himself into a fulltime president of elected chairman of the board of Goebel.

Anderson has been president of the Lions since December, 1948, but much of the team's direction was left to general manager Nick Kerbawy, who resigned last week.

Anderson said Kerbawy's resignation had nothing to do with his decision.

"The Lions' board voted me the post of fulltime president and general manager several months ago and Nick had been aware of this for some time," he said.

Glenn Davis of Ohio State sets a new world record of 49.9 in the 440-yard hurdles during the National AAU track and field championships here. It beat the old mark of 50.5 seconds held by Josh Culbreath of the Philadelphia Pioneer Athletic Club, who's running second to Davis here. (AP Wirephoto.)

Northern Downs Wilsons 4-1 in Soccer Match

Northern Electric scored a 4-1 victory over Wilsons of their inter-city rivals, Saturday afternoon in Bay of Quinte soccer match.

The clubs battled through a scoreless first half with Wilsons carrying the play but lacking finish around the Northern Electric net. Northern took over the play in the second half after Wilsons opened the scoring.

Playing coach Atkins took advantage of sloppy clearing to boot home the first goal of the game for Wilsons. About two minutes later Northern tied the score with Eveden converting Evans' pass. Eveden added his second goal just a minute later to put Northern ahead to stay, finishing a play started by Carter.

Play became rough with referee Les Digby calling a number of penalties. It was on a penalty shot that Eveden completed his hat trick for a 3-1 Northern lead. Carter snapped in a rebound near the end of the game to complete the game's scoring.

Elliott Mile Approved by American Body

NEW YORK (AP)—The chairman of the United States Amateur Athletic Union track and field committee says that Herb Elliott's 3:57.9 mile record already has been approved as an American mark and has been sent to the International Amateur Athletic Federation for approval as a world standard.

Pinky Sobel, the AAU track and field chief, explained Monday night that IAAF rule that distances more than 1,000 yards are timed in fifths only was changed two years ago.

When Elliott ran his record-smashing mile in the AAU championships, it was thought that it would be altered to the nearest fifth a second which would make it 3:58, thus tying the world mark of John Landy.

Harness Racing

MONTREAL (CP) — Sammy Herbert, a six-year-old ha. gelding, was the featured eighth race at Blue Bonnets harness - racing track Monday night pacing the mile course in 2:04.

Jack Herbert drove the Loudon, Ont., horse to victory in the $2,000 event. Second was Congress Braden and Fast Traffic came in third.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Admiral's Ace, owned by Stafford Farms of Toronto and ridden by Dick McLaughlin, was the first purse of the season Monday as he charged from behind to capture the featured Rutherford Plate at New Woodbine.

O'Morrissey was a close second while First Sea Lord finished third, seldom less than a length for all the money. Admiral's Ace ran the six furlongs in 1:11.

TORONTO (CP) — There will be 18 races a day for the first time in Toronto's horse-racing history starting July 1 when Old Woodbine inaugurates its annual evening harness-racing program while the thoroughbreds still are running at New Woodbine.

The trotters and pacers start 30 evenings of their summer meeting at the three-quarter mile oval and track at half-hour after the eighth thoroughbred race has gone at the big new track across the city at Malton.

The thoroughbreds move to Fort Erie from New Woodbine on July 17.

The 30 evenings, stretching from July 1 to Aug. 29, represent the longest harness-racing season in Ontario history. In last summer's program, extended three days over the planned 26, the evening's wagering was just under $3,000,000 and attendance of 160,000, both all-time highs here.

France Has Advantage in World Soccer

STOCKHOLM (AP) — France has one big advantage over the other six finalists in today's World Soccer Cup championships —it's the most relaxed team in the tourney.

All the others — defending champion West Germany, favored Brazil and host Sweden — have been under pressure in one form or another since the tournament started 15 days ago.

Brazil's team is one everybody has been trying to beat. Every match has been in the nature of a challenge to the champs, attracking and packed with extra excitement.

Brazil reached the last stages with victories over Austria, Russia, Wales and a draw against England.

All were hard matches.

Sweden, encouraged by home crowds, have fared the pressure of striving to please the fans. So far, they have succeeded. But they know failure today will bring a flood of criticism.

West Germany is the defending champion, and that's about the most difficult role in any tournament.

Brazil rates as favorite to defeat France in a match that might hinge on the form of Brazil's left wing pair of Pele and Zagallo.

France's right flank in defence looks slightly suspect.

The West Germany - Sweden game shapes up as one between the hard-tackling game of the hard-tackling game of the Germans and the more delicate ballplaying methods of the Swedes.

Must Always Check Scripts Against Clients' Products

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—On a recent television thriller, the victim met his end by cooking gas. The turn of events came as a great surprise to the author of the show, who had painstakingly figured out a murder by means of a live coal-fire stove.

As it happened the rewrite of that portion of the plot was no reflection on the author's ingenuity. It was just that the sponsor of the show happens to be the manufacturer of electric household appliances and feels that current, alternating or direct, should be shown only in its benign uses.

In the planning of every sponsored, live television show there is some responsible soul employed by an interested advertising agency, who is constantly on the lookout for untoward situations like that.

"You can't be too accustomed to checking scripts against clients' products that you don't even think about," says one agency program supervisor.

Even some surprising changes and arrangements are made. In one show, it was necessary to show a number of closeups of a mobster's get-away car, so close that it would be easy to identify the make of vehicle.

The interested advertising agency had stated who manufactures automobiles, even though they were not sponsors of that particular show. The get-away car was chosen carefully, a four-year-old model of a car handled by a rival agency. The theory was that a nice car is used by nice people.

It is all right to hit a comedian in the face with a pie on a program sponsored by a pharmaceutical house selling pills, and other conditions being complied with. It is strictly banned, however, in shows sponsored by a food specialty manufacturer whose products include pie-filling mixes and a pie crust mix. When pies are shown on their time, they want them taken seriously.

Beer manufacturers don't like drama scenes; linoleum manufacturers don't like shots of people slipping; airplane people hate plane crash dramas and so it goes all down the line.

The people who watch for these things also have the job of seeing that clients' products are shown whenever possible.

"You're always saying patience is necessary when fishing, so untangle my line if it takes another hour!"

Barry Nelson Has Returned To Films After Stage Hit

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Barry Nelson thought he detected some sympathetic glances from his colleagues when he returned for a TV show recently.

"I could just feel them thinking, 'poor Barry, he hasn't been working lately.'"

As a matter of fact, Barry Nelson has been working steadily for 12 months and enjoying one of the busiest successes of his life. He drew raves for his performance as Will Stockton in the London company of No Time for Sergeants. Although he was signed for only six months, he extended his stay three times because the show was such a hit.

"But try and tell that to people in Hollywood," he said. "They think because they haven't seen you on TV or in pictures that you've been out of work."

Barry went to work to repair his finances. He appeared in TV plays and put into them every bit of effort he could muster.

"I've been interested in TV and on the theory that you're only as good as your last performance, I figured everything I did in Hollywood from then on would have to be super sensational to offset my stage work. I'm not kidding myself that I'm a big movie star, but I'm in a better position to choose my roles than I was before. I'm not going to do anything that I don't like. I've been highly selective."

He's been selective enough to turn down a number of movie roles and concentrate on TV. "We've been getting some good scripts and I've been getting some good parts," he said. "I'm not kidding myself that Helen Hayes or Judith Anderson will be calling me for highly individual roles."

He's also been selective in his TV commercials. He has refused to do any that he thinks are silly. "I'm not going to do anything that makes me look like a fool," he said.

Barry's next movie will be Diary of a Madman, with William Castle producing and Vincent Price co-starring.

Burma's Premier Is Ousted From Ruling Party

RANGOON (AP) — Neutralist Premier U Nu has been expelled from Burma's ruling political party in a serious split with its anti-Communist elements.

A rump meeting of 140 members of the supreme council of the anti-fascist People's Freedom League voted ifs premier out of office Sunday. Another 120 members boycotted tht meeting and remained behind the premier, who continues in office until scheduled elections this fall.

U Nu's opponents are backers of former deputy premiers U Ba Swe and U Kyan Nyein, both socialists like the premier but bitter anti-Communists.

SUPPORT FOR VOTE

At Sunday's meeting U Nu was accused of working with the opposition "who are above-ground allies of the Communist insurgents" and with releasing two Communist members of parliament from jail so he would have their votes for a June 9 confidence vote.

If Nu won that vote by a narrow majority, thanks to Communist support.

The premier probably will refuse to recognize the council's decision to oust him. He is president of the league and claims the sole right to call the supreme council into session.

Burma has been plagued with jungle terrorists who have kept it in a state near civil war for years. Until now, U Nu's government has insisted on tough surrender terms for the Communist insurgents but Burmese newspapers said today he soon may call a conference of all political parties to work out a peace formula.

U Nu's opponents within the league have accused him of considering a deal with the Communists in return for their support in the national elections.

INVESTIGATE CLAIM

JORCAS, Spain (AP)—Eleven young people in this little mountain village claim they have had visions of the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child in a nearby cave. The Roman Catholic parish priest and his church hierarchy are skeptical as to whether the claims constitute a miracle. However, a thorough investigation is being made. Adults have seen nothing when they accompany the children to the cave.

INVESTIGATE CLAIM

JORCAS, Spain (AP)—Eleven young people in this little mountain village claim they have had visions of the Virgin Mary and the Christ Child in a nearby cave. The Roman Catholic parish priest and his church hierarchy are skeptical as to whether the claims constitute a miracle. However, a thorough investigation is being made. Adults have seen nothing when they accompany the children to the cave.
